Along about the witching hour of mid-night on Monday, a large and noise might have been heard issuing from a certain city hotel, suggestive of a ghostly revel, a democratic caucus or some other abnormal condition of things. Attracted by the dismal sounds our reporter hastened to the hotel aforesaid, where he discovered various and sundry shades gracefully flitting hither and yon throughout the halls, industriously thumping upon the pans, base drums, the horns and various and sundry strings of instruments. Inquiring the cause of this extraordinary musical sore-eye business, our reporter was referred to the hotel register, which bore the inscription under date of July 30th. "Chas. C. Eckland and wife, Wylie, Polk county, Minn." He was informed that Mr. Eckland and Miss Annie Lindblom had arrived on the St. Hilaire train, and at eight o'clock, by the assistance of Rev. Mr. Swanson been enabled to register as above. The crowd was a very good natured one, and, after screnading a few minutes quietly dispersed to their homes.

Delegates for the republican convention to-morrow are beginning to arrive, and the prospects are that we shall have a big convention.

The rumor was circulated last Saturday that Hon. S. G. Comstock was in the city consulting with one or two republicans and keeping out of view of the others. Comstock is not that kind of a republican. If he had been here he would have called upon all of his republican friends that he could have found.

John Gilchrist, a member of a committee of foreigners who are visiting different points in the Red River valley, in the interest of Scottish farmers who wish to come to America to locate, arrived in the city this morning and is spending the day with Hugh Robertson, who is an old friend. The balance of the foreign committee will arrive to-morrow morning and will be properly entertained by the city. They may extend their trip north as far as Hallock, in Kittson county.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republicans of the County Meet and Put a Good County Ticket in the Field.

It was an Old-Time Convention with 151 Delegates and Lots of Enthusiasm.

The Interest Taken by Farmers Betokens Success Next Fall.

The republican county convention met at the court house on Friday August 3rd, at 2 o'clock p. m., and was called to order by the chairman of the County Central Committee, P. J. McGuire. For some weeks it had been generally understood that Hon. H. Steenerson was in the field as a candidate for Congress, and that Hugh Thompson would enter the lists against him, but not until the Saturday previous to the convention did Mr. Thompson give public utterance to such intention, and then announced such intention through the columns of the democratic paper. Immediately after the call was read, August George, for the Steenerson forces presented the name of A. A. Miller, for temporary chairman and Judge R. J. Montague mentioned C. E. Sawyer, presumably on the Thompson side. The usual methods being found inadequate, a ballot was ordered, and the contesting delegations were instructed not to vote. The result of the ballot was, Miller 105; Sawyer 46. Mr. Miller then took the chair, thanking the convention for the honor conferred, and said that he should do all in his power to conduct the business in hand so as to give every member a fair and equal chance with any other member. P. S. Ware was elected secretary. On motion the chair appointed the following committees:

ON CREDENTIALS.

K. O. Gigstad, J. P. Johnson, J. J. Ide, T. G. Thompson and D. P. R. Strong.

—ON PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.—

August George, J. S. LaDue, H. C. Misner, J. K. Messelt and J. Rosanen.

—ON RESOLUTIONS.—

Truman West, P. S. Ware, Norman Hanson, Ole Bang, E. D. Childs, Frank Hanson and H. E. Crooker.

The convention then took a recess to allow the committees time to prepare their reports, but it was found that the resolution committee had several knotty problems on their hands and it took plenty of time to consider them. At 5:30, no result having been reached the convention adjourned until 7:30.

Upon re-assembling in the evening the credentials committee reported 160 delegates entitled to seats in the convention, and recommended that the contesting delegation from East Grand Forks headed by C. E. Brown be allowed 3 votes and the other delegation be allowed 2 votes. Representatives of the two delegations asked to be allowed to present their cases before the convention and were granted the privilege. After patiently hearing the case the convention adopted the report of the committee as a whole. The committee on permanent organization reported, recommending that the temporary organization be made permanent, which report was adopted. The committee on resolutions brought in the following resolutions which were adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

The republicans of Polk county through their delegates in convention assembled, do affirm and declare as follows:

We endorse and approve the platform of the republican state convention adopted at St. Paul July 11th, 1894.

We deplore the unfortunate and depressed condition of the country, and charge the same to democratic ineptitude and incompetency.

We congratulate the people of the Red River Valley upon the passage by a republican legislature and approved by a republican governor of the act "for appropriating money for the purpose of opening the closed water courses leading to the Red River and its tributaries" thus in part discharging the duty of the state to reclaim the wet and overflowed lands of the state and we trust that the good work so auspiciously begun may be continued to a successful issue and, pledge the support of the republicans of Polk Co. to all measures calculated to accomplish this result.

We endorse the wise and statesmanlike administration of our present governor, the Honorable Knute Nelson, and pledge our support to his candidacy for re-election.

We endorse the recommendation of our central committee that a new central committee be appointed, with a suggestion that in the future only one convention will be called for the transaction of all business, and that said convention be called at a time best suited to the convenience of the agricultural districts.

We urge upon all republicans the necessity of holding primaries in every precinct, and giving the same a full attendance.

We hereby congratulate the republican party of Polk county upon the enthusiasm and harmony prevailing on the floor of this convention, presaging, as we believe it does the return of prosperity and republican rule.

The chairman then announced that the next in order was the nomination of 16 delegates to the congressional convention at Fergus Falls, on August 14th, and several nominations were made and the ballot ordered, resulting in the nomination of Andrew Opheim from the 1st commissioner district. That district then presented the names of J. P. Johnson and Norman Hanson, making suspension of rules and a nomination by acclamation, which motion prevailed.

The 2nd district then presented the name of J. J. Ide and K. S. Aker and these gentlemen were elected.

The 3rd district nominated A. A. Miller, Lewis Ellington, C. O. Christinson, Andrew Elken and August George, and these gentlemen were elected by acclamation.

The 4th district nominated K. O. Gigstad, P. S. Ware and C. G. Rapp, who were elected.

The 5th district presented the names of Paul Hagen, Ole H. Bang and D. P. R. Strong, who were nominated, completing the delegation.

The legislative delegates elected were: Geo. W. Roberts, O. A. Thorsen, A. Daniels, Truman West, W. A. Robertson, Dan Patterson, Ole Lakasan, P. J. McGuire and James Jarvis.

Ballot for candidate for district ordered, resulting as follows: S. M. Dainard 75, E. O. Flanders 73, scattering 3, and S. M. Dainard was declared the nominee.

For auditor the name of H. B. Davis was presented and no others being mentioned a motion to suspend the rules and elect by acclamation prevailed.

For treasurer, Knute Opheim was nominated in the same manner, as also was Frank Hanson for register of deeds.

Judge Montague at this point arose and begged the indulgence of the convention a moment. Said that he had noticed that as yet no resolution had been offered endorsing the unanimous choice for candidate for Congress so he would do so at this time. He also complimented Chairman Miller on his impartial fair rulings and the able and conscientious manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the convention. The chairman put the motion and called for a rising vote. Mr. Montague then read the resolutions, published in our last issue, passed by the Third district caucus and urged the convention to live up to the spirit of them. His remarks were ably supplemented by Capt. M. R. Brown who urged the convention to use great care in the selection of candidates. The question now coming up on clerk of court, the names of Nils Munn and Frank Montague and W. A. Lanctot were presented. A full discussion here followed several earnest little speeches being indulged in. Capt. Brown urged the convention to consider carefully the good work already done in making up a ticket and to be careful not to make a mistake that he foresaw could easily be made right here. The men were all equally good, all personal friends, but there were good and valid reasons why W. A. Lanctot should be chosen. When the ballot was ordered Mr. Eiken arose and thanked the convention for the compliment already extended, but wished to decline, on the ground that he was satisfied that the interests of the party were at this time adverse to his ambition and he preferred to sacrifice self entirely to the party. His remarks were received with deafening applause. The ballot showed Lanctot 106, Montague 36, scattering 2. For county attorney B. S. Bennet, of Fosston, was nominated; for judge of probate J. Wadseth; for Supt of schools, Miss Lida Hancock. For county surveyor, W. F. Arnold; for court commissioner, G. H. Palmer, and for coroner G. S. Chesterman. On motion the chair was instructed to appoint a county central committee of 15, and the convention adjourned at 2:30 a. m.

It has been said on every side that this was the fairest convention ever held in Polk county—a convention where the rights of all were respected and all had a chance to express any opinion he chose to ventilate, even though some were disposed to exercise dilatory tactics that were of no earthly avail. The great convention good-naturedly allowed everybody a fair chance, and the result is no one has now the remotest cause for grumbling or kicking. The democratic correspondent of the St. Paul and Minneapolis republican dailies from here, has taken occasion to report a great deal of dissatisfaction, and predicts dire disasters, but the democrats and their allies are the only ones who are dissatisfied. The county ticket nominated is one of the best ever placed before the people of Polk county, composed of solid, intelligent, capable business men, selected with the utmost care and should be elected by a big majority.

Miss Hancock Indorsed.

The following resolutions were enthusiastically and unanimously adopted by the teachers of the Polk county institute at Crookston assembled in special session.

Whereas, as teachers of Polk county we appreciate the desirability of a Co. Supt. of good moral character, marked executive ability, and superior scholarly attainments.

Whereas, farther, we are fully convinced that Miss Ida L. Hancock possesses all these qualifications, and is, by reason of extensive experience, eminently fitted for the position; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That we most earnestly endorse Miss Ida K. Hancock as a candidate for the office of Co. Supt. of Polk county.

RESOLVED, That we will heartily support her irrespective of party preference.

RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers for publication.

By order of COMMITTEE.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of Col. Coldham Post No. 90, Grand Army of the Republic, held in their post room, in Crookston, Minn., on the 3rd day of August, A. D., 1894, the following preambles and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the divine creator of the Universe in his infinite wisdom to remove from the home circle and our post, Comrade William Campbell by death, and,

Whereas, the relation held by our deceased comrade to the comrades of this post, endeared him to them, so that they feel keenly his removal, and they desire hereby to extend their warmest sympathies to his bereaved family. As a post of the Grand Army of the Republic they feel it but proper to place on record their appreciation of the merits as a man, citizen and comrade; therefore be it resolved

That in the death of our beloved comrade, William Campbell, Col. Coldham Post No. 90, G. A. R., loses a comrade who was ever faithful to the duties of our order, as a friend, a true patriot and upright in all his dealings, and the county in which he lived loses a patriotic and valued citizen, the Grand Army of the Republic mourns one less hero, and one more will respond to the roll call on the other side; and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the post, and a copy sent to the family of our deceased comrade.

Thaz Fosston Braach.

Duluth News Tribune: For some time past a party of cruisers consisting of Messrs. J. E. Tuppy, Geo. Hitchcock, Wm. Desmond, A. A. Bolles and Florence Violet, says the Grand Rapids Magnet, have been in Itasca and western Beltrami counties. Last Friday the party returned to Grand Rapids and made its headquarters at the Leland hotel. A large but representative met one of the party and obtained enough information from him to prove that it had been at work looking up a location for the Great Northern railway, for its line from Fosston to Duluth. From the eastern border of Beltrami county a route was found to Lake Winnibigoshish, thence southeast to Little Trunk lake, near La Prairie. From that point the line was run to near Hibbing, the present terminus of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad.

FOREIGN VISITORS

The Agricultural Investigating Committee Arrive And Are Entertained.

On Friday morning the foreign agricultural investigating committee arrived, and were met at the depot by a committee of our citizens, who entertained them until the train that was to take them to Hallock pulled out. Before their return in the evening they were again met at the depot and escorted to the Commercial hotel, where a fine spread was laid and speeches and toasting were the order of the hour. They spent the night in our city and left for Grand Forks on the N. P. train on Saturday morning. The gentlemen composing the party were, John Gilchrist, Scotland; L. R. Stephenson, England; R. H. Anderson, Ireland; A. L. Buchanan, Manitoba; President Crocker, of the Minneapolis board of trade; J. G. Davies, of the Van Dusen & Harrington Grain company; George Purvis, Great Northern agricultural commissioner, and Alex Sennett, of the Spectator.

Mr. Gilchrist, who arrived one day ahead of the party to visit his old friend Hugh Robertson, had a good opportunity to look about the country in the vicinity of the city, which he improved to the utmost. The report of the commissioners is to be published by the British government in pamphlet form on their return for general distribution, and they will carry with them a very favorable impression of the Red River Valley. Most of them are agricultural learners and they were very favorably impressed with our fertile soil.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

An Unsuccessful Attempt to Blow a safe in E. D. Childs' Office.

Sometime during the night of Friday, burglars broke into the office of E. D. Childs & Co., in the Fifth ward, but they were not experts in that line, so accomplished nothing. They were not a little bit shaky, even, or they would have known better than to have tried to find anything in the shape of money in a farmer's safe at this time of the year. The event must have taken place after 10 o'clock Saturday morning, for at that hour W. J. Hitchcock, the book-keeper, passed the office on his way home from the republican convention and everything was all right at that hour apparently. The burglars first broke into the blacksmith shop of A. Vinn and procured some tools, then going to the office they tried a window on the north side, pulling the sash and one light of glass out. For some reason they abandoned that point and going to the rear, on the east side, they forced an entrance through the window and deliberately set to work. They broke the handle off the door of the safe, put powder in, and then an old coat of Mr. Childs' that hung in a clothes press, fastened it up so as to deaden the sound, and touched off the charge. The result was—a big hole burned in the coat, nothing more. At about this stage of the game they seem to have taken alarm and skipped out in such a hurry as to neglect to take along some tobacco that they had secured and got ready to take with them. Some time during the night Mr. Childs' dog made such a racket that after awhile Mrs. Childs got up and looking out saw an object that she thought was a cow in the yard, and Mr. Childs got up, dressed, and went out to drive the cow out. When he got out into the yard no cow appeared and everything was quiet. In his perambulations he passed within fifteen feet of the office but discovered nothing amiss, and it was not until morning that the state of affairs there was discovered. Aside from ruining the safe door and breaking open the money drawer in the counter, the robbers do not appear to have done any damage—they didn't even take the eleven pennies that were in the cash drawer. Mr. Childs came over to the city on Saturday morning and procured a lot of cartridges for his revolver and intends to be ready for any such visit should such a thing occur hereafter.

A Small One.

One day last week burglars went through the residence of Nels Swanson during the temporary absence of Mrs. S., and stole a new suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Swanson, some jewelry belonging to Mrs. Swanson, and a few trifles. Though the robbery occurred in broad daylight, the thieves got away with the plunder and have not been apprehended.

Knute Steenerson was in from Fosston to attend the republican convention on Friday.

Looking Forward.

(By Mrs. E. M. Stanton.)

(From the Message for August.)

'Twas twilight on an autumn day,
At Uncle Jerry's farm;
All was quiet at the big brown house,
They were talking at the barn.

The broad west porch was shaded well
By distant poplar trees,
So Uncle Jerry sat him there
With his paper on his knees.

Now Uncle—he was sixty past,
And oft 'twas said the way
He'd worked hard all the years gone by,
And he guessed he'd had his day.

Thus men, as for a new years past
His time he spends in ease,
While Jake and Phil, their father's farm
Conduct quite as they please.

The village lay a mile away,
And Uncle without fail
Walked every day to loaf awhile,
And get the morning mail.

Out on the lawn the hammock swung,
'Twas there he napped each day,
Or, lilly swinging, watched the boy,
Biting loose the husks of corn.

He liked to keep "well read" upon
New shorties and books,
And read them all as they appeared —Donnelly's, Bellamy's and Cook's.

Now, while he mused this autumn day,
Aunt Martha called her down
Out on the porch where it was cool,
Perhaps some news to learn.

For often, while the household cares
Her busy hands engaged,
She listened, while he read aloud
Some interes-ting page.

Tonight while good Aunt Martha piled
The dishes up and down,
Her other half returned to her
A talk he'd had up town

About Bellamy's "Looking Backward;"
"I'm free to say I think a moral
For setting out a theory;
For weird—he never darked.

With language dull and flowery
He pictured it so plain,
Aunt Martha saw the golden time
And longed for it in vain.

And when he'd done discoursing it
She stood with hands at rest,
A leaning on the wooden fence
And a gazing toward the west

Where evening's sun had disappeares,
But not its mellow rays
To gild the clouds that hove-ed o'er,
And to tint the autumn's haze.

Her face was furrowed well with care,
Her hair was silvered too:
She looked a little tired out,
Though she smiled a moment—do.

And Uncle having ceased to speak,
She began, as was her way,
To mention every matter word,
Her legal lord did say.

"Yes, father, it will surely be -
A 'golden time'" she said;
And I believe the time will come
When you and I are dead.

"I'm looking forward to that day,
That glorious time to come;
Our daughters, they may yet enjoy
That era's setting sun."

"And in my mind I'm satisfied,—
(I hope you will not mind)
A woman's heart would respond
When a hopeful theme she finds)

"If the world's great load of care and toil
Is evened up just for,
And the broadest backs and shoulders
Got the biggest share of care;—

"If faithful ones aren't deserted
And all should get their dues,
Why,—men would do the churning,
And we manage the news."

Another English Adviser.

The Liverpool Mercury comments editorially upon the position of affairs in the United States and says, "The shackles of protection were strengthened to an unprecedented extent by the McKinley tariff." With this opinion we cordially agree, and if it were to apply this one fact to the case of our recent labor troubles it would find that it was the very fear of the loosening of "the shackles of protection" that has resulted in the unfortunate condition of our "tens of thousands of men" who have not yet been granted even a condition of mere existence, bordering on starvation, such as can be found in European countries, but who have been accustomed to live in comfort and prosperity under the belief that America was for Americans and not for foreigners.

Water For Typhoid Patients.

Dr. Hector Maillart of Geneva concludes that typhoid fever patients should in all cases drink at least five or six quarts of water daily. The duration of the fever is not affected, but uncomfortable and alarming symptoms are abated, and no unpleasant consequences have been observed.

A Community of Chess Players.

In the Austrian village of Storiech all the inhabitants are chess players, and the game is taught in the public schools.

SHANGHAI OUT.

One Treaty Port of China Exempt From Attack by Japanese.

CONCESSIONS MADE BY CHINA.

Five Thousand Pennsylvania Slavs Want to Fight for Japan.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—In the house of commons Sir Edwin Gray, in reply to a question from Mr. Gourley, a promisent ship owner, said that Japan had promised that no warlike operations should be taken against Shanghai and its approaches on the condition that China do not obstruct the approaches to Shanghai. Japan contends that the powers have no right to interfere with neutral vessels except in the event of an effective blockade, due notice of which should be given, or in the case of contraband of war. Coal had been held not to be contraband of war, as a rule. But it was possible, in certain cases, that it might become so.

Great Britain must adhere to the doctrine that it is not for fighters to decide what is and what is not contraband of war, regardless of the vesil established rights of neutral people.

RECRUITS FOR JAPAN.

Five Thousand Pennsylvania Slavs Ready to Enlist.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—Valentine Nowacki, the leader of the foreign forces of the coke strikers, proposes to make an offer to the Japanese government to furnish 5,000 soldiers for use in their war against China. The Slavs have been trying for some time for a place to go and leave the coke region. Nowacki will confer at once with the Japanese legation at Washington. He is a soldier and so is every adult foreign coke striker in the region. Their marching and camping of the last three months has made them enthusiastic to once more carry the gun and sabre. Since war was declared between China and Japan Nowacki has had lieutenants in all parts of the region feeling the pulse of his countrymen in regard to offering their services to Japan in the way of five regiments. All seem anxious to go. Nowacki's lieutenants report that it would be an easy matter to procure 5,000 Slavs in the coke region.

RUSSIA'S COUP.

The Northern Bear Said to Be Getting a Sensation Ready.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—The Post's special from Washington says: Russia is planning a coup d'etat in Corea, and unless the czar's plans miscarry there will be one of the most sensational incidents of war between Japan and China. According to news received here the great Northern Bear intends to grab one of the most desirable ports of the hermit kingdom and establish sovereignty over it. The story to this effect is pronounced of a most authentic character and leaves no doubt of its trustworthiness in the minds of the recipients. The reason for Russia's move is her desire for a southern port which shall be open for commerce throughout the year. The only port Russia now has on her Siberian coast is closed during the rigors of winters.

BIG INDEMNITY.

China Wants $3,000,000 on Account of the Kow Ching Affair.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A dispatch to The Times from Shanghai, dated Aug. 6, says that the viceroy, Li Hung Chang, expects the British government will claim compensation for the relatives of the victims of the sunken transport Kow Ching and also for the owner of the cargo, who were under the protection of the British flag when the Kow Ching was sunk. Li Hung Chang estimates the indemnity due to China from Japan on account of the Kow Ching affair at $6,500,000.

Going Home to Fight.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Aug. 7.—A large number of Chinamen passed through this city en route from the East and bound for the West, where they will embark on steamers for Hong Kong. They will enter the Chinese army.

Twelve Lods Rescued.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Twelve boys who had been swept out into the lake on a frail raft, were rescued by the life saving crew. The boys had been diving from the raft when it broke from its moorings and drifted rapidly away from land. The screams of the lads attracted a large crowd and they were rescued with little difficulty.

The Visible Supply.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The visible supply of corn Saturday, Aug. 4, as compiled by the New York Produce Exchange is as follows: Wheat 60,001,000 bushels, increase 2,834,000; corn 3,757,000 bushels, decrease 28,000; oats 1,497,000 bushels, increase 350,000; rye 214,000, increase 12,000; barley 897,000 bushels, increase 6,000.

Locked Children in the House.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Aug. 7.—News reaches here from Linwood, Ark., that Peter Williams and his wife left their two children locked in their house while the parents attended church, and upon their return found the house a heap of ashes with the charred remains of the children therein.

COWES, Aug. 7.—The Vigilant beat the Britannia and the Satanita, the latter by only about eight minutes and the former by considerably greater time.

SITTING BULL'S DEATH.

The Killing of the Chief Brought About by His Son's Threats.

"Did you ever know just how Sitting Bull was killed?" asked Lieutenant Baker of the Twelfth infantry, U. S. A.

"I do not think," he continued, "the details were ever printed. I never saw them, and I was there."

I tell it, as near as it can be recalled, as the lieutenant told it.

Sitting Bull was at his shack with his sons, near Standing Rock agency, when he was sent for to come into the agency. The Indian police were commissioned to bring him in, and when an Indian policeman gets that order and finds his man he brings him, dead or alive, unless the man gets the drop first. Sitting Bull was disposed to obey the summons, but one of his sons, as haughty an Indian as ever lived, taunted the old man for his weakness. He called him a squaw, and that epithet to an Indian brave is the cap sheaf of all that is decent. The old man weakened under the boy's taunts, and the Indian police did the rest. Sitting Bull was all that his admirers claimed for him. When he fell, the boy who had taunted him crawled under the bunk where the old man had slept. He was there when Shavehead, an Indian from the agency, came in. He heard the story. He liked Sitting Bull, and when he was told that the boy had taunted his father and was the cause of his death Shavehead and the boy deserved death, and he was dragged out from under the bed and killed. These details Lieutenant Baker says he never saw in print.

The reading of romances is forbidden by the Koran; hence popular tales are never put in writing among Mohammedans, but are passed from one story teller to another.

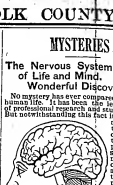
MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.



No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading study of professional research and study for ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that every part of life is located in the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that the pricking of a needle will cause instant death.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the brain, and located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they control or nerve build are also deranged. Weakness is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented passing to it from the brain. Any deranged action will be understood how the derangement of the nerves of diseases will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, and from a strange but common fact originating in the organ itself. Dr. Miles' Nervine is the most successful remedy in treating these diseases in that they treat the cause, rather than the effect, of the disease, which are the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has made professionally studied the subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in relation to the nervous system, and these being the facts contained in this short statement, and that the ordinary remedies only obtain relief in a few cases, and seldom a cure. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, spasms, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter what symptoms they may present. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the principle of restoring the nerve force. Nervine Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price. $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5. Guaranteed free. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Thomas Connaughty and Ella Connaughty, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to The Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 12th day of January, A. D. 1892, and was filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of January, A. D. 1892, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book 43 of mortgages, on pages 168 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $375, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten (10) per centum (10%) per annum payable annually according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, by written assignment, dated the 16th day of January, 1892, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 16th day of January, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in book 67 of mortgages, on page 406.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $375, and the interest thereon since September 1st, A. D. 1893, according to the conditions of said note and mortgage, and the sum of $7.00 taxes for the year 1893, and the sum of $7.00 taxes for the year 1894, have been paid by said assignee, and also the sum of $5.00 premium for insurance on the buildings on said premises for the year 1894, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, duly recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described property, to-wit: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of section twenty (20), township one hundred forty-one (141) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 29th day of August, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and note, together with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and the sum of seventy-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in said mortgage and agreed to be paid, and no proceedings having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured thereby, or any part thereof.

Dated July 2nd, A. D. 1894.

USHED IN THE ICE

INITE NEWS OF WELLMAN'S POLAR EXPEDITION.

Ragnvald Jarl Was Crushed May 14—Boats and Provisions Were Saved, Safely Removed and the Party is Pushing On Northward.

ROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 3.—News of e Wellman polar expedition has been received. It was brought by the sealer lygen, Captain Pedersen, which has ived at Tromsoe with news of disaster to the expedition, and also with ptain Bottolofsen and three sailors of s steamer Ragnvald Jarl, which car d the Wellman party to the Arctic, which has since been wrecked. ptain Bottolofsen furnishes the follow- narrative of the experiences of the pedition:

After several battles with the ice ing and winter ice, the Ragnvald Jarl rived on May 26 at Table island, one the Seven Islands group. The ice wever, compelled a return to Walden nd, where May 30 Wellman left the ship ith May 24 with 13 men, 40 dogs and 110 ys provisions. After the party had tablished a depot they continued east nd a distance of 60 miles, thence ortheast, hoping to reach the land that believed to exist in that direction. Up the day of the departure of the sledge arty the expedition had had good eather, the worst being only 20 deg. elow zero.

Were in Good Health

The members of the party were in ood health when they left the ship. hey intended to return over the same ute by which they advanced, reaching orthern Spitzenbergen on Sept. 15 at eadquarters at Danes island on ct. 1. On May 28, four days fter Mr. Wellman and his comanions left, the Ragnvald Jarl was roken by the ice and totally lost. The ien in charge of her managed to save me of the stores. A messenger sent Wellman, informing him of the ca astrophe, and it reached him at Max ans island. Mr. Wellman, Charles ledge and two others then returned to he Walden island. With materiai aken from the wreck of the ship they uilt a good house to accommodate the rew and as precaution in case the exedition were compelled to winter at Walden.

Decided to Proceed

Wellman left again to join the sledge arty on May 31. He writes on the ame date:

"I have decided to proceed as previously planned, except that I intend to eturn to Walden island not later than Sept. 1 and to be at Danes island by Sept. 15."

The latest news received from Mr. Wellman was of June 17 date, when Mr. Wellman, a member of the party, with one man, left the expedition at a spot ix miles east of Cape Platen, where the explorers had met ountain ice and were waiting for open water. All were well. On the return of Winship to Walden island Captain Bottolofsen and three of the crew of the Ragnvald Jarl started on a journey southward in aluminum boats, seeking assistance. They met the Norwegian sealer and Captain Pedersen consented to carry them to Tromsoe. Here Captain Bottolofsen will charter a new vessel and will return as soon as possible to Danes island.

In the meantime the Wellman party has gone north over the ice. Captain Pedersen expects they will succeed in reach Gillet island. Hyerdahl, a ski runner and salmon steamer from the University of Christiania, and a member of the Wellman party, has been sent to Danes island by John Professor Irgens.

New Tin Plate Factory.

LORAINE, O., Aug. 4.—It is understood that the American Steel company of this place has entered into a contract with a company to erect a tin plate factory here. It will be a large one. Corn corn and will, it is said, employ 1,000 men. The tin sheets will be furnished the new concern by the Johnson company.

Relieving Fire Sufferers.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Aug. 4.—Three hundred and fifty dollars' worth of provisions and clothing were forwarded by the city to fire sufferers at Phillips, and contributions of $10 each made by John P. Lincoln lodge, K. of P., and Wilson Colwell Post, G. A. R.

Repulsed by Militia.

PERU, Ind., Aug. 7.—There was a small fight between the militia and a mob of Oglesby miners on the Illinois Central railroad bridge, who attempted to force their way into the city. They were repulsed by bayonets, several of the mob being wounded. There was no firing.

Strikers Lost at Omaha.

OMAHA, Aug. 7.—About 1,500 men who struck at the South Omaha packing plants have lost and the plants are running as usual with full complements of men. The packers were unanimous in stating that they had no differences to arbitrate.

Less Than Half a Crop.

DES MOINES, Aug. 7.—The state crop bureau here is flooded with telegrams and letters in regard to crops and weather. Reports so far received indicate that the weekly report will place the average condition of corn far below 80. The drought is still unbroken in the state.

Waite's Presidential Hee.

STOCK CITY, IA., Aug. 7.—Hon. Robert W. Bonynge, a member of the Colorado legislature, says that Gov. Waite of Colorado will be renominated by the Populists, and that he was an avowed candidate for the presidential nomination in 1896 on the Populist ticket.

Sanio to Be Guillotined.

LYONS, Aug. 4.—At the conclusion of the trial of Casario Santo, the murderer of President Carnot, in the assize court here, the prisoner was sentenced to be executed by the guillotine.

THE STRIKE IS OFF.

Chicago A. R. U. So Declares Except as to the Santa Fe and Eastern Illinois.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—After a struggle of 40 days against the railroads, the American Railway union in Chicago has declared off the strike inaugurated in behalf of the Pullman employes. Beginning in the morning each member of the union who responded to the call to strike will be at liberty to resume work.

At a meeting of the delegates of the 34 local labor unions affiliated with the A. R. U. during the afternoon it was rooted to declare the strike off in Chicago, except on the Santa Fe and Chicago and Eastern Illinois. The action was purely local, and the declaration does not even affect Pullman. Neither President Debs nor any of the A. R. U. national officials were present at the meeting. In fact President Debs had left the city for Terre Haute before it occurred.

NO FRAUD UNEARTHED.

Sugar Trust Investigating Committee Makes Its Report to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator Gray, chairman of the sugar investigation committee, presented to the report of the committee to the senate and asked that the committee be discharged. The main report is signed by all the senators of the committee, but Senators Lodge and Davis present a supplemental report, and Senator Allen also presents his own views on some features of the case. The report which has been the work of the full committee, recites the causes which led up to the investigation, and quotes the article from the New York Press on which the charges against senators was based. It also recites the facts which have been published already as to the refusal of the correspondent, Edwards, to answer questions put by the committee.

Carlisle Exonerated.

Secretary Carlisle is exonerated, and all the parts of the article reflecting on him are declared to be without foundation, "except that it is a fact, according to Secretary Carlisle's testimony, that he did, at the request of Senator Jones of the finance committee, draft an amendment to the sugar schedule, a copy of which, as described by Mr. Carlisle, is attached as an exhibit to the testimony."

No Improper Conduct.

The report concludes by saying that no evidence has been adduced tending to show improper conduct on the part of those engaged in the framing of the sugar schedule in the tariff bill.

"Though perhaps outside the scope of the duty imposed upon your committee, they say, "they take occasion to strongly deprecate the importunity and pressure to which our chamber and members are subjected by the representatives of great industrial combinations, when enormous wealth tempts to undue influence and to create in the public mind a demoralizing belief in the existence of corrupt politics."

FIREMEN INJURED.

Grand Stand of the Philadelphia Ball Club Destroyed.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Fire here destroyed the grand stand of the Philadelphia baseball club, a large barn of the omnibus company. Seven firemen, James McGee, Charles Boyer, Assistant Engineer Ellinger, Lieutenant Clayton, George L. Reese and John Elliott were badly burned. The pavilion was insured for $10,000 and the loss there will be about $80,000. The omnibus company's loss is $20,000; fully insured. Other damage to property amounts to about $13,000; partially insured.

LUMBER BURNS.

Nearly Two Million Dollars Worth Destroyed by Fire at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Two acres of lumber in the district over which the fire swept are still smouldering. All over the district between Blue Island avenue and the river, and Robey street and Ashland avenue, the yards are covered with smoking piles of lumber and wrecked buildings, and streams of water were poured over the ruins all day. The total loss is estimated at from $2,000,000, and the burned property was largely insured.

Thayer Gets the Judgeship.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The president sent to the senate the following nominations: Justice—Amos M. Thayer of Missouri to be United States circuit judge of the Eighth judicial circuit; James D. Porter of Tennessee to be United States district judge of the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee, vice D. M. Key, resigned; H. S. Priest of Missouri to be United States district judge of the eastern district of Missouri.

National Boys' League.

DENVER, Aug. 7.—Incorporation papers have been filed here for the National Boys' league, an organization intended for boys from 14 to 21 years of age. The proposed work of the league is a combination of the Chautauqua and Christian Endeavor ideas, the motto being "Self Help."

Killed by His Brother.

GALENA, Ills., Aug. 7.—George Richardson, a prominent farmer of New Diggings, Wis., was waylaid and murdered while riding home from Galena, by his brother, Mark. There had been ill feeling between the brothers for years and they were engaged in litigation about their father's estate.

District Conventios.

The republican district convention of the republican party of the district composed of the counties of Polk and Pennington, to be held on Thursday, the 16th day of August, 1894, at 11 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for congress, and to transact such other business as may properly be brought before the convention. The basis of representation will be as follows: Each county in the district will be entitled to three (3) delegates at large, and one additional delegate for each one hundred (100) votes and major fraction thereof cast for Lorin Cobb, for governor at the election of 1892. Under the above mentioned basis of representation, counties in the district will be entitled to the following number of delegates in said county, viz:

Becker	11	Norman	11
Big Stone	6	Otter Tail	19
Clay	13	Polk	27
Douglas	8	Pope	10
Grant	11	Stevens	7
Kandiyohi	17	Swift	9
Mahnomen	5	Traverse	6
Marshall	9	Wilkin	6

Total number of delegates entitled to seats in the convention, 205.

BRONSON STRAHN, Chairman.
P. E. OVERSON, Sec., Goneville.

Congress is still wrestling with the tariff question with no definite assurance of ever being able to do anything else. Verily that democratic administration is a dandy!

The democrats used to howl at the republican policy. Well the republicans had this advantage over the democrats they had a policy, but the democrats have none.

The democratic state central committee is having a monkey and parrot time just about these days. The committee would endorse Clevelland so the chairman and secretary got mad and resigned—"and darn it, there you are."

The new management of the St. Paul Globe has decided to dispense with the services of their veteran newspaper man, Harlan P. Hall, and that is right where they have made one big mistake. Ever since the Globe went into the hands of a receiver the country has been enjoying the legitimate fruits of a democratic administration, which means distress and hard times, and all that has kept the Globe afloat has been the personal popularity of H. P. Hall. But some people do have to learn by experience, and the Globe people will soon see where they have made their big mistake.

The latest rumor from the democratic camp is to the effect that the dems want to endorse S. M. Owen for governor if the pops will fire E. E. Lommen and endorse a democrat in his place for lieutenant-governor. Then the plan will be to make Owen United States senator in Washburn's place, thus securing a democratic governor. In return for this sacrifice Lommen is to be given a soft job somewhere and everything is to be lovely. We have our doubts, however, if such a scheme is contemplated, of its perfect success. It cannot succeed if Mr. Owen is the kind of man we think he is.

The Times, as usual attempts to belittle the republican county convention by publishing a garbled and untruthful account of it and attempts to make out that the thing broke up in a row that will divide the party at the polls. Of course, where two candidates appear in the field for the same office each will have his friends. In this case Mr. Thompson had fewer than Mr. Stevenson, and after having had every facility given him by the convention to make as strong a fight as he could, Mr. Moulgrave, when he saw God Lawless defeated, gracefully gave up the fight and moved to make the nomination of Mr. Steenerson unanimous. This was conceded by a rising vote, but the Times quite overlooks this fact and tries to make out a great breach in the party, that will wreck us at the polls. Not satisfied with that the Times man sends a garbled report to the republican papers in St. Paul and Minneapolis and thus the democrats are enabled to get in their work against the republican party more effectually. If those daily papers expect our people to subscribe for their sheets they should secure their information from republican sources and not be made the vehicle of such lying, slanderous reports.

The Times is afflicted because "the connivance of Gov. Nelson and the perfidy of P. J. McGuire" spoiled the Times' plan for running the republican convention. Gov. Nelson has had no hand in the fight nor could he very well have, being a warm personal friend of several of the aspirants for the nomination. About three weeks before the convention, P. J. McGuire was approached and asked to join in sending an anti-Steenerson delegation, and he positively declined to do so, saying he was utterly opposed to giving the delegation to any man in the south part of the district as long as we had as good men in the north part of the district who would not be averse to taking the nomination, and especially as we had men in Polk county who were trying for it. As a candidate before the state convention himself, it would not be reasonable to expect him to entangle himself in the congressional fight, neither did he do so.

The catch out of the meal-bag, A. J. Richen, who has recently manifested popolistic tendencies, has been "mentioned" as a candidate for congress on the populist ticket, and it is said that he will accept if he can have the endorsement of the democrats.

THE REVIEW TABLE.

Canadians will find the August number of the American Review of Reviews of more than ordinary interest. The articles by Mr. William R. Wallace on the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, by Attorney General Longley on "Canada's Political Candidates," and by Dr. Albert Shaw on "Toronto as a Municipal Object Lesson," form the most important contribution to an understanding of Dominion interests and politics that has recently appeared in periodical literature.

THE NEW CLASSIFICATION.

Forty Populists, Three Democrats and Two Cowards in the Senate.

In the senate of the United States at the present time there are 40 Populists. The names were disclosed by the vote last week striking out the Populist income tax sections of the tariff bill:

Yeas—Allen, Neb.
Allen, Tenn.
Berry, Ark.
Blackburn, Ky.
Butler, S. C.
Cameron, Pa.
Carey, Wyo.
Chilton, Tex.
Coffery, La.
Coke, Tex.
Cockrell, Mo.
Daniel, Va.
Faulkner, W. Va.
George, Miss.
Gibson, Md.
Gordon, Ga.

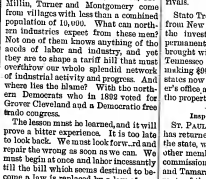
Forty Populists! Socialism is making headway toward anarchy!

In the senate of the United States at the present time there are two cowards:

A. P. Gorman, Md.
George Gray, Del.

There are other cowards whose names ought to go with these. But these cowards are conspicuous—so conspicuous that they deserve to stand alone.—New York Sun.

Bottling Them Up.



THE SOUTH IN THE SADDLE.

Look Forward, Not Backward, and Prepare for the Coming Victory.

Seven southern senators and congressmen, with one northern senator of southern sympathies, have interviewed with the industrial destinies of 70,000,000 of people. Jones, Wilson, McMillin, Turner and Montgomery came from villages with less than a combined population of 10,000. What can northern industries expect from such men? Not one of them knows anything of the needs of labor and industry, and yet they are to shape a tariff bill that must overthrow our whole splendid network of industrial activity and progress. And where lies the blame? With the northern Democrats who in 1892 voted for Grover Cleveland and a Democratic free trade congress.

The lesson must be learned, and it will pay us a little longer to wait, if we but learn to look back. We must look forward and repair the wrong as soon as we can. We must begin at once and make it unnecessarily till the bill which seems destined to become a law is replaced by a law of protection. In country many records, our laborers must be idle, our factories closed, our savings withdrawn and spent, our republican progress, national and individual, checked, but next November and again in 1896 we can right the wrong, and we must do it as unequivocally that the Democratic party will not again come to the front for a generation to come.

FRENCH ART OF TODAY.

Only the Genius of the People Keeps It From Hopeless Debasement.

For years all the art roads have led to Paris. It is today the center of the art world, a model of taste, skill and knowledge as well as a hotbed of eccentricities, mannerisms, stilted affectations and small trickeries. It leads in the world, takes credit for all its virtues and is saddled with all its vices. It is ruled by the quips and cranks of what at times seems outrageous fortune; it is magnified and belittled; it is overpraised and underpraised; it seems to be rising to lofty heights at times and then again to be sinking into the mire. It is at once the best and the worst art center in the world, a crucible where all elements mix, all become alloyed, and yet all average up a respectable grade of amalgam. That which keeps it from hopeless debasement is the art genius of the French people. Has that art genius ever reached a zenith? Has it fulfilled its mission and vented the finer feelings of France, as painting once did in Italy and Spain? Did we accept the exhibit at the World's fair as a criterion we might think her day was about finished, that her artists had all said all there was for them to say, but the representation was inadequate.

The French stand sponsor for all the academic auxiliaries displayed there, for all the studio recitation, all the exaggerated realism, all the tawdry sentiment, and yet at heart they have little sympathy with them. The academic art is assumed from early in life by the example of Italy and the misdirected energy of youth. Poussin or Lebrun of old than Corneille. The monarchy upheld the academic mensuo it smacked of heroism and the empire became it fostered the military spirit, but the republic has barely tolerated it, and the materials have always hated it. It is the latter noir of French art, against which the younger spirits of the nation revolt. Why, if not that it fails to represent the French? They are fond enough of talking about such barbarians as Poussin, David, Ingres and Cabanel, but the men they love are the rebels, Watteau, Fragonard, Delacroix, Millet, Corot, Courbet. The vivacious, the decorative, the emotional, the sentimental, the positive—all these they love because they are national characteristics, but the mock heroic, the grandiloquent, the bombastic, have been more the earth of foreign imitation than the outcrop of French feeling.—John C. Van Dyke in Century.

SEVERE ON AMERICANS.

How One of John Bull's Watchful Organs Sizes Up Some American Subjects.

Except a Yorkshireman there is no more self conscious person than your untraveled American. He knows everything. You can't take him in. He comes from the biggest country in the world. His smartness is proverbial. He does not continually exclaim, "I am a Yankee I am," but he metaphorically waves his flag in the face of an effete civilization and trails his egotism before the darned old country all the time, you bet! And it is done surely and persistently. Every whipper snapper of a sneak thief has him. Notwithstanding the staleness of the confidence trick in his own country, he is a prey to the first American sharper or the clumsiest imitator of the Yankee methods whom he meets in street or barroom. The papers lately have contained several instances of the successful practice of the confidence trick on Americans. The murder is that any one can be fleeced so easily.

Imagine my same person being induced to hand over his watch and his purse to a total stranger and letting him go out of sight to test his faith in the said stranger—"to show his confidence" in a man he does not care a button about, and whose acquaintance he has only just made. This happened the other day in Holborn to an American gentleman who parted with watch, ring and notes to the value of nearly £300. The story began by one of two confidence men spotting him for an American in Holborn and asking him, "Say, stranger, is this a new street?"

The two men were Americans; they came from Virginia; the dupe was from New Jersey. Of course they all adjourned to the restaurant to have a drink. The first Virginian gentleman had come into a large fortune and wanted to give a lot of it away, but not to Britishers—oh, no—but to his own countrymen.

The Jersey gentleman was induced to undertake the office of my lord bountiful to the millionaire and was persuaded for a time to hold possession of a great bundle of spurious notes. Then, to show his confidence in his new friends, he handed over all he had about him, and they presently decamped with his money, "brads, cash and plate." He had to go home before the police could enter the masquerades, but on reaching New York he will be asked by cable to keep the promise he made that he would return and prosecute them if the dull London detectives could lay hands on the astute operators from Virginia.

And this kind of thing is going on continually. The credulity of people in general says a great deal for the trustfulness and sympathy of humanity as a whole. Cynics would say that it may be taken as other indicative of its lack of greed. It certainly says little for its caution. The most transparent swindles of the day for the direction of companies, partnerships, offers of fortunes for a few pounds, successful systems of betting and speculation and their dupes day by day, and Monte Carlo is extending its palatial halls.—Newcastle (England) Chronicle.

WILD BILL A SOLID MAN.

The Body of the Famous Desperado Had Turned to Stone.

The climate of Colorado is so exceedingly dry in the mountains and in the state that ordinary objects, such as potatoes, vegetables of various sorts and even small animals, quickly when covered with sand. The body of Wild Bill, the famous desperado, is today solid stone. He was buried in the sandy country near Telluride, and about four years ago his friends decided to put up a monument in his memory. They went out to his grave, which is in the open prairie, and one of the party, an old scout, was taken to exactly locate where he was buried. The sand had shifted and blown in great heaps, as it does all through that country, and the scout had a good deal of difficulty in absolutely locating the spot. Finally he struck a mound that he said had Wild Bill under it.

Due to the uncertainty of the situation and his hesitancy, the party decided to dig down and see whether he was right. Presently the agonies struck a rock—a scarce thing in that country. They shoveled all around it, and soon revealed the petrified image of Wild Bill, as perfect as the day he died, with not a trace of decomposition. Even the clothes and shoes were turned to stone. Some of the parties wanted to take the body up for the purposes of exhibition, but the rest of the party would not agree, as he was called, remarked that the first man who tried to do so would find a bed in the hole that Bill Hickok, the man who was abandoned.—Washington Post.

Lost a Small Fortune.

There was quite a crowd around a coalhole in the sidewalk, and it was soon learned that a lady who was passing had stepped into the uncovered hole, and they were getting her out. She was not hurt in the least, but rather frightened and dusty. A male relative who accompanied her was executing a series of gymnastics around her.

"Sure you're not hurt, Addie?" he asked anxiously.

"Not a bit, Richard."

"No sprains or broken bones?"

"Not one. You see, I was caught by a man who was passing, and that saved me from being hurt."

"Where is the officious wretch?"

"Richard, ho is my deliverer!"

"Deliverer nothing! If you had just broken one little bone you would have sued the city and recovered $10,000 damages."—Detroit Free Press.

Big Worms.

A waggish farmer in Ohio killed 40 black snakes and buried them in a sandpit. The next day he sent his hired man, a Swede, to dig fishworms in the same place, and the size of the worms frightened the poor fellow nearly out of his senses he fled in terror from the scene.—New York Ledger.

MODERN DRAMATIC CHANGES.

Unfavorable Comparison of the Characters of the Stage.

The other night a man went to the theater who had not been there for years, and he couldn't make it out. First of all he missed the simple village youth, the virtuous hero who was wont to take the first prize at the Horticultural society, or else win the guerdon at quoits, or something or other in the rustic revels. But worst of all he missed the dear old fashioned villain, and although this play had a tremendous villain in it our friend was not impressed with him a bit. He sighs thus:

"I came away again, sadly disappointed. The play was not what I expected. I shall go no more to the play house. The palmy days of the dramas are over. The theater has fallen into the sere and yellow fifth act, and there is no health in it.

"The theater has followed the path of literature and the good old things are changed. I beheld a lot of swell people in evening dress on the stage. They spoke quietly to one another, very much as people do off the stage and in very much the same sort of language.

"This is not what I want when I go to the theater.

"What is the theatrical villain of today? Is he a real, good old fashioned ruffian? Does he ever drag a helpless maiden from the domiciliary proof of her ancestors by the hair? No, sir!

"Does he ever say to the hero, 'Say one word, and thou art food for the wolves?' Does he ever grab the heroine by the wrist, drag her down the stage in three long strides, slam her down in a big chair, hand over her and whisper fiendishly: 'Sdeath, maiden; but, by my soul, I love thee! Thou shalt be mine! Yield, or by heaven'—

"That's all I know of that speech because 'by heaven, I'll' is the cue for the maiden to spring up, and, throwing the 2 stone villain half way across the stage, to say: 'Unhand me, ruffian! And know that rather than mate with such as thee I'd cast myself from yonder battlement into the foaming flood beneath!'

"And does the villain then say: 'Now, by heaven, I like thy spirit! I love thee all the more for it!'

"And does the maiden say, 'Merciful powers, protect me!'

"And does the door open and the hero rush in armed with a good blunt broadsword?

"And then do he and the villain fence up and down the stage nine, eights, shoulder blows, cut and thrust?

"Oh, no!

"These things have given way to swallowtailed coats and high collars, and the villain is now as big a swell as any fellow in the show.

"Oh, for the good old palmy days of the drama when the broadsword ruled and there was gore!

"The modern drama is too much like leo cream after a heavy dinner—weak and unsatisfying."—Pearson's Weekly.

ONLY A WAIF.

But the Gates Will Surely Be Ajar For Him In the Other World.

Uncle John Thorpe stood among his flowers one morning thinking how much better they were than the money that bought them.

The front door opened slightly, and there came through the crevice a very small boy, much tattered as to clothes and having streaks of the town dirt across his face.

He saw Uncle John back among the flowers and said:

"Mister."

"What is it?"

"Say, I want a rose," and he held out a penny.

"For a rose?"

"Dat's all I can blow."

"You'd better let me give you a cearnation. It looks just as well in a gentleman's buttonhole," with a smile.

"No kiddin, mister. I sin't wearin flowers. It's for me pardner."

"Your partner?"

"De kid dat's always been wid me. He's out in t'o hospital, and I t'ought he'd like to have a rose."

Uncle John picked out the rarest and sweetest rose of all and took the penny. The boy went away with the great nodding blossom hugged against his ragged waist, and Uncle John was left with the reflection that there are some things in the world as beautiful as flowers.

It was a week later when the door again opened, and the same tattered boy, his face memorably clean, came in and once more found Uncle John at home among his flowers.

"Mister."

"Hello, here! The boy that bought the rose. How's your partner?"

"Dat's what I came in about. He's dead."

"That's too bad."

"Say, mister, do you make dem Gates A'jar' t'ings for to put on coffins?"

"Yes, sometimes."

"Well, t'o boys have chipped in for one, and here's t'e stuff." And he opened his right hand, which was heavily full of pennies and nickels.

Uncle John gathered together the coins and counted them. The total was 76 cents.

"We t'ought for dat we could get somethin purty nice fer t'e kid."

"Yes, indeed. Come this afternoon."

The boy went away undecorated. Uncle John as he wired together the green strands and the rich clusters of bloom again reflected, and his reflection was that the gates must be ajar for such "kids."—Chicago Record.

Artificially Red Oranges.

Blood oranges are now prepared artificially. They are even richer in flavor than the regulation red orange of nature. An ordinary orange is punctured, and a small quantity of California claret is injected by means of a powerful syringe. The wine is drawn up into the pulp of the fruit by means of the capillary attraction and gives the orange the deep red so admired by connoisseurs.—New York Herald.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, July 31.

The only feature of interest in the proceedings in the senate was a discussion on the site for a new government printing office, which came up during the consideration of the sundry civil bill. The report of conference committee on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted.

Beyond refusing to concur in the Hansbrough Hatch amendment nothing of general importance was done in the house.

Wednesday, Aug. 1.

The house spent the whole day debating the Moore-Funston contested election case from the Second Kansas district. The Republican resolution, favorable to Funston, was disagreed to—86 to 126. Eight Democrats voted with the Republicans in favor of the resolution.

The same question before the senate was the sundry civil bill, which was discussed at odd moments throughout the day, with the result that numerous committee amendments were adopted. Final action on the bill was not reached, however, owing to the large number of amendments proposed.

Thursday, Aug. 2.

The house passed a bill authorizing the purchase of the property and the franchises of the Choctaw Coal and Railway company. Unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill for the suppression of the lottery was objected to.

The Moore-Funston contest was finally disposed of by the administering of the oath of office to Mr. Moore.

The sundry civil bill passed the senate after three days discussion.

Friday, Aug. 3.

The last of the appropriation bills—the deficiency—was passed by the senate after it had been in discussion for nearly the entire day. The bills for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona to statehood were reported to the senate and placed on the calendar.

The house spent a large portion of the day discussing two bills, one for reclassification of railway mail clerks, and one for the classification of clerks in the first and second class postoffices, but neither was acted upon. The senate bill providing for river and harbor bill was agreed to without division.

Saturday, Aug. 4.

The bill subjecting national bank notes and national treasury notes to taxation was passed the senate. It has already passed the house. Several private pension bills also passed.

Monday, Aug. 6.

The anti-anarchist bill was passed by the senate and sent to conference with a favorable recommendation by Secretary Gresham.

The house transacted some unimportant business but spent most of the day debating the senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill.

RECRUITS FOR JAPAN.

Five Thousand Pennsylvania Slaves Ready for Exile.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—Valentine Nowacki, the leader of the foreign forces of the coke strikers, proposes to make an offer to the Japanese government to furnish 5,000 soldiers for use in their war against China. The Slavs have been trying for some time for a place to go and leave the coke region. Nowacki will confer at once with the Japanese legation at Washington. He is a soldier and so is every adult foreign born Slav here. He is also a leader in marching and camping of the last three months has made them enthusiastic to once more carry the musket and sword. Since war was declared between China and Japan Nowacki has had lieutenants at all parts of the country feeling the pulse of his countrymen in regard to offering their services to Japan in the way of five regiments. All seem anxious to go. Nowacki's lieutenants report that it would be an easy matter to procure 5,000 Slavs in the coke region.

WE WERE PLAYMATES.

Come, sit beside my fire with me!
A quarter of a century
Has passed since we together sat,
Dear lips to, on the chimney mat.
And watched the evening fire until
The sandman came our eyes to fill.
A quarter of a century—
How much this means to you and me!
To those whose love still helps us bear
Our daily burden, daily care,
But for whose words we might not know
That we were playmates long ago!

Come, sit beside the fire with me!
And let us fancy it to be
The selfsame fire that filled our eyes
With childish wonder and surprise
And watch it till we seem to hear
The same old sandman drawing near!
Forget this evening—for we can—
This sober woman, serious man.
Revive, in all their simple joy,
The laughing girl and careless boy,
That we may feel what others know—
That we were playmates long ago!
—Ralph H. Shaw in Good Housekeeping.

MAN AND MISTRESS.

Maxey met Dr. Lamar exchanged looks of alarm.

"What is this?" the artist whispered. Lamar answered:

"Death!"

"So suddenly? Is it possible?"

"I do not mean that he is dead, but that he has not long to live. I would not give a pinch of snuff for his chances."

"What are we to do?"

"Better take him to the hospital at once. It will not harm him to move him. He cannot remain here. He will not be long in that swoon, and then he may be violent. Let me call the janitor and have a carriage brought."

Lamar stepped to the entrance, which communicated directly with the outer corridor. In a twinkling he had turned the key and opened the door.

A man who had been standing suspiciously near the threshold drew back in consternation.

This man was respectably dressed. His coat was buttoned up about his neck and his hat drawn down over his eyes. He looked like a well to do coachman.

The instant he saw Lamar he put up his hand as if to shield his face and turned to run.

The physician was too quick for him. In two strides he had come up with him and laid a grip of iron upon his shoulder.

The physician was too quick for him.

"It is of no use, John," said the doctor, "I know you."

"Oh, for God's sake!"—the fellow pleaded, in a voice of terror. "Let me out of this! I shall be killed!"

"Indeed! Who will kill you?"

The man at once became mute, but he trembled.

"Now, John," said the physician in a quiet tone, "you are going to tell me the truth, or you will lose your situation tomorrow. You know this man Dyer?"

"I, sir?" the man exclaimed, with an air of astonishment.

"It is useless for you to affect surprise. You are caught, you see. What were you doing here?"

"Only looking around, sir. That is all, sir, as I hope to live."

"Hum. Well, now, John, it is of no use. I will tell you plainly that it has long been known to us that somebody in Mrs. Forsythe's household was in correspondence with this Leander Dye. We have only been waiting to lay our hands on the right man. We have found him at last, and unless he is very, very careful he goes at once to the police. Do you understand me?"

"Yes, sir."

"What do you say?"

The man shut his lips tightly together, and then answered:

"Nothing, sir."

There was something of a grim resolution in his face which made Lamar uneasy. Nevertheless he persisted:

"Very well; then you will come in here with me, and I will look you up until we can get an officer."

The man began to expostulate in genuine alarm.

Lamar cut him short:

"Enough of that! Will you tell me what I ask, or must I do as I threatened?"

The man seemed to be greatly distressed. He looked at Lamar, and he looked at the wall. He appeared at a loss for words. Suddenly he uttered a despairing cry:

"Oh, sir, you let me drive my team home, and I will come back and stay as long as you like."

"Your team, eh? Perhaps you will point out this team to me?"

"Oh, no, no! That was a mistake, sir. Let anybody go with me and see that I come back safe. I haven't got any team."

Lamar at once turned back into the room, dragging the unfortunate coachman by the collar.

"Maxey," he asked, "do you feel competent to deal with this man?"

The artist smiled grimly.

"Very well, keep him here till I come back. I shall be gone but a moment."

The door was closed and locked. Lamar ran down into the street.

A single glance to the left and the right along the lighted way showed him that the place was wholly deserted. The cold night wind from the river smote him in the face. He hurried down the steps and up to the main avenue.

A number of vehicles were passing in either direction, but there was no carriage standing by the curb as far as he could see.

Still he did not feel quite satisfied. He went along to the next street, extending to the river, parallel with Dalla voino place. When he reached the corner, his pulse gave a great leap.

A close carriage was drawn up by the sidewalk, a little way down toward the river. The horses were covered with blankets, and the driver's seat was vacant. A dozen rapid steps and Lamar's hand was on the door of the carriage. The handle turned, and he was peering in.

A street lamp on the other side of the way showed through the opposite windows and dimly illuminated the interior.

Lamar saw a woman closely veiled. She was reclining in a corner, but when the door opened she started forward and ejaculated in a tremulous voice:

"John?"

Dr. Lamar knew that voice. A shiver went through him. There was a chill feeling at his heart. He did not utter a word. He did not move a muscle. There was a dead silence.

The veiled figure shrank back with an instinctive fear, and the light from the street lamp fell upon his face. A piercing scream came from behind the veil.

The figure sat quite motionless upon the seat.

"Fosterloff" said Lamar in a low tone.

Maxey answered the knock at the door instantly. The doctor was very pale, but he was perfectly calm.

"Where have you been so long?" cried the artist.

"Nothing goodby to an old friend," was the solemn response. "Maxey, let this man go. There is nothing at all against him."

Dr. Lamar turned to the coachman and added in a low voice, "Go, John, and drive your master home."

* * * * * *

When an officious personage, who would not tell his name, but was despised, called at Mrs. Forsythe's house the next morning, he found the place in confusion. After some persistence he was shown into the presence of the housekeeper, of whom he desired to learn when he should call again.

"Not at all," returned the housekeeper coldly. "Madam has gone away on a long visit. She sat up all night making arrangements for the settlement of her affairs here. The furniture is to be stored, and all the servants have been given a month's pay. The house will positively be closed."

There was another person in the city who went quietly to bed overnight, but who in the morning could not be found.

It was the pretty Miss Stevenson.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE POWER'S WORK.

One afternoon Maxey sought a private audience with his wife.

"Annette, dear, I want you to tell me something."

"Is it something about this mysterious affair that everybody has been so absorbed in of late? The house for the last few days has been but a "hush," "don't question me, 'all in good time,' and other such exasperating answers, until I am quite resigned myself to be carried again. Is it about this?"

Perhaps, little one. When you tell it is about that Tracy portrait that you sketched. I want you to tell me all about the origin and development of that idea."

At the mention of the portrait Mrs. Maxey became visibly distressed.

"Has Dr. Lamar influenced you to ask me that, Julian?"

Maxey averted his glance.

"Why, no, dear; only it was a very strange picture for a young girl, for you know you are only a girl yet, Annette. I want to be sure that it is not something you once saw and forgot."

"Why? In the flesh do you mean?"

Maxey started and looked at his young wife with a troubled glance.

"That is a strange question, Annette."

Nevertheless she was very grave and earnest in what she said. She continued in a tremulous voice:

"My husband, do you believe in apparitions?"

"Annette!"

"Do you want your wife to believe in them?"

"Of course I don't."

"Then do not question me."

"This introduction is highly calculated to allay a man's curiosity. In the name of goodness, Annette, what do you mean? How is the mere fact of my questioning you going to cause you to believe in anything?"

"Because it will cause me to think of a dangerous subject. Oh, dear, I wish I had never touched that picture. It was so foolish of me! I might have known it would have led to this. But the idea fascinated me so after it occurred to me that I was almost afraid to. Julian, do you desire it very, very much?"

She looked at him wistfully, as if she dearly dared to hope that he would take pity on her manifest distress and say no.

But he was immovable.

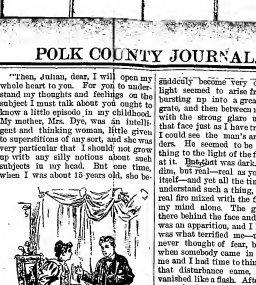
"I not only desire it very much, but I consider it of extreme importance to the happiness of us both that you answer me fully and freely."

"And when I have done so you will never refer to it again?"

"I promise you, Annette, never."

He sealed his promise with a kiss.

The young wife clasped her arms about her husband's neck and said to him:



Maxey averted her glance.

"Then, Julian, dear, I will open my whole heart to you. For you to understand my thoughts and feelings on the subject I must talk about you ought to know a little episode in my childhood. My mother, Mrs. Dye, was an intelligent and thinking woman. Little given to superstitions of any sort, and she was very particular that I should not grow up with any silly notions about such subjects in my head. But one time, when I was about 15 years old, she became interested in a book on spiritualism, which she picked up in a second-hand book store. She did not tell me all that she thought and felt in the matter. I am very sure, but I could plainly observe a gradual alteration in her ways and looks, and one day she nearly frightened me to death by going into what I afterward found was called the trance state. First she became rigid and then spasmodic, and at last she began to talk in unnatural voices. I was utterly unable to recognize my mother, and I was so terrified that I ran out for a doctor. Fortunately the physician was a kind, sympathetic man. Instead of laughing at my alarm, he not only quieted my fears for the time and somewhat explained the matter to me, but he gave me words of caution and advice for the future which I have never forgotten:

"'If you don't wish, your mother to frighten you this way again, see that she reads no more of the sort of literature she has indulged in lately and that she goes to no more sittings. I have consulted her, and from what she tells me, together with her evident temperament and present health, I find that this sensitive, if not dangerous, condition into which she has brought herself is owing entirely to an unhealthy brooding on one subject.' Simply you must give her some medicine, then,' I said to him, 'that will cure her.' 'No, my dear girl,' he replied, 'this matter is beyond medicine. She thinks the world of you. You can restore her to health better than any one else. Try to interest her in other things. Once get her mind out of its present unhealthy set of thought, and you will have no more trouble. These things are entirely nervous in their origin. The only way to cure them is by allaying the excitement.' In the end I found the physician had told the truth. As long as my mother remained so excited about and interested in 'Spiritualistic Manifestation' she was liable to the trances. But when, by my own and her own determined efforts, she had accustomed herself to think of other things the trances left her and never returned. Julian, dear, I suppose you will say it is silly and girlish, but I have an uncontrollable horror of anything that is like things. They frighten me. I could conceive of no worse fate than to replace the sunshine of my life with the darkness and gloom of a mind tortured by such specters, and my fear is greater because I fancy I am predisposed to such things."

"That is a morbid fancy, little wife, growing, I fear, out of your unfortunately solitary and lonely childhood. A few years of bird songs and blue skies will cure you. Something has occurred to you of late, dear, to remind you of all this. Go on. Don't be afraid to tell me."

"Yes, Julian, something did happen to me. I don't know why it was, but a great my head was weak from my sickness. But in the first days of my recovery, as I lay there listlessly on that bed, I frequently fell into trancelike states. I have found out, since that by resisting the feeling when it first approaches one can break the spell, but I was too weak and lacking in determination then. This grew upon me, and I became quite accustomed. I remembered what the doctor had told me about my mother, and by forcing my mind to think of other things I was succeeded in freeing myself from the shadow. That is why I have told no one, not even you. That is why I do not like to bring it back again."

"But I don't see what all this has to do with the portrait," Maxey said wonderingly.

"I will tell you, Julian. It was in one of those waking nightmares that I saw that face. Don't make me tell it!"

"God knows I would do nothing to cause my little wife a moment's uneasiness; but, darling, it is impossible to our welfare—for yours and mine—that you should speak. Let it be recalled and then forget it all from it. Was one of those dreams you saw that face?"

She answered him in a low voice:

"Yes, Julian. I was lying on the bed there, in the alcove room. Something. I don't know what to call it, came over me. It was more like a waking dream than anything I could name. My eyes were wide open all the time. I saw the room and the things in it, just as now."

She clung closer to her husband and went on:

"I was lying there in the alcove room looking toward the fireplace out there. It was just after I had been brought back here, before I had told you my story. I was watching the red coals in the grate. Presently I felt a shifting, dreamy sensation coming over me. I did not understand it. I was too weak to make any resistance to it. It was in the middle of the day, and the room was full of light. But though the knowledge of that fact never left me I felt that it had suddenly become very dark. All the light seemed to arise from something starting up into a great flame in the grate, and then between me and the fire, with that strong glare upon it, I saw that face just as I have tried to draw it. I could see the man's arms and shoulders. He seemed to be holding something to the light of the fire and looking at it. Then that was dark. All this was but, but real—real as you or the room itself—and yet all the time, if you can understand such a thing, I never got the real fire mixed with the fire that was in my mind alone. The grate was still there behind the face and shoulders. It was an apparition, and I knew it. That was what terrified me—not then, for I never thought of fear, but afterward, when somebody came in and disturbed me and I had time to think of it. When that disturbance came, the phantom vanished like a flash. Afterward it came to me in the dead of night and suddenly sprang up out of the darkness. Do you wonder that I was afraid such things might get a hold upon me and tried to banish it?"

"Then, in the name of all that is intelligible, why did you sketch it?"

"Because, Julian, I wanted to make it real. Then if I must think of it at all I could think of it as a picture drawn upon canvas and governed by light. But it was no hobgoblin that was haunting me. Perhaps you cannot understand this feeling, but I tell you truly, after I had materialized that face, it no longer had the same terror for me. Perhaps I ought to have concealed my work, but I never thought of your questioning me. Dr. Lamar frightened me so. How could he ever guess what was in my mind?"

"If you had confided in Lamar, you would have done better," said Maxey excitedly. "He would not only have driven away the ghost, but he would have explained it to your entire satisfaction. Why, Annette, if you should hear Lamar talk, you would be astonished to discover what an entirely simple and scientific affair a ghost is. Let me tell you something to relieve your mind of some of its half superstitious dread. That face you saw was the face of a real man. He was your evil genius, Annette; he it was who took away your name; he who made your life a wretched and miserable; he who pushed you from the sea road and unwittingly gave you to me; he who followed you to the world, and lay in the alcove room helpless and sick, determined you should die. He came here into this room, and on being familiar with the place mistook in the dark Ellen, who was resting herself on my bed, for you. He took her for a moment or two for you, pulling the ends of the silk handkerchief which she wore about her neck. That was quite true. Then it was dropped in bed. One moment you were looking into darkness. The next the paper flashed up, and you saw the face, glaring in the first moments of his surprise and rage at the unfamiliar features of my sister. You photographed that scene on your mind, Annette. You know you have come to have a fear of this man. You remember how the doctor once questioned you about it, and you found that it was a monomania—a mania in that direction. Is it so very strange to you now that that picture should have come to you again and again when you were weak and nervous?"

The young wife looked at her husband, bewildered and wondering.

"I only dimly understand you, Julian. Had I an evil genius? Who was he? What is he? I have made a target of his wish me dead? Julian, you have learned at last the secret of my life. What is it?"

"Tomorrow, darling! Will tell tomorrow."

"Is it best, dear?"

"I think so. Little wife, do you remember the time when you were loath to tell yourself your love for me, because you felt that in making a union with a nameless girl I was running a terrible risk?"

"Hush, Julian! My heart is in my mouth. But I will be brave and true. In the midst of all my happiness I have never been strong enough to lift that cloud. But I thought some day or other may be sitting hero blindly happy in our ignorance and the truth will come! If this is to be the end, will Julian feel still that his course was wise? Will he love me quite as much, quite as dearly as before? Will there be no shadow of regret in his heart? Oh, my husband, if I could believe there would be no shadow!"

Julian gathered her to his heart and kissed her with reckless freedom.

"Tomorrow, dear, and no tomorrow, you shall know what a fool I have made of myself!"

* * * * * *

"Lamar, I believe you are a wizard."

"Why so?"

"How do you arrive at your conclusions? It is almost too strange for belief that possessed you to question wife so closely about the origin of that portrait?"

"Can't you guess? Had you been?"

"I don't understand you."

"No? Do you recollect the description given by the janitor of the mysterious man whose anxiety for your welfare after Annette was brought home was sufficient to get him to the door, but was never by any possibility strong enough to induce him to mount the stairs? Don't you remember the janitor's description—middle aged, smooth face, small eyes, nose somewhat hooky, eyebrows, hooked nose and the rest? Maxey, I had been keeping my eye on for such a looking individual ever since. Is there anything very remarkable about that?"

"Well, I should never have thought of it. You are the most modest man. I suppose you will also claim that there was nothing remarkable about your analysis of the ghost?"

"Oh, yes, I shall. That is different; that is scientific. In fact matter I am apt to be vain. Maxey, if you will carry your memory back to a conversation we had in your sitting room some months ago, you will rather me by recollecting that I almost predicted the result of your wife's power of visualization. After the experiment of Dr. Bentley and myself with the cat—or rather the accident we witnessed, for it was no plan of ours—I became convinced that she really had a remarkable unconscious power of retaining in her mind the image of anything that impressed her. You taught a good deal about it, and I distinctly recollect telling you, when you were expressing some very callow views regarding the possibility of her remembering events occurring during her illness, if she recovered her mind—I distinctly recollect telling you then that if she ever got well she would have absolutely no memory of that time, but that it would be perfectly possible for her to carry a scene into the future; that, for instance, I should not be overwhelmed with surprise if, though she could remember neither of us, she should paint your picture or mine as an idea of her own. No; there is nothing at all mysterious in this affair. It is presumable, and it actually happened. By induction and deduction both we have demonstrated it, and even in science that is a rare thing, my boy!"

"What a great thing is pure science!" cried Maxey. "It dissects a ghost as it does a monkey's body and snakes of a grim and ghastly apparition the most natural event in the world."

Dr. Lamar smiled.

"I am glad to hear you talking sense. Time was when you were a little skeptical. Perhaps if your wife keeps on the way she has begun, affording illustrations of the benefits of science, we shall even make of you an evolutionist one of these days."

Maxey looked serious.

"I shall hardly go as far as that, Erastus, but I am ready to acknowledge that you do many wonderful things."

And still we are in our infancy. One of these days, my boy, one of these days!"

Truly this man was strangely hopeful and exuberant for one who had just laid on a long farewell to a sweetheart.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE RIVER GLISTENS.

The soft breath of a summer wind from the distant hills rustled the curtains in the artist's chamber.

The river glistened in the sun.

Miss Maxey, radiant and excited, Mrs. Maxey, tremulous and apprehensive, rose up when the artist opened the door leading into the parlor and ushered in his guest.

The wife and my sister, Miss Maxey; my lawyer, Mr. Bernstein." The old gentleman in the black coat glanced at the two young ladies with his little twinkling eyes and bowed.

"Happy to meet you, Mrs. Maxey, most happy, and you, Miss Maxey, most happy."

And so they met, the lawyer and the artist's sister, as everybody believed them to be, as perfect strangers.

Mr. Bernstein, Mr. Bernstein," said Maxey. The lawyer accepted the proffered chair by the table. The rest followed his example.

"Have you prepared your resume of the Forsythe case, as you intended?" Maxey asked, anxiously. He had risen to an alarming attitude, and his necktie was completely disorganized—both signs symptomatic of a state of extreme nervous tension.

"I have got down a few notes, suffice to refresh my memory," said the lawyer, which I trust you will find cover the principal points. I meant to have had a brief made a fair copy of it, but I did not have the time. You may find my writing a trifle backward at first sight. Perhaps I had better read off the headings myself?"

"Nothing would suit me better, " said Maxey.

He had chosen for himself a comfortable chair by the window.

The two ladies sat together on the sofa. Miss Maxey held the young wife's hand.

The lawyer drew from his pocket a neatly folded package of manuscript. He took it out in his hand, but on his twinkling glance around upon his auditors. If it rested longer and more thoughtfully upon the face of the artist's sister than anywhere else, she alone knew why.

"I may say to you, Mr. Maxey, before I begin, that there may be some matters in this document which you have not seen for the first time. You may be at a loss to know how I obtained this information; but, unfortunately, I shall not be able to satisfy you on that point, for the reason that I have given my promise not to betray the name of my client. I have also added a few words of necessary sentences for the purpose of bringing the document to a finished close. That is all I desire to say by way of preface. Shall I begin at once? Very well. The document is headed 'The Forsythe Case,' and thus it reads:

"Twenty years ago Ansel Forsythe was a wealthy merchant who possessed a palatial residence in the suburbs of the city, in carrying on a great and profitable business. The mountain had had one of his legs cut of shape and so him a helpless wreck at 42. He was suffering besides from a nameless malady, which wasted him away bit by bit and brought him each year fearful nearer to the grave. Personally he was unable to have an active superintendence of his affairs, and the work was done by a head man and ambitious young man who had formerly been his private secretary, a man unscrupulous and without any religious convictions whatever, but who, for the reason that he came of Jewish ancestry, was nevertheless called a Jew.

"The Jew was undoubtedly a man of great talents, for he managed the merchant's affairs to such advantage that they prospered beyond his expectations. For that reason the Jew is said to have considered the property which grew up under his care as morally his own.

"The merchant had remained a bachelor until well along in years, when he married a fragile beauty, who died in giving birth to a female child. This child was called Ethel and was her father's idol. In the will, made immediately after her mother's death, he settled all his property upon her. This was decidedly not to the Jew's liking, but he was too circumspect a man to permit his real feelings to be seen. He played a very deep game.

"When the child was not more than a year old, he persuaded the merchant that he ought to marry again. The poor deformed man would have been little likely to have followed his advice, but great pressure was brought to bear upon him. Medical men were found who did not scruple to tell him that marriage would undoubtedly prolong his life. He then consented to the sacrifice.

"All this while prospective matrimony had been to him a sort of abstract idea, but this decision narrowed it down to a reality. And it now occurred to him that to marry one needed a woman. Here he was, an unshapely, twisted creature, morbidly sensitive to his own defects. Who would marry him? Nothing simpler, said the Jew. It was to find a desirable lady.

"He spent much time by pressuring to him the next day his own sister.

"Miss Rosenfel was very young—almost a child in years—fascinating, too, they told him, as pure as the driven snow. At any rate, she soon showed that she had no objections to making a sacrifice of herself on the altar of Hymen. She became Mrs. Forsythe.

"The next month appointed a new codicil in the merchant's will. A third of his vast property, in the event of his death, was to be left to his widow. Envious people say that the Jew made a bargain with his sister whereby she was to receive this third and leave him free to gain if he could the other two. How far she actually assisted him may never be known.

"It was evident that the merchant could not live long. After the second marriage he failed rapidly. One day a shocking thing occurred. Little Ethel, the merchant's idol, then 18 months old, was stolen most mysteriously in the dead of night almost from her nurse's arms. The house had been broken into and many articles of value had been taken. So the object of the kidnapers appeared to be said. The Jew had stolen the child hoping to extort vast sums from the merchant as a ransom. The daring man was with grief. He commanded the Jew, the medium through whom he transacted all his business, to use the most effective measures for the immediate rescue of his darling. But, though much money was expended and a vast number of work performed, every claim of a discovery of the missing one proved, when investigated up, to be an imposture. The Jew had an infallible test of which the world knew nothing. As accident had necessitated the amputation of one of the toes of the child's left foot.

"The merchant's hope that he might still see his child kept him alive for years, but the time came when the physicians said that he must die. Some weeks before his decease he called his lawyer, an old and trusted friend, to ask his advice in a most important matter. As the result of that advice the merchant for the third time altered his will. The lawyer mistrusted the Jew, but the merchant to the last held blindly to his faith in his integrity. Still the counselor persuaded him easily enough to protect his child in the strongest manner. The will at last was drawn and provided that two-thirds of his fortune should go to his widow, and the other third, with the exception of a stated sum, given to the faithful Jew, was to be held in trust by the lawyer and other honorable gentlemen for his daughter Ethel. If, at the end of 30 years, she had not been heard from, her share of the property, which was then nearly $500,000, was to go to various charitable institutions. This will was made on April 14, 1875, signed and sealed in the presence of witnesses. On April 21 of the same year the dying lawyer, hastily summoned to attend Mr. Forsythe, who was dying, and who, apparently in perfectly sane mind, told him that, having decided at the last moment again to alter the will, he had done so in a codicil, which he only desired him to examine as to its legality and force. There could be no doubt about that. The codicil had been added in the Jew's handwriting and was countersigned by three servants in the house, who, in the eye of the law, were disinterested witnesses. It was certainly legal, but the startling nature of the alteration alarmed the lawyer and aroused his darkest suspicions. If it revoked the provisions of the previous clause regarding his daughter's legacy, reduced it to a trifle, and gave the money was to be held for her from 30 to 10 and from 10 to 5 years. It began, in the event of her not being found at the expiration of that time, instead of the charitable institutions, the Jew himself.

"The lawyer did not let this pass without remonstrance, but the dying merchant refused to be disturbed. 'I own everything to my good Felix,' he said, referring to the Jew. 'Why should I not give him a trifle more?' It was the lawyer of the exercise of undue influence upon the merchant's mind that after his death a search for a distant relative and persuaded him to dispute the will, the case was tried in court and resulted in a triumph for the Jew. The will held.

"And Forsythe died April 23, 1875. The court decided in favor of the legality of the will in October of the following year, and on that day the Jew disappeared personally from the field of war and transacted such business as it was necessary to transact with reference to the trust property in the hands of the executors through his solicitor. Mr. Forsythe's old lawyer naturally drew a sigh of relief when matters assumed this quiet state, from which they did not seem likely to emerge for at least 10 years. But he drew his breath altogether too soon. The moment the status of the will was settled by the court a her companion rose. The same impostors who had before appeared and new ones who had come into the possession of the necessary facts began to impersonate the last Ethel and to set up successive claims to the property. Most of them were so ridiculous on the face that they did not merit sober consideration. Others were more shrewdly planned and gave the executors much trouble. If false witnesses could have perjured their way to wealth, the property would have been wrested from the executors long ago, but fortunately the Jew's secret was a secret still, locked up in the breasts of half a dozen people whose interests bade them not to speak. When the left foot of the claimant was bared, the chances of success vanished like smoke before a high wind.

"'A peculiarity,' said one, 'of this child's sable renders your claim defective. The real child had a malformation which you do not possess.' So they had brought us cripples and joint diseases by the score. Unfortunately for them, they believed what we told them too implicitly. After the examination by our physician and the positive manner in which he told them that there was no foundation for their claims, there were few who dared risk the penalties for perjury by bringing the case to court. Our private tribunal generally settled the matter. The few who dared to risk a legal trial have had the leisure to repent their folly in a prison. But all this took time and work and was expensive. The will expressly enjoined that the costs of research and legal protection should be taken from the trust property itself, and in 10 years these expenses alone have more than eaten up the interest on the money, so that the trust property today does not amount to quite $400,000.

"So matters stood on the 21st day of April last past. On that day the slate was clean. There was not an unsettled claim pending. The last Ethel Forsythe had been disposed of, and there was nothing more to be done. Ten years having elapsed since the date of the will and the last daughter-in-law having died coming, Felix Rosenfel had a clear title to her property. The lawyer expected daily a call from his solicitor. The days went by, and he did not come. The papers were prepared, the property was ready, but no Jew. He did not come. In fact, there was a great hue and cry raised about this matter, for the Jew had disappeared as suddenly and completely from his home and his acquaintances as if, unseen and alone, he had, like Elijah, been translated into heaven. He had gone out one night on an errand. He had never returned.

"Meantime what was to become of the Forsythe property? The will was clear and explicit on this point. In case of the Jew's death and the nonappearance of the missing heiress the trust funds reverted, as before, to the charities. The trustees only awaited proof of the Jew's death to lift this burden off their shoulders. Then, like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, a last and most dangerous Ethel Forsythe appeared upon the scene. This girl had been brought up by a certain George and Mary Stevenson in the country as their own daughter. They now declared that in her infancy the child had been placed in their hands by a certain Leander Dye, who had paid them royally for her support. An affidavit, sworn out by Dye before a justice of the peace, averred that he had stolen the child from Ansel Forsythe's house in hope of a ransom, had been terrified by the results of his deed, and had been afraid ever since to produce her through fear of the Jew.

"So far the case was simpler and more straightforward, but not more plausible, than some of its predecessors. But the physician's test threw the executors into confusion. Miss Stevenson's left foot met the requirements of the case. The third toe had been amputated. At once there arose a dispute among the executors. Some were for admitting her claim without further inquiry, but the good sense of the others prevailed, and the most rigid investigation ensued. A choice list of the best physicians in the city was made up, each of whom was to make a separate examination of the case left by the amputation and return to the executors his opinion as to its age. The opinions varied greatly, but the average result was certainly of a character to justify our worst suspicions. The general verdict placed the date of the wound within a year, and there was but one voice to the belief that the amputation, instead of being the intelligent and careful work of a physician, was the bungling performance of a person ignorant of the first principles of surgery. The physicians who had operated upon the real Ethel was dead, but his standing and knowledge of his profession were undoubtedly of the first order. Here at the outset was a manifest flaw in Miss Stevenson's case, but before it could be followed up information was obtained which let the light in upon the whole mystery. While the executors were getting over the shock of the first astonishment caused by these developments and were preparing to proceed to extreme measures the last of the Forsythe impostures came to a sudden termination by the flight of all concerned in the conspiracy.

"Such is the remarkable Forsythe case as we knew it and as the world knew it a week ago today. This is the outer and surface history. I have added a brief statement of the secret history as the events of the past few days have made them known to us.

"Ethel Forsythe was stolen by the Jew himself. From the day of her abduction she led a forlorn and unsatisfactory life. She was brought up under the false name of Annette Dye. She travelled about the country, believed and believing herself to be the daughter of a moral coward whom the Jew had succeeded in getting completely under his thumb. She might have been the daughter of that moral coward still had not an accident revealed to her a part of the truth of her situation. She committed the indiscretion of telling this knowledge to her pretended father. He flew with the startling news of her fatal information to the Jew. At first the Jew was paralyzed with fear, but he was too determined and unscrupulous a man to permit the schemes of years to be dissipated to the winds without a struggle. He took prompt measures, terrible measures, desperate means!

"It is perhaps useless to inquire into the Jew's motives for using the precise method for the removal of the heiress from his path to which he resorted. At any rate, he wrote the letter purporting to come from the Haggood woman and caused the unwilling Dye to aid him in his nefarious work. But he swore a solemn oath to this poor, weak gentleman that his only purpose in bringing the heiress to the sea coast was to frighten her a little, and that he would not harm a hair of her head. Think of the utter depravity and unscrupulousness of a mind like that! Observe, gentlemen of the jury, the grim humor in the postscript of his letter, in which he says, 'I may be late, but I shall not fail to keep my appointment.'

"The Jew was a monstrosity of heartlessness. He could have chosen no safer method for a deed of violence, as the event proved, and if he had been successful in his search of her pockets for the letter he had written, which she carried in the bosom of her dress, clew to the perpetrator of the assault would have been entirely wanting. But with all his cunning he was first attempt was unsuccessful. He tried again. In the second trial he was thrown from the window of the rear room of the upper story of 20 Ballavoino place while trying to make an escape by way of the roof.

"The investigation into the cause of the disappearance of Felix Rosenfel rests on a mass of circumstantial evidence. The reason lay in the fact that the only person besides the criminal himself who held the clew to the matter would not speak. This person was Mrs. Forsythe. It is entirely outside the scope of this simple statement of facts to enter into a description either of the character or the life of this corrupt and unprincipled woman. Some time we shall know the whole truth. Already enough is known to make us hold our breath with wonder and horror. This woman led two lives. In one life she was the model of respectability and virtue. In the other she had no scruples and no decency. The mystery is how she was able so long to hide from the fact that she played this dual role from the keen and suspicious glance of society. The reason can alone be found in her extraordinary ability and cunning. This woman was a paragon of deceit and duplicity. There can no longer be any doubt that poor Forsythe was deceived even as to her purity. Miss Stevenson is her own daughter, and the people who brought her up told one truth when they said that they had always been paid large sums for the child's board, though the fact that this money was paid Leander Dye, or that he even knew them before the necessities of the conspiracy brought these precious people together, is entirely improbable.

"Mrs. Forsythe knew of her brother's connection with Leander Dye. She alone knew that Mr. Dye had been with him on the day of the disappearance. She alone suspected the truth. The use which she made of these suspicions has already been placed before you. After years of secret hate and fear and bitterness, when the wretched Dye, in a moment of frenzy at the thought of his own degradation, dared to strike the blow that rid him forever of his unscrupulous master, he fell at once by virtue of this very deed under the tyranny of a still sterner hand. From being a tool in the grasp of the man he became a tool in the grasp of the woman, and the woman was less lenient than the man.

"In a private room on the second floor of the Forsythe mansion, on Livingston street, on the 30th day of January last, the unfortunate child, who for the previous two weeks had been known to the household as Miss Forsythe's niece, took other and submitted to be operated upon with a cold steel chisel and a rubber mallet for the amputation of the third toe of the woman who played the dual role of saint and sinner.

"On the 1st of June Leander Dye, after placing his valuable knowledge of the facts in relation to the will of Ansel Forsythe in the hands of the authorities, died at the city hospital. Immediately following his confession he spoke of a man, which was recognized from some papers in a pocket to be that of Felix Rosenfel, the Jew, who had entangled in the piles beneath the windows of the house at 20 Ballavoine place.

"On the 3d of June the executors of the Forsythe will, with the full knowledge and agreement of the representatives of the charitible institutions, which would otherwise have profited by the legacy, drew up the papers that will make over, legally and formally, that portion of the Forsythe estate remaining in their hands to Ethel Forsythe, now Mrs. Julian Maxey, and her heirs and assigns forever."

The lawyer's voice ceased abruptly, and there was silence in the room.

The river glistened in the sun. The summer wind rustled the curtains at the windows.

Miss Maxey smiled.

The artist looked in a grave, wistful way at his wife.

As for Mrs. Maxey, there was a bright light in her wonderful eyes.

As Maxey went through the narrow passage between the two rooms he met his wife for the first time alone since the reading of the lawyer's document.

By the light of the gas jet he could see her bright eyes shining through the tears and a fervent glow rising into her beautiful cheeks. She threw her arms about him in a long and silent embrace. She spoke, but she did not lift her head from its resting place on his shoulder:

"Dearest husband, it is all yours. For your sake is the greatest joy of my life!"

"Well," said Maxey, "why should you cry about it, then?"

"Oh, my dearest husband, I don't know, but I can't help it."

"Neither can I," said Maxey. "Deuce take it, I believe I am as big a baby as you are!"

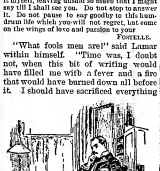
* * * * *

At the very moment when Maxey gave way to tears Dr. Jay sat with a grim, contemptuous expression about his lips at his desk, his dry eyes fixed upon a stained and almost illegible bit of writing, before him, the reading of which he had just finished. The letter read:

MY DEAR EUSTACE—If you but knew how your cruel words when I last saw you have tortured me since, you would—oh, I know you would—have fortune to utter them. There has not been a day nor an hour in my lonely exile since when they have not been with me. Oh, Eustace, I did love you, and you do yet, greatly misunderstood me! Are you blind? Can you not see that it was for your sake, for your alone, not mine, that I fought on that wretched fight for a future? What could I do? Unfortunate speculation and ever increasing want had ruined mine. I knew how proud and ambitious your mother was. It seemed so easy to retrieve it all by a simple plot which would harm nobody, because they could not know that they were robbed. Besides what are people like these to you and me? For your sake I would have gone through ten times worse and fought a thousand times more desperate battle than this rather than have let you speak to me as you spoke to me that night in the carriage. But all is not lost. Come to Seattle yourself, and I—I, too, said that for which I bitterly regret. I said it because my life was ruined, that you had lost your hold upon her, that your presence was drawing away from me. Come, then, with me and lay the foundations of a greater fortune in a distant place. I will go anywhere with you, Eustace, to the end of the world if need be. One other woman will ever love you as I have loved you. No other friend will ever fight your battles and scheme day and night for your advancement and your gentleman as I will fight and scheme. I know what my power is over men. It is still great. It will make you great and fortunate above all competitors yet. Eustace, if you will come with me. These are no vain words uttered in a moment of wildness. It is the solemn truth, for I know it better than you. And I am not penniless, dear Eustace. I have enough left—enough for us both —enough to build upon, and I will make it a foundation for your future if you will come with me, dear Eustace. I do not ask you for a sacrifice; I do not ask you for a marriage vow. I ask you only for yourself and your presence and your love. I will give you my heart, myself and all I have, and ask for nothing in return if you will but come with me, dear Eustace. Come; oh, come! The light is fading, and I cannot see to write. I am so impatient that you shall get this and understand all that I offer you that I shall hasten to the post with it myself, leaving unsaid so much that I might say till I shall see you. Do not stop to answer it. Do not pause to say goodby to this humiliation while you are still not regret, but stand on the wings of love and passion to your

ESTELLE.

"What fools men are!" said Lamar within himself. "Time was, I doubt not, when this bit of writing would have filled me with a fever and a fire that would have burned down all before it. I should have sacrificed everything



"I should have sacrificed everything."

and rushed like a fool to Queenboro. Thank God, I am no longer young. No. Matters of this sort shall come into my life no more. I will devote myself wholly this time forth to my neglected business. I will build up my practice, restore myself to favor and succeed, and then—"

He stopped. The thought of a sweet smile, a soft and kindly hand, a warm womanly presence, in which he had often in the chambers above the river forgotten the worry and care that oppressed him, stole into his heart, and somehow it cheered and comforted him.

THE END.

The Utility of a Head.

The master of one of our village schools was examining some boys on a piece of poetry which he had given them to prepare the night before. They all said it excellently except a small boy at the bottom of the class.

"Now you asked for a very big lesson, he said, "I can't remember it, sir."

Master (in rage)—Why, what's your head for?

Boy—To keep my collar on, sir.—London Answers.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FOR FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Christopher Johnson and Clara Johnson, his wife, mortgagors, to Lewis Cornish, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage bears date the 17th day of April, A. D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county and state of Minnesota, on the 3d day of August, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock p. m., in book 26 of mortgages, on pages 35 &c.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1000, payable five (5) years from the date thereof, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum (10%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note of even date with said mortgage herein mentioned bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage note and the said the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage note and the said mortgage, dated the 15th day of January, 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1894, at 8:30 o'clock p. m. in book 57 of mortgages, on pages 194 &c.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage note to the said the Industrial Trust Company, a corporation, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $875.00, being the sum of $800 principal, and $65.33 interest upon said note and mortgage from the 1st day of July, 1894, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and assessed upon said mortgaged property and paid by said assignee, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and duly recorded, I will foreclose by the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage, by a sale of the premises therein described, to-wit: All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, known as the west half of the southeast quarter (W½ SE¼) of section numbered one (1) in township one hundred and forty-one (141) north of range forty-three (43) west containing eighty (80) acres, more or less, according to the Official Plats and government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Polk County court house, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the Twenty-Fifth day of August, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day.

Dated June 26th, A. D. 1894.

Some reports reach us of damage to crops from cut worms in some portions of the county.

Fred Bendshaw got the fingers of his right hand severely pinched at the brick-yard on Monday.

Frank Cromner went up through Tabor on Monday. Found farmers all busy at work in the harvest-fields.

A bit of a strike at the mill last week did not get fairly on its seelegs before it was amicably settled.

Uncle Lewis was about the streets on Tuesday, though not feeling extra lively. Since he was confined to his bed by illness recently he has not been in the best of health.

Mrs. C. E. Misner starts this week for Valley City on a visit to her friends at that point. The children go with her, except Howard, who is at J. M. Palmer's for the vacation.

Frank Williams came in on Tuesday with a load of new barley to grind, the first of the season that we have noticed. He threshed it with a horse-power machine. Estimates the yield at 25 bushels per acre.

Collins Bros.' delivery rig took a lively spin along Main street on Friday. When near Herb's corner Chas. March took a tumble to the situation—and the team, and brought them to a standstill. No damage.

Gilbert Walker came up on Monday morning. It is said that he has got the strike at the mill satisfactorily adjusted, and that work in that institution will go right along uninterruptedly till freeze-up—or the logs are all sawed.

Rev. R. H. Battey came up on Monday morning to get out the August Messenger—having been delayed some days by having been poisoned during a stay at Detroit lake. We do not mean to insinuate that the good people of Becker county are inhospitable by any means—it was not that but some kind of a weed that he got into his eyes while bathing, which made him blind for a time totally incapacitating him from labor of any kind. He is all right now, however, and The Message appears this week as sparkling and bright as one of dad's new dollars.

W. R. McCracken, a champion expert and a fellow expert, started on Sunday morning to drive into the country. When driving down off the southern approach to the German bridge the neck-yoke, or some part of the tackle broke and the gentlemen were thrown out and severely injured, and the team ran away. The gentlemen were taken to a doctor's shop for repairs, the team was finally captured and returned to the livery barn where it belonged, and the farmers and others have ever since been picking up bits of harness that were strewn all over Polk county and returning them. At this rate it is expected that the harness will all be "present, or accounted for" by the time snow flies. The experts are not quite an expert on their timbers as they were last week, but as no bones were broken and no internal injuries seem to have been sustained they will no doubt soon be on deck again.

Arrangements have been completed to protect the game in Polk county by the appointment of deputy game wardens in the different towns. All those who have young hunting dogs to break will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Game Warden Frank Gravel informs us that he has 18 deputies appointed and that any violator of the game laws—no matter who he is—will be severely dealt with. Hunters are given fair warning, and it will be their own fault if they get into trouble.

Of the reception given Rev. R. H. Battey, the Barnesville Review says:

A well attended reception to Rev. Mr. Battey and family was given in the Congregational church on Wednesday evening. The reception was entirely informal, and on very short notice. Ice cream and cake were served, and those who were present enjoyed themselves finely. Mr. Battey enters upon his work here with the best wishes of the people, for himself personally, as well as for his success as a pastor.

Hon. H. Steenerson went to St. Paul on Sunday evening, in an interview with a reporter he is made to say that he will go into the congressional convention with 54 instructed delegates. This would still lack 39 of a nomination, and what the other candidate will go in with that many he will stand the best show of his own are all anyone. He expects Norman, Clay and Becker to come to him early, which would nominate him.

Crookston theatre-goers will be pleased to know that the drama "Friends," which was given here last season by the Milton Boyle company, will be produced at the Grand on the 15th inst. It will be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to see the play, that "Friends" is one of the best—if not the very best—drama ever produced in Crookston. It is full of good, clean, elevating sentiment—something which is a rarity on the American stage to-day.

That was not a very graceful thing to do when D. P. R. Strong, who is more than a mere convert in the republican party, tackled so old, tried and true a republican warhorse as Capt. M. R. Brown—but the Captain was at home—all of him by a large majority, and he was in evidence too and the way he used Strong up will learn that worthy to have a little curbed how he alludes to "sinners" in the future. Undoubtedly had Strong stopped a moment to reflect how his words would sound the would not have spoken—just exactly as he did.

W. W. Wilson was over from East Grand Forks to attend the republican convention, and incidentally to visit his sister-in-law Mrs. Chas. Mr. Wilson is one of the old-timers, coming into the country about the time the Northern Pacific railroad did. For a long time in the early day he was a plug cruiser for Clark & McClure at Perham, the best one they had and they would as soon think of giving up lumbering as of giving up Uncle Billy. When at last they did quit, Uncle Billy removed to Red Lake Falls, where he lived some years going from there to East Grand Forks. Uncle Billy has been all over the Red Lake Reservation cruising for pine and there is not a little if any pine of any account in Minnesota that he doesn't know all about. During the war he was a valiant soldier and since the war he has been a republican.

In this selish world of ours where mankind is so prone to seek to serve his own selfish purposes without regard to the welfare of others, when one meets with an exception to the general rule it is refreshing to find that sentiment favorably upon it. That was a case in point when Andrew Elken arose in convention and quietly withdrew his name, then took the tickets of his opponent and went about distributing them among his friends, asking them to support Wm. Lunetter's candidacy for clerk of the district court. When this point had been reached Andrew observed that, his own nationality had been generously dealt with in the convention, and although he had previously secured promises enough to have nominated him, he saw that the interests of the party demanded that some other nationality be recognized and for this reason—and this only, he arose and in very graceful thanked his friends for what they had already done for him and requested that his name be not considered. Clearly it was the proper thing to do, but how many would have thought of that when he had a dead cinch on the accomplishment of his desires? The cheers that greeted Andrew's little speech he well deserved and we venture that in that act he made more friends than he could have done in any other way just at that critical juncture—and the boys will not forget it soon.

A. A. Miller went over to Grafton on Wednesday.

Mrs. Wm. Thone returned this week from a trip to Duluth and West Superior.

W. L. Davies of Angus was an interested spectator at the convention on Friday.

Miss Sophie Sletten of Becker Co., was visiting Miss Clara Steenerson last week.

J. P. Johnson was in from McIntosh to attend the republican convention on Friday.

James and Mrs. Creighton and Mrs. William Creighton drove out to Maple lake on Tuesday.

Miss Nelle Raymond, of Charles City, Iowa, is visiting in the city with Mrs. W. E. Slocum.

Geo. Carpenter still handles that spavined limb very carefully. He has had a tough siege of it.

Paul Hagen was over from East Grand Forks last week to attend the republican county convention.

Sam Rosenthal returned from the lake on Tuesday evening. He has not fully recovered from his accident.

F. L. Kermott attended the convention of the North Dakota druggists at Grand Forks Wednesday.

A private letter from Frank Benner announces his safe arrival at Fort Sprngs, Ark., after a delay on the road.

P. S. Ware drove down from Thief River Falls on Tuesday just to attend the convention, returning home on Saturday.

A. W. Foss, editor and proprietor of the Thief River Towne, was in the city as a delegate to the republican county convention.

A force of men has been busy putting up the telephone poles during the week. The line will soon be ready for business.

The JOURNAL is informed that there will be a demand for all the flax straw raised in Polk county this fall. Don't burn your flax straw too quickly.

Nels Swanson has just completed an artesian well for O. A. Richardson in Fairfax, obtaining a great flow. He has also put one down for Herman Helmick in the same town.

A merry-go-round came to anchor on a vacant lot on Broadway on Friday last, and has been the center of attraction afternoon and evening. Everybody seems inclined to take a whirl.

Dr. Dunlop was called to Black River to see a patient on Friday and extended his trip to St. Hilaire to see Mrs. Chas. G. Rupp, who has been quite out of health for some time past.

Conductor Scott and wife returned last week from a trip to the coast. It is rumored that C. H. Jenks will soon succeed Ponsonby as Supt. of this division, and that Scott will be assistant. We trust this rumor is correct.

C. L. Sargeant fell from a load of hay last Saturday and sustained quite severe injuries, from which he is now suffering. Fortunately no bones were broken, and if it were not for the fact that he is quite an old man no serious results would be apprehended.

Mrs. Mattie Krekel, of Kansas, gave a talk from the populist standpoint in the McKinnon hall on Monday evening to a few delighted populists and various and sundry other people. The lady is quite a fluent talker, easy in her manner and gave one the impression that she had learned her lesson well.

The Acelian gave their concert to Euclid on Friday evening, of last week to give a concert, and report a splendid time, for which they wish to return thanks to Mrs. H. C. Misner, Mrs. Dr. Chapin and the ladies who did so much to make their visit pleasant and agreeable.

Frank Kennett has purchased Fred Durand's drug store. He intends to add largely to the stock and be able to supply anything and everything needed in that line. Mr. Durand will take a much needed rest before he decides what he will do in the future. The JOURNAL echoes the wish that he may decide to remain in the city.

Lawrence Larson: The farmers of this county will have fewer obligations to meet this fall than ever before. They have economized in every way possible, and for the past year have lacurred no debts. One good crop will pay nearly all their old obligations and put them on their feet in good shape. The experience which they have had will be useful to them in the future.

Rev. L. W. Squiers is home from the Detroit assembly.

Judge Ives and wife returned on Wednesday morning.

O. H. Berglund was down from Fosston as a delegate to the republican convention on Friday.

W. D. Wilson has a fine greyhound pup, which he says is the handsomest dog in the world.

The Sunday school of the M. E. church had a picnic in Steenerson's grove on Tuesday afternoon, and had a jolly good time.

Agent Griffin, Mr. Fegan's successor, is a hustler around the depot, and is becoming popular with shippers over the Great Northern.

It has been suggested that the republican club as well as every republican in the city, meet at the city hall to-morrow (Friday) evening to talk over matters of interest to the party.

M. Malone will buy wheat here this fall, and also along the Fosston and St. Hilaire branches. He is going to buy for the Superior mills, and will give the farmers the highest price going.

Last summer Edwin Milton Royle, the author of "Friends," finished a romantic costume play with a historic back. He is at present engaged on a comedy drama of contemporary life, somewhat after the analytical and psychological method. Will appear at the Grand, Aug. 15th.

T. A. Harris commenced this morning to move the reading room off of the new hotel site. Fells commenced getting his goods out of the adjoining building and that one will go next. The work of excavation will begin by next Monday.

Steps are being taken to reorganize the band. If the boys meet with the encouragement that is their due, the band will be enabled to secure a leader and go to work again. It would seem as though Crookston should support a good cornet band.

J. B. Potter was up from Eden on Friday, as a delegate to the republican convention. He informed a JOURNAL man that he has recently sold his farm to Geoff Bros., a creamery firm of Delmar, Iowa, that one of the firm has arrived with his family to take charge of the farm, and that Potter not fully determined what he will do after he has enjoyed a good long vacation, but the JOURNAL is in hopes that he will decide to move out of the county. The county has not a surplus of that kind of farmers to spare.

Huller's Little German Pills are the superior of many and excelled by none. They are anti-griping and do not nauseate. Their use stimulates the liver and corrects the bilious condition of the stomach. They are sugar-coated, small in size, and are the smallest and most effective cathartic that can be used. Try them once and you will never want to use any other. Sold by F. L. Durand.

A Little "Ad." at the Picnic.

Enterprise in advertising has almost become a fine art in these present day. Novelties are not only numerous, but frequently unique. A Birmingham merchant recently with his family, attended a picnic, and after the knife and fork tea, which formed part of the programme, he distributed among the company a number of sweetmeats, all of which bore an advertisement referring to his specialties, and during the concert which followed his daughter sang a song the words of which set forth the advantages which could be derived from the use of certain pills, the frequent application of a well known plaster or daily dose of some one's tonic. Such enterprise, if somewhat "shoppy," certainly merits reward for its ingenuity.—Birmingham Mail.

No Use Telling Him Anything.

The man with the red whiskers looked defiant.

"No, sir," he declared, "I won't believe anything I can't see for myself."

The pale party nodded.

"Very well," he said after a moment. "I was going to tell you your uncle's up behind, but I guess I won't mind if you feel that way."—Detroit Tribune.

Monuments to Women.

Hitherto in France Joan of Arc has been almost the only woman to mount upon a marble pedestal, but the privilege is being extended. At Vitray a statue is being raised to Mme. de Sevigne, and at Valenciennes a similar honor is in hand for Mme. Duchesne. Apropos of these facts a French writer observes, "Woman being, even in marble, so much more decorative than ourselves, one can only rejoice over the advent of feminine statues."

HOUSE WILL CAUCUS.

DEMOCRATS DECIDE TO TAKE ACTION ON THE TARIFF.

The Senate Measure Said to Be Favored, Opponents of the Administration Backing This Latest Move, It Is Alleged. Conference Making Progress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Within 15 minutes from the time the house caucus petition was circulated 50 members had signed and the caucus became a certainty. Members who had not wanted to sign last week were now anxious to do so. The petition is not the one formerly circulated by Representative Springer, although the latter is interested in the new move.

The call was in response to a petition signed by 53 members of the house. The petition had been circulated by Mr. Bynum of the ways and means committee, and the success of the move was secured within half an hour from the time the petition was started. Intense feeling was developed as soon as the caucus move began. Members gathered in the lobbies and talked excitedly

For and Against the Caucus.

Representatives Strauss, Wemer and others friendly to the administration denounced it as a "fire in the rear." Neither Speaker Crisp nor Chairman Wilson had been consulted as to the caucus, and it was recognized as directly in opposition to the wishes of Representative Outhwaite, an associate of Spenker Crisp on the committee on ways and means.

"The caucus is not indorsed by the committee on rules nor by the conferees. It is evidently against the house conferees. Members of the rules committee will probably enter the caucus, but I expect the conferees will remain away in view of the fact that reverse action by the caucus would be equivalent to a vote of want of confidence."

Representative Strauss, a close friend of Mr. Wilson, expressed the opinion that the caucus would Prove a Boomerang.

He believed that Mr. Wilson and the other conferees and their friends would attend the caucus and undertake to carry it. With such men as Speaker Crisp, Chairman Wilson, Charles Cockran and others urging loyalty to the house conferees, Mr. Strauss did not think an antagonistic resolution would pass. He said also that he expected the caucus would bring out some startling conference secrets and would insure the conferees support from the house. Messrs. Springer and Bynum made no concealment of the fact that the caucus is for the purpose of ending the contest by accepting the senate bill. In this connection they quote a statement made to them by Senator Mills to the effect that further house resistance meant the killing of tariff legislation.

MAKING PROGRESS.

Conferees Hard at Work on the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—When the Democratic tariff conferees adjourned for the day there seemed to be better feeling among the conferees than at the close of previous occasions. Members from both houses announced that the committee had been working over the bill and that progress was being made, but they did not indicate when a report would be reached, though some of the conferees expressed the opinion that an agreement was in sight. Considerable surprise was expressed by the conferees when they learned that a call for a house caucus had been issued, and it evidently was very distasteful to the house members, who had felt that they were beginning to see an agreement. Mr. Montgomery said that the caucus would make no difference so far as he was concerned and he would continue the work he has engaged in unless some action very different from that which he anticipated would be taken by the caucus. He said that while the caucus was in progress the conferees would be at work.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Measures of Importance Passed During the Present Session.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—A review of the legislation which has been accomplished by the second session of the Fifty-third congress up to and including Aug. 5, shows that much has been done aside from the engrossing tariff struggle which has largely diverted public attention from matters which would, under other circumstances, have been considered of great importance.

One of the most important acts of the session which passed both houses by a relatively party vote, being in fulfillment of a plank of the democratic platform, was the act repealing all laws creating federal supervisors of elections or defining their powers.

Utah Admitted.

The act to enable the people of Utah to form a constitution and state government and to be admitted into the Union, provides the machinery by which the territory will be admitted probably in December, 1895, by adopting a constitution providing a republican form of government and insuring against the supremacy of any church. An act making the first Monday in September a legal holiday, to be called Labor day, was passed. Three bills were passed to give effect to the award of the tribunal of arbitration at Paris which adjudicated the seal fisheries disputes. More than the usual time was spent in disposing of the appropriation bills, the Democratic platform favoring reduction wherever possible.

Fruit Market Glutted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—The Sacramento river steamers brought in over 20,000 packages of fruit. There were also heavy shipments by rail and the local market became so glutted that peaches and plums sold at 3 cents per basket. As each basket of fruit weighs from 20 to 40 pounds the price realized does not pay commission charges.

On Memorial Day a pocket-book containing notes was picked up. The owner can learn of its whereabouts by inquiring at this office.

Judging from the size of last convention on Friday, republicanism is not all dead in Polk county yet. It looked a good deal like the good old times when the republican county convention was the only convention worth mentioning. And the enthusiasm reminded one of old times.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

ALEXANDER MCKINNON.

I. M. Helsop, leading druggist of Canton, S. D., writes under date of Jan. 25, 1894 as follows: "Haller Proprietary Co., Gents:—Allow me to say that your remedies have given excellent satisfaction with our people and in particularly your Haller's Sure Cure Cough Syrup, Barb Wire Liniment and Sarsaparilla and Burdock. They sell well, and we have to fill the bill and my customers could not be induced to take any other." These testimonials can be had at P. L. Durand's drug store.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer rightly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, headache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it. It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by P. L. Durand, Druggist.

A communication from the Saturday Evening Spectator of Minneapolis, was read before the council, offering to deliver for distribution through Great Britain and Ireland 10,000 copies of said paper containing a write-up of Crookston and vicinity, by the commission which recently visited this country; also 10,000 copies to be distributed in this country and Manitoba, the price to be $80 for a column of 20 inches. Council appropriated $30 for the purpose.

City engineer rendered written report on the grading of Broadway, etc., and the probable cost of the work.

By mistake a levy was made against lots 1 and 24, block 11 of the original townsite of Crookston, on Nov. 28th, 1893, for sidewalk purposes and should have been made against lots 1 and 24, block 9, original townsite of the City of Crookston. On motion correction was ordered made to cover the latter description.

Alderman Jennings submitted his report of having, with the city attorney, prepared a form for notice to property owners in case of defective sidewalks or needing repairs. On motion report was accepted.

Bills of O. O. Halstad for $20 and Charles Lotts for $56 for board and nursing of Sam Oyen, deceased, on motion were disallowed.

On motion the seat of Alderman R. G. Marlette from the Fifth ward was declared vacant. On motion the Fire Chief was authorized to purchase two hose lenk stops, provided the committee will wait for their pay until April, 1895.

Clerk was instructed to send regular blank form to town clerk of Lowell for bill against the city.

On motion an order was drawn on the treasurer in favor of the president of the council for $107.57, amount of pay roll for July.

On motion Aldermen Watts, Hall and Wheeler were appointed a committee to make arrangements with the new hotel managers for the purchase of the earth excavated from the hotel site, at a price not to exceed 10 cents per yard, to be paid July 1896, and have same placed to the best advantage on the streets of the city.

On motion council authorized the placing of a catch basin at the southeast corner of Main and Sixth streets; cost not to exceed $60.

By a unanimous vote a resolution was passed authorizing the transfer of $2000 from the general fund to the interest fund, as a loan, it being necessary to pay the interest due on the bonds of the city.

The County Committee.

Pursuant to the directions of the republican county convention, held on the 3rd day of August, after due consideration, I hereby appoint and designate the following members of the republican county committee for the ensuing year:

J. W. Wheeler, Crookston.
Andrew Elken, Crookston.
H. C. Misner, Euclid.
O. A. Thoreson, East Grand Forks.
Ole H. Baug, Hagelem.
J. R. Johnson, East Grand Forks.

A. W. Foss, Fosston.
J. P. Johnson, McIntosh.
J. S. Lalbe, Fertile.
James Rosanen, Fisher.
K. S. Aaker, Vineland.
L. S. Kolden, Hubbard.
A. A. Miller, Chairman,
Rep. Co. Convention.

Marsh Items.

Friday's rain and wind did more harm than good, breaking down the oats.

Some farmers are done harvesting and the rest are pretty well along.

Most of the farmers gave the State prison twine a trial this year and nearly every one expresses satisfaction, though it seems to make a difference the kind of a machine it is used on.

Dr. Leslie was called to John Lee's on Friday to attend Mr. Lee, who has an attack of cholera morbus.

Messrs. James and Donald Bain, of Fisher, accompanied by their wives attended the Marsh services on Sunday.

Mr. Louis Olson and son Eddie, were the past week papering and fixing up the Marsh church. A fine job was done.

Bert, the seven year old son of Richard White, had on Wednesday the misfortune to fall from a tree and break his right bone. The limb was set by Dr. Irwin and the boy is doing nicely.

Mr. Wm. Miller, who was hurt by a harvester on L. Ferguson's farm sometime ago is not improving as fast as first thought.

McDonald Bros., have improved their threshing outfit by putting on a new self-feeder. Threshing will commence next week.

Joseph Jarvis threshed his barley last week and got a yield of 35 bushels on an average, off 50 acres.

A Good Appetite

Always accompanies good health, and an absence of appetite is an indication of something wrong. The universal testimony given by those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, as to its merits in restoring the appetite, and as a purifier of the blood, constitutes the best recommendation that can be urged for any medicine.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness, jaundice, indigestion, sick headache. 25c.

DECREASE IN CRIME

A Remarkable Showing Made by the Jail Census of Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 14.—The eighth semiannual prison census for the State of Minnesota, compiled to June 30, has been issued by the board of Charities and Corrections, and, contrary to expectations, shows a marked decrease in the prison population, notwithstanding the hard times. The total number of prisoners is 985, as compared with 1,186 on June 20 of last year, and the total number of state convicts for this year is 564, against 693 of last year, this being the only increase. Of petty convicts Hennepin county has 48, a decrease of 100; Ramsey 110, a decrease of 86; St. Louis 29, a decrease of 29. The board in its report states that it is unable to assign any reason for the remarkable decrease.

Coxeyites Leave for Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—About 100 Coxeyites, who have been in camp at Roslyn, Va., have started over the Baltimore and Potomac railroad for their homes in California. The men had been furnished transportation, it is understood, by members of the Metropolitan Methodist church in this city.

Big Chicago Industries Consolidate.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Sinmans-Halske company, a great electrical institution, the Wells-French Car company, and the Grant Locomotive works had been consolidated, with a capital stock of $2,000,000. The company will manufacture locomotives, railroad cars, and all sorts of electrical devices.

Spain has over 400 islands in the eastern seas, mostly comprised in the Philippines and Molucca.

F. M. EDDY

Nominated by the Republican Congressional Convention at Fergus Falls

The Field Combined Against Mr Steenerson Who had the Largest Following

Eleven Ballots Were Required to Decide the Choice of the Convention

The republican congressional convention met at Fergus Falls on Tuesday to place in nomination the next congressman from the Seventh congressional district to succeed Boen, and the 11th ballot decided that his name is Frank M. Eddy, of Pope county. Mr. Steenerson, Polk county's candidate, went in handicapped by opposition from his own county that ought not to have existed, and was therefore defeated. It is bringing politics down pretty fine when men have to resort to the buying up the support of vanity democratic papers for the purpose of backbiting members of their own party and depriving their own county and city of having a representative in congress. And such men sometimes have good deal of bragging about their "invaluable services to the party," through a democratic medium! After the nomination of Mr. Eddy was made unanimous, Mr. Steenerson was called upon for a speech and promptly responded, predicting the election of the candidate and pledging his earnest efforts in that direction.

Then and Now.

When the writer first came to the Red River valley in '72 he found a soil that for fertility appeared to be unrivalled in the world—we thought it the best we had ever seen, though at that time no one had as yet demonstrated by experiment its wonderful capacity. At a distance of 22 years from that time we are prepared to say that we have not been disappointed in the wonderful fertility of the soil as we have seen it tested from year to year. In 1872 breaking and backsetting cost $5.50 per acre; horses sold all the way from $200 to $300 per head, oxen $150 per yoke to $250; wagons—well, you could not look at a good one without spilling a $100 bill; harvesters, (there were no self-binders then,) cost $300 to $350. And it required three men and two horses to run one—one man to drive and two to bind—even that used to be called rapid binding. Living was at least four times as high as now, wages in proportion, so that in order to make big money grain had to bring big prices—and it did. In that day money was easy to obtain—a large rate of interest, almost any man could obtain a loan of $1,000 or more on a quarter section of land. This many of them did do, and bought expensive machinery and teams with which to cultivate from 25 to 100 acres of land. Some of these have paid up their mortgages, others have not. To-day, all that is changed. Good horses can be had at prices that a farmer can afford to pay for their use; self-binders can be had for not to exceed $125; wagons from $50 to $65, and everything else proportionately less than in the early day, and while we do not get as much for wheat, quite, as we did once, it does not cost half as much to raise it, and right here we wish to say that while farmers have been broke up trying to raise all wheat, the failures of those who have tried diversified farming are exceptional, in fact we cannot mention a case of that kind during our whole experience here. There is no place on earth where a living is more easily compiled, will make a farm pay better than right here. Slipshod farming will pay nowhere.

Our Present And Future.

To-day the existing conditions in the United States are such that the best soil that lies out of doors can be bought at figures far less than those that prevailed when the first settlers reached Polk county in the early seventies. That is when you consider the conditions existing then as compared with the present. Then the country was not—everything undeveloped, and farming but an experiment, no one knowing whether our land would produce a bill of wheat to the acre or not. Now we have one of the best counties in the state, tolerably well settled, with good schools and churches convenient for every settler, our soil has demonstrated fully what it can do when properly handled, we have saw-mills to furnish lumber for settlers and a vast tract of pine to the northeast that will furnish lumber and work for years and more chances for the man of moderate means to make a success in life than can be found any where else in this United States. And the democratic reign, inaugurated with Cleveland's second term, has managed to depress the business of the United States to such an extent that an eastern farmer can come and buy a well improved farm, right within sound of the church and school bells of the city of Crookston for from 8 to $20 per acre—land that in the eighties could not be touched for double the money—land that has produced from 15 to 30 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat per acre and, is today as strong and vigorous as ever—land that will, just as soon as the good old republican times come again sell for double and treble what they can be had for now. How do we know? Because, as hard as the times have appeared to be here our farmers have had a picnic compared to farmers elsewhere, and it is our unrivalled soil that has enabled them to make as good a showing as they have. Talk about hard times! Why we are "rich as" compared with other places, and times have been comparatively easy here. The result of this fact will be increased immigration, increased demand for our fertile soil, and of course better prices. Now is the time to secure cheap farms—in the very cream of the country.

Drouths.

From all over the land comes complaints of excessive drouths this summer and everybody who sees our Polk county crops says: "How fresh and nice your crops look. How comes it that they are not all dried up and ruined as ours are?" Well, we can't say why, we only know that they are so. We have known that in an experience of 22 years this is the second dry season we have had, and both times we have had the very best of crops. There seems to be something in our soil or climate that effectually resists the ill effects of drouths; a failure from that source seems practically unknown here. There is a difference in soils in different localities of course, but the general rule holds good everywhere. But even in extreme dry seasons we get some rain—enough for potatoes and all fed for stock. Upon the whole a dry season—when it does come has less terrors here than in any other country we ever saw. We always have something to sell, even when in less favored countries the crops are utterly burned up by drouth.

Artesian Wells.

One of the blessings Polk county enjoys is found in the boasting to this article. North of us, south of us, east of us, west of us, go where you will and you will not find it so easy to obtain an abundance of pure, good water as the farmer of Polk county can obtain at small expense. In the early day we remember that an artesian well used to cost us all the way from $200 to $300 to obtain; now you can go down from 150 to 250 feet and get a good flow of water at a cost running all the way from $50 to $125. And no better water can be found in the world.

Defeated in the Second Attempt.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 11.—Dispatches received here say that the second attempt of the Japanese fleet upon Wei Hai Wei has been defeated. Another dispatch says that the Pei Yang fleet is engaged with the Japanese fleet, and that a storm born battle is being fought. Twenty-one ships are taking part in this fight.

Peace Efforts Failed.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9.—It is officially reported from Tien Tsin that the efforts of Great Britain and Russia to bring about a peaceful settlement of the disputes between China and Japan have failed. China is willing to pay an indemnity but refuses to surrender her suzerainty over Corea.

Not a Chinaman on Board.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—The steamship City of Pekin, which arrived during the day from Hong Kong and Yokohama, did not have a single Chinese passenger on board. There were only a few Japanese. The Chinese government persists in its refusal to allow any Chinese to leave the country.

Loss Fifty Thousand.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 11.—Fire in Winneconne, Wis., destroyed one block of the business portion and several of the finest residences in the village, and the Baptist church. The loss is probably $50,000.

WORK OF WRECKERS.

ROCK ISLAND TRAIN RAN OFF A BRIDGE

Near Lincoln, Neb., and Immediately Took Fire—It Was Thought at One Time That Over a Score Were Crushed, But Later Reports Place the Number of Seven.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 10.—It was nearly dark before the frightful mass of debris occupying the ravine where the Rock Island express was wrecked and burned a few miles south of this city had cooled down sufficiently to enable the big crowd gathered at the place, in the hope of learning something of the fate of relatives, to inspect the charred mass in detail, but any hope they may have entertained of securing from the great ash pile information as to the identity of those who lost their lives in the holocaust was soon blasted. The toss of water thrown on the twisted relics of the train and the bed of embers had been insufficient to prevent every vestige of combustible matter being destroyed. Occasionally a charred skull or a partially burned human bone was raked from but nothing more remained to tell the tale of those who went down with the ill-fated train, and time was required to determine how many persons were lost in the wreck. The list of killed, as furnished by the coroner, swells the fatalities to 34, as follows:

DR. C. P. PINNEY, Council Bluffs.
JAS DEPEW, engineer, Council Bluffs.
W. O. HAMMELL, lawyer, Fairbury, Neb.
C. D. STANARD, conductor, St. Joe.
JOHN MUNGER, grain dealer, Omaha.
H. R. PETERS, merchant, Council Bluffs.
E. H. ZERBISCKE, lawyer, Lincoln, Neb.
FIVE UNKNOWN MEN.
CHARLES UNION, NOTHER AND SON, Jansen, Neb.
A. B. EDDE, merchant, Pawnee, Neb.
M. BEAVEN, merchant, Pawnee, Neb.
FOUR UNKNOWN FARMERS from Jansen, Neb.

Those marked unknown are passengers known to have been on the train by the brakeman and unaccounted for.

Rails Were Removed.

There are two theories as to the wrecking of the train, it being conceded that the train was derailed by the removal of the rails for a part of the way across the trestle. "There is plenty of evidence to prove this as a fact. A fish plate and the bar with which it fastened were wrenched loose were found near the trestle after the wreck occurred. One theory is that strikers from South Omaha did the work, believing that a company of state troops, who were to have boarded the train at Fairfield was aboard. The company missed connection, however. This is not as generally credited as the other—that the element that has been causing so much trouble in Oklahoma who are bitter against the Rock Island, did the job, though why they should have come this distance to wreck a train that might have been wrecked nearer home is not explained.

NO MORE BODIES FOUND.

Believed Now That Only Eleven Persons Perished in the Awful Wreck.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 11.—Coroner Grim is now holding an inquest over the remains of the victims of the Rock Island wreck near this city Thursday night. The coroner and the jury went to the scene of the disaster before the taking of testimony was begun. The wreckage has been nearly all cleared away, but no more bodies have been found. It is now believed that only 11 people perished.

Hundreds Entombed.

WARSAW, Aug. 12.—The great coal mines near Domhrowa, government of Grando, have been burning since Friday afternoon. The fire started by an explosion of gas while the full force of miners were underground. The main shaft was wrecked and consequently few miners have been rescued. The latest report is that several hundred men are entombed in the mines and that all hopes of saving them has been abandoned.

Lightning Killed Seven.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 11.—A Dekalb special to The News says about 3 p. m. a crowd of men and boys met on a small prairie near the town and were playing ball. A shower came up and they all ran to a large oak. Lightning struck the tree and the following were killed outright: Several others were injured.

Strikers Lose at Omaha.

OMAHA, Aug. 7.—The 1,000 men who struck at the South Omaha packing plants have lost and the plants are running as usual with full complements of men. The packers are unanimous in stating that they had no differences to arbitrate.

Vest Is Tired of Congress.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 11.—The Journal's Washington correspondent wires its paper as follows: It is generally understood and accepted as true among the Missourians that Vest will not seek another election. Hon. Champ Clark announces himself a candidate for the place. Ex-Governor Francis is a standing candidate, and it is also understood that ex-Congressman Clary will be in the race.

PREMONITIONS OF DEATH.

Soldiers Who Have Gone Into Certain Battles Perfectly Conscious of Their Fate.

"Soldiers had strange premonitions of death before going into battle during the war," said an old soldier. "I could not tell you how many times I have seen my comrades foretell their death. They seemed to feel it was coming and went into battle fully prepared to meet their end. So common was this, and so regularly did death follow when foretold, that I often heard officers upbraiding their men for speaking of death, remarking that 'A man never speaks of a fear of death without death following shortly after. It's like the smallpox; the one that dreads it most is surely to be the first victim.' But the officers were reasoning backward. In all the cases I saw the prediction of death was caused by an inward feeling, telling that his end was near.

"It wasn't fear, for I remember 'Boss' McKellar, as we used to call him, who came from Butler county. He had been a brave soldier, serving his full three years, never once failing in his duty. The day before his three years were up he went into the battle of the Wilderness. He was so pale and careworn and lacked so much the usual vigor with which he entered battle that some of his friends remarked how changed he was. He looked like a ghost and was trembling all over. They asked him what was the matter. 'Why,' he replied, 'my three years are up tomorrow, but I'll never see my service out. I will be killed in this battle—that I know.'

"His friends tried to cheer him up, letting him that it was only a morbid fancy, but no amount of talk could enliven him. He went into the battle and was among the first to fall, being hit squarely in the forehead. I also remember John Dunbar sitting eating crackers with an officer before a campfire on the eve of battle. He had a sad expression when he turned, and breaking the cracker in his fingers said in a contemplative manner, 'Well, boys, this is my last night on earth.' In the dim firelight I saw the big tears well up as the officer inquired what he meant. 'I'll be shot tomorrow sure.' The officer, seeing how deeply the man was affected, placed his hand upon his shoulder and said: 'Brace up, John. Don't be foolish. Men of Ohio don't talk like that.' But this only made the soldier break down. In the battle next day he was killed among the first. I could give you an indefinite number of such instances, which show that soldiers really had a death foretold to them, but these are sufficient. To me it was a most solemn moment when I heard a man say he was going to be killed. It invariably turned out that way."—Exchange.

THOSE STRIPED STOCKINGS.

A Lewiston Man Tells a Good Story of the Indian Territory.

The returned Lewistonian fell to talking over a revolver that he carried in the unrest of desperado in New Mexico, and then he diverged and told this story:

"Once when we were going down in the Indian Territory as we rode out of the village we passed the house where a New Brunswick girl had just come to live in the little prairie village. There had been considerable joking about the new arrival, and as we passed she came out to hang up her washing on the line. I rode a little red pony—one that I had swapped a shotgun for—and when I saw the New Brunswick girl hang a pair of the longest, biggest striped stockings I had ever seen I rode right up into the yard and under the clothesline and seized those stockings and pulled 'em off the line and rode away.

"All that trip down across the hot plains and over the rustling buffalo grass the boys plagued me about those stockings. I had put them into my trunk and kept them. I don't know what I took them for or why I kept them.

"Well we got down into the territory and among the Indians. They are great gamblers, you know, and we bet with them everything we had. We even won from them all the money and blankets they possessed.

"The blankets were United States army blankets, but we can see them by cutting out the 'U. S.' At last we came down to foot runners, and the Indians brought out their man. He was tall, broad chested and long limbed. He could go like the wind, and our best runner was nothing compared with him. Why, he was the best physical man I ever saw. He looked at our man and his thick lip curled in derision.

"'He no good—get a man.'

"The savage was stripped to his skin. I looked at our man.

"'Jake,' I said, 'you wait a minute. Then I went and got those stockings. When I brought them out, they created the biggest kind of a sensation, and the curiosity to touch them was something comical.

"They just wanted to put their hands on them to see what they were.

"I did not let them get within curiosity, but carried them through the crowd as if they were only relics.

"'Jake, put those on and run with them,' I said.

"'Why, I can't run with those on,' he said.

"'Yes, you can. Don't you see that they are mystified?'

"He put them on, and though he was a large man they came clear to his hips. We pinned them up, and he started with the big stockings. It was plain by the faces of the greasers that they had lost all faith in their man as against the striped stockings. The Indian ran a little distance and then fell behind, with his eyes fixed in terror on those flying stockings. He was beaten. And do you know I sold those stockings to the Indian for five ponies and a rifle!"—Lewiston Journal.

A DEFUNCT OYSTER.

THE DEMOCRATS RESPONSIBLE FOR LOST TRADE.

Eastern Oystermen Find Less Demand For Their Bivalves—People Have No Money and Cannot Buy—Collections Hard and Profits Small.

The oyster business is a large one in the United States, especially all along the Atlantic coast. Down on Long Island there are hundreds of men interested in the oyster business who are not protected by the tariff, and according to the free trade theory nothing should interfere with the natural laws and progress of their business, which involves a large amount of money invested in the oyster beds, in boats and tackle. The majority of the oystermen along the southern coast of Long Island have heretofore been steadfast Democrats. But since the election of a Democratic president, and since they have got a Democratic majority in congress, they begin to feel that Democracy and the threat of free trade are not good things for the men or money engaged in the oyster business.

One of these men said the other day: "During the past season I have not sold, as far as money represents, one-tenth of the oysters that I used to sell before we put all these Democrats into congress."

"That seems an enormous difference, a loss of 90 per cent in your oyster trade," I said.

"That is the fact, and I replied, "I have not sold 90 per cent less of oysters, but I have not sold half as many oysters this season as I used to, and those that I have sold have been for less money, and even this less money I have not been able to collect.

"That is pretty hard lines," I said, "smaller sales, smaller prices and smaller collections."

"Yes," was the answer, "and, take it all along this side of Long Island, the number of oysters sold have been just one-half of what they were before we got Cleveland. Where we have oyster beds to supply the New York market and the American trade, it is there that we oystermen have suffered."

"How does that trade in New York affect the oyster business?" was my next question.

"Well, it is in this way: If people are out of work or not earning as much money as they used to, they have to reduce their expenses, and the first things they do without are amusements and luxuries. People are not obliged to eat oysters in order to keep body and soul together, nor are they obliged to go to theaters, and when they do not go to the theaters they do not eat oysters after the theater, and that's just where we get left."

"Where do you sell your oysters mostly?"

"I used to ship my oysters and sell them direct to many of the large restaurants on Broadway and Sixth avenue, and I sent them to the men who had been buying less and less oysters from me steadily. It is not so much that I have collected no money, but collections are harder, and where I used to come up once a week and have no difficulty in collecting every dollar owing to me now I am sometimes asked to wait a week, or perhaps two or three weeks, by some of the sixth avenue restaurant keepers. And besides this we have to sell our oysters for less money. It is hard to get just what will pay actual working expenses and the wages of the men who are working for us."

"There is no tariff on oysters," I said, "and the Democrats say that it is the tariff that prevents business. Therefore as there is no tariff on oysters the oyster trade should be rushing, and people should be scrambling and fighting for oysters."

He looked at me sharply and said: "What's the use of that? What affects our oyster trade is the general prosperity of the people of the country. If people are not working, have no money to spend; if they have money to spend, they will have some amusement and luxuries. I used to be a strong Democrat, but I guess I have had just enough of it. I have suffered pretty badly in my business since the Democrats got into power, and that has knocked out of me all the belief I used to have in them. I have got to look out for myself, my wife and family, and if I cannot earn money enough to supply them with food, clothing and comfort with a free trade congress as it is in power, just the same as I used to when the Republicans were in office, why, I am going to vote for those who help me. Next election you will find me voting a straight Republican ticket."

The Wolves and the Sheep.

Once on a time the Wolves sent an embassy to the Sheep, desiring that there might be peace between them for the time to come. "Why," said they, "should we be forever waging this deadly strife? Those wicked Dogs are the cause of it all; they are incessantly barking at us and provoking us." The silly Sheep listened, the Dogs were dismissed, and the flock, thus deprived of their protection, became an easy prey to their treacherous enemy.

SAVANTS IN SCIENCE.

THEY WILL SOON DISCUSS ABSTRUSE PROBLEMS IN BROOKLYN.

Annual Meeting of the American Association For the Advancement of Science—Interesting Career of Dr. Daniel Garrison Brinton, President of the Association.

Scientists of high and low degree, large and small, tall and fat, long headed, level headed, hatchheaded and gray headed, are all headed toward Brooklyn just now, for the reason that on Aug. 15 the American Association For the Advancement of Science is to begin its annual session of nine days' duration in the City of Churches. Among the organizations invited to attend the session are the following named:

Geological Society of America, American Microscopical society, Society For the Promotion of Agricultural Science, Society For the Promotion of Engineering Education, Botanical club, Association of Economic Entomologists, American Chemical society, Association of State Weather Services, and the Naval Reserve association, Appalachian Mountain club, Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experimental Stations, Entomological club, American Geographical society, Torrey Botanical club of New York, New York Microscopical society, New York Academy of Sciences, Linnæn society of New York, New York Mineralogical society, New York Mathematical society, New York section of the American Chemical society, New York Entomological society. The most eminent scientists of England, France and Germany, including Professor Huxley, Sir Archibald Geikie and Sir John Lubbock, have also been asked to be present.

PRESIDENT DANIEL G. BRINTON.

The American Association For the Advancement of Science has been in existence 43 years, and the researches of its members and its public annual deliverances have proved incalculable benefits to the cause of science. The president of the association is Daniel Garrison Brinton, the eminent ethnologist, who probably knows as much as any man living about the division of mankind into races, their origin, distribution and relations and the peculiarities which characterize them. President Brinton was born in Chester county, Pa., May 13, 1837. He was graduated at Yale in 1858 and at the Jefferson Medical college in 1861. After a year of medical practice he returned to America and entered the Federal army as acting assistant surgeon. In 1863 he was commissioned surgeon and served as surgeon in chief of the Second division Sixth corps. He saw about all that there was to see of the horrors of war at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and other engagements, and in October of the same year was appointed medical director of his corps.

At the battle of Gettysburg he received a sunstroke and was disqualified from service. He soon became superintendent of hospitals at Quincy and Springfield, Ills., and remained on duty there until the close of the war, when he was brevetted lieutenant colonel and discharged. After the war he settled in Philadelphia, became the editor of a medical and surgical publication and has since been a frequent contributor to the columns of such journals.

Dr. Brinton has for many years been prominent as a student of and writer on American ethnology, and the subject has fascinated him ever since he was a student in college. In 1884 he was appointed professor of ethnology and archæology in the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, and for several years he has been president of the Numismatic and Antiquarian society of the Quaker City. In 1890 he was elected vice president of the American Association For the Advancement of Science, to preside over the section devoted to anthropology, and the same year had the honor of being the first American awarded the medal of the Societe Americaine de France for his original scientific works on American ethnology.

He has established a library and publishing house of aboriginal American literature for the purpose of placing within the reach of scholars authentic materials for the study of the language and culture of the Indians of America. Each work is the production of a native mind and is printed in the original language. Dr. Brinton has also made valuable researches in his investigations of mounds, shell heaps, rock inscriptions and other evidences of the races that preceded the Aborigines and has shot much light on these interesting mysteries of early life on this continent. The numerous books he has written on medical and ethnological subjects make quite a library in themselves.

It is believed that over 1,000 delegates will attend the sessions of the association in Brooklyn. They will find pleasure as well as profit awaiting them, for they will be entertained by excursions to Long Branch, Cold Spring Harbor and West Point.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S CORONATION.

A Description of the Event as Seen by the Famous Dean Stanley.

The following concerning Dean Stanley's view of the coronation of Queen Victoria is taken from a recently published life of that remarkable man:

At 10:30 another gun announced that she was on the abbey floor, and in about a quarter of an hour the procession appeared from under the organ, advancing up the purple passage in the chancel, every one leaning over, and to their cause. First the pages, then, struggling with their enormous trains, then bishops, etc., and then the queen, with her vast crimson train outspread by eight ladies all in white, followed by the great ladies of her court in enormous crimson trains and the smaller ladies with delicate sky blue trains trailing along the dark floor. When she came within the full view of the gorgeous abbey she paused as if for breath and clasped her hands. The orchestra burst into the most tremendous crash of music I ever heard. "I was glad when they said unto me, 'Let us go into the house of the Lord.'"

Every one literally gasped for breath from the intense interest, and the rails of the gallery visibly trembled in one's hands from the trembling of the spectators. I never saw anything like it. Tears would have been a relief. One felt that the queen must sink into the earth under the tremendous awe. But at last she moved on to her place by the altar, and, as I heard from my cousin who had a place close by, threw herself on her knees, buried her face in her hands and evidently prayed fervently. For the first part the silence was so great that at my extreme point I could hear quite distinctly the tremulous but articulate voice of the archbishop. Afterward it was quite inaudible. The great drawbacks were the feeble responses to the service and the feebleness of the acclamation—hardly any at all at the recognitions—and not tolerable at the coronation. That was the crisis of this ceremony and the most striking part. The very moment the crown touched her head the guns went off, the trumpets began and the shouts. She was perfectly immovable, like a statue. The Duchess of Kent burst into tears, and her lady had to put on her coronet for her. The whole was very beautiful, from the cloth of gold. The homage also from the magnificent cluster in the very center.

It was a take off, though a necessary one, I suppose, that throughout her face was turned away from the spectators toward the altar. All the movements were beautiful. She was most becomingly panied by her eight ladies floating about her like a silvery cloud. It was over at 3:30—that is, the twelve peers put on their crowns, her orb and her scepter. I walked home. The rest had to wait till 5 for their carriages, which were taken back by the length of the line to Kensington common. The crowd in the streets to see the people at the procession was stupendous. It was all more like a dream than reality—more beautiful than I could have conceived possible. I should wish almost never to see her again; that, as this was the first image I had ever had of her, so it should be the last.

AFTER DINNER ORATORS.

Most Englishmen Are Failures as Such, but Coleridge Was a Shining Exception.

Lord Coleridge had a record as the best English after dinner speaker who ever came to America. As a rule, the Englishman does not shine conspicuously in comparison with the average American of his sams grade in law, politics, literature, the clergy and journalism. Most of them, in fact, are dire failures. Coleridge and Irving are the shining exceptions. Irving was a humorist, who came with a great flourish of trumpets and was received with much cordiality by his professional brethren. He was the worst that we ever had to endure. Martin Farquhar Tupper was insufferably dull. Tools, the comedian, who was considered funny on the other side, was ingurious here. It took several seasons to break in Wilson Barrett. Lord Aberdeen is genial, but prosy.

Dickens was the best man who preceded Coleridge, but the present generation of diners he is only a tradition and does not count. Sir Richard Wolseley, I fancy, would have shown himself a good second to Lord Coleridge, but his visit was too short, and very few had the pleasure of hearing him. It had that pleasure here as well as in England, and he certainly has a remarkable facility of expression, combined with a fine vocabulary, a keen sense of humor and a thorough knowledge of human nature. Coleridge, however, I repeat, took the palm and has worn it for the banquet of friends whom he met here to this day.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

In the matter of the estate of David E. Hallenbeck deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of J. F. Davidson, of Warren, representing among other things, that David E. Hallenbeck late of the City of Crookston, Minn., on the 28th day of July, A. D. 1894, at said Crookston died intestate and that no letters of administration upon the estate of his death, leaving real estate in this State, and that certain debts are owing from said deceased to said petitioner in a brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to G. O. Christianson granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this court on Monday the 27th day of August, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. at Probate Office in said City.

Ordered further that notice thereof be given to the heirs at law of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County of Crookston.

Dated at Crookston, the 31st day of July, A. D. 1894.

By the Court,
A. M. BESSON
Judge of Probate.

The senate tariff bill has been concurred in by the House and goes to Grover for his signature. It is said that, while he may not sign the bill he will allow it to become a law by default.

It is remarked to see the democrats squirm. The gymnastics of this party on the tariff has put them in such straits that they begin to rail frantically upon the populists to rise and swallow them up. Anything to save them from themselves!

"Your Uncle Loren" Fletcher, is at home in Minneapolis looking after his fences for a few days. He is quoted as having said that the tariff bill is sure to pass in a few days, and that Washburn will be his own successor in the United States Senate.

The democratic state central committee having heaved its Jonahs over-board has re-organized on a basis capable of endorsing Grover and will go for a straight democratic ticket. The little policy fleas will still continue to insist on forgetting principles (that they never did possess) and indorsing Owen.

The democrats "for revenue only" are splitting the idea of endorsing Owen for governor. That is quite a natural attitude for them to occupy, but how will it suit those who have always maintained that the democrats are the party of the people? Those who claim that the populistic theories are radically wrong?

The war between China and Japan bids fair to settle the question as to whether the Chinese shall go—and settle it in the affirmative, as John Chinaman—a great deal of him—shows a encouraging disposition to emigrate to the mother country to help her fight her battles. If the war continues much longer, two-thirds of our Chinese population will go back to take a hand in the deal.

The Minneapolis papers are figuring a yield of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat for North and South Dakota and Minnesota, divided as follows: Minnesota and North Dakota 50,000,000 each, and South Dakota 25,000,000. That does not agree with the government estimate, which gives a yield of 160,000,000 in 18 wheat states and probably is the nearest correct. The yield for Minnesota will not be over one-half the usual average, if that.

It is a queer mistake that a certain class of politicians make when they set up their own wills against the will of the majority. As long as they can have their own way however thing they are sweet-tempered and all right, but let them once get crossed in the accomplishment of a purpose and, straightway they sulk about and plot and plan to defeat the will of the majority. This is not good politics, does not help them, still they will do it.

The Times has turned populist at last and urges its friends to vote for the populist candidate for governor. The Times desires to see an era of hard times in Minnesota equal to that produced in Kansas by the accession of the populist party to power; wants to see capital driven from the state as it was there and the consequent distress arising therefrom. It strikes us that a democratic reign is bad enough without inflicting anything worse upon the state.

That was a royal roast that R. G. Horr gives Ignatius Donnelly in reply to an article that appeared in the Representative criticising Horr's speech before the republican state convention in June. Without any billingsgate, in a perfectly mannerly manner, Mr. Horr proceeds to flay Ignatius to the queen's taste and incidentally he exposes some of the fallacies of the populist creed, and shows wherein the principles of the republican party are best for the welfare of the country. The article appeared in the New York Tribune, and was copied into the Minneapolis Tribune of the 13th inst. Every voter in Minnesota ought to read it.

IT MAKES US SMILE.

In commenting on the personnel of the Fergus Falls post-mortem that St. Paul Globe alludes to our long, dignified (rather) good-looking townsman, A. A. Bruer as "a miller of Crookston." The Globe says: "Steenerson will be nominated by a miller of Crookston," trying, evidently, badly, to make a corrid monopolist of our genial attorney.

The silver plank, as drafted by the committee on resolutions at Fergus Falls on Tuesday reads as follows:

"We firmly believe that the interests of the country, its farmers and working men alike, demand that every dollar, whether of paper or coin, issued by the government, shall be as good as any other.

We are in favor of the largest possible use of silver as money that is consistent with the permanent maintenance of equal values of all dollars in circulation. We do not want mono-metalism, either gold or silver, and we pledge ourselves to continue the work of bi-metalism, to be brought about by all means within the power of the government."

The democrats are as much at sea in state politics in Minnesota as they are on the tariff question in Washington. Whether to endorse the populist ticket and lose their identity entirely in the state or, to put up a straight ticket and fight it out on that line is a problem they are far from being united upon. They would awfully like to endorse Owen—that is, those of them who have no principles outside of the offices, the loaves and the fishes, hoping thereby to defeat the republican party; but the honest ones among them, those who think they are fighting for a principle can see the danger of losing their identity and becoming populists altogether, and therefore will not for a moment tolerate the idea of endorsing the populist ticket. And so the merry war goes on and they are all at sea on this point, the same as they are on the tariff, and what the outcome will be who shall say?

Though the Polk county candidate, Mr. Steenerson, had outside help enough to have given the nomination to him, the bitter personal fight made upon him by a little coterie, who if they cannot rule, prefer to rain, defeated him. Mr. Steenerson comes out of this fight untrammeled, and with nothing to regret having run a clean campaign, having been the choice of the large majority of the rank and file of the republican party in Polk county. But what can we say of the schemers who have succeeded in get delegates enough to control the convention in part, but who have failed in their scheme sorted to the means that they did to deprive Polk county of a representative in congress? We cannot imagine how a man can be constituted who will deliberately go to work against the best interests of his city and county to rob her of so important a factor in the same like this, and it is a fact that this was done for with no opposition from his home county, Mr. Steenerson could have been nominated and if nominated could have been elected. If there is any consolation to those who attempted such a dastardly blow to the interests of our city and county in the reflection that their schemes were successful, we will leave them to the enjoyment of all the consolation they can get out of it.

The Norman County Index says: The following particulars of the drowning of Alfred Mott were received from Neis Mott Sunday morning, which are clipped from the Spokane Review:—

The boys were on a camping trip with James Pierand the Colen family and Mr Mott, father of one of the unfortunate boys. The boys started for the horses preparatory to coming home. They found the horses on an island and attempted to ride them to camp. They had to cross a deep channel and here the boys met their fate. It supposed that the horse that Mott was riding got his forefoot tangled in the reins and sank, carrying the rider down with him, and that his companion failed to rescue him both going down. Not being able to camp in a reasonable time suspicion was aroused and parties started to search for the boys. All that was found was one of the horses dead in the lake. It was then decided to search further. At daylight the search was resumed. The corpse of Brammel was found at 6:30 a. m., and Mott was found at 7 o'clock. As a mark of respect the business houses of the banks will remain closed until 9 o'clock. Mr Brammel was cashier of the Farmers' and Traders' bank of this city, and Alfred Mott was the son of a dry goods and clothing merchant, W. Mott, formerly in business in Spokane. Both young men stood high in the community, and the news of their sudden death cast sorrow and gloom over the entire community.

THE FIGHT OFF.

Corbett and Jackson Meet In New York, but Fail to Agree on Terms.

CALL EACH OTHER NAMES.

The Wordy War Finally Ends by Declaring All Negotiations Off.

New York, Aug. 14.—There will be no fight between Corbett and Jackson. The two heavyweights met during the afternoon and called each other bluffers and finally declared all negotiations looking toward a meeting between the two off. The two men met at Jackson's room in the Grand Union hotel, Corbett going there, accompanied by Manager Brady, on receipt of word from Jackson that he could not meet the champion until a later day. The request for delay angered Corbett and he proceeded at once to Jackson's room. Crossing the room to where Jackson was sitting, Corbett said to him:

"I want to fight you. Come, now, get down to business."

"It is about time you did," replied Jackson.

This angered Corbett, and each called the other a "bluffer."

"I am too much of a gentleman to call you a liar," said Corbett, when Jackson said he did not want to fight. Then each called the other more names. Jackson positively refused to fight in the South, and Corbett offered to fight him to a finish before the National club in England. Jackson said they would be permitted to fight only 20 rounds there and refused. Finally they could not agree on any place in the North where they could fight; and declared everything off, and, shaking hands, Corbett left the hotel.

LIBERATED PRISONERS.

A Discharged Jailer Flays Eyen at Leavenworth, Kan.

Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 14.—Acted upon by spite, Jailer Jerry Murphy, who Saturday evening had been dismissed because of drunkenness, last who still retained skeleton keys to the prison, returned to the jail, and, while Guard Sullivan slept, opened wide the doors and liberated all the prisoners. After a hard chase and a severe struggle five of them were captured. The others, who include several desperate characters, are still at large with little prospect of being returned to their cells. Murphy was arrested and a state warrant will be sworn out against him.

FEARED STARVATION.

Mrs. Adolph Max Drowns Herself and Two Children.

Lyons, Ia., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Adolph Max and two children, a boy of 5 and a child of 2 years, were missed here Sunday, and search resulted in the recovery of her body from the river with the smallest child clasped in her arms. The body of the other child was not found. Fear of starvation and lack of employment led to suicide. Her husband is believed to be at Lincoln, Ill. Three little children are left.

PLEASURE BOAT UPSET.

Four Young People Drowned Near Thorpenthers, Ont.—Their Bodies Recovered.

Marsie City, Mich., Aug. 14.—Word reaches here of a drowning accident in Sydenham, near Thornpenthers, Ont., which four young people lost their lives.

No one saw the accident and it is not known just how it occurred. The party started to cross the river in an old flat-bottomed boat and it is supposed it capsized. All the bodies were recovered.

Bank President Suicides.

St. Reno, O. T., Aug. 14.—J. M. Bancom, president of the Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Watonga, 30 miles west of here, disgraced by his son investing involving the affairs of his bank, committed suicide by shooting. The son, W. C. Bancom, is missing, and it is said he has fled.

Bequests for Breckinridge.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge made his second speech at Lexington Monday afternoon. He spoke to 1,500 people, 83 of whom were women. Numerous floral designs and bouquets were laid on the small table before Colonel Breckinridge.

Fire at Phillips Again.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 14.—Mayor Meredith of Phillips has sent word that fire was raging close to the city and asked for a fire engine. The Stanley Manufacturing company sent up its private engine and 1,400 feet of hose.

More Rain in Nebraska.

Omaha, Aug. 14.—Heavy rains are falling in all parts of the state, extending many miles into Iowa. In many instances it is so heavy as to amounts to almost a deluge. The crop situation is very much improved.

Elevator Burned.

Stewartville, Minn., Aug. 14.—The Lamberton elevator at Simpson burned at 6 p. m. consuming the coal sheds, one box car and 3,000 bushels of grain. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

Fire at Manitowoc.

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 14.—Henry Ochelen, a farmer near here, lost his barns and dwelling by fire. Horses also burned. Loss, $16,000; insurance, $8,000.

Collided in a Fog.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Two engines backing in a fog came together with the result that one man was fatally and three others seriously injured.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Tuesday, Aug. 7.

The senate held a short and uninteresting session, adjourning at 2:30 p. m. The most important event was the passage of a resolution directing the president to take steps for the release of American citizens confined in the island of Cuba for participation in the recent rebellions.

The house adjourned early to allow the Democrats to caucus on the tariff.

Wednesday, Aug. 8.

In the senate a motion by Senator George to take up the bankruptcy bill resulted in a vote of 27 to 19 not a quorum. Failing to develop a voting quorum, Mr. George withdrew the bill for the present. House bills to provide for the opening of a certain abandoned military reservations and appropriating $50,000 for the construction of a proposed revenue cutter for San Francisco were passed.

The house adopted the resolution to investigate Judge Ricks of Ohio.

Thursday, Aug. 9.

In the course of two and a half hours senate bills were passed by the house. Then at 4:30 the house adjourned.

The senate went into executive session at 1:15 and soon afterward adjourned. No business of importance was transacted.

Friday, Aug. 10.

In the senate Mr. Hill introduced a resolution asking conferees to report the condition of the tariff conference. It raised quite a storm of discussion, but finally went over on objection. The adoption of the resolution would put an end to the conference.

The house devoted itself to discussing projects for a government exhibit to cost $200,000 at the Atlanta exposition and to give each of the arid land states 1,000,000 acres of arid lands to encourage the reclamation of their deserts, contained in senate amendments to the sundry civil bill.

Saturday, Aug. 11.

Both house and senate were too much interested in the developments regarding the tariff conference to transact much business. The senate went into executive session soon after convening.

Monday, Aug. 13.

The seat of the tariff war having been transferred to the house the proceedings in the senate were comparatively tame. The report of the conferees on the sundry civil bill was agreed to with some modification and the bill was sent back to conference. The Chinese treaty was ratified in executive session.

AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION.

Injunctions and Organized Labor Will Be One of the Topics.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 11.—More than ordinary interest will attach to the 17th annual convention of the American Bar association to be held at Saratoga Springs two weeks hence. From the fact that a special session is to be devoted to a consideration of the question of "Injunctions and Organized Labor." The local association comprises in its membership the greatest legal minds in the country, and the views enunciated on a topic that, as a result of recent events has assumed international interest, will form a symposium that will live in legal literature. Hon. Thomas M. Cooley of this city is to preside over the convention, and every state in the Union will have its representative.

Government Report on Corn.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The August report of the statistician of the department of agriculture shows a decline in corn of nearly 26 points making it 83 the average for the entire breadth two 69.1 against 85.3 three months of July. The condition August, 1893, was 87.

Stratton Extradited.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 12.—The requisition of the governor of Colorado was honored for the return of Alonzo Stratton, the escaped convict arrested at Chicago.

TARIFF FIGHT ENDED

THE HOUSE ACCEPTING THE SENATE AMENDMENTS.

Was That Bill or None, and House Leaders Decided It Preferable to Mr. Kinley—Supplementary Bills Passed —Admitting Sugar, Iron Ore, Coal and Barbed Wire Free.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The long struggle over the tariff bill came to a close at 6 p. m., when the house, by a vote of 182 to 105, decided to discharge the house conferees from further consideration of the bill, secede from its opposition to the 634 senate amendments and agree to the senate bill. It was a complete victory for the senate. The house made an absolute surrender. The result grew directly out of the sensational course of events at the senate end of the Capitol precipitated by Senator Hill on Friday. Up to that time the house conferees had stood firm against the senate amendments, especially on the

of coal, iron ore and sugar, and the temper and voice of the house was for war -war to the end. But the indications that the Democrats of the senate might not be able to longer hold a majority of the votes in line for even the senate bill, and that the bill was in desparate jeopardy, forced the house Democrats to give in. The Democratic conferees of the house at last admitted that they were beaten, and that another vote could not be risked in the senate; that it must either be the senate bill or no bill. The whole question was precipitated at the caucus held just before the house convened, at which, after a thorough review of the situation and speeches in favor of receding by Speaker Crisp, Chairman Wilson and others, it was decided and immediately afterwards pass separate bills placing coal, iron ore, sugar and barbed wire on the free list and hasten doing place the house on record and at least partially overcome the humiliation involved in its defeat. The programme arranged in the caucus was carried out to the letter in the house after an ironclad special order. The scenes in the chamber throughout the day and evening were exciting and at times sensational. The galleries were packed and the members applauded and cheered their respective leaders to the echo. Under the terms of the order but two hours were allowed for debate on the main proposition to recede and agree to the senate amendments to the tariff bill. A parliamentary skirmish but the points of order raised by the Republicans were swept aside. The speaker ruled the house with an iron hand. The principal speeches for and against the main proposition were made by Chairman Wilson and Speaker Crisp on the one hand and ex-Speaker Reed and Mr. Burrows on the other.

Preceded the Pitched Battle,

The special order presented by Mr. Catchings provided, first, that immediately after the adoption of the order it would be in order to consider a resolution discharging the house conferees on the tariff bill from the further duty of considering that measure, and that the house in gross to the senate amendments to the bill, and agree to the same, and second, that it shall be in order at any time thereafter, to consider bills for free coal, free iron, free sugar and free barbed wire. The resolution allowed two hours debate on the tariff resolution.

During the reading of the resolutions, there were jeers from the Republican side, Burrows calling out "silly, silly," when that portion of the rule relating to free coal, etc., was read. Mr. Catchings demanded the previous question, but Mr. Reed made the point of order that the bill was not before the house. The bill had been brought in during the roll call and the speaker pointed to it. Mr. Reed and Mr. Wilson took the floor. He spoke calmly but eloquently, the Democrats crowding about him and listening intently to his every word. Mr. Wilson spoke but 10 minutes at the opening of the debate, and Mr. Reed, the leader of the opposition, took the floor. The gentleman from Maine aroused his followers to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Mr. McMillin (Dem., Tenn.) followed Mr. Reed. He severely criticised Mr. Reed's remarks and pointed out some of the good features of the senate bill. Mr. Burrows (Rep., Mich.) then made one of his

Sat Down Disconsolately

Characteristic Speeches

and was followed briefly by Mr. Pence of Colorado, leader of the Populists. Mr. Cockran (Dem., N. Y.) then took the floor and was given the closest attention by the expectant galleries and was at times enthusiastically applauded from either side of the chamber as his sledgehammer blows were dealt at the McKinley law or the senate bill. Mr. Cockran was deeply in earnest and his protest against the consummation of the tariff legislation recalled his famous speech of protest at the Chicago convention. Messrs. Tarsney (Dem., Mo.), Hopkins (Rep., Ills.), Johnson (Dem., O.) and Turner (Dem., Ga.) also spoke briefly and Speaker Crisp closed the debate for the affirmative. Mr. Wilson then Demanded a Vote on the Resolution.

Yeas and nays were then ordered, and resulted 176 for to 97 against. The Democrats who voted against the motion were Cockran (N. Y.), Covert (N. Y.), Davey (La.), Dunphy (N. Y.), Everett (Mass.), Gorman (Mich.), Hendrix (N. Y.), Johnson (O.), Mayer (La.), Price (La.), Tarsney (Mo.), Warner (N. Y.). Populists voted for the motion.

Mr. Wilson then immediately arose and offered the first of the separate list bills in accordance with the resolution adopted by the caucus. It provided for the free admission, upon its passing, of bituminous coal, slack and culm. Under the order 30 minutes were allowed. The Democrats evidently by not using their 15 minutes of time, Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., O.) occupied five minutes. Then Mr. Turner (Rep., N. Y.) spoke of the triumphs of the sugar trust.

The question recurring on the passage of the bill, the vote by tellers showed 76 for and 47 against. Mr. Reed raised the point of no quorum and Mr. Wilson demanded a yea and nay vote. This resulted, yeas, 160; nays, 104. Twenty-one Democrats voted against the bill. Mr. Wilson then stated that he was directed by the Democratic caucus to present the bill placing iron on the free list.

Representative Cannon (Rep., Ills.) spoke against the bill, the Democrats not claiming their time. As soon as he concluded the bill was passed. Mr. Wilson next presented the bill

For Free Barbed Wire.

Mr. Hopkins (Rep., Ills.) and Mr. Gear (Rep., Ia.) spoke against the bill, and Mr. Coombs (Dem., N. Y.) for it. The vote was yeas, 187; nays, 84.

After the free sugar bill had been reported Mr. Robertson of Louisiana offered an amendment reducing the bounties on sugar one-eighth yearly, from July 1, 1895, to July 1, 1901. Mr. Springer (Dem., Ills.) opened the discussion on sugar and was followed by Messrs. Price and Boatner of Louisiana, who opposed the measure. The bill then passed, 276 to 11, and the house adjourned.

CLEVELAND'S POSITION.

ELEVATOR CHARGES.

More About the Reduction of Grain Elevation and Storage Rates.

DULUTH, Aug. 11.—The grain trade of the Northwest, and especially the elevator interests of Duluth and Superior, are very much exercised over the announcement that the Great Northern road is to reduce by half the rates of elevation and storage of grain. Besides a direct loss of $450,000 to $500,000 annually to the five elevator companies doing business at the two cities, they see in the change a beginning of Mr. Hill's intention, long ago announced, indeed so long ago announced as to have been forgotten until now, that he would cut the price of wheat transfer charges till he wiped them out altogether. Several years ago in an interview had here he said he saw no more reason for allowing the handling of wheat brought in here for transshipment east to be in the hands of private corporations for gain, than he saw for private handling of flour or any package freight. He added that in time there would be no such charges and wheat would be elevated and stored a reasonable length of time without expense to the farmer, the roads including the cost in the freight charges and doing the work in their own elevators.

NATIONAL LEDGER.

THE NEW YORK HERALD'S DELIBERATE FINANCIAL DECEPTION.

A Pool Writer Who Cannot Distinguish Between Debits and Credits—A National Policy Advocated That Would Ruin James Gordon Bennett—Matters, Heware.

The New York Herald, which is now notorious for its deliberate deception in its editorial articles on political subjects, has let one of its writers loose on the national ledger, from which he imparts "a lesson." If there is one subject upon which The Herald editorial staff is more falsebooks than upon any other it is in its dealings with the national ledger, and it is a mighty good thing for The Herald that the theories of its editors are carefully excluded from its business department.

We all remember the complete destruction that came over the country last year through the Sherman silver law, so The Herald said, but it was unfortunate in not discovering the damnable effects of that law during the unprecedented prosperity of 1892. We all know the ridiculous prophecies for a return of prosperity immediately the Sherman law was repealed. But that law has been repealed for a year now, and the restoration of prosperity has failed to materialize. It was followed instead by the distribution of free clothing from The Herald's advertising fund to those who were freezing to death from actual distress and want.

Now we find the same apologist for the Cleveland hard times squirming around for another excuse because the era of prosperity promised by The Herald when it induced the people to vote for free trade has not overstayed. In its agony of despair it has taken up the statistics of our import and export trade, deploring the decrease in our imports of foreign goods, saying that from its (the foreign) point of view "we did better in 1890 and nearly as well 20 years ago." It then goes on:

"No better proof can be desired to show that the McKinley tariff has had a 'prohibitive' effect upon importations." This was intended, and this made the country so prosperous from 1890–3. Our international trade during those years was neither crippled nor dwarfed. It was much larger than usual, but if we read The Herald's "our" to mean the English, French and German interests, and more especially their shipping interests, because there was less foreign freight offering to be carried in foreign bottoms at the expense of Americans, then we can understand its regret for the "crippling and dwarfing." But this cripple is a dwarf to the following paiaied deceipt:

"But they (protectionists) ignore the fact that this (import) trade is indispensable to the extension of our export trade, and also that the former is as much a source of wealth as the latter. Thus England imports annually $150,000,000 worth of raw cotton, out of which she manufactures enough cotton goods and yarns to supply the wants of her own people and to make a surplus of $310,000,000 worth of cotton goods, which she exports and sells in all parts of the world. Certainly in such cases importation does not mean ruin."

The proprietor of The Herald, who has lived abroad, should hasten to inform his stay at homes that England does not grow cotton, hence is compelled to buy cotton just as she buys her raw wool, not being large enough or able to both produce and manufacture, and finding the latter branch of trade the more profitable. How much iron, how much coal, how much salt, does England buy from us? Those she has in abundance and is not compelled to buy them; cotton she cannot get elsewhere and must buy from us, and therefore does so for her own immediate gain because she can make money by buying it here and will sell it back to us in the shape of manufactured cotton goods as soon as the tariff has been destroyed by The Herald's political destructionists.

In the United States we possess in abundance very raw material except sugar, and there is no earthly reason for us to purchase abroad, but by our protective tariff we prohibit the importation of foreign raw material in order that American labor employed in working on our raw material may not be compelled to slave like Europeans at starvation wages and in order that American women may not be compelled to work in the mines as they have to do in England in order to get bread enough to keep body and soul together. This is the condition to which The Herald would degrade American labor while posing with doubts faced hypocrisy as its friend. The writer then goes on to say:

"As well might the 'protectionists' argue that the lean stock a merchant buys the more profit he will derive from his business as to argue that the smaller a country's importations the richer it will become."

The Herald's business apprentice is ignorant even of the very ethics of trade. Does he not know that The Herald's prosperity is due to what it sells? Every copy of the paper and every line of advertising matter more that is sold by The Herald each day and each year increases its profit. Its expense account does not. Such a deliberately false theory as The Herald's editorial writer advocates, if put into practice in The Herald's counting room, would soon bring its proprietor flying back from Europe, and it seems a pity that he cannot be induced to take a similar interest in the advocacy of a system that would be equally advantageous to the American people as it is to the pockets of James Gordon Bennett.—American Economist.

THE STRIKE INVESTIGATORS.

Three Lawyers, Carroll D. Wright, John D. Kernan and N. E. Worthington.

Three lawyers will investigate the recent strike in Chicago and report to President Cleveland under the act of congress approved June 13, 1898, which authorizes the commissioner of labor to investigate the causes of and facts relating to all controversies between employers and employed which may happen to interfere with the welfare of the people of the different states. Commissioner of Labor Carroll D. Wright, ex-officio chairman of the commission, was born in Dunbarton, N. H., 54 years ago and was studying law when the war began. He enlisted in the Fourteenth New Hampshire regiment and in 1864 became its colonel.

He was admitted to the bar in 1865, removed to Massachusetts and was elected to the state senate in 1871. During his term of office he was appointed chief of the state bureau of labor statistics, a position he held 15 years. When the national labor bureau was organized in 1884, Mr. Wright's wife fame as a statistician led to his appointment as chief of the office.

John D. Kernan, the second commissioner, is a New York man. He was born in Utica 50 years ago and is the eldest son of Francis Kernan, United States senator from New York from 1875 to 1881. He received a college education and studied law with his distinguished father. He has a large and lucrative practice and was appointed railroad commissioner of New York state when Cleveland was governor. He was chairman of the "antisnapper" convention which sent a Cleveland delegation to the Chicago convention in 1892.

The third commissioner, Judge Nicholas E. Worthington, was born in West Virginia 63 years ago. He has been a resident of Illinois since 1869. In 1855 he was graduated from Allegheny college, Meadville, Pa. He was then admitted to the bar and went west to grow up with the country. In 1862 he was elected to congress and two years later was re-elected. In 1886 he lost a third term, owing to the lack of 30 votes. He is a warm friend of Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson and nominated him for vice president. Two years ago he was elected judge of the circuit court at Peoria.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I claimed to have catarrh, creepy sensation that crawled in my nose and throat. Then I had pains in my eyes and they were sore, so sore I could not endure the dead feeling that had taken possession of me. In addition, I had a very weakness in my back and around my kidneys which all indescribable 'pains' in my stomach. Physicians said it was a case of catarrh, but nothing relieved it. Their internal catarrh cures failed to reach me at all. Once in fastens upon a person, it clings with a tenacity that defies all treatment. It reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. It was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no permanent benefit. Then I read the statement of Mr Wilbur Beaumont, who had procured it, sent and began using it. Marvelous! In many cases, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there was not a single symptom or indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down to 125 pounds. NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by Barney Brennan, Grantor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, dated the 27th day of July, A. D. 1892, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of July, A. D. 1892, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in book 67 of mortgages on page 453.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $225.00 payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten (10) per centum (10%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes, all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Commonwealth Title Insurance and Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment dated the 27th day of July, A. D. 1892, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of June, A. ONTARIO'S GRAND OLD MAN.

remier Mowat Has Ruled For Twenty-two Years and Still Holds the Helm.

Hon. Oliver Mowat may quite reasonably and appropriately ho called the grand Old Man of Ontario. He has ben premier of the province for 22 ars, and the elections a few weeks ago nured his rule for another four years, rovided his life is spared. Like Gladone, he is a Liberal. Like Gladstone, he is an old man. Like Gladstone, he as ruled many years and given an hont and brilliant administration, and, ollike Gladstone, he is still in the hes. His great record is unsurpassed n the entire history of British parlia- entary government.

Mr. Mowat was 82 years of age when e first became premier of Ontario. He s 74 years old now, and despite his ng and arduous labors for good gov- rnment he is still a very active man to- ay. Like the Gladstone of a few years ago, he seems to thrive upon hard work. Early and late he is at his post in the house. He is the leader of his party there, and nothing escapes him. His speeches are short, but straight to the point. During his long rule hisstrength and popularity have never been impaired, and today, in the seventy-fourth year of his age and the twenty-third year of his reign as premier, he comes forth with a record unsurpassed in the history of Canadian statesmen for the number and brilliancy of his achievements, the purity of his private life, the incorruptibility of his official career, the soundness of his Liberalism, the steady consistency of his entire political course and the marvelous success with which he has defeated what the Toronto Globe calls "the most ingenious and desperate devices that bigotry and boodle could promote."

Mr. Mowat has built up the schools of the province, regulated the liquor traffic with rare success, given Ontario manhood suffrage and by wise legislation wonderfully increased its prosperity. The friends of the Liberal party believe Mowat's great success recently augurs well for victory and a change of government in the coming general election of the Dominion of Canada.

CARNOT'S SUCCESSOR.

The Anarchists Have No Friend In President Casimir-Perier.

If an honest man is the noblest work of God, France is to be congratulated upon the election of M. Casimir-Perier to the presidency. Since the fall of the Panama scandal ruined so many reputations honest men seem scarce in French public life, but President Casimir-Perier is one of the few that remain. He is also industrious, brainy and courageous and comes of one of the best families in France. One of his ancestors founded the Bank of France. His grandfather was premier under Louis Philippe, and his father was a well known deputy and a member of the cabinet of Thiers.

President Casimir-Perier was born 46 years ago, and when hardly out of his teens won the decoration of the Legion of Honor during the siege of Paris. He was admitted to the bar later and was elected to the chamber of deputies to represent Nogent-sur-Seine. This was nearly a quarter of a century ago, and he has been prominent in the chamber ever since. In 1890 he was elected vice president of the chamber and last No vember became its president. Two weeks after this great honor was conferred Carnot named him as premier of France, an office he held about five months.

He has long been considered President Carnot's successor, and the hand of Assesin Santo merely hastened the time when he was to become chief executive of France. Several years ago the Count of Paris offered him the chancellorship of France if he would aid in the restoration of a monarchy, but he scorned the bribe. The socialists also wished to overturn Carnot and make him president, but he frowned upon the scheme and apprised Carnot of the socialists' plans.

He is short and dark and has keen eyes and an expression that denotes firmness and decision. He is a bitter a foe of anarchists as was M. Carnot.

THE FARMERS LOSING

DEMOCRACY COSTS SHEEP RAISERS $100,000,000.

Both the Live Stock and the Wool Have Decreased In Value—Every Section of the Country Suffers—Worse Than the Scab and the Foot Rot—Poor Lambing Seasons.

The sheep farmers of the United States have lost over $100,000,000 through the decrease in the value of their sheep and of their wool through the mere threat of free trade. A careful comparison of the number of sheep in the 47 different states and territories shows that there was an increase of less than 1,000,000 sheep between January, 1893 and 1894, a period of two years. Such wretched lambing seasons the country has never before witnessed. The total loss in the value of the sheep was nearly $60,000,000, and the loss through the clean-ups of wool was more by $45,000,000, distributed among the different sections of the country as follows:

LOSS BY SECTIONS.
	Sheep.	Wool.	Total loss.
New England	$2,031,300	$1,016,248	$3,057,748
Middle states	6,981,156	4,653,647	11,644,803
Southern states	6,430,047	9,656,921	15,070,968
Western states	28,846,207	16,981,200	45,827,407
Pacific states	8,709,977	5,747,679	14,456,656
Other states	8,045,000	7,228,750	15,263,843
Total U. S.	$53,834,045	$44,280,067	$105,004,130

Farmers know that sheep in this country increase largely in numbers. They look forward to the lambing season because it adds to their flocks, and every little lamb that lives is worth a few dollars to the farmer. But there must have been something the matter with the sheep between 1892 and 1894. In the good old McKinley protection days there were 44,938,365 sheep in the United States, yet two years later there were only 01,430 more sheep. This is a very small percentage of lambing. For two years the lambing season must have been very bad, or some plague must have struck the sheep. Perhaps it was the free trade plague of Grover Cleveland. That struck every other part of the country and blasted business. Perhaps it struck the farmer's sheep and made them barren.

The American wool clip for 1893 amounted to 301,828,183 pounds of washed and unwashed wool. Its price ranged from 18 to 32 cents a pound, and the wool clip was worth $65,394,055. A year later, however, the average price of wool ranged only from 10 up to 22 cents per pound, there being a loss of from 5 to 9 cents per pound. The total clip at the beginning of this year was worth only $45,317,459, a loss to the farmers of $23,075,596.

But this loss not come the entire wool loss—first, because the nearer we have been getting to the time when free trade in wool is to be the lower has been the price of the American wool quoted, and farmers are not able to obtain as much money for their wool as they could six months ago. This further loss of money to the farmers we are not able as yet to arrive at, but we have shown that there are 830,900 different sheep owners in the United States, each one of whom loses $30.98 through the lower value in price of his five sheep since a Democratic president and a Democratic congress controlled the administration of the country. And we further find that each one of these 830,900 farmers has $97.-77 through the decrease in one year in the price of their wool, thus making a total loss to every sheep raiser in the country of $58.65. What fine Democratic times we have now to tallies with the promises of 1892!

That loss in the value of sheep we have shown to the farmer was worse than the scab. This loss in the value of wool comes on the top of the free trade scare that has cut it in two. In fact, the present condition of the American sheep is worse than if it were afflicted either with the scab or foot rot or with both. It will take longer to efface the Democratic disease than it would to eradicate all trace of either scab or foot rot or both. Vote it down.

CHARLES R. BUCKLAND.

Canadian Hops Coming.

Canada is not generally given the credit of being able to grow hops, and most people would say that the climate was unsuitable for it. Some experiments, however, of hops from British Columbia were sent over to London last autumn and sold well. Canada is now entering the field, one grower having planted 35 acres this year and proposing to put out 40 acres next spring next year. In about three years he states that he will have 100 acres under hops. The lower tariff placed upon hops by our anti-American administration should serve as an incentive to the Canadian hopgrowers, who may be able to secure a part of our American trade in our American market.

Senator Hill—It Is a Raging Protection.

Not Altogether Sectional.

The New York World vehemently denies that the Democratic tariff bill is sectional. Perhaps not altogether so, because besides protecting the south it protects the cotton and buffs industry of Troy with a very large protection.—Philadelphia Press.

A. L. Miller, Lewis Ellington and Judge C. O. Christianson left for Fergus Falls on Monday evening to attend the congressional convention on the 14th.

Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Taylor have been engaged to take charge of the boarding hall and dormitory of the Crookston Normal School and Business College.

C. A. Bradley, of Warren, has accepted a position as collector for Larsen, Carpenter & Co. Notwithstanding the dull times this firm has done a good business this year.

Hon. H. Steenerson, Andrew Eiken, August George and several of the delegates went to Fergus Falls on Sunday evening to be on the grounds for the preliminary work on the skirmish line.

The little four year old daughter of Wm. Talladay while climbing over fence on Tuesday afternoon fell and sustained a severe fracture of the arm. At last accounts the little one was doing as nicely as could be expected.

Dr W. A. Robertson received a letter from C. C. Rockitt on Wednesday morning which among other things said: A little daughter came to live with us on Sunday morning (Aug. 12.) Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

John Ghoosen was down from Euclid on Tuesday. Says the people in his vicinity are all fornlast division. They can't see any particular good in being obliged to drive over over across country every time they want to reach the county seat. As it is now they can just jump on the train and ride in.

Mr. and Mrs. David Morrow welcomed the arrival of a son at their home on the Marais, on Sunday last.

E. M. Walsh sold a quarter in section 28, in Fanny to John O'Brecht last week.

Hugh Thompson has bought Ed. Schroeder's fancy driving team to add to Johnstone's livery stable.

Chris Greenhalgh, who is paluting down on the Lockhart farm spent the Sabbath in the city. Reports harvesting well along and crops fair.

Dick White's little seven year old boy, Bert, had the misfortune to break his leg one day last week while climbing a tree. At last accounts he was doing nicely.

Mrs. Gieser bought the Fournet building standing on the site of the new hotel, and is moving it to her lot on Broadway—in rear of the Ereskine cottages that front on Fourth street.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. McKinnon buried their little five months old daughter, Christie, on Tuesday afternoon. The little one died at an early hour on Monday morning of cholera infantum.

E. D. Childs informed our reporter on Tuesday morning, that, had it not been for the big rain on Monday evening, that would delay operations a day at least, he would have had his cutting all done by Friday night except 80 acres of oats that are not quite ready yet, and will not be ready before next week.

Jack McPhee was in from the Lockhart farm on Tuesday. Said he expected to be all through with the cutting on the big farm this week only for the big rain, which would delay it some. On account of short straw the threshing will not be as long a job as usual this season and that will help fallplowing out earlier.

Judge Benson informs the JOURNAL that the Lars J. Hugen estate has just been sold for spot cash. Hugen is the man who was connected in the Fosston lock-up, and owned a quarter section of land near Fosston. Several estates have recently been sold that were in the probate court to be sold.

George Berthiaume, who has travelled over the county considerably, has now a binder expert, estimates that the corn crop of the county will exceed that of last year. Towns that had a poor crop last year—such as Lake Pleasant, Lambert, Terrebonne and others in the northeast part of the county—have a good crop this year.

A meeting of the Congregational church society for discussing the question of uniting with the Presbyterians in calling a pastor will be held in the Congregational church on Friday evening beginning at eight o'clock; this will be a conference meeting between the two churches to decide what, if anything, can be done in the matter and all who are interested should be sure to attend.

Will Hiedrich dropped in on Monday morning to visit the old folks a day or so before going back to his work on the N. P. road. He has had a two months lay-off, during which time he has been out to Portland, Tacoma and the far west. Says times are extremely dull out there—far worse than anything we have ever seen here. Says a visit out there is enough for him—he wouldn't like to go there to live: "Minnesota is good enough. While our wiuters are somewhat rough that is the worst feature in the case."

Chas. Helm, a prominent German farmer of Madison Co., Nebraska, arrived on Friday of last week to look the country over with a view to purchasing a farm. On Saturday, John Ristow met him and took him out home with him, and on Monday Mr. Helm closed a deal with Geo. Benoy for his farm for which he paid $1,900 in spot cash, and left for his home in Nebraska on Monday evening. He intends to close out his business in Nebraska and return next spring, bringing with him all his stock of horses, cows and hogs, when he will become a full-fledged citizen of Polk Co. Col. Cobham Post will gain another member also, as Mr. Helm as an Illinois soldier during the war. Mr. Helm says the drouth in Nebraska has been fearful, and our crops are out of sight here, compared with what they have had there. He thinks many of his neighbors will come along with him in the spring. He is very favorably impressed with what he has seen, and will carry back a good report.

George Benoy, who on Monday sold his farm has not decided exactly what he will do yet, but thinks of going out to Maple Lake to look around, and if not suited will go up to the reservation. He does not expect to go away from Polk county very far. Thinks he wants to get hold of a farm with some timber on it.

Not long since a petition was circulated asking for the pardon of Jim Waring who was serving a 90 days sentence in the county jail for complicity in the car robbing that took place during the strike on the Great Northern. On Friday morning a pardon was received from Governor Nelson and Jim was soon outside the prison walls enjoying about in the blessed sunlight, looking somewat bleached and thin from long confinement. Jim says he has a lesson that will prove a salutary one to him.

Mr. Torkelson, a prominent Norwegian farmer from near Sioux Falls, N. D., dropped in to our den last Saturday to chat with us about Polk county lands. He represents eight or ten farmers who have become tired of trying to make a living in South Dakota and, if he likes this country he will purchase or rent a farm, and return for his family and his colony. He was very enthusiastic over what he had seen and will without doubt become a Polk county manager before long and bring along several others when he comes.

On Friday afternoon as Mr. Frank Rohrer was about starting for home his team became frightened and started to run. The old man handled them all right until the wagon tongue dropped when he was pitched out upon the solid roadway with such force as to stun him and the team being detached from the wagon ran until they collided with a telephone pole on the corner of Fletcher and Broadway where they were caught all right. Meantime Mr. Rohrer had been taken into the Morreal house where he soon recovered and came out before the team had been hitched to the wagon again. Aside from a bloody nose and a few scratches in the face he appeared to be unhujured and soon drove off toward home as though that was the way he always started for home. The old man better watch out for that colt.

Last week Judge Benson received a telegram from Justice Thos. Torgerson, of Erskine, requesting the judge to send Sheriff Grundysen out to look after Toilef Torgerson, who was getting on the warpath and was to the imluent danger of life and limb not to mention a desire to destroy the personal property of various and sundry citizens to whom the aforesaid Toilef had taken a sudden and violent dislike. Our readers in the vicinity of Toilef was brought before Judge Benson somethne ago on a charge of being off his mental base, and that several of Toilef's friends claimed it was a case of persecution and desired to give bail for him and become personally responsible for his future actions. They were granted the privilege and took him home with them and for a long time nothing more was heard in that quarter. Not having authority not a deputy to send the sheriff out the judge went up to Erskine to see about the matter and Toilef announced to him that he was making preparations to go to Dukota to help elect M. N. Johnson and the judge permitted him to go, so he came down with the judge on Saturday evening and is supposed to have gone to Dakotu as he has not been heard from elsewhere.

P. A. Sullivan of Dubuque, Iowa, is in the city looking after his farming interests. Speaking of the existing condition of things here and contrasting with other places Mr. Sullivan said. "It seems to me that this country is but repeating the early experience of Iowa. I particularly remember how it was around LeMars. Everybody was crazy to sell out at any figure he could get and get out of the country—but how is it to-day? All those who had to stay are now wealthy. They had just as you have here the finest and most fertile soil, naturally, that lays out-doors, but the drawbacks and discouragements incident to a new country was too much for many of them to stand, so they left, and to-day the farms that they almost gave away to get rid of are among the choicest farming lands in the state, and it would require a long figure to buy a farm there. It will be so here and very soon I think, for you have as good land as Iowa's best if, indeed it is not naturally better. As soon as this democratic terror passes away you will be all right up here—you are all right now in fact for you have good crops and great manufacturing industries furnish work for many. Yes, I have been a democrat always, but the trouble with us last election was that we promised too much, more than we can perform. I am and always have been a protectionist and, if I get a chance next presidental election I shall vote for W. E. McKinley for president, as I believe in the principle he advocates 'American for Americans.' If I could have my way I would put on a tariff that would be practically prohibitive on every thing we can manufacture or produce."

At this distance from the convention hall it would seem that the republicans of the seventh district were totally indifferent as to the success of the congressional ticket this fall when they ignore such men as Steenerson, Countryman and Page and put up an entirely new and untried man at a venture. The exigencies of the case demanded a man from the populist stronghold somewhere and if they must take a new one it strikes us that Land, of Otter Tail would have been preferable. No matter how good a man may be he lost a disadvantage if unknown to the average voter and any one of the men mentioned above would have been elected over Boen without question.

Iver Krohn went up to Fosston on Tuesday morning.

Gume warden Gravel confiscated sixteen chickens, two dogs and two guns last week. Neat!

Mrs. Thomas died on Tuesday morning of cholera infantum.

J. V. E. Wyatt returned from the lake on Tuesday evening very much out of repair. Rheumatism and neuralgia.

D. P. R. Strong, of the East Grand Forks Review, dropped off on his way back from Fergus this morning and made this office a pleasant call.

"Friends" was well presented at the opera house on Wednesday evening. The audience was not as large as the performance merited.

On Wednesday morning a man went into Geo. Vine's shop and offered to sell some spoop pelts. Suspecting something wrong, George went out to investigate, and finding that some of the pelts had been stolen he got out a warrant and had the man brought before Justice Holt. He was found guilty and sent to the bastile on the hill.

C. P. DeMers was in the city this week. Says crops around Red Lake Falls will not be as bad as would naturally be expected in such a dry season. They will have a fair average crop in spite of dry weather. Mr. DeMers says he has always made money at farming in Polk county, but he don't depend upon wheat alone for it. He always has plenty of oats and barley, has chickens and eggs to sell when the demand is good; always has a few hogs to turn off when everybody is shy on pork; never sells his butter just before or just as time it is always at its lowest; he packs that for the harvest market; always has plenty of feed to sell about Christmas and New Years, in fact, he follows a course of diversified farming, and says it pays him well. He is not tired of farming in Polk county, don't want to sell his farm and move away somewhere.

Haller's Little Germann Pills are the superior of many and excelled by none. They are anti-griping and do not nauseate. Their use stimulates the liver and corrects the Bilious condition of the stomach. They are sugar-coated, small in size, and are the mildest and most effective cathartic that can be used. Try them once and you will never want to use any other. Sold by F. L. Durand.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

COUNTY DIVISION.

A Choice Literary Effusion Taken From the McIntosh Tribune.

An Attempt is Made to Prejudice the People Against Crookston

By Publishing an Alleged Interview with a Crookston Man.

LINDSEY, Minn., Aug. 9, 1894.

EDITOR TRIBUNE:

The benefits to be derived from county division, are so self-evident, that it seems to me, that no one living in our county, unless under the spell of the Crookston Magic Circle, can conscientiously vote against it.

The old saying that "in unity there is strength," does not hold good in this instance, for all the benefits obtained by keeping Polk county united seems to all centre at Crookston. About a year since, the writer had a conversation with one of Crookston's most prominent business men, touching this same subject, who, while admitting that division would certainly benefit the county at large, "would just as sure," using the gentleman's own words, "raise hell with our present county seat," and further remarked, warning with the subject, "do you suppose, for a minute, that we are going to let a lot of clodhoppers and mossbackes divide this county? Not by a d—d site. We have too much money, and can buy votes enough, if necessary, to hold the county as it is. Why, every term of court is worth from ten to fifteen thousand dollars to the city of Crookston. Look at our fine buildings, our bridges, graded streets, new jail, fair-grounds, etc; and all the evidence of wealth around our city, then you poor ignoramus go forth and talk division."

Gazing at the magnificence of the great city, I felt so insignificant that I was, for the time being, dissmayed by the man's words, but afterwards braced up, and have done what little I could in the interest of county division, and am sorry to say that I am, first, last, and all the time for division. I hope to see every one stand up like men next November, and vote for the best interest of every farmer and working-man in Polk county, by casting his ballot to divide the county, and thereby demolishing to everlasting smithereens,—the Crookston ring.

A CROOKSTONER.

We take the above choice specimen of literature from the last issue of the McIntosh Tribune, a paper that seems to be devoted principally to county division, to show to what straits the secessionists are reduced when they have to resort to such low-wash to prejudice the farmers against Crookston in the hope of munking votes for division. In the first place we do not believe that any intelligent person ever wrote the article, and it was probably concocted in the Tribune office as the management of that sheet seems to consider farmers a lot of ignoramuses who do not know any better than to swallow whole such stuff. We cannot imagine any Polk county farmer so densely ignorant or suppose that any man, who was really opposed to county division would be fool enough to talk like that. The greatest stock in trade these secessionists seem to possess is to try and prejudice the voters against Crookston. The writer starts by saying that the benefits of county division are numerous, but he fails to mention even one point wherein those benefits occur. He does not say that the taxpayers in the new counties will have to go down into their pockets deep for new buildings, for official salaries and for all the expenses necessary to run a county business as well as to take care of their share of the indebtedness of the present county. He does not say that the proposed new counties, so, as far as the average taxpayer of Crookston is concerned he is not doing any worrying in the matter. In so far as the article from the Tribune is concerned the intelligent voter will at once set it down as a cranjd and will size it up for all it is worth. Had there been any truth in it the writer would not have been afraid to sign his name to it and to mention the name of the prominent Crookston business man to whom the article refers. As he does neither one it is safe to presume that the article is made up out of whole cloth solely for campaign effect. The only way county division can effect the average taxpayer is in his taxes, and to the JOURNAL it seems perfectly plain that division must certainly increase them especially in the sparsely settled portion of the county—all of which goes off however in case of division. We believe in the rule of the majority, however, and if the majority wish to try this doubtful project to benefit a few town-site speculators, why that is all right let them do so.

A Fair This Year.

The Minnesota State Agricultural Society will have a fair this year on its magnificent grounds midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis. No fair was held last year, and the exhibit will much more particularly the agricultural progress of the state in that two years. The managers of the fair already have an assurance of a big exhibit. The stock growers have in particular shown a desire to bring their herds, flocks and stalls together for comparison and competition, and breeders from outside the state are going to bring the best products of their establishments. Minnesota to show them to the Minnesota farmers. The dairy exhibit will also be large. In Steele, Freeborn, Mower, Olmsted and other of the southern counties of the state, where the dairy interest has developed so rapidly, the friendly rivalry between the different cheese and butter manufacturers is very sharp. The rank the state took at the World's Fair in this industry has stimulated the interest in this exhibit. There will be the usual races, daily balloon ascensions, and the fact that there is going to be an exposition held in Minneapolis this year promises to result in the buildings devoted to the exhibits of merchants and manufacturers being large. The fair will have the hearty support of both St. Paul and Minneapolis this year. The dates of the fair are Sept. 10 to 15th, inclusive.

A Balloon Race.

One of the novel features at the forth-coming state fair, to be held on the grounds of the State Agricultural Society, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be a balloon race. Two balloons will be started in the air at the same time. At a given signal the aeronauts in both balloons will drop from their perilous height to the ground, in parachutes. Two of these balloon races will occur. There will be daily balloon ascensions during the fair, and novel features added on each occasion. The parachute drop will on several occasions be made by a dog. Both male and female aeronauts will participate in the ascensions. The fair will be held during the week beginning Monday, September 10th. There will be half-fare rates on all the railroads from all points in the state.

Republican Committee Meeting.

All members of the Republican County Committee are requested to meet on Wednesday, Sept 29th, 1st 2 p. m. at the office of A. F. George, for the purpose of arranging for the fall campaign.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

The JOURNAL is in receipt of a complimentary to the First Annual fair of the McIntosh Fair Association and the date announces on Sept. 13, lasting three days.

Mint & Collins have purchased the photograph gallery formerly operated by S. J. Challis, and will have a grand opening on Saturday, Sept 1, at which time children from one to three years of age will be given free photograph each free of charge.

Mrs. H. Dye leaves this evening for Illinois, where she will visit friends for about a month.

Henry Peterson is preparing to move his bottling works to the building now occupied by Peterson & Warninger as a barn. The plant will be doubled in size, steam power will be added, and the business hereafter will be done on a much larger scale. It is sold—on the quiet—that Henry proposes to soon take a partner—for life—and that this is the cause of his proposed eastern trip next month.

Remember the grand opening of the Mint & Collins photograph gallery on September 1st. Children's pictures taken free of charge on that day.

A DISAPPEARANCE.

A Dago Peddler Thought to Have Been Foully Dealt With

On Monday afternoon, Sheriff Grundgysen received a telegram to come at once to Fertile on what was supposed to be a genuine murder case. The facts as we glean them are thence: Not long since a finally named Wheeler, of unsavory reputation, was driven out of Crookston and located near Fertile. On Friday Aug. 10th, a man who lives in the vicinity where the Wheelers had located met a Dago peddler named S. Saravell, who told him that he (the peddler) had been robbed of $25 and a few trinkets, and asked the man what he had better do about it. The man advised him to go to Crookston and tell the sheriff, or go to Fertile and have the marshal come out and arrest the Wheeler crowd. He advised the peddler not to pass the Wheeler ranch for fear they might do him up; the peddler told him, however, that he was not afraid of them as he had a revolver, well loaded, and with that started for Fertile. That was the last seen or heard of the peddler by any one in that vicinity, and the filling up of an old well on the Wheeler premises by them arouse ed a suspicion of foul play and, when on Saturday the Wheelers pulled up stakes, bag and baggage, the suspicion became a certainty in the minds of some, and the sheriff was at once summoned to investigate. Sheriff Grundgysen with a posse from the sheriff went down on Monday evening. The well was dug out to its original depth and nothing found until an evidence of a foul murder was brought to light. On the other hand a man showed up, a farmer living several miles south of Fertile, who said that he was sure that he had seen the missing peddler a few days before, that a man came to his house, who answered the description of the peddler perfectly. The sheriff is now trying to find the peddler so as to ascertain if he is dead or not.

BIG TEXTILE STRIKE ON.

Eleven Thousand Operatives in New England Have Quit Work.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 22.—The great textile strike, which bids fair to prove the biggest of its kind in the history of New England, is on. It is estimated that over 11,000 persons have stopped work. Secretary Ross of the operatives' union says that the secretary of his union have lined up for a long strike and confidently expect that it will be of six months' duration.

The trouble involves 13 of the largest cotton manufacturing establishments in the city, with an invested capital of $14,400,000. There are 1,042,000 spindles and 15,000 looms involved. Six of the factories are cloth mills and seven are yarn mills.

ENDED IN A FARCE.

Tarsney Outrage Cases Dismissed at Colorado City, Col.

COLORADO CITY, Colo., Aug. 22.—The Tarsney outrage cases ended in a farce in Justice McCosh's court during the afternoon. District Attorney Cochran appeared before the court and asked that the cases against the defendants be dismissed. The district attorney said he made this motion for the reason that the evidence in the case had been received by the grand jury, which had failed to find true bills against any of the defendants. The court granted the motion. The people here are disgusted with the whole affair.

RED RIVER VALLEY DITCHES.

Contracts For Work on Them to Be Let Sept. 1.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 18.—The Red river drainage commission met in the office of Governor Nelson. Instructions were issued to Engineer Miller to make a survey for work to be done on the Snake river in Polk and Marshall counties, the Wild Rice at Ada, Norman county, the Mustenka in Traverse county, the Rapid in Grant county, the Otter Tail in Wilkin and the Canada Joe in Kittson county. Bids for work on the first three pieces will be opened by the commission Sept. 1, and will be advertised for at once. Bids for work on the fifth consist of about 12 miles of ditching.

THREATEN TO SECEDE.

The Polish Church Trouble at Winona Reaches a Very Acute Stage.

WINONA, Minn., Aug. 18.—At a largely attended meeting of dissenting Poles, it was decided to make a last effort to secure a recognition from Bishop Cotter of their demands. A monster demonstration, in which they will call in a body upon the bishop, is being planned. If this fails of the desired end, they openly announce that they will secede from the Catholic church.

READY TO ADJOURN.

NOTHING MORE TO BE BE DONE IN CONGRESS

And Only the President's Signature to the Tariff Bill Is Needed to End the Session. All Important Bills Are Passed and the Quorum Is Fast Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The final action of the president on the tariff bill is the only thing that stands between the senate and final adjournment. It is the general opinion that with the bill passed upon by the chief executive adjournment could be arranged within a day's time. The last of the appropriation bills received the final consideration of the senate during the past week and even without the passage of the Murphy resolution there would not have been much probability of any general legislation owing to the likelihood of there being no quorum. The last roll call Saturday discovered

Only Forty-five Senators,

two more than a quorum, in the chamber and the highest number of the day was 54. Several have left since and it is entirely probable that the next session will open without the number requisite to do business in the face of objection. It is probable, therefore, that the daily sessions from this time forward will be brief and that only bills to which there is no opposition from any senator or over which there is no contest will be taken up. The Democratic managers hope to have the bill repealing the provision in the tariff bill exempting alcohol used in the arts and in the manufacture of medicinal preparations included in this list. There appears likelihood of opposition on the Republican side and if there should be this will necessarily go over until the next session. The Democratic members of the finance committee also hope to report during the week, but do not expect action on them. Probably no considerable time will be spent in executive session in confirming nominations to which no one objects.

The Supplemental Tariff Bill

The house of representatives is ready to adjourn. Its work has been completed and it is only awaiting the action of the senate and president. It is probable that it will adjourn from day to day until congress adjourns.

NO MORE TARIFF LEGISLATION.

The Murphy Resolution Passes the Senate by a Good Majority.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—When Senator Harris' resolution for the appointment of Senator White of California to the vacancy on the finance committee was laid before the senate at 12:15, Mr. Manderson (Rep., Neb.) said there was no objection to the resolution, and explained that the opposition Friday contained no reflection on the California senator, Mr. White.

Mr. Hill concurred with Mr. Manderson, expressed the hope that the resolution would be passed. It was then adopted without division. The Murphy resolution declaring against further tariff legislation went over temporarily at the request of Mr. Gorman.

A Little Parliamentary Debate.

The motion of Mr. Gray, (Dem., Del.) instructing the finance committee to report back the free sugar bill with an amendment to strike out the eighth differential on refined sugar, was laid before the senate. Mr. Manderson offered an amendment instructing the committee to report an amendment providing for the sugar bounty of the existing law.

Mr. Gray demanded a division on the Manderson. Some debate occurred on the parliamentary situation.

Vice President Stevenson held that the vote should be first taken on Mr. Manderson's amendment to the free sugar bill, providing for the McKinley bounty on raw domestic sugars. Great interest was manifested in the result of the roll call. The two Louisiana senators on the three Populists voted in favor of the Manderson amendment.

The Manderson amendment providing for the old McKinley bounty in the free sugar bill was carried 21 to 20, the point of no quorum being then raised, and the roll was again called.

The call developed the presence of 54 senators, 11 more than a quorum.

At the request of Senator Gorman the Gray-Manderson resolution was temporarily laid aside, Senator Aldrich stating that he thought a voting quorum would appear in two hours.

Mr. Murphy offered an amendment to his resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that no further tariff legislation should be considered at this session, and that it was advisable to adjourn at the earliest possible moment. Without a word of debate the vote was taken on the resolution as modified. It passed by a vote of 27 to 16.

Canadian Wool to Come In.

HAMILTON, Aug. 18.—A firm of wool dealers have nearly 1,000,000 pounds of wool stored in their warehouse here, nearly all of which will be shipped to the United States when the new tariff bill becomes effective. The Canadian wool clip of this year, as well as that of last, is nearly all in country warehouses.

Sent to Gray Gables.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was received at the White House from the Capitol during the day and sent at once to Gray Gables. It is expected that it will be signed before Monday evening and thus prevent any lapse of appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The house committee on judiciary decided to favorably report Senator Hill's bill for the exclusion and deportation of alien anarchists, which passed the senate.

ALL STUDENTS OF MOST.

Fire Inspectors of Chicago Have Unearthed a Gang of Organized Incendiaries.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The fire inspectors of the city claim to have unearthed a nest of students of Henry Most, who have organized to burn buildings for anarchistic sentiment and also the revenue to be derived from insurance. Seven people were given a preliminary hearing and were held to await grand jury action. The inspectors claim that there are many more implicated, and that all are followers of Most. Many badly constructed bombs have been found, some of them being operated by delicate clockwork, and all of a character to start destructive fires.

SUGAR IN CONGRESS.

"THE POOR MAN'S SUGAR" WORRIES THE HEAD OF THE TRUST.

Mr. Havemeyer's Evidence Before the Committee Is Torn to Shreds—False and Misleading Statements Designed to Deceive. Not One-third of "Poor Man's Sugar."

I spoke of the different grades of refined, the higher grades of refined being made from higher grades of raw, and the lower grades of refined—the poor man's sugar—being made from the lower, it not being possible to be made out of the higher grades of raw.

The discrimination was against the article which supplied the poor man with sugar and against the article on which the greatest amount of capital and labor is employed in its manufacture and the cost of manufacture especially is expended.

The foregoing paragraphs are taken from the testimony of Mr. Henry O. Havemeyer, the president of the Sugar trust, as reported in The World, June 13, in answer to questions propounded by Senator Gray and Senator Davis of the senate investigating committee. Those were the statements of Mr. Havemeyer.

The facts are that over 70 per cent of the sugar imported into the United States is low grade and less than 30 per cent is low grade sugar. "The poor man" uses high grade granulated sugar, which can be made out of both high and low grade raw sugars. The yellow sugars are not found now on the tables of the people, and the darkest colored sugars are used mainly for tobacco curing and such purposes, very little indeed going into direct human consumption.

From Mr. Havemeyer's testimony it is plainly inferred, and was meant to be inferred, that "the poor man" would be oppressed by a specific tariff on raw sugar, and there is further inference that "the poor man's" sugar constitutes the bulk of the sugar refining business, as not one person in half a million out of the total population of the United States knows to the contrary.

The American Economist has been to the trouble of compiling statistics to show what were the aggregate imports of raw sugar, according to each and every grade by which the duty estimated under the tariff act of 1883 was collectable. It compiled these imports for the whole period under which that tariff was in operation, beginning with the year ending June 30, 1884, and closing with the year ending June 30, 1891, and gives the aggregate imports for the eight years and the average imports for each year, according to each degree, as follows:

Not above 99 degrees..	2,441,842	305,240

The average imports of raw sugar during each of these eight years were 2,456,000,000 pounds, the total for the eight years being almost 20,000,000,000 pounds.

An analysis of the foregoing figures will show that out of the annual average of imports of less than 2,500,000,000 pounds of raw sugar there were 1,720,000,000 pounds imported between 90 and 99 degrees test, leaving only 736,000,000 pounds imported between the range of 75 and 89 degrees test. In other words, during the whole of this period of eight years there was at least 70 per cent of high grade sugar imported into the United States, while only 30 per cent was low grade, or "the poor man's sugar."

Mr. Havemeyer further states that "the cost of manufacture generally is expended on the poor man's sugar." If this is the case, then "the cost of manufacture generally" is confined to one-third of the total output of the refineries and the other two-thirds can practically be refined free of cost. If this be the case also, why does not Mr. Havemeyer sell the higher grades of sugar at lower cost—lower than the price of "the poor man's sugar" upon which "the cost of manufacture generally is expended?"

Since the operation of the McKinley tariff the cheaper price of the high grade sugar, such as granulated, has resulted in its much greater consumption, with a consequent lessening of the demand for the low grade yellow sugars "on which the greatest amount of capital and labor is employed in its manufacture and the cost of manufacture generally is expended." Therefore it is quite fair to assume that more than 70 per cent of the sugar refined now consists of high grade sugar, and that less than 30 per cent is "the poor man's sugar," the cost of manufacture, therefore, having been decreased proportionately.

If Mr. Havemeyer were really so ecstatics for the welfare of "the poor man" as he would fain have had the senate investigating committee believe, he would at once cancel the secret contracts that now exists between himself and the wholesale grocers of the country, whereby special percentages and rates of discount are allowed them in return for their support and patronage, a system that has the practical effect of creating a trust among the grocery trade and of preventing competition in the price of sugars retailed to "the poor man."

AN EXPERT CROSS EXAMINER.

Lawyer Goff Has Distinguished Himself In New York's Police Investigation.

Lawyer Goff, the New York lawyer who has distinguished himself as the counsel for Senator Lexow's committee that is investigating the New York police, is about 46 years old. He is a native of Ireland, came to America when a boy, started in New York and has got a position to a dry goods store. His efficiency was so great there as to attract the attention of A. T. Stewart, then the dry goods king of New York. While in Stewart's employ Mr. Goff proved to be so useful that he was promoted to the superintendency of one of the most important departments of the great store.

JOHN W. GOFF.

At the same time that he was working for the merchant prince he was also devoting his evenings to study, being a student at the Cooper Union School of Science and Art. When he had finished the course there, he strolled law in the office of Judge Noah Davis, ex-United States district attorney, and was duly admitted to the bar. In 1886 he was made assistant district attorney of New York county, in which position he developed unusual and unexpected ability as a prosecutor and a cross examiner. Two years later, upon his leaving the office, he was nominated by the district attorney on the ticket of the People's Municipal league, a reform organization. He was not elected, but his prominence his candidacy gave to him had something to do with building up the large practice he now enjoys, and the defeat did not cause him to swerve one jot from his intention of being a potent factor in the movement for the improvement of New York's municipal government.

During the sessions of the Lexow committee, which have resulted in so many startling exposures of so called police protection of the disorderly classes, Mr. Goff has shown, even more remarkably than he did when assuming district attorney, his power to put leading questions and to drive them home. He has reduced cross examination to an exact science.

Mr. Goff believes in Irish home rule and for that reason is very popular among his compatriots. On one occasion, in 1876, he rendered the Fenian cause great service by engineering the escape of six prisoners from the penal colony at Fremantle, Western Australia. The late Don Pomeroy, the actor, almost at the very moment that the rescue was being effected in Australia, was pleading with the then prime minister, Disraeli, for the pardon of the six men.

HELPED WELCOME BILL NYE.

Bartlett S. Nye Was In at the Birth of the Humorist.

On one of the busiest corners of one of Boston's busiest streets stands an old fashioned grocery store presided over by Bartlett S. Nye, a gentleman who has never dope much to distinguish himself above his fellows, but has approximated greatness by being born the uncle of Edgar W. Nye, the philosopher who writes such funny things for the newspapers. The grocer likes to talk about the Nye family, and in a recent conversation with a Boston reporter gave out this information:

Bill was born on a farm at Shirley, Piscataquis county, Me., in 1836, at a time when there was a big excitement in the neighborhood about it. The first Nyes landed at Cape Cod many generations ago, and Bill's grandfather went west from Cape Cod and settled in Maine. His grandfather died before the birth of his father (my brother), Franklin Nye, was born at Hardwicksweck, Me.

His father's principal business was that of a lumberman and farmer, and he sent Bill when he was ten years old to live with his grandfather, and besides his lumber interests he owned the same old farm on which Bill first saw the light of day. I helped welcome Bill when he was a little child, and then I didn't see him again for two years, until my brother and sister-in-law brought him to Pittsfield, Me., where I was living at the time.

In 1857 I got the gold fever and went to Australia, where I staid until 1871, when I came back to America by way of California. In 1872 I came to Boston and settled here.

In the meantime Bill Nye had grown up and gained fame and fortune by the writings with which all newspapers readers are familiar. Bill's father died at River Falls, Wis., in 1887. Of the mother Bartlett Nye said:

Oh, yes, Bill's mother is still living at River Falls, and what a mother she is too. She has always lived for her boys, and they owe many of their good traits of character to her gentleness. She is one of the finest women in the universe and a credit to her native state, Maine. The other boys? Oh, yes, I won't forget them. Frank is practicing attorney at Minneapolis, and was nominated for governor, and served as state assemblyman. Carroll is the attorney for one of the big western railway companies. Succeeding? Indeed he is. Sumner boys, too, every one of them. But Bill's the only one with anything of the writer in him.

I don't know who Bill got his humor from. I don't believe much in that hereditary business anyhow. The fact is, we're all got a streak of fun in us and Bill's fun happened to run out through his pen. He could always write out things, and he got a grip on his lies and kept them. The world knows the rest of his history better than I could tell it. We are all proud of him, and want to belong. Bill I'd much prefer to be his uncle.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Peter Nelson, a single man, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, as mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of January, A. D. 1890, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m. and duly recorded in book 92 of mortgages, on page 216.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $500.00 and interest, and the further sum of $500.00 and interest, and interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum after the 7th day of January, A. D. 1895, and the conditions of said mortgage are broken in the following respects, to-wit: The principal sum of $500.00 and interest thereon from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum after the 7th day of January, A. D. 1895, and the further

AN ARDENT CHAMPION OF LABOR.

Sir John Gorst, Who Is Now In America Studying the Workingmen's Condition.

Sir John E. Gorst, one of the most prominent students of the labor question in the world, is now in America for the purpose of making a personal study of the social condition of the working classes. Sir John was born in Lancashire, England, May 24, 1835. He graduated at St. John's college, Cambridge, of which college he became a fellow. He went to New Zealand when a young man and held a civil position there until the outbreak of the Maori war, when he returned to England, where he was called to the bar in 1865. Ten years later he became a queen's counselor.

SIR JOHN E. GORST.

Meanwhile he had become eminent in politics and had reorganized the Conservative party at the request of Disraeli. He was solicitor general in Lord Salisbury's ministry in 1885, under secretary for India in 1886, member of parliament since 1866 and secretary of the treasury under Lord Salisbury's recent regime.

He is an ardent champion of labor's interests in parliament and was a member of the British labor conference in 1891. He also induced Lord Salisbury after the conclusion of the Berlin conference to appoint a royal commission on labor, and his opinions dominated the deliberations of that body. Sir John has divided the labor questions of the day into classes—those ripe for legislation and those which need the further judgment of public opinion. The former Sir John urges legislation upon; the latter he endeavors to bring to public attention with the view to having reforms made and abuses corrected.

In his investigations Sir John loses no time in getting down to business. He is no theorist. All his conclusions are formed after a close personal study of existing conditions. Not long ago he became a resident of Toynbee Hall, in the Whitechapel district of London, and for three months went about the slums with John Burns, General Booth of the Salvation Army and other workers and householders with socialistic, anarchists and workingmen of all classes and conditions. He is an ardent champion of the bill making employers liable for injuries to their employees and of other proposed legislation in favor of laboring men.

THE POSTAL TROLLEY CAR.

A Novelty In Mail Delivery Now Utilized In the City of Brooklyn.

The latest novelty in mail delivery is the postal trolley car now in use in Brooklyn and its extensive suburbs. The car, which is painted white, with gold lettering and red trimming, is a combination postal and smoking car. The interior is divided into three compartments, each 10 feet long. One compartment is open to passengers and is particularly designed for that portion of the public addicted to the tobacco habit. The other compartment resembles the interior of the ordinary railroad postal car on a small scale.

On one side of the car are horizontal bars from which the mail pouches are strung, and on the other are a wide table and a case of 54 pigeonholes, into which the mail for outlying districts of Brooklyn is distributed. The car is manned by one postal clerk, who, as soon as the car leaves the general postoffice, begins distributing the mail into the pigeonholes, representing the different stations along the route. As each station is reached it receives its mail just as each town along the line of a railroad gets its consignment from the clerks in an ordinary postal mail car.

As Brooklyn has a circumference of about 30 miles and a population of nearly 1,000,000, and as much time is saved citizens of the outlying districts by having the distribution of mail from the cars instead of at the general postoffice, it is believed the postal trolley car will be such a success that it will be imitated in other large cities of the country. On the return trip the car collects mail matter from the different branch stations and leaves it at the general postoffice. Two of the cars are now in use. They are run, lighted and even heated by electricity and were built at a cost of $1,800 each.

St. Louis was the first city to utilize the postal trolley car, and the credit for the idea seems to belong to Major John B. Harlow, postmaster of St. Louis. Last year he rigged up a small freight car, placed it on the St. Louis and Suburban Electric railroad, and the residents of the suburbs hailed him as a public benefactor.

It is announced that the dedication of the Minnesota monument at Chickamauga, which was to have taken place on Sept. 19 and 20, has been postponed until 1895 on account of the postponement of the national dedication.

The Democratic state central committee at a meeting in St. Paul filled the Catcheon and Smalley vacancies by electing J. J. Thornton of St. James and J. J. McCafferty of St. Paul. Titus Marcell of Minneapolis was made chairman and Thomas Mullaney of St. Paul secretary.

Harris Richardson, the attorney for the state in the damage suits against the Itasca and H. C. Ackley Lumber companies, has given Governor Nelson a check for $17,451.04, the sum collected from the companies for timber cut in excess of that reported to the state. This suit was compromised.

The Great Northern elevator company, with offices at Duluth and elevators at Superior, have cut rates from 1¾ cents for first fifteen days and ½ cent for like subsequent periods to ½ and ¼ cents respectively. Other elevators will meet the rate, which means a saving of $600,000 a year to grain owners.

The Shevlin-Carpenter company of Minneapolis have contracted with Duluth parties for the cutting of 31,000,000 feet of timber belonging to them and injured by the late fires in the woods. Work will begin at once and will employ about 400 men all winter. The timber is near Hibbing and will be floated to Minneapolis.

When the case of W. A. Smith, charged with gambling, was called in the municipal court at St. Paul, an attempt was made to substitute Jack Welch, a Northern Pacific news agent, as the defendant. The police called the attention of the court to the substitution, whereupon Welch was fined $25, the amount being paid by "Boss" Griffin.

"The president has gone to Gray Gables, sick", is the latest report from that great statesman, Grover. The country has been sick and will continue to be until Grover returns from office for good and takes his party down with him."

The candidate for congress on the republican ticket, J. M. Eddy, is a farmer and understands, from practical experience the needs of the tiller of the soil. He is a man worthy of the votes of all who believe in good government.

At last, when the business interests of the country had reached that point where it seemed impossible to depress it further congress managed to get near enough together to pass something that they call a tariff bill. The JOURNAL will publish the document in full shortly, so that its readers may see what the democrats offer us in place of the McKinley bill.

The Tribune seems to have smoked the Times-mum out when it gently hints that the reason for the Times man's flop into the populist party is his great desire to continue to feed at the public crib as official printer. The Times goes into a spasm of rage over it showing that the coat is not a misfit altogether. What a wonderful amount of principle (?) a democrat, built on the Times plan, has.

The Times makes its brags that it defeated the nominations of Halvor Steenerson in the republican congressional convention. Now, of course, everybody who knows the Times man will readily believe(?) that he went to the expense of getting out an extra edition, filled with lies about Steenerson and sending it down to Fergus Falls for distribution among the delegates! They know that he is quite in the habit of squandering his substance in that way.

The Times man says that next to a democratic victory, the state of things existing in Kansas and other populist states, where they have succeeded in driving out all capital and effectually checking improvements and enterprises of all kinds is the proper thing. Democrats, however, who sincerely believe that their party principles are best for the true interests of the country will hardly be prepared to take that view of the case.

The republican papers in the Seventh congressional district are greatly pleased at the nomination of J. M. Eddy for congress, and all speak highly of him. Even the Democratic Globe says that if a republican is to represent this district in congress it had rather see Mr. Eddy elected than any other man; and speaks of him as "a man of eminent ability." Mr. Eddy went to the convention almost an unknown man and won the nomination solely upon his merits.

In these piping times of peace—when there is no peace in the administration party, when the democrats are hulling all over one another in their efforts to climb upon the republican protection band-wagon, it is refreshing to note that there are yet of the unterrified who still cling to the old free trade delusion as instanced in the Indiana democratic platform. They "denounce protection as a fraud and a robbery, and boldly say: "We pledge ourselves to continue the battle against protection."

The combination in the Fifth district did not seem to work to the entire satisfaction of Alden J. Blethen in the congressional deal. The democrats hunted the combination by nominating a candidate for congress and now Alden J. will have to content himself with just the Pop nomination (if he can get that) or just keep right along with his Penny Press. By the way, it strikes us that he can realize more clean cash if he would stick to legitimate newspaper business and let office seeking alone. Even if he could go to congress he wouldn't shine there as brilliantly as in his newspaper office.

The electoral influence seems strongest against Gov. Nelson this fall—wing, doubtless, to the Governor's efforts in behalf of the farmers. They will do all in their power to defeat him at the polls this fall, knowing that should S. M. Owen be elected he could not accomplish anything single-handed and they seem to have a great desire to get back at the Republican party for presuming to elect an independent man—one who is bound to do right at all hazards.

Samuel F. M. Eddy be elected to congress, as no doubt he will be, he will be the first native born Minnesotian ever elected to that body. He was born at Pleasant Grove, Olmsted county, Minnesota, 1862. He resided there until 1867 when he moved to Pope county with his parents. He resided on the farm until he was 28 years old when he was elected clerk of court, which office he still holds. He has learned stenography and is court reporter for Judge Brown in the 16th judicial district. He is a great student and has improved his time in that respect well. Mr. Eddy is a married man and has a wife and four children. He is a good campaigner and a good orator, and will make an aggressive campaign.

Of the last republican convention, P. S. Ware, who was one of Mr. Steenerson's most enthusiastic supporters, says in his excellent paper, the Upper River Falls Press:

"The convention was one of the most harmonious ever held and while this part of the district has again failed in its efforts to gain recognition which would surely bring ultimate victory we believe the nomination to be a wise one and the republicans of Polk, Marshall, Kittson and several counties who were with one accord in favor of Hon. H. Steenerson's candidacy will enlist themselves in the campaign battle and roll up the largest republican majority ever given a republican nominee, Mr. F. M. Eddy, of Pope county. Mr. Steenerson or his friends, however, have no apology to offer for the fight they made, and had it not been for the perfidy of one who owes his success in former battles to the republicans of this part of the district, and the consequences with one or two democrats in Crookston of a few pretended republicans also of that city, Mr. Steenerson would have been the nominee and it mustinated would have been elected."

The Congressional Convention

Speaking of the last Republican Congressional convention the Alexandria Post News says:

"The convention has done its work, has done it pleasantly, good naturedly and well, with loyalty to party and candidate, with a manly boldness, courage, common sense spirit characteristic of the Republican party. It named as the candidate to oppose the erratic, self-centered Boomer, Frank M. Eddy, of Glenwood. It was a gallant battle, waged by gallant men and Mr. Eddy won on the eleventh ballot over six ballots, receiving 97 votes. He won because he had the most friends in the convention; not by trickery, but never nor by wire pulling, but because so many delegates knew him personally as a true and loyal Republican, free from all sunshines, trustworthy in little things as well as big, and absolutely incapable of treachery. He believes thoroughly in Mr. Gunderson's maxim: "We must be true to party politics." He is unquestionably, with the exception of Mr. Gunderson, the most acceptable candidate to the people of Douglas county, irrespective of party, that could be named and the county's delegation under Mr. Gunderson's leadership, voted for him on the first ballot and stayed with him solidly to the last, though its own favorite son was himself practically offered the nomination. For this there is no regret, but the utmost satisfaction.

In Mr. Eddy the people of this district, composed of agricultural districts, have a candidate who is one of them. He is and always has been a man of limited means. He has toucked with poverty and yet has his own ambition and a mental training that fits him to recognition among the brainy men of the state as one of them. He is in fact an ideal candidate for a district which may most fitly be described as a district of the middle classes, of a people to whom the Lord has given that happy estate of neither poverty nor riches. He stands also on a republican platform, not warped and twisted by compromises, but composed of No. 1 hard Republican timber and on it he will win."

Robert Dunbar, of Northeote, Kittson county, had a threshing machine destroyed by fire recently, and on Tuesday he purchased a new one of Collins & Creamer.

LIFE AT PULLMAN.

INVESTIGATION OF THE CONDITION OF THE EMPLOYES

Now Being Pushed by the Presidential Commission—Wages Cut 20 Per Cent and Nothing Left to Live on After Pullmen Got His Share.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Chairman Hadley of the Pullman strike committee was before the strike commissioners during the afternoon session. He showed a table of the Pullman wages, and claimed that wages had been cut 20 per cent in the last two years. He also exhibited what he claimed was a black list issued by the Pullman officials, requesting other institutions to refuse to employ the men whose names appeared thereon.

Miss Jennie Curtis, president of the girls' union at Pullman, testified in the afternoon. Her father had been in the employ of the Pullman company for 15 years, until shortly before his death last year. He was delinquent in his rent to the amount of $60. The company compelled her to assume the debt and sign a contract to pay it out of her wages at the rate of $8 a week. Some weeks she had so little left from her wages

That She Could Not Pay Board.

In 1893 the company was paying its girls 22½ cents an hour for sewing, and the poorest seamstress could earn $1.00 a day. Before the strike the best of them had got down to 70 or 80 cents a day, while the poorer needlewomen could make only 40 to 50 cents.

Theodore Rhode, representing the painters' department, followed Miss Curtis. He had worked for the company 13 years and had been gradually cut down until he could not make $1.25 a day. Foremen abused the men and the management experimented with the wages until pieceworkers could make nothing. He had not applied for work since the strike because the company compelled every man to surrender his card of membership in the Railway union and sign an agreement to have nothing to do with any labor organization for five years.

Sixty-eight Cents a Day.

R. W. Combes of the freight car shops had been in the employ of the company for 10 years. Where once in that department were able to earn $2.25 a day, piece work, the men were put in to make more than 68 cents a day in March of this year. Between 1888 and 1893 there had been no reductions, but in November of 1893 came a cut that made a difference of $8 in a freight car to the man who built it, and $6 of this fell on the car carpenter. The witness said he had $3.60 left from his February wages after he had paid his rent, and with the $3.50 he was expected to support a wife and two children.

DEBS ON THE STAND.

Strike Commissioners Listen to the Testimony of the A. R. U. Leader.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The fourth day of the day in the strike commission investigation was the testimony of E. V. Debs, president of the American Railway union. His testimony, however, did not differ materially from that of other A. R. U. officials who preceded him. He took the witness chair at the opening of the morning session.

"Now tell us, in your own way Mr. Debs," said Commissioner Wright, "what you know of the Pullman strike and its results."

Leaning forward in his seat, the tall leader of the great strike began in a very clear voice, a recital which gradually became more earnest and forcible as he proceeded, until it developed into almost an oration. He told of having received word that a strike in Pullman was imminent and of his coming to Chicago to investigate.

What Debs Found.

"I found," he said, "that the men were working for the Pullman company at wages upon which they could not live. I found that salaries had been cut time and again until skilled mechanics were working their lives away for wages entirely inadequate to pulling, but because so many delegates knew him personally as a true and loyal Republican, free from all sunshines, trustworthy in little things as well as big, and absolutely incapable of treachery. He believes thoroughly in Mr. Gunderson's maxim: "We must be true to party politics." He is unquestionably, with the exception of Mr. Gunderson, the most acceptable candidate to the people of Douglas county, irrespective of party, that could be named and the county's delegation under Mr. Gunderson's leadership, voted for him on the first ballot and stayed with him solidly to the last, though its own favorite son was himself practically offered the nomination. For this there is no regret, but the utmost satisfaction.

In Mr. Eddy the people of this district, composed of agricultural districts, have a candidate who is one of them. He is and always has been a man of limited means. He has touched with poverty and yet has his own ambition and a mental training that fits him to recognition among the brainy men of the state as one of them. He is in fact an ideal candidate for a district which may most fitly be described as a district of the middle classes, of a people to whom the Lord has given that happy estate of neither poverty nor riches. WORK OF CONGRESS

Tuesday, Aug. 14.

The senate held a short session, adjourning to 11:30. The Dominion Coal company investigation resolution was under discussion for a short time. The house free sugar, coal and iron bills were received from the house and given their first reading. The house was not in session.

Wednesday, Aug. 15.

For five hours during the day the senate debated the question of proceeding immediately to the consideration of the house bill placing sugar on the free list. Senator Voorhees made a sensational speech in which he gave a history of the tariff conference, and justified the senate conferees, rallying with frenzy against the president and the house committees. He favored immediate consideration of the sugar bill and either placing that article on the free list or abolishing the differential. Josses of Arkansas offered an amendment making a flat duty of 30 per cent on all sugars.

The house passed a few minor bills and discussed conference reports.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication Aug. 23, 1894.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Halvor Vest, of the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, to Rosa Hoffmann, of the same place, bearing date the 10th day of June, A. D. 1893, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m., and duly recorded in book 42 of mortgages, on page 246, which mortgage was duly assigned and transferred by said mortgagee to Rosa Hoffmann, by assignment dated June 10, 1893, and filed for record in the office of said register of deeds on the 26th day of June, 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 42 of mortgages on pages 414-415.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage and all the mortgaged premises thereof, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 30th day of September, A. CROOKED WORK

The Harney Peak Tin Mining Company Accused of Sharp Practice.

Affairs of the Company to Be Looked Into by Order of the Court.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—In the United States circuit court Judge Lacombe has made an order continuing Albert R. Ledoux as the receiver of the Harney Peak Tin and Mining company until a final hearing of the case. Mr. Ledoux was recently appointed receiver by Judge Lacombe on the application of Charles Fletcher and a number of other Englishmen, who charged that the officers of the company, chief among whom was Samuel Untermeyer, had been guilty of sharp practices. The Englishmen averred they had been cheated out of $1,000,000 and upwards. The receiver was appointed secretly, so that he could get hold of the books of the company before its officers knew of the proceeding. An application was then made for the removal of the receiver. Judge Lacombe denied this application.

What the Court Thinks.

In making the order for the continuance of the receiver Judge Lacombe says: "From such facts as are admitted by the defendants, or are averred in the bill for affidavits and not denied, and from documents put in evidence, the genuineness of which is not disputed, it is reasonable to infer that complainants will be able to prove at final hearing that the second mortgage of $4,850,000, issued ostensibly for the acquisition of further properties and a cash advance to the company, was really put upon the property of the corporation in order to effect the sale of so much of the stock as was held by a syndicate comprising a majority of the board of trustees. That by such sale, which, in fact, for the creating of this new mortgage, apparently could not be carried out, they obtained in exchange for their stock not only nine-tenths of the new issue, but also a large sum, £400,000 in securities, of another corporation."

GIGANTIC FRAUDS AT MEMPHIS.

The State and County Robbed of Several Millions of Revenue.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 21.—The Memphis grand jury has unearthed frauds of gigantic proportions. Through the criminal carelessness and neglect of the county officials the state and county have been defrauded out of nearly $2,000,000 in revenue during the past eight years. The grand jury began an investigation a few days ago and discovered that nearly 600 saloons and many other firms, embracing almost every branch of business, had not paid a cent in taxes, privileges or licenses in eight years. The jury made a partial report of its work to the criminal court, and as a result 378 indictments have been returned against the delinquents. The investigation will be continued and it is said the jury will next turn its attention to the derelict officials.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Vandalia Fast Express Ditched, but No Fatalities Result.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—The New York fast express on the Vandalia road, from New York to St. Louis, was ditched two miles west of Pocahontas, Ills., and all on board had a miraculous escape from death. While running 45 miles an hour the engine, three mail and one baggage car left the tracks and turned over. Two coaches and the parlor car kept the track. Engineer Menafee, Fireman Dickinson and four postal clerks were injured more or less seriously, but none of the other trainmen or passengers were hurt.

LITTLE ROCK LAKE BREEDS.

They Are Ordered to Move to White Earth Reservation.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Aug. 21.—Chairman W. M. Campbell of the Chippewa Indian commission and Sheriff Quinn, Benton county, served notice on the Indians and halfbreeds located at Little Rock Lake, Benton county, to vacate their present quarters and remove to the White Earth reservation. Among them is Peter Bear, the halfbreed suspected of killing his wife. The misdeeds of the red men have made it necessary to place them on the reservation.

Shot His Own Son.

LONG PRAIRIE, Minn., Aug. 21.—Silas J. Davis, formerly sheriff of Todd county, accidentally shot his son George, aged 13 years, mistaking the boy for an owl on the fence. He shot him through the left side just above the heart with a 44-calibre Winchester. The boy still lives, but is in a critical condition.

Cozzyites Released.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 21.—Christopher Columbus Jones and Marshal McKee, who were in charge of the commonwealers when the camp at Hyattsville was raided by Baltimore policemen, have been released from the house of correction, where they had been committed with the others for three months.

Aged Minneapolis Suicide.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—Alvin Honigschmidt, aged 64, committed suicide by hanging himself with a small cord at his home in this city. No cause is assigned for the act. Honigschmidt was a member of Company D, Fourth Minnesota volunteers.

AIDING OLD MEN.

Brotherhood Chiefs Meet in Chicago in the Interest of Idle Strikers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A conference was held here during the day by representatives of the railroad brotherhoods for the discussion of matters affecting the old organizations as a result of work of the American Railway union during the recent strike. Among those present were Grand Chief F. P. Sargent and P. W. Arnold of the Locomotive Firemen; Grand Chief S. C. Wilkinson, Messrs Morrissey and Terrel of the Brotherhood of Trainmen and M. V. Powell, grand chief of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. An agreement was reached to endeavor to secure the reinstatement of the members of the order who joined the A. R. U. and having since requested of their course are applying for membership in their old lodges. Mr. Wilkinson said after the conference that many of the men were out of positions through the strike and had applied for readmission to the brotherhoods, confessing that they had been swept away by the excitement attending the strike, and the profuse promises of the leaders of the A. R. U. They now had no jobs and the A. R. U. was to give them support. "The traitmen lost several days by defection to the A. R. U.," he said, "and applications are being made for a renewal of the charters of all of them. We agreed to take the men back, and will do all in our power to have the railroads lift the boycott against them, for we are assured the men will not again desert their lodges under similar circumstances."

In No Financial Position

"The Order of Railroad Telegraphers," said Mr. Powell, "was fortunate in the defection of but a few of its members. We lost but two lodges, one at Helena and the other at Ripon."

The officials of the orders left Chicago during the evening to effect the reorganization of the lodges and will make personal appeals to the various roads to reinstate their men. As the brotherhoods stood firm against the strike, the officials believe they will get the repentant members back to their places.

LATE STRIKERS TO EMIGRATE.

Some Discharged Railroad Men to Go to South Africa.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 20.—As a result of their connection with the recent great strike a large number of railroad men in this city are making arrangements to leave this country, claiming they have been pleced on the black list of all the railroads and can secure no places, no matter whether there are vacancies or not. About 40 of these have made preliminary arrangements to go to the Cape of Good Hope and Johannesburg, South Africa, and others are talking quite seriously of going to Brazil. Hard times here, work elsewhere and cheap transportation largely influence them, although they claim that the principal cause is that they are marked men and have no chance whatever of employment in this country.

Consolidating Indian Agencies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The senate committee on Indian affairs decided to send a subcommittee consisting of Senators Jones and Manderson and a third senator to be named by the chairman to visit the Rosebud and Lower Brule Indian agencies for the purpose of investigating the desirability of consolidating the two.

PREMIER ITO OF JAPAN.

He Is a Civilian and Not a Warrior Like Li Hung Chang.

In the present unpleasantness between Japan and China the two political giants of these countries are measuring strength with each other. Li Hung Chang is directing the movements of the armies of the Flowery Kingdom, and Count Hirobumi Ito is looking after the offensive and defensive interests of the mikado. The Japanese cabinet consists of eight ministers of state, and Count Ito is premier. He is one of the younger Japanese statesmen who forged to the front after the rebellion of 1877 and has since been considered one of the ablest men in the land of the chrysanthemum.

In 1874 Ito was under secretary of the department of public works in Japan and built the first railroad in the country. When the imperial edict of 1881 was issued, promising the people of Japan a constitution and a representative form of government, to be inaugurated in 1890, Ito was intrusted with the important work of preparing the constitution. He spent the nine years at his disposal in traveling all over the world and studying the constitutions in vogue in the leading civilized nations. He was broad minded, persevering and able.

When the government was reorganized in 1886 preparatory to welcoming its new constitutional regime, Ito was made premier. He worked hard to bring about a settlement of the vexatious treaty revision question which had been embarrassing Japan for years, but his efforts failed. Private Gen Okubar just to rifle practice on Sunday. cabinet resigned. In 1892, however, Japan concluded that she could not get along without him, and he and Count Inouye, his minister of foreign affairs, were returned to power. These two men have been largely instrumental in causing Japan to declare war against China, and their attempts to bring the contest to a successful issue for Japan will be watched with interest the world over. Count Ito is a civilian and has had no military experience, it is said, and whether he will be able to hold his own with Li Hung Chang, the veteran warrior of China, remains to be seen.

AN INTERESTING CAREER.

Judge Porter Has Been Governor, Diplomat and All Around Officeholder.

James D. Porter, who was recently appointed United States district judge for the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee, is over six feet tall, has regular features set off by an iron gray mustache and goatee and is said to be one of the handsomest men in the state. He was born in Paris, Tenn., 63 years ago and has held so many offices he can hardly remember them all. He was graduated at the University of Nashville in 1846, studied law and hung out his shingle in 1851. Seven years later he entered politics and was elected to the legislature. When Tennessee meditated seceding, he took a decided stand as a Union man and introduced resolutions opposing secession, but when the state at last went with the Confederacy he cast his lot with the south.

He served with gallantry on the staff of General Cheatham throughout the war, and when peace was declared resumed the practice of his profession. He was prominent in the constitutional convention of 1870, was chosen judge of the Twelfth district of Tennessee, and in 1870 was elected governor of the state by an overwhelming majority. Two years later he was re-elected, and the office could have been his for the third time, but he declined renomination and became president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad.

In 1885 Mr. Porter was appointed assistant secretary of state by President Cleveland, but resigned before the close of his term. During Mr. Cleveland's present term ex-Governor Porter was appointed minister to Chile to succeed Patrick Egan, but life among the Chilenos apparently did not suit him, for he returned a few months ago and has now been appointed United States judge, succeeding Judge D. M. Key, whom he appointed United States senator when he was governor. Judge Porter is a trustee of the University of Tennessee, which has conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. and has been one of the resolute opponents of the proposed repudiation of the state debt of Tennessee.

An Object Lesson In Free Trade.

O God, look down with pity on this broken heart of mine
And send some work to save me from the open door of crime.
For long months I traveled in sunshine and in rain
In search of some employment, but my efforts have been vain.

For many long and happy years I have earned my daily bread,
The source to keep your grandma, I hope to keep her still.
Then all the girls were happy, we had money, and we spent it with a will.
Our sons of joy was drowned by the music of the looms.

To the old mill every morning we marched in platoons,
Pleading for the closer hour to play our girlish games,
But early in the summer we heard the sentence passed.
The free trade plague is coming; we must shut the doors at last.

The machines I had treasured from the wages I have paid out as a tribute to the nation's By closing the doors of the pawnshop. I am now
In the depths of hopeless misery, and of my trade I end to grace.

The house I built I had furnished with many a The free trade scourge has robbed me of that I have nothing more to live for but a duty to My hopes in life were centered with the closing of the mill.

But I cannot leave dear grandma. She took And stood by me in misfortune when my own dear mother died.
The curse of free traders now so wreck our lives is plain.
Our lives shall be the sacrifice; our honor we'll retain.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an acknowledged scientific department of science, as it exerts so marked influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of its nerves to the various organs of the body, thus making the latter with the vitality necessary to perform their healthy functions. The nerves are, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, and when the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerves lose a necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cuts the nerve force from the brain of the human body is the phenomenon, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach, bowels, etc., with vitality. When this vitality becomes in any way disordered by irritability, weakness or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and this organ becomes weak, and consequently fails to perform its proper functions.

Physicians generally fail to recognize this importance of this fact, but they do not go can itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., of Chicago, has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries connected with his researches, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the nutrient brain and nerve food. It promptly and principals that all nervous and blood disorders difficulties originate from disorders of the nervous system. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is soothing to diseased nerves and is recommended by thousands in every part of the country.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, fits, neuralgia, nervousness, debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs, and is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Ralph Syverson (erroneously written in the mortgage Syverson), of Crookston, Minnesota, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, bearing date the 27th day of August, A. D. 1892, and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of August, A. D. 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m., and recorded in book 69 of mortgages, on pages 169 & 170.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $1250 payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of eight per centum (8%) per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) coupon interest notes all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, by assignment dated May 22nd, A. D. 1893, and filed for record in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 3rd day of August, A. D. 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., and recorded in book 72 of mortgages, on page 602.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of three certain instalments of interest due upon said mortgage note, to-wit: On the 27th day Dec. A. D. 1893, and the 27th day of June, A. D. 1894, respectively, each for the sum of $12.50.

And whereas said mortgage further provided that in case of default in the payment of any instalment of interest due on said note, said mortgagee might declare the whole principal sum of said note and mortgage due and payable, and to foreclose said mortgage by reason thereof, and whereas default has been made in the payment of the whole principal sum and interest due upon said note and mortgage, and the said mortgagee has elected to declare the same to be due and payable, and to foreclose said mortgage by reason of said default, and hereby elects so to do.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and hereinbefore recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises, mortgaged by said mortgage and hereinbefore recorded, to-wit: The northeast quarter (N½E¼) of section six (6), in township one hundred and forty-one (141) north of range forty-six (46) west, more or less according to the government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, on Wednesday, the 10th day of October, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will be due on said mortgage and note at the time of said sale, including interest and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, and a reasonable attorney's fee, as by said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid by foreclosure thereof.

COAL, IRON AND SUGAR.

e President's Attack on Labor and Tax on the Merchant Marine.

The president of the United States, r. Grover Cleveland, has seen fit to ommend to congress that coal and on ore should be admitted into the united States free of duty, and that ugar should be taxed. The extent of eb an evil may be briefly stated as llows:

The coal product of the United States n 1892 was 180,000,000 tons, worth 207,566,381 at the mines' month. It fforded employment to 841,943 workrs, who each found remunerative occupation on 212 different days in the ear. The earnings amounted to $124,- 09,193, and all expenditures to $146,- 56,280. The total amount of capital vested in the coal mines was $550,- 00,000. The principal states of production, in their order of importance, were Pennsylvania, Ohio, Alabama, Illinois, New York, Virginia, Tennessee, Michigan, Wisconsin, New Jersey, West Virginia, Missouri and Maryland. The United States senators from these states are interested in the welfare and prosperity of their state enterprises and industries.

The sugar consumption of the United States on a basis of 68,000,000 people, at a per capita consumption of 65 pounds, is 4,420,000,000 pounds of sugar. The value of 4,420,000,000 pounds at 3 per cent ad valorem is $66,000,- 00. An ad valorem tax of 40 per cent from the $132,000,000 will be $52,- 00,000. This tax of $53,000,000 divided among the 68,000,000 consumers of sugar will be 78 cents upon each man, woman and child, or $2.80 upon each family of five persons.

HCV BUSINESS DEPRECIATED.

A Showing of Democratic Maladministration That Beats All Records.

The record made during the late panic in the country from April 1, 1893, to March 31, 1894, showed a loss in the volume of trade in the United States as compared with 55 different cities amounting to more than $13,500,000,000 in money. Investigating this same interesting subject during the second year of the present administration, we find that from April 1 to June 30 the bank exchanges at the same 55 different cities have been even less than they were during the same three months of 1893. And comparing these three months of the present and two preceding years we have the following:

BANK CLEARINGS AT FIFTY-FIVE CITIES.

April	$2,697,745,479	$4,259,222,893	$3,695,419,784
May	3,350,695,861	4,258,550,911	3,870,944,264
June	3,374,751,353	4,250,516,761	4,001,313,722
	$11,423,192,693	$12,768,290,565	$11,566,677,770

Here it is seen that since the first three months of a Democratic administration in 1893 resulted in accompanying trifling loss of some $830,000,000 to trade in the United States as compared with the business during the same months of 1892, a year later we find that the aggregate shrinkage of business for the corresponding period in 1894 has exceeded $2,500,000,000 as compared with 1893, while this year's business as compared with that of the preceding year of 1892 shows the enormous decrease of almost $4,000,000,000.

The clearing house reports to Bradstreet's during the first six months of the present year show a shrinkage of over $9,000,000,000 as compared with the first six months of 1893, a loss of 29 per cent in the country's business. This is an economic record of Democratic maladministration through the fact of tariff tinkering that cannot be extinguished.

The Workman's Call.

Heed, labor, heed your children's cries and let free traders see
The nation's ones proof sovereign in his peerless mastery
Make cities shake and traitors quake beneath your mighty tread,
Ye yoke that shall the protection's hymn should wake the very dead.

Tell Cleveland now and Cockran, too, and Wilson, with his staff,
That they stand in hostile attitude to workmen's expressed will.
Tell that horde of free trade lords who now in congress move
They'll bear the brand of Arnold to a foul, dishonored grave.

Before us stand the fabrics grand protection lives have raised,
Their silent looms, their ruined homes and labor now debased.
The giant trades' and land and brain free trade lives have struck down,
And the nation's once proud sovereign is a pauper on the town.

The home of peace and wifelike grace is cold and desolate,
Free traders' work has left its mark on the weeping mother's face.
The naked wails and wind swept halls the sad, desiring song tells.
Our youth must find some shelter kind in the city's gilded hells.

Who is the knave that madly raves for Wilson-Gorman tariff,
In congress hall to plan the fall of the once proud sovereign state,
Soon Cockran, who held our trust, against us has engaged.
He's playing the clown and low buffoon on Cleveland's free trade stage.

Some other names that labor chides will fight our battle still.
They will oppose the workman's cause and smash the Wilson bill.
We daily note each word and vote passed in that congress hall,
The man that now strikes labor down his time has come to fall.
—Charles Johnson.

O GREAT GROVER!

MAY THE PRAYER OF THE RIGHTEOUS AVAIL US MUCH.

He Spoke In Parables, but Now His People Have True Understanding—He Prepareth Them For a Life of Ease and Plenty, They Toil Not; Neither Do They Eat.

O great and all wise Grover, once more we thank thee for thy bountiful goodness toward us.

O great master, we thank thee for the privilege of putting sackcloth upon our backs and of sitting in ashes and of eating thy free trade soup.

O great master, we know that thou hast loved in parables to us; for hast thou not said in one of thy speeches that wheat would be worth $1.50 per bushel, and that wages would be high if we would only make thee our president? Now, great master, it is all clear to us that thou spakest in parable, and that thy meaning was that, when McKinley and Reed should be elected in 1896, there was a shoulder rectify a high price for our wheat and high wages for our labor. But, great master, we love thee still, for we know that when thou art done with us that we will be fit subjects for a dime museum, there to earn plenty and rest in peace.

O great master, we know that the Breckinridge scandal has grieved thee sorely, and we know that when thou art grieved thou goest a-fishing in Buzzard's bay.

O great master, the supply of the Cleveland badges is running short. The seams of the Democratic blizzards is approaching, and we have not the wherewithal to replace thy badges.

O great master, we know thou hast often told us that the road of a free trader is a hard road to travel in this country, but blessed is he that endureth to the end, even though his friends be not able to recognize him.

If thou wilt only veto this Wilson bill, we will stand by thee firmly till 1896. Then we will hurrah loudly for McKinley and Reed.

O great Grover, we are growing thin upon the substance of things doctrinal and things not seen. Wilt thou not do something, O great master, before thy tons of office that expire by limitation be worn to nothing, a nincompoop with no power and not able to do anything.

O great master, what is meaning of being? Is it steeped in the silurian mud of partisan prejudice or hidden by the vapor rising amidst its pampered imagination. He has blown its trumpet long and loud, but it has done us no good.

O great master, has this great congress which was on thy hands dropped through on the center on the nines and stuck there? Of a truth, master, there is not little danger that archeological research will ever consider its lonely habitat, for is it not true, O Grover, that only the crudest fossils exist in this congress?

O great Grover, that free trade song which thou has sung is not as a chestnut. It has been sung and sung and sung again with variations. You, verily, it has been sung time after time again until all the notes have grown weary of its dull monotone.

O great master, why hast thou not done something in these long 18 months of our weary wait, thou who hast had to bear with the lean of thy kine? We would even be a merciful act, O great and good Mr. Grover, to drive us from this earthly existence for we are tiring, longing, longing for a change.

Republicans Decreased Our Debt.

Can you tell me how the debt of the United States and the amount of taxation compare, per capita of population, with those of other countries?

L. M. MCCUNE.

According to calculations at the census bureau the debt of the United States amounts to $45 per family of five persons, or $9 per capita. On a similar basis of computation the debt of Germany is $400 per family of five persons, or $80 per capita; the debt of France is $381 per family, or $76 per capita; of Austro-Hungary it is $354 per family, or $71 per capita; of Great Britain it is $337 per family; or $67.40 per capita. The average proportion of customs and internal revenue paid by each person in the countries mentioned below during the years 1892 to 1890 was as follows:

Australia	$15 00	Portugal	$7 10
Belgium	13 00	Germany	6 80
France	12 20	Austria	6 30
Switzerland	9 70	Denmark	6 20
Holland	9 00	Canada	6 00
Italy	8 60	Belgium	5 40
Spain	8 35	United States	5 40

It will thus be seen that, on the census bureau's basis of calculation, both the per capita of debt and of revenue contribution to taxes in the United States than in any of the other countries enumerated.

Which It Never Had.

After reading Senator Gray's report on the sugar scandal one is compelled to believe that with proper encouragement the senator could give even the Democratic party a good character. —Philadelphia Press.

August Hummelsbuch drove out to his farm last week? say the big rain helped that somewhat, only and it now promises well. It also helped out potatoes, fall feed, late oats and barley.

J. V. E. Wyatt, who has been more or less under the weather since the fair, was about the streets a short time on Saturday, for the first time in ten days or so. John hopes he will stay up this time.

Chris. Houston complains of having lost considerable oats by the habit some people have of taking a few sheaves as they pass the field. He says that a good many shocks have disappeared lately from his fields since the grain was shocked up. This thing is getting altogether too monotonous and Chris. says if somebody should get badly hurt pretty soon they need not blame him as, he can't stand this wholesale robbery always.

Mrs. Chris. Houston writes to Crookston friends of her safe arrival at Bay City, Mich. She was delayed two days by illness in Chicago. She seems somewhat benefitted by the change but complains of being homesick already.

W. S. Hawes, the milkman took a few days lay-off to sort o' brace up, like and everybody missed him—wondered if he was sick. For eight years or so, Mr. Hawes has been a daily caller at almost every house in the city, so when he drops out of sight it is noticed at once.

N. D. Barker arrived from Marshall, Minn., on Friday morning of last week. Mr. Barker is a member of the craft who lives by the art that preserves all arts, and if suited, will cast in his lot with us. He found old-time friends here in the Creamery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Anglim returned on Saturday morning from their trip to Detroit, Mich., and Buffalo, N. Y. They went from Duluth on Jim Hill's new passenger steamer Northwest. Mr. Anglim says: "The Northwest is a regular palace in itself. It is the event of a lifetime to take a trip on that boat."

Vague rumors of trouble for a couple of hunters reached us on Saturday, when a farmer brought a horse in to have the shoe dug out of his eye. As near as we can get at the business of the two were hunting in a field where a well-binder was at work when the team scared up a covey of chickens and one of the hunter thinking it was prospering not only the horse's head but also that of the driver of the binder team. Chris. Houston says his horse will lose its eye-sight at right enough.

Comrade Nelson, of the Fergus Falls post, and Comrade Swift, of the Aurora, Ill., post, dropped in to visit the comrades in Col. Colhoun post at the regular meeting on Friday evening of last week. Comrade Swift commended the interest the boys evidently take in G. A. R. work here, and said they needed now only a home of their own to be a perfectly ideal post. In Illinois, he says, the state law provides for a hall for the use of G. A. R. posts, where they do not have one of their own.

No. 24, running north to St. Vincent and return was delayed in business so much that it did not reach on Monday Crookston until about 12 o'clock, which delayed the southbound train one hour. No. 24 took on 150,000 pounds of freight for points along the line and brought back 20 car-loads of wheat. The boys expect, about Monday, that orders will be here to divide the run—going on one day and returning the next, which idea they do not like very much, as a stop-over in St. Vincent is not any too agreeable.

A man who calls himself Stuck, was brought in from Terrebonne on Monday by Constable Brink of St. Hilaire, on a charge of larceny and bound over to the next term of court. A short time since Dan Partee of St. Hilaire, had a pair of pants, containing $70 in money stolen from his house, and Stuck was arrested simply because he had been wearing that same pair of pants recently, and brought to this city to show cause why he was thusly attired. Moreover the very pocket-book that was in the pocket when the pants were stolen was still there, but the amount of money stolen was just $2 short—being only $68—and yet people are not satisfied. It would seem as though the thief deserved some consideration for his economy in keeping that amount of money about him so long and only using $2 of it—but some people would never be satisfied. If Stuck had the job to do over again he probably wouldn't be so careful of the money.

Ed Peterson, manager of the Crookston Water Power and Light Co., has gone to Chicago, and it is commonly reported he will not return alone. Well, here's ho, Ed.

The Iowa State cornet band went through the city on the N. P. train on Tuesday morning on the way to Winnipeg, where they have an engagement to play in a park for a week or so.

Felix Fournet is arranging to put his wholesale liquor store in the back part of the room recently occupied by Oliver Morell as a grocery store. Fred Brosseau will occupy the front with his saloon.

The Times man makes a great roar against shooting chickens out of season, but if reports are true he could profitably take a little of that advice himself—but perhaps he thinks the game laws were only made for ordinary chicken-hoppers.

Quite a good deal of new barley is finding its way to this market and readily gobbled up for feed. Contrary to expectation oats are coming in quite freely and the price has dropped from 35 cents per bushel to 30 cents. Liverymen report having all they can use at that figure.

The little daughter of Michael Duffy, at Marin Station, got in front of a binder that her little brother was driving on Saturday, and had her heel severely cut. She was immediately brought to this city, where her wounds were properly attended to, and she is reported as doing nicely.

The would-be murderers of Hugh McCulloch were captured by the sheriff of Kittson county and a deputy, and taken to Hallock, where they now await the result of their ruthless shooting. At last accounts Mr. McCulloch was doing well, and it is thought he will recover, if blood poisoning does not set in.

A. D. Stephens took a notion to drive out to Maple Lake Monday evening. He took the team that Ed Schroeder recently sold to go to Tommy Johnstone's livery stable, and started out briskly. He had not gone far before the buggy tongue got spilled Andy out, but fortunately did no more damage than to give him a lively shaking up, and hunting the top buggy somewhere in Andy's line another rig and went on all the same as though nothing had happened.

On Saturday last a rumor reached this city that a man had shot a collector at Kennedy. When the particulars were received it appears that Hugh McCulloch, an old resident of Kittson county, had been cursing for some horses belonging to a Mr. Mason. On Saturday Mason went to get the horses, and got into an altercation with Mr. McCulloch and shot him down. Mason escaped but was captured later on and taken to Hallock, where he was confined in the county jail.

"Speaking of the republican candidate for Judge of Probate, the Thirteen Towns, of Fosston, says:

Attorney J. Walseth, of Fertile, made a short visit to Fosston yesterday. He was on his way home from a visit to his family in the town of Chester. Mr. Walseth is also secretary of the Fertile Fair association and an esteemed resident of that town. A resident in this county for the past thirteen years, Mr. Walseth has made a host of friends within its borders who will render him their hearty assistance at the coming election."

Quite an important addition occurred in the copy furnished us by the secretary of the State Normal board, wherein it was neglected to state that board could be had at $3 per week, same as at St. Cloud. The Almanac of the State Normal school at Winona will meet August 29 and 30, at which time exercises will be held appropriate to the opening of the new and extensive additions to the building, provided by the last legislature. All graduates, and former students of the school and friends are invited to be present. Governor Nelson and other state officials are expected. Reduced rates on all railroads.

The JOURNAL is getting lots of inquiries as to our county and the prospects for getting hold of choice farming lands here. Never before in our 22 years' experience in this country were the prices so low as a democratic administration has made them, and all signs point to an early recovery to something like the old rates, which were at least double what land can now be had for. If half the people now who have been inquiring for farming lands we will have an old-fashioned boom by next spring if, indeed, it does not come on this fall, but the man who comes this fall stands a much better chance to get in on the ground floor and secure a good bargain. Now is the time to come, when you can see the crops standing in the shock; when you can see the machines pounding out golden grain and thus be enabled to see something of what our soil can do.

C. E. Sawyer went up to Warren on Tuesday.

Dr. Dunlop was called to Red Lake Falls on Saturday in a serious case.

Mrs. Ed. George starts this week for Detroit lake for a fortnight's outing.

Lew Gooler and Ed George are off for a trip through the county, southwest.

The death of Mrs. F. Emond is reported at Red Lake Falls from dropsy.

Brakesman Andyke takes a brief lay-off and started for a visit to the twin cities this week.

E. M. Lancaster has rented one of the Beecher cottages, near the N. P. depot and is moving into it.

Ed. George accompanied Lew Gooler to Euclid on one of Lew's midsummer trips on Monday.

Supt. Ponsonby was in the city this week, and went north on the Blue Tuesday morning.

Five marriage licenses issued on Tuesday and it wasn't such an awful good day for licenses either.

Fred Ranch has been a good bit out of whack himself for a week back, but has managed to keep on deck.

A man was brought to the county hospital this week from the pine woods, suffering from a broken leg.

W. F. Arnold went to Minneapolis on Monday to attend the convention of the American Waterworks Association.

Mrs. Bert. Dantly and Mrs. D. H. Bent went over to Grand Forks on Thursday last, to visit friends in that city.

Rasmussen & Motz built the big smoke-stack that Tom Harris put up on the Fournet block chimney on Monday.

A hitch in the business somewhere prevented the sale of the Fournet building last week, and he still has it on hand for sale.

John Tiedeman and wife drove down from Tabor on Monday with their little daughter, who has whooping-cough, to consult a physician.

A number of the friends of Frank Robur went out to the residence of that gentleman for a sort of picnic on Sunday. A very pleasant time is reported.

The Valley Roller Mills, that were shut down for repairs last Thursday started up again on Monday. They report this year's wheat beginning to come in.

A number of laboring men arrived on Tuesday's morning train looking for work in the harvest fields. They were disappointed and quit done. Mr. Schmidt is a master hand in that line.

A Rebekah lodge is to be instituted at Red Lake Falls on Saturday evening. Dr. Lankester has proven a master in the cause of Odd Fellowship, having instituted several lodges since his induction into office.

Will Olds has accepted a position as night watchman in a mill in Grand Forks and left on his wheel yesterday afternoon to enter upon his new duties. Farley and McNiel went along to keep him company.

J. V. E. Wyatt went to East Grand Forks on Tuesday on business connected with the estate of the man who was drowned not long ago, and for whose estate he is the administrator. He goes to Lindsay, where the man lived, before his return.

On Tuesday the rumor was about the streets that a farmer living near Argyle had committed suicide on Monday. The Minneapolis Evening Journal contained a dispatch to the effect that a man named Gilbert Herbert had hanged himself in a fit of despondency.

Mrs. A. M. Hunn arrived from Devils Lake on Saturday evening and has been the guest of John Crawford Sr. Her husband is in the employ of the elevator company, and has been ordered to make Crookston his future home. They will find a hearty welcome in our city.

Charley Holt, Fred Moeckel, Ed. Lee, Ole Hanson and five or nine others left the city on Tuesday morning with the avowed purpose of forming a crew to man N. B. Sopes's threshing machine for the season. The bets are two to one that some, if not all, will be home again in a few days.

St. Vincent New Era: Knocking out of Hon. H. Steenerson, at the Fergus Falls convention, could only 500 extra votes for Hon. Haldor E. Boen in this county alone. Mr. Steenerson has a great number of very strong personal friends all over Kittson county.

Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. George and Mrs. Mercer drove out to the residence of A. Burnam on Sunday. Ed. says that Mr. Burnam has one of the best managed farms in Polk County and one of the finest farmhouses he has seen anywhere. Mr. Burnam is not complaining of hard times very much.

Nothing as yet has been heard of the peddler who was supposed by some to have been killed by the Wheelers near Fertile, and it is just possible that he may have been foully dealt with.

Peter Cornelius has one of the best pieces of wheat in the county on his pasture lot near his residence. The heads are as thick as possible, and the crop looks as good enough for 35 bushels per acre.

The school board decided to change the method of letting the central school building from hot air to steam and Tom Kelly is making the necessary changes. That it will be properly done goes without saying.

Mrs. Moise Bray died suddenly at her home in Red Lake Falls on Tuesday at 6 p. m., at the age of 65. She had been ill for some weeks, but was not considered dangerously so, and on Tuesday was feeling very much better until late in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Bray are among the oldest settlers of the Falls, where they have made many friends. They are also well known in this city, where her daughter, Mrs. Fred Brosseau lives, and many went out from here this (Thursday) morning to attend the funeral.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"A year ago I was taken with inflammatory rheumatism and was laid up with it for about three months. I had pain in my limbs, arms, chest and in fact nearly every every part of my body ached, and I looked like a living skeleton, when I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, but I experienced relief with the first bottle. I have taken about four bott'es and have not felt the rheumatism since."— Bruce F. Harris, Crookston, Minn.

From my slaughter house on or about August 1st, a black ox weighing about 200 lbs. Will pay a suitable reward for information leading to recovery.

CHAS. VINE,

Haller's Little German Pills are the superior of many and excelled by none. They are antigriping and do not nauseate. Their use stimulates the liver and corrects the Bilious condition of the stomach. They are sugar-coated, small in size, and are the mildest and most effective cathartic that can be used. Try them once and you will never want to use any other. Sold by F. L. Durand.

RESIDENCE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I have forty desirable lots in Jerome's addition, which I offer for sale at reasonable prices and on terms to suit purchasers. These lots have 26 and 50 feet frontage, and are situated on high land, where good dry cellars can be got, and an abundance of pure water can be procured at a depth of from 15 to 25 feet. Jerome's addition is the healthiest and pleasantest portion of the city. Not a single case of typhoid fever has ever been reported there, and this is no accident owing to the good water found everywhere on that addition. For further particulars regarding lots, prices, terms, etc., require of or address M. R. Brown, Crookston, Minn. [19-25]

Sold a prominent farmer to Jacewan, many on Tuesday morning: "Say, I should think you would touch up Billy McKenzie a little on the chicken shooting matter. I notice that he has been doing a lot of blowing about shooting chickens out of season and, I don't believe that there is a man in Polk county who has shot more chickens this year than Billy McKenzie. I saw him shoot one myself, and saw it fall and when he started to get to it I yelled out at him and it was comical to see him tumble down in the grass and take a quiet sneak. He did not get the chicken that he shot, but of all the wiggling in the grass I ever saw he gave the best sample. I suppose he thought I did not recognize him, but I am fond onto Billy's curves and it was him all right enough. Anybody as used as I am to Billy's political history could not mistake the wiggle. It was Billy's wiggle all right enough." Send the funeral.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

I consider it unequalled and will use no other. F. L. Durand last andgaurantees this liniment.

A SLIGHT DIFFERENCE

In the Manner In Which England and America Treat Their Veterans.

A Soldier Who Served Under Both Flags Relates His Experiences.

He Gets a Pension from England. but None from the United States.

A veteran in Uncle Sam's service and Johnny Bull's writes the Minneapolis Evening Journal contrasting the United States system with that of England which shows the latter to be by far the most liberal. He says:

"Having served under two flags, viz, those of John Bull and of Uncle Sam, I am competent to express an opinion as to which country rewards its defenders and veterans more liberally. The following is an extract from an article which appeared in a London daily paper about the time the pension bill of 1890 was being passed in the United States congress: "At a time when so much is being said in this country about pensions to the niggardly treatment of men who have fought and bled for the nation, it is interesting to note the manner in which the United States congress is appropriating public funds for the benefit of those who have served that country in the past; the present session has been taken up in the consideration of a series of pension bills, and up to the 12th ult. no less than $167,824,739 has been voted in this manner."

There is no doubt that Uncle Sam's subjects intended that the act should be carried out in a liberal and generous spirit, but ample proof can be obtained that the officials enlisted with the administration of the pension bureau have in too many instances treated claimants in a most unworthy manner and with a harshness quite contrary to the wishes and intention of the people of this great country.

I spent five of the best years of my life in the service of Uncle Sam and because of the country during the Southern rebellion, and during my service was engaged in Indian warfare in California, participated in was captured and suffered as a prisoner of the battle of Gaines' Mill, second battle of Bull Run, and the Red River campaign; was two months in Camp stockade and endured many privations, hardships and much exposure which only a good constitution enabled me to survive.

I have applied to the United States government for a pension, being prematurely old and feeble, due in a great measure to after effects from the sufferings and exposure I endured during the civil war, but my claim has been rejected on the ground that I am not incapacitated from earning my living by manual labor in a pensionable degree notwithstanding that qualified medical officers have certified that I am totally incapable of doing so, and the fact that I am unable to obtain any employment whatever. I held the rank of sergeant in a cavalry regiment when mustered out of the service after the war was over.

Since the termination of the civil war I have served 21 years in the British army, and retired on a pension of $25 a month, but can hardly say that I experienced greater hardships, privations and dangers during the few years I served under Uncle Sam's flag, therefore I do not think it unreasonable on my part to expect a minimum pension from the United States government, but I would not ask for this if I could obtain employment to enable me to a moderate wage. Although my pension from the British government is very good, and sufficient to keep me from being a pauper or starving, it hardly suffices as well to keep myself and family respectably in clothes and moderate but necessary expenses.

I am convinced that public opinion will pronounce that my record in Uncle Sam's service is sufficiently good to justify the authorities in conceding the benefit of the pension act to be applicable in my case, as the maximum amount authorized under the act, if granted, would not exceed a moiety of the pension I receive from the British government.

It would appear that a claimant to be eligible in a pensionable degree should be subject to one of three disabilities, viz. depriving of a limb, mental derangement, or defunct pulmonitary power. If such is indeed the case further comment or comparison as regards liberality between John Bull and Uncle Sam is unnecessary."

REPUBLICAN EDITORS.

Will be Banqueted at Ryan Hotel St. Paul, Sept. 6, by Citizens of that City.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 28.—Arrangements are being completed for an elegant banquet to be tendered the Minnesota Republican Press association at the Ryan Hotel, Sept. 6, by the Commercial club of this city. A meeting of the association has been called for that day, and after the business meeting the editors will be entertained both in the afternoon and evening. The eloquent congressman—, J. P. Dolliver of Iowa, has accepted an invitation to deliver an address after the banquet. All the candidates on the state and congressional tickets will be present, as well as Senators Davis and Washburn, and other prominent Republicans, and citizens of St. Paul. After the banquet, which will be held from 8 to 12, a smoke social will be enjoyed. It will be the political event of the season, being the formal opening of the campaign, by the Republican Press Association.

Raising Hogs.

Of the benefits of hog-raising the Pioneer Press says: History is always repeating itself. The individual who is wise enough to profit by experience is the one that meets with the greatest success in his undertakings. In the year 1891 the corn crop throughout the West and Southwest, was practically a failure. What was the result? The farmers, generally sold off all their hogs, big and little, fat and thin, stock sows and blooded boars, everything was rushed madly onto the market creating an oversupply at the time, and depressing the price of hogs to three cents live weight. At the time Carl Judson, ex-secretary of the State Agricultural society, attempted to stay the wild stampede to sell the immature and seed hogs by calling the attention of the farmers of the Northwest, through the public press, to the fact that hogs could be thoroughly and profitably fatte.ed on wheat, barley and rye, and that the wild rush to sell off the stock hogs would result in a hog famine that would put hog prices far above any commodity on the farm. Mr. Judson's prophecy was fulfilled to the letter. As soon as the immature hogs were sold, the market advanced until the high tide mentioned at Scott's Bluff in February, 1893, when live hogs sold at $8.25 per cwt. Hogs have been high ever since, and are selling at this time at from $4.00 to $5.50 per cwt. Had the farmers of Minnesota heeded Mr. Judson's warning it would have been millions of dollars in their pockets, but, alas, they paid no more attention to it than to the wind, and when hogs had advanced to $8.25 they were buying pork for home use and rushing about insanely to purchase, at exorbitant prices, stock hogs to make a new beginning. Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri are the great hog-raising states. In these states the corn crop is a dismal failure, and the farmers are selling off and disposing of all their hogs, brood sows and boars, and for the reason that they have no wheat and barley to substitute for corn, but our Minnesota farmers if they have as much sense as the Almighty gives to geese, will take advantage of the situation and have hogs in abundance for the market next year when the hog producing states are short and prices high. The farmers of Minnesota and the Dakotas have a market outside at South St. Paul for more hogs than they can produce. Even now, the pork packers are purchasing hogs at St. Joe, Mo., to keep their large packing houses busy.

As a further proof of the situation in the great hog-raising states, we print the following from the Chicago Evening Journal of the 20th inst:

"A farmer near McCallsburg, Iowa, knocked about seventy-five hogs in the head because he had nothing to feed them. This is the first year in the history of Story county that the corn crop was a failure. The past two weeks has practically settled the corn question this year. It being estimated that the yield will not be one-half of former years."

NELSON AT HOME.

Gov. Nelson is not the Plutocrat the Populists Would Like to Have the People Believe He Is.

In Alexandria He is Plain "Ole" Nelson, Attorney at Law".

His Democratic Home and Its Surroundings

Speaking of the home life of Governor Nelson the Alexandria Republican says: "The homestead of Minnesota's chief executive is a very pretty place, and the residence, though very modest, has the appearance of being comfortable. To one unacquainted with the place it would be passed by as an ordinary farmer's dwelling, and nobody would suppose that the modestly dressed lady who greets her own guests at the door, and is frequently seen busying herself about the cares which fall to all house-wives, who have not the aid of a girl, was the wife of the governor of one of the greatest states in the union.

Could all the ambient throng of the state look upon the governor at his home and see how common and farmer-like he is, they would select him as the one to lead their hosts to victory; but because he has too much sense to pander to the whims of disreputionists, and although he possesses qualities known to them to be in every way in harmony with their own, they throw their votes away on some man who has to assume virtues he does not possess.

People are made welcome at the home of the governor, and if you do not recognize the fact that you are in contact with a man whom every citizen of Minnesota delights to honor, you will sit down to supper, Mrs. Nelson waiting on you with her own hands, and lightly pass the evening away and when you have gone and some one tells you where you have been you will feel—well, as though you should apologize for being so kindly treated.

Gov. Nelson is a very busy man these days not only in connection with his official duties but the demands of the people to have him present at their gatherings breaks in on his rest hours, though he looks hale and hearty and says he is well "for an old man." Among his profession he is very accomplished and as a usual thing he passes in and out from his office by the rear stairs, for he still has an office here and the sign still reads "Nelson & Nelson, Attorney at Law," though he had to sacrifice his law practice to become the servant of the people. Practically the governor is poorer to-day than when he commanded a lucrative law practice. In all the states of the union there is not one in which the salary of the governor is as plebian as is that of the chief executive of Minnesota.

Republican Congressional Committee.

Chairman J. P. Williams announces the Republican Congressional committee as follows:

C. J. Gunderson, chairman, Alexandria, Douglas county.

Thos. Irish, Detroit, Becker county; W. E. Whitsman, Ortonville, Big Stone county; Luther Osborne, Glyndon, Clay county; A. C. Belyea, Elbow Lake, Grant county; J. Westgon, Hallock, Kittson county; Henry Felg, Kandiyohi county; H. L. Melgard, Argyle; Sylvester Pederson, Red Lake county; D. M. Brown, Fergus Falls, Ottertail county; Chas. P. Reeves, Glenwood, Pope county; A. F. George, Crookston, Polk county; S. A. Flaherty, Morris, Stevens county; S. H. Hudson, Benson, Swift county; S. W. Frasier, Wheaton, Traverse county; H. G. Stordock, Bottiney, Wilkin county.

Minnesota's World's Fair Exhibit.

The exhibit of Minnesota at the world's fair is to be shown in the main building on the fair grounds of the State Agricultural Society, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, during the fair, which is to be held September 10th to 15th, inclusive. The exhibit has already been put in place and will form an attractive feature of the fair. It shows to better advantage in the little but grand building than it did at the world's fair at Chicago. It takes up so much room in the main building that the structure is sure to be crowded. The managers of the fair report that every department of the fair is to be crowded this year, a result due in part to the fact that no fair was given last year, the stimulus given to exhibitions of this kind by the Columbian exhibition, and the fact that the fair will this year have the united support of St. Paul and Minneapolis since there is to be no exposition in Minneapolis this year. All the railroads in the state have agreed to make one fare for the round trip during the week of the fair.

McCULLOM STILL ALIVE.

The Warren Register Gives a True Report of that Shooting Scrape.

The Warren Register says the following account of the shooting of Hugh McCollum is the only true one yet given:

"The Mr. McCollum who was shot near Kennedy in Kittson county last Saturday forenoon is yet alive, and it is thought he will recover. He is a cousin to our sheriff, John Sinclair, who went to see him on Monday, and who found him in good spirits, although badly hurt. The two men who were driving off with the horses were sitting in the wagon, one armed with a double barreled shot gun, the other with a revolver, when McCollum, who was shot out in the field, saw them and hurried to place himself in front of the team the men were driving. They then led the horses in all, three being tied behind. When McCollum stepped in front of the horses, he said to the men: "You must settle with me for the $200 you owe me for taking care of your horses, before you take them away." This they refused to do, and ordered him to get out, and, upon his refusal, the fellow with the revolver fired at him and missed, then the one with the shot gun, Mason, fired both barrels of his gun at him in succession, the first lodging one shot in one of his fingers, and the other charge striking him in the left side, at the waistband. He then fell to the ground and the would-be murderers drove away. They were pursued by the sheriff and captured in North Dakota, near Hamilton, Saturday night, and are now in Hallock jail. They had been in the vicinity of Kennedy for over a year, and had made their home at McCollum's. He had kept their horses for them, until they had become indebted to him to the amount of $200 and were trying to get away without paying him. They were both in the wagon when McCollum stopped the team, and both remained in the wagon while shooting at McCollum, who was unarmed. McCollum is a single man about 28 years old and has never been married. His would be assassins are named Mason and Reed."

A Little Relaxation.

Most of us have had our noses pretty close to the grindstone during the past year, and the general tendency has been to stay at home and spend as little money in recreation and pleasure as possible. A smaller portion of the citizens of Minnesota than usual have journeyed to St. Paul and Minneapolis during the year. But during the state fair, given under the auspices of the State Agricultural Society, on their grounds, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis September 10th to 15th, inclusive, the railroads are to make a rate of one fare for the round trip. Going to the state fair is not altogether pleasure-seeking. The fairs are upon such an extensive scale that they are educating in their influence. The farmers in particular should attend and see what is being done in the line of stock raising, butter and cheese making, what improvements are being made in the way of farm machinery, and what other farmers have succeeded in accomplishing in the way of products. The displays in all these departments are to be very full and complete. No intelligent farmer, even if wheat is low, can afford to stay away from the fair.

Land Seekers Here.

P. J. Lanchapelle took a party of land hunters from Iowa out last week to look up a suitable location for a large stock farm and after a thorough search they decided that a farm located near this city was the proper caper. P. J. is an enthusiast upon the question of Polk county soil and if anybody knows all about it and is able to give out pointers that man is P. J. He is one of the old settlers, coming here in the early seventies and should know something about our soil and by that smuetoken that's just what he does.

Sam Dalnerd was down from St. Hilaire on Wednesday, says he welcomed the arrival of the first boy on Tuesday. He now has three girls and one boy.

HE CARRIES A LICENSE.

A Crookston Man Purchased a Marriage License Many Moons Ago.

But the Bride's Papa Objected and the Wedding Didn't Go.

The Groom is Still Disconsolate—Listen to the Tale of Woe.

A few years ago a young man—who by the way is at date of present writing something of a prominent business man of Crookston, was working upon a farm not over 1000 miles southeast of this city. We shall call his name "Johnny"—because before he left his native heath and came over the line to this blessed country, he "got his gun" in the regiment to which he was assigned when he enlisted. Now there dwelt in that land a maiden fair with golden hair—or such a business and when our hero gazed upon her, lo! he was captured, he was her prisoner in the warfare of love to that extent that when her parents did arise and take the young maiden and depart for Crookston in the domain of our good uncle Samuel, no ray of hope was left for our hero, and straightaway he forgot his allegiance to the Queen of Great Britain and throwing down his gun and other accoutrements of war, he departed between two days to worship at the shrine of his queen of hearts on free American soil; and thus it was that from being a lusky British soldier he became an hired man upon the farm of a well-known man who lives in the town of Goodlooking-facts, near this city whose name we shall call Mr. Bumble-bee because that was (not) his name. And all went merry as a marriage-bell, our hero kept right on loving his fair innocents and she kept right on not knowing it, until midsummer was well nigh gone, when one day about 5 of the clock, when old Sol had well-night performed his diurnal revolution, and was about to quit for supper, then up spake our hero, who had been still for the space of from three to five minutes previously before: "Mr. Bumble-bee, please sir, it it is all the same to you sir, I would like a day off, as I want to go to town to be married if you can spare me that long." "Certainly," said Mr. B., "under such circumstances I shall have to let you go." And so it was that our hero, filled with high hopes departed for the city, where he ran against a gang that did slip in that he was informed that he could not wed in this man's country without a license so to do, so he bled him up to the nearest house where, after he had duly deposited two plunks of the realm, two large, bright round simoleons he received the precious document and settled direct for the home of the fair damsel aforesaid previously heretofore mentioned, and here he struck another snag in the form of a square-toed veto of the whole business from no less a person than the young lady's paternal progenitor who coldly and cruelly remarked that he "had a big enough family t support now" and that there was not "room enough for one more," and that same day he took the back to the farm in the morning in time to milk the cows, and to do the chores and to strike his regular gait in the harvest-field where his heart was sore and he was out of conceit with life—and $2—and he told his friends not to weep for him because just as soon as he had completed his time on the farm he was going right straight back to Canada and persuade the Queen of England to kindly hand him for a deserter but he didn't go—not right then and after a while old Father Time, with healing on his wings brought relief and when at last he did go back to Canada he found to his surprise that the Queen hadn't taken his desertion to heart half as bad as he thought in fact it was a question if she had ever ascertained that she had lost his invaluable services and he being free to is an owner true tale as one Crookston young man could vouch for—if he chose.

WAS RUN AT A LOSS.

PULLMAN REGITES HIS KINDNESS TO HIS EMPLOYES

Before the Presidential Strike Commission. Lost a Little on Contracts, But Had Profits Enough Left to Pay Nearly Three Millions in Dividends.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—George M. Pullman was before the labor commission for nearly three hours during the afternoon. Vice President Wickes, who followed his superior, occupied two hours and will appear again.

At the outset of his testimony Mr. Pullman made a careful preliminary statement of his position toward the commission and defining the motives which had moved the company to establish its manufacturing plant and homes for workingmen as it had. In answer to queries by Chairman Wright Mr. Pullman told of the contracts for work undertaken by the company at a loss in order that the men might be kept at work. He said:

"Up to the time of the strike we had lost more than $60,000 in pursuit of this policy. I explained this personally to the men when they were having their conference with Mr. Wickes."

Regarding Arbitration.

Answering Judge Worthington, Mr. Pullman said he did not have charge of detail work in connection with the company's affairs, but that he was president and received the reports of other officers. The judge asked:

"As to this reported declaration of yours that you had nothing to arbitrate, were you correctly reported?"

"I have already explained my views on that subject. They are contained in the printed statement submitted," referring to the printed interviews published during the progress of the strike.

During the questioning Judge Worthington brought out the fact that the company's original capital stock of $1,000,000 in 1867 that the company had paid dividends of 12 per cent during the first two years of its organization, 8½ per cent during the next two years and 8 per cent annually since and at the same time had accumulated a surplus amounting to $25,000,000. He also elicited the statement that the stock of the Pullman Land association was entirely in the possession of the Pullman Palace Car company, having been acquired gradually by the investment of the Car company's surplus earnings in the certificates of the Land association.

Had Increased to $36,000,000;

Recurring to the stock of the company Mr. Pullman said it represented actual cash paid by the stockholders, and the capital was decided and the capital stock was increased for the legitimate business of the company. There was no "water" in it and none of it represented stock dividends.

Was a Successful Year.

"Now, Mr. Pullman," said Commissioner Worthington, "taking the whole year through has the Pullman company made or lost money?"

"It has made money," was the answer.

Commissioner Worthington continued the questions:

"You have paid your regular dividends?"

"Yes, six; 8 per cent."

"That is something like $2,800,000 you have paid out in dividends for the year?"

"Yes, but that includes the latter part of the world's fair season, which was exceptional."

"Let me ask you, Mr. Pullman, whether you do not think a company that pays dividends of $2,800,000 could not afford to share the losses of its employes who have worked for it so long?"

Couldn't Rob the Stockholders.

"The manufacturing business is separate from the business of the sleeping car company. I see no reason why I should take the profits of the 4,300 stockholders in the Pullman Sleeping Car company and pay mon a higher rate of wages than was paid by other companies for the same work. Because we have been careful and accumulated a surplus I do not see that it is a reason we should take the surplus now and pay it out for exceptionally high wages."

"Has the Pullman company during the years of its prosperity ever advanced the wages of its employes voluntarily?"

"I do not know as to that. It has always sought to pay fair wages and the fact that we have never had not one strike is pretty good evidence that the men have been satisfied."

Didn't Cut His Own Salary.

"Was your salary reduced, Mr. Pullman?"

He said his salary had not been reduced.

"Nor the salaries of superintendent and foreman?"

"No."

"Why?"

Mr. Pullman said it was not good policy to reduce the salaries of high officials because each of their salaries were not easily replaced and would not stand a reduction of any considerable amount.

By this time it was growing dark and the commission was anxious to get Mr. Wickes started, so Mr. Pullman was excused with the understanding that any supplementary statements he might wish to make would be received when he chose to appear.

Same Old Mascot.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 28.—In the presence of nearly 8,000 people at the Hudson River driving park the champion pacer Mascot added another star performance to his already extended list of notable achievements. In the free-for-all pacing race he went the first heat in 2:07¾, which lowers the track record of 2:07, made by Johnston three years ago.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Colonel William E. Dandy of Cincinnati Elected Commander-in-Chief.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Aug. 28.—National officers were elected at the Sons of Veterans encampment as follows: Commander-in-Chief, William E. Dandy, Cincinnati; Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief, T. Barton, Providence, R. I.; Junior Vice Commander, Louis Lilley, Davenport, Ia. Colonel Edward P. Bigelow, of St. Paul and Colonel George H. Hurlburt of Belvidere, Ills., were other candidates for the office of Commander-in-Chief. Knoxville, Tenn., was selected as the next place of meeting, although Omaha and Erie, Pa., were warm competitors. The past rank of commander-in-Chief Payne, courtmartialed, was restored.

By hard work the delegates managed to get through the afternoon session their last, shortening the proposed meeting a day. The commission on resolutions presented a plan to report, indorsing the pending bill before congress prohibiting the placing of advertising matter on United States flags; providing for issuance of a special badge to members in good standing over 10 consecutive years and expressing fealty to the Grand Army.

N. P. CUTS RATES.

Makes a Bid For Grain Business in the Northwest.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 28.—The Northern Pacific general freight department has issued a circular addressed "to agents, grain dealers and others interested." It evidently intends to do some wheat elevator business itself, and not to allow the Great Northern to scoop in all the grain in sight. As will be seen by a perusal of the formal parts of the circular, the cut in elevator rates recently made by its competitor are fully met. The circular fairly bristles with the signatures of officials, and is as follows:

The elevator companies upon our line and available terminal connections at Duluth, Superior and West Superior have recently reduced their handling charges to the following basis: Receiving, delivering and discharging, including 15 days' free storage, a half cent per bushel. Storage for each successive 30 days or part thereof, a half cent per bushel. There will be no charge for cleaning and blowing any kind of grain except flax. The above tariff is open and available to shippers via the Northern Pacific railroad, at the above rates, to upwards of 22,000,000 bushels.

GRASSHOPPERS IN WYOMING.

Inestimable Damage Done to Grass Lands of That State.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Aug. 28.—Several settlers from Fort Laramie, this county, about 100 miles north of the junction of the Laramie with the North Platte river, report that settlers and residents have been annoyed and pestered with myriads of grasshoppers setting up the country for miles until scarcely any hay will be left for winter. From latest accounts, they appear to be leaving slowly, but the damage is incalculable.

WAR FEELING GROWING.

Japs Are Anxious to Get Into Chinese Territory.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 29.—The war feeling here is growing more intense every day and there is a great popular demand for the transfer of the warlike operations from Corea to China. It is suggested that Japan should divert all her available troops and march upon Pekin immediately. The commercial treaty between Great Britain and Japan was ratified on Saturday last.

Met a Frightful Death.

CREEDE, Colo., Aug. 28.—Four miners were smoked, burned and boiled to death in the Amethyst tunnel of the Holy Cross mine, destroyed the shaftshouse with all its machinery, melted the cable attached to the skip and the bucket and mass fell upon the miners who were assending the ladders, hurling them to the bottom of the shaft.

Florida's Lemon Crop.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The increase of the lemon crop of Florida is exercising a marked influence upon the imports of that fruit. This year it is expected Florida's crop of lemons will aggregate 200,000 boxes, which is nearly fourfold the product of last year.

Buffalo-Pittsburg Road Race.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 30.—George E. Williams of Pittsburg reached Pittsburg at 12:01 p. m., first in the great Buffalo-Pittsburg cycle race, having made the 294 miles in 20 hours and 37 minutes.

Won by Robert J.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The great match race between the pacers Robert J and Joe Patchen was one sided, Robert J winning easily in straight heats, the average time being 2:06.

Wyoming Democratic Vacancies Filled.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Aug. 25.—Democratic state committee filled vacancies on state ticket as follows: Secretary of state, C. P. Spear of Cheyenne; treasurer, George Boller of Douglas.

Cancers Drowned.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 25.—Benjamin Renshaw and Robert Thomas, middle-aged men, and Johnny Renshaw, aged 10, were drowned in the Charles river here by the overturning of a canoe.

John C. Gault Stricken.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—John C. Gault, the veteran railroad official, has been stricken by apoplexy, and is reported in a dying condition at his home in this city. He has been unconscious since Wednesday.

Ratified a Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The president sent to the senate a message announcing the ratification of the treaty extending the time for the completion of the boundary survey between the United States and Mexico.

Magraw, and that it be allowed to pay the mortgage and take the plant in order to protect its claim of $1,200. An order to show cause why the sale should not be set aside has been issued.

Hon. Rees G. Valentine, president of the Red River Valley drainage commission, in an interview at St. Paul, stated that when the plans of the commission are carried to completion not less than 300,000 acres of land, valued at from $10 to $12 an acre, will be added to the agricultural lands on the Minnesota side of the Red River valley. Most of this land has heretofore been considered worthless.

Murderer Ermisch made a desperate attempt to escape from the county jail at St. Paul Saturday, and succeeded in reaching the lower corridor door, after he had wounded Ed Dunn to death with watch. That he did not add another murder to the one for which he is now awaiting the death penalty was due decisely to his family aim. He was finally taken back to his cell. The revolver he used was smuggled to him by his mother.

On Sept. 1 bids will be opened at the capitol for dredging drainage canals in the Red River valley as follows: Borup's five miles in length, connecting two sections of the south branch of the Wild Rice river in Norman county one mile north of the Clay county line; Snake river, three miles long, in Polk county; a mile and a half south of Marshall county line; Lake Ida, three miles, connecting the Wild Rice river from the point of the overflow with the Marsh river, about a mile and a half above Ada in Norman county.

BOGUS BOILER INSPECTORS.

Arrested After Swindling South Dakota, to the Tune of $3,000.

BROWNS VALLEY, Minn., Aug. 27.—Two men, giving the names of J. W. Covey, alias John Hines, and William Graham, were arrested in Harmon township, charged by Charles Irish with obtaining money under false pretenses. Covey pretended to be the state boiler inspector of South Dakota and Graham passed as his deputy. It happens that that state does not require the inspection of boilers, but these swindlers have examined about 300 boilers and pocketed scalled fees amounting to about $3,000. Their mode of operation was to inspect the boilers and give engineers licenses to run threshing engines, charging in most cases $5 each, but where there was an opportunity they would accept $10 to $15 as a bribe to keep still if the engine was a little risky.

Suicided at Duluth.

DULUTH, Aug. 27.—Despondent over his parents' domestic troubles and a love affair of his own, J. J. Meighan, a prosperous Topeka commission merchant, threw himself into the lake on the 16th. His disappearance was noted at the time, but it was thought he had left town. Sunday his body was washed ashore at Minnesota point.

THE Times man is doing his best to break into the populist party without becoming a populist.

AT last congress has adjourned and with that perpetual menace gone we can breathe free again. Lawmaking comes high but, we suppose, we must have it.

IF H. P. Hall would start an evening paper in St. Paul he would probably make it win, but a morning paper will have a hard struggle against the Press and Globe.

IN a sermon at Lexington, Ky., an evangelist preacher named Barnes asked his hearers to vote for Col Breckenridge for congress. When a disciple of God gets so low down in the scale of humanity that he advocates from the pulpit the election of a self-confessed libertine of the most degrading type, Christianity has need of missionary work among her teachers of religion.

AS eastern firm are trying to establish a saw mill at Thief River Falls, but are meeting with a determined opposition from the owner of the mill at that place—Mr. Meehan —who is said to have declared that he will spend $10,000 to keep out another mill. Mr. Meehan has monopolized the shore rights, boom privileges, etc., along the river, and is making a desperate fight to keep out the new concern, which secured a contract from the Indians to cut timber on the reservation. Meehan has got Congressman Boen to take the matter up and make an effort to have the contract set aside. The citizens of Thief River Falls should stand by the Press of that village, which is making a fight for the new enterprise. "Down with monopoly!"

DURING the recent railroad strike the corporation press of the country repeatedly declared that by the terms of the contract which the Pullman company had with the railroads using their cars, the roads were compelled to pay for the use of the cars whether they used them or not, and it was therefore an outrage to ask the railroad companies to run their trains without these cars. Now these papers are printing the testimony given before the commission which is investigating the cause of the strike, and among the testimony is that of Manager St. John of the Rock Island road, who admitted that the railroads did not have to pay for Pullman cars except when in use, and that it was optional with the roads whether they hand them or not.

Now that the strike is over—and the men beaten—these papers are printing many facts about the condition of the Pullman employes and the relations of the company with the railroads. Had they told the truth during the strike the result might have been different, but now they can tell truth without injuring the corporations.

THE republicans of the Fourth commissioner district have nominated Olof K. Johnson as their candidate for county commissioner; and in the second district John Ellington. The probabilities are that Mr. Anderson will be elected in the fourth district, as the populists have not much faith in their candidate, Mr. Norland, who was brought out by Harry Ives and endorsed by Commissioner Rhinehart, who says he is a good man. That settles it. Kirsch and Rhinehart evidently believe they can handle Mr. Norland as they do Demers, or they would not be so anxious to have him elected. It is said that part of the scheme is to have Demers run independent and thus insure the election of Norland or Demers. The populists are getting onto the game, and are not going to vote for anyone who can be controlled by Kirsch and Rhinehart. These two worthies have run the county board for years, and the people would like to have a change. Mr. Anderson has been town clerk of Sanders township for several years, and is a good clean man in every respect. He is capable of filling the office of county commissioner with credit to himself and the county, and is a man who could not be coerced or bribed into squandering the people's money for the benefit of his friends.

THE republican campaign will be fairly opened at St. Paul on September 6th, and will no doubt be red-hot from that time on.

"VOTE for Cleveland and get $1.25 for your wheat," was democratic advice during the last campaign. By the looks of things a great many farmers followed that advice and now they can see no earthly chance to get little if any more than forty cents per bushel for wheat this fall. Well, this is about the way the democrats redeem their pledges so no one need be disappointed. The JOURNAL remembers that "we told you so" during the last campaign.

WHY shouldnt the average tax payer still further burden himself with taxes to provide four sets of of county officers with a soft job, to provide four newspapers with a chance at the public pap as official papers and to give a lot of enterprising real estate men at the proposed county seats a chance to make money in corner lots? Of course all this will cost the taxpayers more than double what they now pay but think of the vast amount of good it would do all these people who would derive the only benefits of it!

THE Morning Call, a new daily will appear at St. Paul on or about September 1st, with that veteran journalist H. P. Hall at the helm. Mr. Hall was one of the leading newspaper men in the state and if anybody can make a democratic morning daily live he can. Mr. Hall was the founder of the Dispatch, the Globe and the evening News and is thoroughly posted in every essential necessary to make a successful paper. While we have our serious doubts about it we wish the new venture success.

THE Times says that "next to a democratic victory" is the populistic idea of driving the capital all out of the country the same as in Kansas and Nebraska and other states where the populistic idea prevails. Who knows, until we try it, but that state of things would be preferable to democratic times? It is a fact that the sort of times we have had since the democrats got control have nearly ruined the country—would in a few more months and a change to populism could not any more than finish the job of ruining the country anyhow.

THE president does not seem to manifest that wonderful back-bone that his admirers are constantly assuring the people that he does possess. He did not like the tariff bill a little bit, it was not what he wanted, it was not what he said the country needs, yet he did not have back-bone enough to veto it, nor even to sign it. Had he signed it at once congress could have promptly adjourned, the country have been saved the expense (and torture) of all these days of waiting until the bill becomes a law by statute limitation. Nero fiddled while Rome burned and Grover fiddled while the country suffers from the effects of this wonderful business administration.

SAYS the Fergus Falls Journal of the celebrated interview between Mike Dorun and Biermann:

State Auditor Biermann has returned from a final visit in the St. Paul Globe telling how virtuous he has been. He claims that three years ago the Great Northern road tried to get him to waive some of the State's rights in regard to the selection of swamp lands. We have no doubt but what the Great Northern wanted to get hold of as good lands as possible and as much of it, and Mr. Biermann simply did his duty in declining to give the road any illegal advantage. This was three years ago but he waits until just before election before he says anything about it. The funniest thing of all is that Mike Doran, the Democratic boss, sent word to Biermann that he wanted to see him. Biermann trotted down and Michael says, "That's the matter wid ye and the Great Northern road?" Whereupon, Biermann replied that he could not accept the lists of lands offered for filing by the road. To this the leader of the Minnesota Democracy according to Biermann, replied: "What is the good of having friends in office when they are unwilling to do anything for you." Biermann further says that Mike has said that he, Biermann, demanded $40,000 before he would do what the road wanted him to do and this was used to defeat his nomination in the Populist convention."

A MODERN SODOM.

The East Grand Forks city council passed a resolution appropriating $1000 to be used in furthering the county division scheme; but the mayor vetoed the resolution, and a special election is to be held to decide the matter. The citizens over there might just as well save their money, as the spending of it will avail them nothing. The Courier of that place publishes an editorial article on the question, and lackingly exposes a terribly rotten condition of the city, both socially and financially. Here is an extract from the article:

"The mere fact that city warrants drawn against the several funds of the city, always excepting the sinking fund, are bartered about the city at a discount of 25 per cent., and bearing interest at 7 per cent. per annum, is evidence enough that the city is head over heels in debt, and when we consider that the yearly revenue derived in this city alone from the traffic in liquor amounts to between $18,000 and $20,000, to say nothing of the monthly licenses imposed upon madams of houses of ill-fame, virtue, together with the imposition of fines upon the lunatics, and many other sources of revenue not necessary at this time to mention, but it a sad commentary upon the aldermanic board who administer the affairs of state? Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed because of their sinfulness, not in municipal affairs, but in society circles. East Grand Forks has nought to dread from the wrath of God upon that score. It is the fool killer whom this city should guard against.

SIGNS OF A DIRTY DEAL.

Norman County Herald: The first evidence that there is a dirty deal on foot among certain politicians we notice in the attitude of the Crookston Times. We have always given that paper credit for standing up for Democratic principles through thick and thin, as it has never failed in denouncing the demagogueery of Owen, Donnelly, Fish and others of that ilk. No longer than last June the editor of the times, on a Northern Pacific train in the presence of reputable witnesses, roundly denounced all ideas of fusion with the Populists, stating practically that no man with any principle would sanction such a deal, and he personally favored fighting out the campaign with a full Democratic ticket. Not only this but McKenzie stated that the Democracy had lost ground and had made a great mistake in electing Auditor Bierman on a fusion ticket, and in running in the legislature in 1891. Both of these cases, said McKenzie, were a disgrace to the Democratic party as well as the state. This all sounded very nice, and we believe that Bro. McKenzie meant every word that he said as his utterances were in accord with the past conduct of his paper. Taking these things into consideration we are surprised to see lately editorials in his paper cleverly favoring fusion with the Populists. To our mind this means just one thing, that there is a dirty deal on foot among certain politicians to abandon all principle for the sake of a chance to get into office. If these schemers are successful it will be the lowest and most nefarious combination in the history of Minnesota politics. We do not fear the outcome, because we believe that there are too many honest voters in Minnesota to allow a few men to get together and dictate who shall hold the offices. We predict that both the Populists and Democrats will be a sadder but wiser crowd after election in case they fuse.

Perhaps that "dirty deal" goes further than Bro. Lighthouse suspects. Did you never suspect the fine Italian hand of any disgruntled Polk county republicans in that matter, Dave? It has been intimated that such may be the truth of the whole matter, while some think it only has to do with future county printing.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. The little child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chafin is dangerously ill.

John C. Wells was in the city last week and made this office a pleasant call.

Farmers are all improving this elegant weather stacking and threshing.

Mossetin & Lindell have just received a big stock of pants furnishing goods for the fall trade.

Editor Trewartha of the Dakota, a Scandinavian paper published at Fargo, was in the city Monday.

Ed. Jas. Roberts, the four-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Jas Roberts, died Monday of cholera infantum.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt drove out to the towns of Terrebonne and Lambert last week, where Mr. Wyatt had some business to look after.

John Ghousen came down from Euclid on Tuesday for some repairs on a threshing rig. He has two machines in the field this fall and ought to make lots of money.

H. B. Davis, candidate for county auditor on the republican ticket was in the city on Saturday. Mr. Davis is one of the leading farmers of Polk county and would make a good auditor.

Mine Host Burkhardt, of the Cleveland house, says as an evidence that business is reviving: "On Saturday and Sunday my hotel was overrunning with guests. He can't had such a trade in all summer."

Dr. Legue is having lots of business these days. Mike says he is not sure but that a democratic administration is a blessing in disguise — to him; for, says he, "it is enough to make horse a sick, and — well, I am a veterinary?"

Henry Peterson hauled his popshop up feminist the livery stable on the you side of it this week. Having joined the two buildings for better or for worse, Henry is now seriously contemplating a move in like direction himself but he told us "not to mention it" and we are not going to.

John and James Dimple, two bricklayers, of Grand Forks, were over on Monday to look up the new hotel matter. Jim is a good bit of a horse fancier himself dearly loves a good trotter. "Trotting horses" says Jim, "are a luxury, and this is muckle poor year for luxuries I am thinking."

O. McCrillis of Fosston, the popullist candidate for county superintendent of schools, arrived in the city Tuesday morning from the east. He has spent about six weeks in Ohio and Illinois, and he reports the crops in those states as very light, owing to the continued drouth during the past summer.

Judge Christianson goes to St. Paul on Monday next to be on deck for the meeting of the State Board of Equalization which meets on Tuesday next in St. Paul. The judge says "if anybody is afraid that he has not been assessed high enough he can take the matter properly adjusted by that board on application."

Elmer Nelson died at the residence of his son, Ole E. Rude, in Fairfax, on Wednesday at 9 o'clock. He was 83 years old on the 11th day of this month, and within one year had enjoyed good health, when his failing eyesight rendered him nearly blind which seemed to affect his health. The funeral will occur on Friday at 1 o'clock, from the residence of his son.

Mrs. Knute Olson, whose home was near Marin station, died suddenly last Friday of consumption. She was 33 years of age, and leaves a husband and two small children. The circumstances of her death are particularly sad. Her husband was at work in the fields, and she was in the house with her children. After a severe coughing spell she had a hemorrhage of blood from her lungs and stepped outside for a minute. Soon her children heard her calling and on going outside, the mother called them to her side, kissed them good-bye, and fell over — dead.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Read arrived last week from Chicago on a visit to their grand daughter Mrs. C. H. Sanke, while Mr. R. looks after his farm business here. Mr. Read expressed great surprise at seeing all vegetation looking so fresh and green after having heard of the drouth we have had during the past summer. Says vegetation of all kinds has suffered severely in Illinois—all burned up in fact, while here fall feed is bright and fresh. He thinks the country of our soil for resisting drouth is truly wonderful.

J. M. Palmer says his neighbors are all kicking against the finding of the Tabor ditch commissioners, by which they are assessed to pay for a ditch that does not benefit them any on account of a natural ridge that effectually prevents their deriving any benefit from the proposed ditch. They will be out at the hearing in September in full force. He says all the voters with whom he has talked are opposed to the proposed division scheme—being satisfied that they have enough taxes to pay already and their present county seat is far more handy than the proposed new one.

The residents of John Burnson, in the second ward took fire about 2 o'clock this morning, and although the department responded to the alarm promptly the fire burned so rapidly that they did not get there in time to save the structure which burned to the ground. The household goods were also mostly destroyed.

Gus. Gustafson, who is a correspondent at Wylie for a Swedish paper in Minneapolis, was brought before Judge Holt on Monday on complaint of Knute Sandberg, who objected to a statement that appeared in the paper aforesaid to the effect that the said Knute had suicided on account of financial troubles. When called upon to show cause why Gustafson admitted that he wrote the article, but would not state his reasons therefor. The judge assessed him $25 and costs in default of which Gustafson goes up to board as Sheriff Grundysen's hotel for 30 days. Gustafson is a young man apparently about 18 years of age.

Republican Committee Meeting.

The republican county committee met in the office of A. F. George in this city yesterday, and organized by the election of J. W. Wheeler as chairman, and Andrew Eiken as secretary.

The following members were present: J. W. Wheeler, A. Eiken, O. A. Thoreson, J. S. Ladue, A. Rosnaen, J. R. Johnson and A. F. George, proxy for C. C. Minor.

After talking over all the matters incident to the carrying on of a campaign, the committee adjourned, to meet at the call of the chairman.

The Coming Fashions for Ladies

This is what is commonly conceded to be the most difficult epoch of the year in the realms of fashion, for, while all modes seem to be in an undecided state, yet every body is most anxious to learn what turn the new fashions will take since all those interested on this subject must be preparing for the coming season — the busiest of the year. In their eagerness to secure novel ideas many dressmakers cross the ocean, a still greater number time their eyes toward New York, while the majority are anxiously inquiring from every possible quarter in order to obtain the much desired information. Now it is undoubtedly true that the surest, safest, most convenient and practical way of attaining this end is to become a subscriber of a substantial fashion magazine, whose information is reliable and which offers the greatest variety of subjects. Such magazine—or rather magazines—are the well-known McDowell French Fashion Periodicals—the best and most popular of the kind, both in the old world and in this country. "LaModedeParis," and "Paris Album of Fashion," cost $5.50 each per annum, or 30 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $3.00 per year, or 30 cents a copy. "LaMode," a family journal, with colored plates, unequalled in price and artistic merit, costs only $1.50 per year or 15 cents a copy. The three first-named publications consist for each $1.00 worth of coupon patterns and "LaMode" fifty cents worth of the same as a premium for a yearly subscription. If you would like to procure any of these journals from your newsdealer do not take any substitute from him but apply direct to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co. 4 West 14th Street, New York.

Fifty days for Thirty Cents.

It will be an eight page, seven column sheet week days, and twelve, sixteen or more pages on Sunday. It will be published every day in the year and will be a first class newspaper in every respect. The Call has secured the exclusive morning telegraphic franchise of the United Press for St. Paul, an association which serves several hundred prominent daily papers, including every important daily in New York City. (with one exception), some twenty-one in number; every daily in Boston but one, the leading dailies in Philadelphia and so on. It will be sold at two cents or 40 cents per month without Sunday; 50 cents per month including Sunday. Seven issues by mail one year in advance, $4.00. Six issues by mail one year in advance, $3.00.

As an introductory price it will be sent by mail to all who subscribe prior to October 1st, 1894. FIFTY CONSECUTIVE DAYS FOR THIRTY CENTS. Enclose three dimes and forward your name to the Morning Call, St. Paul, Minn., and secure the new daily for fifty days. Generally it will be a first class newspaper, and politically Independent Democratic. By the term Independent it is intended to signify that while it will support general Democratic principles it will reserve the right to intelligently criticise all political parties with equal frankness. HIS OBJECTIONS

President Cleveland Tells Why He Could Not Sign the Tariff Bill.

ITS MANY INCONSISTENCIES.

Free Raw Materials the Foundation of All Logical Tariff Reform.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The president has sent the following letter to Representative Catchings of Mississippi, who consented to its publication in view of its public character and importance:

MY DEAR SIR—Since the conversation I had with you and Mr. Clark of Alabama a few days ago in regard to my action upon the tariff bill now before me, I have given the subject further and most serious consideration. The result is, I am more settled than ever in the determination to allow the bill to become a law without my signature.

When the formulation of legislation which it was hoped would embody Democratic ideas of tariff reform was lately entered upon by congress, nothing was further from my anticipation than a result which I could not promptly and authoritatively endorse.

Greatly Disappointed.

It is therefore with a feeling of the utmost disappointment that I submit to a denial of this privilege. I do not claim to be better than the masses of my party, nor do I wish to avoid any responsibility which, on account of passing this law, I ought to bear as a member of the Democratic organization, neither will I permit myself to be separated from my party to such an extent as might be implied by my veto of tariff legislation, which, though disappointing, is still capable of a Democratic effort. But there are provisions in this bill which are not in line with honest tariff reform, and to which which ought not to appear in tariff laws or laws of any kind. Besides, there were, as you and I well know, incidents accompanying the passing of the bill through congress, which made every sincere reformer unhappy, while influences surrounded it in its later stages and interfered with its final consideration, which ought not to be recognized or tolerated in Democratic tariff reform councils.

And yet, notwithstanding all its vicissitudes and all the bad treatment it received at the hands of pretended friends, it presents a vast improvement to existing conditions. It will certainly that now rest heavily upon the people. It is not only a harrier against the return of mad protection, but it furnishes advantage ground from which must be waged further aggressive operations against protected monopoly and governmental favoritism. I take my place in the rank and file of the Democratic party who believe in tariff reform, and who refuse to accept the results embodied in this bill as the close of the war, who are not blind to the fact that the livery of Democratic tariff reform has been stolen and worn in the service of Republican protection and will have marked the places where the

has blasted the councils of the brave in their hour of might. The trusts, and combinations—the communistic class of —whose machinations have prevented us from reaching the success we deserved, should not be forgotten or forgiven. We shall recover from our astonishment at their exhibition of power, and if then the question is forced upon us whether they shall submit to the free legislative will of the people's representatives, or shall dictate the laws which the people must obey, we will accept and settle that issue as one involving the integrity and Safety of American Institutions!

I love the principles of true Democracy because they are founded in justice and upon justice and fairness toward all interests. I am proud of my party organization because in its consecutively sturdy and persistent in the enforcement of its principles. Therefore, I do not despair of the efforts made by the house of representatives to supplement the bill already passed by further legislation, and to perfect and grafted upon it such modifications as will more nearly meet Democratic hopes and aspirations. I cannot be mistaken as to the necessity of

as the foundation of logical and sensible tariff reform. The extent to which this is recognized in the legislation already secured is one of its encouraging and redeeming features; but, it is necessary to recall that while free coal and iron ore have been denied, a letter of the secretary of the treasury discloses the fact that both might have been made free by the annual surrender of only about $700,000 of unnecessary revenue.

I am sure that there is a common basis of understanding the importance of free raw materials and of regarding them as only related to concessions to be made to our manufacturers. The truth is, their influence is so far reaching that if disregarded a complete and beneficient scheme of tariff reform cannot be successfully inaugurated.

In Tariff Legislation

When we give to our manufacturers free raw materials we unshackle American enterprise and ingenuity, and labor will open the doors of foreign markets to the reception of our wares and give opportunity for the continuous and remunerative employment of American labor. With materials cheapened by their

the cost of their product must be correspondingly cheapened. Thereupon justice and fairness to the consumer would demand that the manufacturers be obliged to submit to such a readjustment and modification of the tariff upon their finished goods as would secure to the people the benefit of the reduced cost of their manufacture and shield the consumer against the exactions of inordinate profits. It will thus be see that free raw materials and a just and fearless regulation and reduction of the tariff would carry to every humble home in the land the blessings of increased comfort and cheaper living.

Would Meet the Changed Conditions,

The millions of our countrymen who have fought bravely and well for tariff reform should be exhorted to continue the struggle boldly, challenging to open warfare and constantly guarding against treachery and half-heartedness in their camp.

Tariff reform will not be settled until it is honestly and fairly settled in the interest and to the benefit of a patient and long suffering people.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

GEORGE B. SHAW DEAD.

After Long Suffering the Eau Claire Congressman Passes Away.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Aug. 29.—Congressman George B. Shaw died at his home at 8:20 a. m.

Mr. Shaw was born in New York in 1844. He was educated in the public schools and afterward engaged in the lumber business. He was mayor of Eau Claire, Wis., in 1888 and 1889 and a delegate to the national convention at Chicago in 1884. He became supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of the world in 1890, and was elected to the Fifty-third congress as a Republican from the Seventh Wisconsin district.

The French colonies are exceedingly expensive to the home government, the outlay far exceeding both the limits and commercial gains resulting from their trade.

PUBLICATIONS

Of the Great Northern Railway, St. Paul, Minn., to

The General Passenger Office of the Great Northern Railway will be pleased to forward to applicants any or all of the publications named below, on receipt of the amount of postage named after each. It should be understood that these books, maps and pamphlets were prepared at considerable cost and are worth in each case many times the postage. They will prove of much interest to persons who contemplate a trip to any part of the Northwest, or who desire the information all intelligent people should possess concerning a section, unsurpassed, important and growing part of the United States. Several of these publications have been supplied in quantities to public libraries at the request of students and teachers, on account of the instructive and useful information they contain.

MAP AND FOLDER.—Send 2 cents for postage.

This publication contains complete time cards, a series of train route maps, a large map of the country, a table giving first and second-class passenger rates, and freight tariff on settlers' goods from St. Paul to all points on the line; a table showing distances from principal points by rail or stage; through car service and connections important baggage and ticket regulations, and much interesting descriptive matter. In short it is a handy volume of ready reference for passengers about local and through service on the Great Northern to all parts of the Northwest and Pacific Coast.

MAP FOLDER—Sent free.

This contains the regular time schedules; a large map of the country west of Chicago and St. Louis; baggage and ticket regulations; and other information of value to travelers.

ATLAS OF THE NORTH WEST.—Send 15 cents for postage.

Contains complete maps of the United States, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and Washington, showing postoffices to June 1, 1894, with every important railroad and topographical feature brought down to date; and printed in the highest style of the map maker's art. Interesting descriptive, historical and statistical information appears with each map.

LARGE WALL MAP.—Send 25 cents for postage.

This is a map of the country west of Chicago and St. Louis, mounted on rollers; 30x20 inches, complete in every particular from latest surveys; gives most detail of the Northwest, both above and below the International boundary line from the Great Lakes to Puget Sound; elegantly printed and useful, in every office and school; has been asked for by teachers in all parts of the Northwest and copies are now hanging in the public schools of many towns and cities.

VALLEY, PLAIN AND PEAK.—From Midland Lakes to Western Ocean. Send 10 cents for postage.

This attractive publication contains nearly 100 Northwestern views, singly and in groups, etched from photographs, ornamentally embellished, and accompanied by descriptive matter and characteristic initials beautifully, printed in colors, altogether forming one of the most elegant books of the kind ever issued. It is equal to art books which sell for a dollar or more and contains very much less general information and beauty.

DES-RIPTIVE PAMPHLETS OR BULLETINS. Send 2 cents postage for each

A series of illustrated publications on Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Washington. Treats of the location, history, climate, agricultural, pastoral, mineral and timberal resources and products of each of these important states.

HE GOT INTO THE DIET

A MEMBER OF THE LIARS' CLUB HEARD TISZA'S LAST ADDRESS.

He Made a Bold Play and Carried His Point, and His Conscience Only Bothered Him When He Saw That He Would Be Successful In the Scheme.

The party was in conversation over its beer of all shades and all degrees of excellence, and tales had been told in several languages and of diverse degrees of trustworthiness when the Hungarian pounced upon an opportunity—he had his glass empty first—to tell for the hundredth time of the beauties of his native Budapest. The baths, the Andrassy avenue, the park, the theaters, the bridge, the palaces, the music and the "incomparably beautiful women" had all been described, and Hungarian statesmen, from Kossuth to Kalnoky, landed when a story teller interrupted with:

"Budapest may be all that you claim for it, but I'll never forget an experience I had there when I fooled some of its bigwigs. It was only a few years ago, when I stopped there for a rest on my way from Paris by the Oriental express to Constantinople. I noticed an unusual excitement at the Hotel Hungaria, could see there were many strangers in rooms, and across the Danube, over the Schloss, floated the royal standard of Hungary as a sign that the king was there. You know the Hungarians never speak of Franz Josef as emperor, always as king.

"During the day I heard that the ministry would resign the next day, and then Premier Tisza would make his last address in parliament. Well, you can well imagine I wanted to be in at the death and set about to secure a ticket of admission to the diet hall. Those whom I asked simply laughed at me. Tickets were at a high premium, and 'some to whom I applied gave me a Hungarian look of withering contempt which made me only more anxious to get there.

"But the morrow came and I saw the chances for a peep at the show growing correspondingly less, when I suddenly felt myself possessed of an idea. I went to the house of parliament and after much loquiry learned that the librarian of the upper house, and he alone, could secure me what I succeeded in seeing him. He surprised, I said to him, 'that you have made no provision for the press at a time so important as this.' 'Press!' said he, 'Why, press tickets have been issued to all who are entitled to them, and if you have received none it's a mistake on straight.' He called a servant, said something in a jargon which I could not understand and made me a bow of dismissal. The man, who was dressed to go on in the chorus of the 'Beggar Student' or the 'Black Hussar,' beckoned me to follow him, led me to an inner room, where he left me with a desk, two chairs and my guilty conscience. I began to wish myself back at the hotel, with its good wine, good music and fine view on the Danube. Visions of police investigation and an exposure, with possibly a term in a Hungarian jail, rose before me, for you know I had no more to do with newspaper business than I had with African exploration. When a clerk entered and with many a flirt and flutter proceeded to make out my credentials for admission to the press legs.

"He was a funny little man, this clerk, who labored under the hallucination that he could speak English, and he was further afflicted with that mild form of insanity which manifests itself in the dyed mustache. He took my name and pedigree, asked me whence I came and how long I proposed to remain in the city, and I answered all with that promptness and strict truthfulness which one acquires by years of association with the members of this club.

"Finally he put the poser, 'What is the name of your paper?' I thought with right that all great papers must be represented and feared that if I mentioned one of them I would be discovered and lost; so, thinking of the motto of the club, 'God loves a cheerful liar,' I said without a moment's hesitation, 'The North Adams Transcript.' He didn't just remember the name and had to ask us to the spelling several times while making out the documents by means of which I was to secure an admission card, but if he had pressed me after I gave me that the bluff went I would have told him a circulation story which—well, which would not be in keeping with The Transcript's books.

"Well, I got into the press loge in time to hear Hungary's grand old man, Tisza, make the greatest speech of, his life. Of course I could not understand his Hungarian, perfect as it no doubt was, but the enthusiasm which he aroused seemed contagious, and once during his talk, when a great shout of approval filled the chamber, women waved their handkerchiefs and fans, and members of the opposition even looked pleased, I caught myself applauding, but I quickly recalled the fact that I was there as The Transcript representative and as such had no opinion.

"The pictures from that history when 'we of the press' sat was one I shall never forget. Every inch of room in the spectators' pens was occupied, every deputy's chair was taken, and on the floor the monotony of the black and white was broken by the picturesque costumes of the bishops, whose office entitles them to a seat in the house.

"After it was all over I went with my new companions of the press to a nearby restaurant, where we ate all sorts of things, all seasoned more or less with paprika, and drank tokay wine. I told my story, and The Transcript received its baptism of Hungarian fire—Kelimer ein gluss Dunkles bitte."—New York Tribune.

THE STAGE AND THE TARIFF.

Cleveland Times Put Actors on Their Uppers and Tax the Benefit Funds.

There is no class of people among our entire community upon whom is more quickly reflected a dull or a prosperous condition of business than the actor. There has been no business that more fully experienced the Cleveland panic of 1893-4 than did the theatrical profession. Managers have been disappointed. Many of the actors and actresses have been without work and in dire want and necessity.

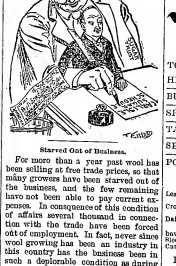
At the thirteenth annual meeting of the Actors' Fund association, held in the New York last June, President Palmer pointed out that "the terrible wave of business depression which has swept over our country has brought great misery and even to many members of the dramatic profession, and it has not only made our task in soliciting and collecting money very hard, but it has largely increased the volume of our work among the fund's beneficiaries, for, in addition to the ones of the sick, we have been obliged to take an active part in caring for those of our brethren and sisters who, though not disabled by sickness, were still helpless, lacking in most instances even the barest necessities of life."

In order to relieve the unfortunate actors and actresses who, owing to the Cleveland dull times, were unable to find remunerative employment, a special fund amounting to $9,010.55 was raised by subscriptions and by benefit performances given in various theaters in New York. The expenditure of this money was placed in the hands of a committee, which reported that they had given relief to 617 actors and actresses and had paid out $8,155.90. The report stated that relief was still being given to members of the theatrical profession who, though in bodily health, find themselves in most desperate straits until the coming of the new dramatic season, when it was hoped there would be an improvement in the general business of the country.

The growth of distress among actors and actresses was stated for 1892. In that year relief was afforded to 301 persons; in 1893 relief was afforded to 605 members of the profession, and this year the number has increased to 903. This long list of beneficiaries includes 703 actors and actresses of the dramatic, operatic and variety stage; 38 managers, business managers and agents; 16 stage managers, 10 ballet masters, 3 minstrels, 3 stage managers, 3 dramatists, 40 musicians, 3 magicians, 10 machinists, 21 museum performers, 3 scenic artists and 23 of all other classes.

The American actor and the American actress are not protected by the tariff directly; therefore, according to the free trade theory, their business should prosper without interruption and without regard to passing events around them. The result, however, which upsets the old and worsens free trade theory we have already shown. But it may be well to go further and point out the fact that where the dramatic profession is not protected it has been a particular victim to free trade, because foreign managers and foreign actors come to this country and make money out of the American people take that money out of the country. Yet they have been allowed to import their costumes and everything else pertaining to their productions free of duty, while American managers and actors were compelled to pay duty on everything that they imported from abroad.

Without the benefit of this concession it would not pay many foreign managers to bring whole companies to this country to take the bread and butter out of the mouths of American actors, who can do equally well, if not a good deal better, and the profits made by the vampires of the American managers would be expended or invested in our own country instead of being carried off to Europe to increase our outflow of American gold.



Starved Out of Business.

For more than a year past wool has been selling at free trade prices, so that many growers have been starved out of the business, and the few remaining have not been able to pay current expenses. In consequence of this condition of affairs several thousand in connection with the trade have been forced out of employment. In fact, never since wool growing has been an industry in this country has the business been in such a deplorable condition as during the past 12 months. The Bank of Tempe, A. T., has just closed its doors on account of the ruin of some of its stockholders through the shrinkage in the price of wool and sheep.—Oakland (Cal.) Saturday Globe-Review.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. But what is no exception, years, much of this time very seriously. For five years I was treated by physicians continuously. I was in bed most of the time. Was obliged to take all kinds of medicine. A physician of my friends that I could get relief. Began to use it, and in a few weeks my limbs were fairly swollen, and I was in serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, of which I had never heard. Procured a bottle of Miles' New Heart Cure, and in less than a week I noticed a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. Within three weeks I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that the flesh seemed paralyzed. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure I was walking half of some distance, and I was much better than I did my own work. On my recommendation, two others are using the valuable remedy. Mrs. Morgan, 560 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, is sold by druggists on a positive guarantee or sent by Dr. Miles' Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

A white man was brought before Judge Christianson, last Saturday, charged with selling liquor to Indians. The evidence failed to convict him but it did convict one of the witnesses, an Indian with an unpronounceable name, a four two long and he was bound over to the United States grand jury at the September term and sent to Fergus Falls to be kept in jail—name and all, until the jury can get at the case.

Ole Bang, from the town of Sandsville, reports that he has his threshing all finished and finds a yield of 11,000 bushels of wheat and 3,000 of oats and barley. Ole is a good deal of a stock man also and has some fine stock upon his farm which enables his land to make better returns. He says that he had a patch of land that yielded 32 bushels of wheat per acre, and he thinks, with the same treatment every acre of his land would do the same thing.

Miss Ida White died at the residence of her father, Charles White, at Angus on Saturday of last week. Miss White was taken with inflammatory rheumatism something like four weeks ago which developed into rheumatic fever which was followed by meningetis. Her parents formerly lived on the Darling farm near this city. She was about 22 years old and leaves a many warm friends in this city to mourn her early death. The remains were taken to Warren for interment on Sunday afternoon.

Speaking of crops and the idea of depending on wheat alone, Mr. Thomas Johnstone said to our reporter, "I notice that farmers are going out of wheat, gradually, being actually forced out in some cases but I know of lots who foresaw this state of things long since and prepared for it. For instance did you ever visit the farm of Wm. Fleming near Mallory? Eh, most but there is the farm for your money? such buildings, and such shorthorns, and fine horses, and hogs, as you don't often see in a day's travel short of the old country. He has been something of a hog-raiser before this but he is going into it as a business this year. Has putting up a large hog-house, with a basement, of solid brick and will have conveniences for handling a long ways over a hundred porkers every year. He is never complaining of "hard times" but then for years he has not depended on wheat, and some, it is true but he also had stock and oats and barley and timothy seed and all that sort of thing. I believe that his example should be copied to advantage by the average farmer of Polk county."

A horse belonging to J. Lundgren, attached to a runabout, ran away on Sunday breaking the cart and cutting itself up so severely that Dr. Legueo had to be called to fix the animal up. No other damage done.

Misses Tillie and Ollie Fortier returned on Saturday evening from a splendid visit on the western coast, visiting many points in the states of Washington and California including a nice visit with the Copelands in Seattle.

E. D. Childs went down to St. Paul last week to procure help in threshing and brought back 30 men with him. They hired out for $1.25 per day and board. The Northern Pacific railroad brought them to St. Paul free of charge. Men have been demanding $2.00 per day.

Mat. Cornelius, who has been deputy county auditor for, to these many years, has resigned his position and will take a much needed rest. Mat has made many friends during the time he has been in office who will unite with the JOURNAL in best wishes for his future success in whatever he shall undertake.

Speaking of the Crookston Times charge that governor Nelson, in his Argyle speech attempted to appeal to the prejudice of the Norwegians in order to make votes, the Warren Register very pointedly remarks: "For straight out, unmitigated and inexcusable falsehood this takes the cake. We were present and heard every word of Nelson's speech, and in no manner or form did he appeal to the Norwegians in his audiance to vote for him because he was a countryman," or on any other grounds; and if the editor of the Times "expects to catch the Scandinavian vote" in this section by that kind of chaff he has misjudged them. We are not the authorized champion of Governor Nelson in this or any other case, but where the misrepresentation is so glaring and its animus so apparent as in this matter, and having personal knowledge of its falsity, we deem it our duty to characterize the statement as it deserves."

Haller's Little German Pills are the superior of many and excelled by none. They are anti-griping and do not nauseate. Their use eliminates the liver and corrects the Bilious condition of the stomach. They are sugar-coated, small in size, and are the mildest and most effective cathartic that can be used. Try them once and you will never want to use any other. Sold by F. L. Durand.

Duluth News Tribune: Populist Stanley, a farmer at Pendleton, Ind., is going to see Congressman Byrnm for the difference between 200 bushels of wheat at 50 cents and $1.25 per bushel. The Louisville Times thinks that paid in populist fiat money, it would be a distinction without a difference. "Oh, Stanley, oh!"

A horse belonging to C. T. Barnaus, who lives near Marin station had one of its forward legs broken and Dr. M. Legueo was called on Sunday to set it, which he did and after strapping the animal up in such a way as to prevent him from wrenching the broken member and getting it out of whack again left him doing nicely.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"A year ago I was taken with inflammatory rheumatism and was laid up with it for about three months. I had pain in my limbs, arms, chest and in fact nearly every every part of my body ached, and I looked like a living skeleton, when I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, but I experienced relief with the first bottle. I have taken about four bottles and have not felt the rheumatism since."— Bruce F. Harris, Crookston, Minn.

Many are predicting a rainy fall and an early freeze-up on account of the severe drouth; they also predict a very cold severe winter for the same reason. We can't see why this should necessarily follow, for if you remember we have had at least two cold wet summers followed by extremely cold winters and it is now time in the natural order of things that we have an open winter. This predicting, so far anead is, however a very "uncertain" business.

Said a prominent Polk county farmer to a JOURNAL reporter on Monday: "I am more than surprised with my oats this fall. The straw was so short that I thought it was not going to get many oats. I took two small jags to a neighbors to thresh last Saturday and I took home 63 bushels of the best oats I ever raised—great plump kernels weighing over 35 lbs to the stricken bushel. I find that I am going to be agreeably fooled on my out crop and my neighbors are all talking the same way."

RESIDENCE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I have forty desirable lots in Jerome's addition, which I offer for sale at reasonable prices and on terms to suit purchasers. These lots have 25 and 50 feet frontage, and are situated on high land, where good dry cellars can be got, and an abundance of pure water can be procured at a depth of from 14 to 25 feet. Jerome's addition is the healthiest and pleasantest portion of the city. Not a single case of typhoid fever has ever been reported there, and this is no doubt owing to the good water found everywhere on that addition. For further particulars regarding lots, prices, terms, etc., require of or address M. R. Brown, Crookston, Minn. [19-25]

Edward Peterson arrived home with his bride on Sunday morning. A reception was given them in the evening, where several elegant presents attested the appreciation of their friends. The JOURNAL adds its blessing.

The atmosphere on Monday evening was so filled with smoke that it was almost impossible to see a rod ahead if one was driving on the prairie. It looked as though the prairie might be on fire every where — but it was not.

Barley bids fair to be the boss seller this fall. By all appearances it will not go below 30 cents and may be higher than that. Lots of barley was sown last spring but on account of drouth the crop is light. What there is of it however has been secured without rain to discolor it, so it will ought to grade well making it the money crop this fall no doubt and all-edged next spring.

Talking about his crops, uncle Frank Robar informed a JOURNAL reporter that his wheat was better than he expected it would be, while his barley was not as good. Said he had one piece that is too green to cut, and one piece was so full of pussygrass that he cut the whole business together, grass and barley for feed, which so reduces his average that he will not have half what he planned for. His oats are good and very, though he has one piece so slow in maturing that he is afraid that it will be caught by the frost before it ripens, being rank and green yet.

BILLOWS OF FLAME.

Northern Minnesota Is Visited by the Most Terrible Calamity in Its History.

FIVE TOWNS IN ASHES.

Loss of Life Estimated at Five Hundred and the Damage to Property Placed at $500,000.

THE SURVIVORS DESTITUTE.

A Relief Committee Is Formed to Give Aid to the Sufferers—Heart-Rending Scenes.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 3.—Over 300 people dead, five towns blotted from the face of the earth, and over $2,000,000 worth of property destroyed, is the record of forest fires between noon and midnight Saturday in the counties of Pine, Mille Lacs and Chisago.

Swept Town After Town.

After destroying Hinckley, a place of 1,100 inhabitants, Sandstone, a place of 400 people, and Mission Creek. The fire then licked up Willow River, a place of 600 inhabitants, and other places to the north.

It was about 4 p. m. Saturday when the flames reached Hinckley. The people became panic stricken. Many of them rushed to the river, where some were quickly drowned by people piling upon them. Others plunged under the water, as the flames darted down in great red tongues and hissed in their faces, singing their hair. Some of these escaped.

Carried Away Frightened People.

A train on the Eastern Minnesota road left Hinckley about the time the fire reached there. The rushing of the people after the train caused the conductor to run back to the station. About 400 people crowded into the cars, all they would hold, and were taken away for safety. Neither river nor lake stopped the course of the flames as they swept onward in a devouring cloud to destroy the other towns and settlements. It will probably never be known how many Perished in the Holocaust,

as it is not known what people were in the woods getting ready for winter lumbering work. There were at midnight 250 dead in the graveyard at Hinckley, and others are being brought in by rescuing parties. The injured are constantly turning up. There were at least 3,000 people in the burned district, and it is probable that the dead and injured will run up to 400 or 500.

The damage to property will exceed $500,000.

The First Relief Party.

The first relief party went to Hinckley from Pine City, starting about 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Fire was raging everywhere along the track, and the train was obliged to proceed slowly.

The sight as Hinckley was approached was appalling in the extreme. On all sides could be seen the dead and charred bodies of horses, cattle, deer, wolves and other animals, and human corpses were almost as plentiful. The men on the front handcar, James Hurley, had to stop the cars every little while to lift a human body from the track.

In many places whole families were found, either burned or smothered to death. Some were found with their faces buried in the gravel of the roadbed, having fallen as they were running. Others again were in a praying position, and were charred beyond recognition.

BRAVE DULUTH ENGINEER

James Root Ran His Train Through Walls of Flame, to Save 200 People.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 3.—The limited passenger train from Duluth, bound for St. Paul, was caught in the fire near Hinckley Saturday afternoon and destroyed.

Two hundred and fifty passengers were saved from horrible death by the bravery of Engineer James Root and his fireman, John McGowan, who remained at their posts and sent the doomed train flying through walls of flame until a swamp or lake was reached, where the passengers could find refuge.

The ill-fated train left Duluth at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. All the way down the smoke was so heavy that one could not see a hundred yards away. Daylight was shut out and the train proceeded slowly.

People Became Weak From Fright.

Ten miles south of Carlton the train was in darkness. The coaches were filled with smoke, and breathing became difficult. There was no relief from it, and the men one by one grew frightened and weak. The passengers were gasping for breath, and the trainmen, realizing how serious the situation had become, passed through the coaches imploring all to keep cool and offering all the encouragement they could.

It soon became apparent to all that they had little show for their lives. The children began to cry and cling wildly to their mothers. The mothers sank to the floors of the coaches and offered up fervent prayers for deliverance from the flames.

Rushing Into the Flames.

The train was within a mile and a half of Hinckley when flagged by people from town. The fire was then advancing with railroad speed towards the train. At first Engineer Root thought of putting on all speed and rushing through the city, but an instant of reason caused him to abandon the idea. The fire was coming with the speed of the wind, and such an effort would be worse than madness. The roar of the fire became more distinct, as the train crew hurried all the people on board and Engineer Root sent the train spinning back over the track at a rapid rate.

The fire now became discernible. It was coming like a whirlwind and Root could see that it was going faster than the train.

He increased the speed of the locomotive. It was no use. The fire had caught and surrounded the train.

But Engineer Root did not hesitate. He held the throttle open and sent the train faster to the north, hoping to reach Skunk Lake before the cars and their loads of human beings burned. And he succeeded with the help of Fireman McGowan, who poured coal after coal of water from the tank over himself and the engineer, to keep their bodies from roasting.

Relief in the Swamp.

At last the train reached Skunk lake, and the order was hastily passed through the coaches to abandon the train and fly to the swamp close by. The train was on fire from the tender to the last coach. The passengers fled to the swamps, to await death or relief.

After he had saved so many people from being roasted alive, Engineer Root sank down in the mud and water, asking for no attention, although his hands, feet, face, head and arms were badly burned and his lungs were almost blistered by the fiery blast that he had breathed so long. The entire train crew displayed heroic bravery all through the fearful ordeal.

One of the sad circumstances was the fate of Conductor Jerry Sullivan, of the limited, who, when the train reached Skunk lake, did not stop at the swamp, but ran ahead on the track for the nearest telegraph station to telegraph for help. The excitement and confusion through which he had passed had unhinged his mind, and hours afterwards he was found wandering aimlessly about in a dazed condition.

STILL DESTROYING.

Flames Raging Over a Territory Fully Twelve Miles Square.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 4.—At Pine-town, three miles east of Pine City, south of the Snake river and west of the St. Croix, a fearful fire is blazing and sweeping everything before it. In the afternoon this fire was at least 12 miles square, and as the wind has gone down considerable here, it is hoped its course will be checked. There are fires north of Snake river, also in a heavy timber section, which is sparsely settled.

As for the loss of property, it is impossible to make even an approximation, but it certainly runs up in the millions. $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 worth of property between Hinckley and Duluth being reduced to ashes and cinders.

WISCONSIN TOWNS BURNED

Fully a Hundred Dead Between Chippewa Falls and Superior.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Sept. 4.—Forest fires have completely devastated the country between this city and Superior, a distance of 140 miles. Telegraph wires are down and railroad tracks destroyed, making it impossible to secure accurate information from the scene of destruction. From the meager reports that have been received, however, it is believed that the loss of life in Upper Wisconsin cannot be less than 100.

WASHBURN WAS NOT DESTROYED!

Heroic Efforts Save the Town From Destruction.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 3.—As a result of the forest fires Saturday and Sunday $1,000,000 can be added to the amount of loss occasioned this season. It is doubtful if that will cover the entire loss, when the damage to standing pine and logs is estimated.

Washburn had a narrow escape from total destruction. It was only by the most heroic efforts that it was saved from the flames. It still stands in a precarious condition with smouldering fires all around it.

THE HORROR GROWS

Death List at Hinckley and Surrounding Towns on the Increase.

WILL REACH FOUR HUNDRED.

Nothing Accurate Known Until a Thorough Search Is Made.

DULUTH, Sept. 4.—The number of dead in the great fire is more than 300. It is probable that the real figure is nearer 400. Of these over 200 are at Hinckley. Out of all this number there are yet but 32 who can certainly be identified.

At Pokegama the list numbers 50 and at Sandstone 50. Undoubtedly a large number living on farms and in out-of-the-way places perished, and their bodies will be found later.

Impossible to Say How Many Are Dead.

Every hour fresh news increases the estimates of losses of life. Many of those who have returned say it is an utter impossibility to give any guess as to the total number of deaths, nor will there be any accurate statement until parties of searchers are sent out from the railroads at intervals of every mile or two and a thorough patrol of the burned district made.

Before the fire struck the doomed settlements there was a mighty wind, chimneys being blown down, barns toppled over and hay stacks leveled. It blew at the rate of 60 miles an hour. The fire, went onward with the leaps of a demon. Stumps, logs and buildings, thousands of feet from the nearest flames or sparks, burst into fire, as if the very air were inflammable gas.

Fanned by This Fearful Gale,

In a burning district fully 300 miles long the fire licked up all the vegetable matter in the soil itself, and there is now nothing left of prosperous farms but burned and broken rock covered by a few inches of ashes.

HELPING DESTITUTE PEOPLE

Work of Relief in the Fire Swept Region Now Well Under Way.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 3.—The reaction has come at Hinckley. The excitement which has buoyed up so many of the survivors even in the midst of the fast that so many relatives and friends had perished in the fiery flood has passed away and dull, lethargic grief has taken its place. The gaping wounds in the city are there and there are several hundred of them —stand about the street corners in little knots and discuss the incidents of the catastrophe which struck the town.

Relief Committee at Work.

The courthouse, the schoolhouse and many a private home was thrown open. Every blanket in town was called into service. The women and children were given the better quarters, and the men stretched out in rows on the floors of the two public buildings named. Arrangements for the relief of the destitute further up the line, where hundreds of men, women and children are not only homeless, but absolutely without a scrap of food, or bedding or extra clothing, were started promptly.

Fortunately Monday was cool and cloudy, and grateful showers fell at intervals during the night, which refreshed the remains of the dead, however, were in such a horribly blistered and burned condition that disposition could not wait on. Undertakers advised that the bodies be put under mother earth as rapidly as possible.

All Attempts at Identification Futile.

From these bodies by the track the officials of the Duluth road had removed and carefully preserved every trinket and article of jewelry, and even shoes and scraps of clothing, placing those from each body in a receptacle numbered identically with the casket, so that possibly when the refugees return they may recognize them and know whether their friends have been interred.

Out in the little cemetery a mile east of town, was a scene which

Words are Powerless to Describe.

At last the little spot would be as dreary as could well be imagined. It is on top of a rough sandy knoll, where nature is seen at her worst, and absolutely no attempt toward artificial embellishment has ever been made. There were only a few little sandy mounded mounds before. Now with the blackened, fire scarred stumps and fallen trunks of trees all about, it presented an appearance of desolation hard to describe. But in the center of the open was the crowning horror.

Burned, Bloated Bodies.

In an indiscriminate heap lay more than ninety corpses, men, women and little children. Some burned crisp, others only browned by the heat and some with a fragment of clothing larger than a man's hand to conceal their awful nakedness. Some were mere trunks, the extremities having been burned off. Some were bloated until the abdomen had been cracked open and intestines were protruding. Skulls were burned open and brains escaping; all were twisted and cramped in agony of death that had overtaken them.

BARRON COUNTY SUFFERS.

Barronette Destroyed and Three Hundred Families Homeless.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 3.—Barronette is completely wiped off the earth and one lone building is left of a city of 700. One man was burned to death. The total loss will reach a quarter of a million. Shell Lake had 52 dwellings burned with a total loss of $76,000. These hundred and sixty people are homeless and many without a dollar of insurance.

Fires are now under control in that vicinity.

RAIN IN WISCONSIN.

The Anxiety Felt for the Northern Part of the State Somewhat Eased.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 4.—The anxiety felt at Ashland for the safety of Northern Wisconsin is somewhat eased by reports of rain from nearly every city where the fires had been worst. Queries sent out from Ashland have brought many responses regarding the rain, which has to a great extent checked the flames.

No Thank You.

The members of the Congregational church and society held a meeting at 10:30 on Sunday to consider a proposition to surrender the church property to the Presbyterians and join that church. After a thorough discussion of the matter it was decided to decline the proposition and go ahead and take steps looking to obtaining a regular pulpit supply at an early day. It was voted to extend a call to the Rev. Mr. Opdyke, in accordance with the suggestion of Rev. J. A. Morley and it is expected that the Rev. gentleman will occupy the pulpit next Sabbath. A while since some of the members of this church conceived the idea of consulting with the authorities of the Presbyterian church to see if arrangements could not be effected that would render permissible the hiring of a pastor conjointly. A committee was appointed by both churches and after several conferences it resulted in the above proposition from the Presbyterian church.

Avoid Prairie Fires.

In view of the fact that everything is getting so dry everybody should be extra careful in regard to setting fires and the habit of burning straw in the grain in the Red River City—and there are several hundred of them —stand about the street corners in little knots and discuss the incidents of the catastrophe which struck the town.

Relief Committee at Work.

The courthouse, the schoolhouse and many a private home was thrown open. Every blanket in town was called into service. The women and children were given the better quarters, and the men stretched out in rows on the floors of the two public buildings named. Arrangements for the relief of the destitute further up the line, where hundreds of men, women and children are not only homeless, but absolutely without a scrap of food, or bedding or extra clothing, were started promptly.

Fortunately Monday was cool and cloudy, and grateful showers fell at intervals during the night, which refreshed the remains of the dead, however, were in such a horribly blistered and burned condition that disposition could not wait on. Undertakers advised that the bodies be put under mother earth as rapidly as possible.

All Attempts at Identification Futile.

From these bodies by the track the officials of the Duluth road had removed and carefully preserved every trinket and article of jewelry, and even shoes and scraps of clothing, placing those from each body in a receptacle numbered identically with the casket, so that possibly when the refugees return they may recognize them and know whether their friends have been interred.

Out in the little cemetery a mile east of town, was a scene which

Words are Powerless to Describe.

At last the little spot would be as dreary as could well be imagined. It is on top of a rough sandy knoll, where nature is seen at her worst, and absolutely no attempt toward artificial embellishment has ever been made. There were only a few little sandy mounded mounds before. Now with the blackened, fire scarred stumps and fallen trunks of trees all about, it presented an appearance of desolation hard to describe. But in the center of the open was the crowning horror.

Burned, Bloated Bodies.

Some Good Advice to Voters from Captian M. R. Brown.

Just Vote the Ticket Straight From Governor Nelson Down.

If Pops or Dems Say "Trade" Just Meet 'Em With a Frown.

Capt. M. R. Brown: "I am pleased to note the stand the republican county central committe took on the question of fusion with the democrats on county ticket. I am told, however, that there is a disposition among certain candidates for county offices to swap about in such a way as to practically leave but one ticket in the field. If there is anything in this our committee should not for a moment tolerate it and just as soon as a candidate on the republican ticket resigns, the committee should at once fill his place. In other words our flag should be kept to the front of the battle—when one man falls, promptly put another man in his place to carry the colors. I am told that there is a rumor afloat to the effect that certain republicans are secretly trying to knife Gov. Nelson on the ground that the governor did all that he could to secure the nomination of Steenerson. I do not believe there is any thing in this story for the congressional convention for the congressional convention has been buried all personal differences and it most certainly would not be healthy for any republican, if he cares a rye-straw for his political future to fight the ticket or any part of it. The defeat of Governor Nelson, if it could be accomplished, would be a calamity to this part of the state from the fact, (if for no other reason) that the governor has now got the drainage matter well in hand and can push it to a successful issue better than any new man could, be he never so well meaning. Governor Nelson deserves the vote, not only of every farmer in this drainage district, but every man for the great interest he has taken in this matter all through. For his influence not only in getting the bill through but for his arduous labors in the west ever since. It has already been of incalculable benefit to this country and will be more so when carried out as it is being done. The republican who would work against Governor Nelson this fall would be a traitor not only to his party but also to the best interests of the part of the country affected by the drainage system. Every man in this district, regardless of party ties who cares a rye-straw for his own financial interests should vote for Nelson this fall. There is also another side of this question for farmers especially to consider. Gov. Nelson was a farmer's boy, raised upon a farm, lived upon and personally superintended the management of a farm ever since he reached man's estate and thus has a practical knowledge of the vicissitudes of farm life that enables him to be in perfect sympathy with the farmers and to fully understand their needs. Governor Nelson and I when boys together, hauled wheat 50 or 60 miles to Milwaukee, camping out because the price of wheat in those days did not permit the farmer to indulge in the luxuries of hotel life to any great extent. By dint of industry and frugality he obtained an education which fitted him for the life of usefulness he has lived making him a thoroughly practical man. No better man for the agricultural interests of the state ever sat in the gubernational chair.

Pay or Go to Jail.

Fourth Estate: The question of how to collect subscriptions has been discussed by nearly all country publishers. A western paper says that "a newspaper in Illinois recently brought suit against forty-three men who would not pay their subscriptions, and obtained judgment in each case for the amount of the claim. Of these, twenty-eight made affidavit that they owed no more than the law allowed them, thus preventing attachments. Then under the decision of the supreme court they were arrested for petit larceny and bound over in the sum of $200 each. All but six gave the bonds. The postal laws make it petit larceny to take a paper and refuse to pay for it."

Notice To Shippers.

Crookston, Minn., August 20th, 1894. The elevator companies upon the Northern Pacific line and available terminal connections at Duluth, Superior and Minneapolis have recently reduced their handling charges to the following basis:—Receiving, elevating, and discharging, including fifteen days free storage, one half cent per bushel. Storage for each succeeding thirty days or part thereof, one half cent per bushel. These will be as charges for cleaning and blowing any kind of grain except flax. The elevator capacity available to shippers via the Northern Pacific Railroad, at the above rates, is upwards of 22,000,000 bushels. The terms are as favorable in all respects as can be secured via any other line.

C. A. SHARBY, Crookston.
Minnesota State Fair.

Great Northern Railway will sell tickets for this occasion, at Hamline (St. Paul) Sept. 10 to 15, 1894, at one fare for the round trip, plus fifty cents for admission to the Fair Grounds. Dates of sale, Sept. 8th to 15th inclusive; final return limit, Sept. 17. For territorial limitation, tickets and full information, apply to J. H. Griffin, agent at Crookston. [20-22]

THE Minneapolis Times has been wonderfully improved of late for some reason or other. All it lacks now is to change to republican in politics to be near perfection as the average paper attributes to it this world.

THE republicans of the Sixteenth senatorial district have nominated C. C. Whitney, of the Marshall News Messenger, as their candidate for the state senate. No better man for the position could be found, and no doubt he will be elected.

THE prospects are that business this fall will be pretty fair. The tariff question being settled people will now know how to figure and the prevailing conditions for the past 18 months have had a tendency to create a demand for certain lines of goods.

THE suggestions of the JOURNAL some time ago in regard to the publishing of the minutes of the school board have been acted upon, and for ...cy of the ...ners have been ...ep in the ...oples will ...ir ...attempts ...ourks try- ...ling to toady to the Grand Army for its vote. Why, bless your life Harrison Jr., Gov. Nelson don't have to do that. He is one of the boys who wore the blue himself, and he already has the love and respect of every Grand Army man in the state who know him for a true and brave comrade.

THE wild-cat stories that had been floating about concerning fusion between the republican and the democrats on the county ticket were dispelled when the two committees met on Wednesday of last week and not a word was said about fusion. This was exactly as it should be and what the JOURNAL has predicted all along. Even if there was a desire to fuse it would be the height of folly to do so under the circumstances and would bring sure defeat as it would deserve to. Let every party stand before the people on its merits.

THE Morning Call, H. P. Hall's new St. Paul daily made its appearance promptly on Sept. 1st. Typographically and mechanically it is a beaut but politically—it is democratic. Its news service seems to be out of sight and as it claims to have almost unlimited backing it ought to be able to live awhile. Hall is a good newspaper man and if he was only on the right side of the fence politically he would, no doubt have a "Call" to live a long and useful life, but with democracy going out of fashion it is very problematical.

AMERICAN Economist: "When the country was prosperous under Protection in 1892, the consumption of wheat was 5.91 bushels for every one of our population. A year later, during the Democratic hard times, the consumption of wheat fell to 4.85 bushels for each person, a decrease of 1.06 bushels per capita, or a total decrease of 71,500,000 bushels. This falling of in the demand for wheat shows the farmers why wheat was cheaper, the people not being able even to buy as much bread when the fear of Free Trade was hanging over them as when they weren't work and prosperous under Protection."

IF Donnelly can't be head and shoulders and in fact the whole carcass of a movement he always gets disgruntled and tries to kick it over. When the Farmers Alliance got too bulky to be handled by him he turned loose upon it and slew it. When Dr. Fish, who had been Donnelly's strongest backer and truest friend got independent enough to express an idea on his own hook Donnelly turned loose upon him and drove him out of the state. Donnelly never did admire Owen—always was a good bit jealous of him, and now he has made up his mind that the proper thing to do is to kill Owen off. Donnelly has slopped over as usual.

THE pops and the cuckoo democrats make a great parade of the fact that S. M. Owen is, personally, an honest man. Granted; but the fact remains that he stands for election as governor of this state on a platform that denounces the U. S. government for substituting the laws and putting down insurrection.

THE endorsement by the democrats of the populist candidate for judge seems to render the re-election of Judge L. W. Collins problematical. Judge Collins is one of the oldest, one of the most conscientious judges that ever sat upon the supreme bench in the state and he should be returned by all means. There is hardly a farmer in the state of Minnesota who knows Judge Collins personally who will not vote for him from choice of party affiliations. The interest that he has taken in the farmers cause in the grain matter shows him to be a true friend to them and entitled to their votes and he will get them if the farmers of the state know when they are well off.

REPS. Stevens, of the Warren Register is disgusted with the express companies and thus unbosoms himself:

"We received a book from Chicago last week by express. It weighed 15 pounds, and we paid $1.50 charges to the express companies for "fetching" it to Warren—10 cents per pound. How's that for high? Such extravagance unites are almost enough to make a man join in the howl against the "soulless corporations." Express companies and telegraph companies ought to be placed on the same footing as railroads by the statutes, and their rates reduced and regulated in the same manner by the Interstate Railroad Commissioners and the state boards, and these boards given judicial and mandatory powers, so they can enforce their orders. If this be "paternalism," make the most of it. "Them's our sentiments," sapeage."

FROM the following comments in the Wadena Journal it would appear that the leading democratic papers are not advocating fusion: The Journal says:

"The Brainerd Journal is both frank and fair in its notice of Governor Nelson's great speech at Argyle on the 28th of July. The Journal, though democratic, is willing to admit the damaging results which would follow a populist victory, and does not care to contribute to such a result. It also recognizes the soundness of the Governor's argument: 'It is full of information and forth right exhumation of the existing conditions in this country, and completely upsets the whole populistic theory, and if there was any doubt before as to whether the democrats and populists would fuse on the state ticket, that doubt is now removed. There will be no fusion on the state ticket. The democrats will nominate a straight democratic state ticket and vote for it; if they can not elect it, they will prefer to see the republican ticket elected rather than the populistic. The democratic party can not afford to fuse with candidates pledged to the support of nearly all the exploded vagaries of the last three thousand years regarding finance and government. It is time for the thinking conservative people of this state to quit dallying with such nonsense. It is no longer an amusement, it has become a danger."

A Growing Contest.

The State Agricultural Society has distributed one hundred thousand cards announcing that it will give $25 in prizes to the persons who come the nearest to naming the largest number of tickets that will be taken in at the gates on any one day of the fair, which is to be held on the grounds of the society, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, Sept. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15. To the person who comes the nearest $10 will be given, to the second nearest, $6, to the third, $4, to the fourth, $3, and the fifth, $2. If two or more persons name the same number, and that number is entitled to a prize, the money will be divided pro rata. The largest number for one day in 1890 was 17,425, for 1890, 16,138; for 1891, 19,808, and for 1892, 25,271. These guesses must all be in by September 1st. Secretary Cross, who can be addressed at the fair grounds, is already being deluged with estimates upon the biggest day's attendance from every part of the state.

Cheap Rates to St. Paul.

On account of the Democratic State convention the Great Northern Railway Company will sell round trip tickets to St. Paul at $11.70. These tickets will be sold only for September 4th and 5th, good to return until September 7th, 1894.

The New Photographers

Muri & Collins, held their grand opening at Chubb's old gallery on Saturday. In accordance with their offer, previously made, the children swarmed their rooms all day and they made over 100 negatives. Monday was ladies' day and again their studio was crowded from early dawn till close of day resulting in many handsome pictures. Tuesday was the first day that they intended to take pictures on their own account and again the rooms were crowded all day and they were kept busy attending to their customers. Muri & Collins have thoroughly overhauled every room and have made many notable changes adding materially to the beauty and convenience of the establishment. They are both first class artists thoroughly posted on all the late improved methods in photography, and abundantly able to do as good work as can be obtained in any city in the United States, having all of the modern improvements to facilitate their work. They are preparing a cabinet of samples for their street display which will be ready for exhibition in from ten days to two weeks, meantime they cordially invite all JOURNAL readers to give them a call. Remember the place Chubb's old stand on Broadway.

Going to Buy a Watch?

If so, buy one that cannot be stolen. The only thief-proof Watches are those with Non-pull-out BOWS.

Here's the Idea: The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and the bow screws through firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

To be sure of getting a Non-pull-out, see that the case is stamped with this trade mark. It cannot be had with any other kind.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

A better tone to the wheat market is observable this week.

Mrs. H. C. Jennings has been having her millinery shop nicely re-papered.

Engineer Will Davis, of the Soo road, was in the city this week visiting his father, E. C. Davis, and all his old-time friends.

Miss E. Veronneau left for Chicago on Wednesday evening for her fall supply of millinery. She will return in about 10 days when she will have something of interest to our lady readers to say.

Geo. Fontaine returned on Wednesday morning from a trip to New York city where he has been to purchase goods for Fontaine & Anglim's dry goods department. Look out for an announcement later.

A note from the Rev. Lee. W. Squier, received on Wednesday morning gives us the welcome intelligence that his fever is broken, that he is on the mend and if no relapse occurs he expects to occupy his pulpit again on Sunday morning.

About 10:40 on Tuesday night a large hanging lamp in Lynne & Berg's store fell to the floor igniting the oil which instantly spread in every direction. The boys got a hustle on themselves, and threw the lamp out in the street and somebody skipped up and rang the bell. Before the best hose cart reached the scene however the blaze was all out—and half of the show-cases and goods. It was a close call.

Martin Swanson, who with Peter Wernanger, started up a new threshing machine last week, reports that wheat has turned out surprisingly well considering the short straw. It is running from 10 to 12 bushels per acre and the finest wheat, he says, that he ever saw anywhere. He says that oats and barley also are turning out far better than he expected. On Friday one of the men got an overcoat in the cylinder taking several teeth out of the concave which delayed them a bit.

Henry Rondeau, a young man about 21 years old, died at the hospital on Saturday afternoon of a complication of diseases. For some time he has eked out a precarious existence doing odd jobs about town as opportunity presented them and lately had been living almost anyhow, sleeping in basements which kind of life seriously affected his health. A short time ago he was one day found wandering about the streets in a delirium of fever and was taken to the hospital where death soon put an end to his sufferings and his earthly career.

A. N. Hixson got into a bit of an argument with one of his threshmen last Friday by which A. N. got the worst of the deal. He attempted to ride the animal but the treacherous thing did not feel inclined to humor the idea so tired A. N., who again made the attempt and when he had fairly got astride, the animal laid down and rolled over him breathing a sigh for A. N. Even then he was bound to conquer the stubborn animal and had some of his men assist him to remount, but nature would not have it so and Hixson fainted and was taken to the house and put on the dry dock for repairs.

On Tuesday afternoon Wm. Hooper started for home with a load of feed and chanced to think of something he needed in a store. Leaving his coat on the wagon seat he went in the store, and no sooner was he out of sight before a sneak thief, who had been watching him, stole the coat and started west on Second street toward the river. Officer Bang, who chanced to see the transaction, started in hot haste but the thief managed in some way to elude him and hide himself. In about an hour officer Bang met his man and promptly ran him in. The coat however had not been recovered at last accounts.

INCENDIARISM AT WASHBURN.

They Add to the Terror of the Situation There.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 5.—The smoke and dirt begrimed settlers of the forest have been straggling into Ashland all the forenoon with tales of losses of homes and everything on their farms. They are taken into the homes of the people here and everything possible is done for their comfort and relief.

To add to the excitement at Washburn incendiaries got out and commenced starting fires in different portions of the city. Five have been arrested, three of them caught in the act. When first arrested, rumors of lynching were prevalent. Large numbers of deputies were sworn in and placed on guard in different parts of the city, with instructions to guard the docks in particular.

Fire in Michigan.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 5.—A special to The Free Press from Iron Mountain, Mich., says: There has been a heavy downfall of rain throughout the fire belt during the afternoon and evening. Trainmen arriving from the north report the fires under control and that the danger to the town is past.

AIDING THE SURVIVORS

Destitute Sufferers Made Comfortable by the Arrival of Food and Clothing.

MANY CITIES GIVE FREELY.

Governor Nelson Urged to Contribute State Funds--Good Management.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 5.—Relief work for the destitute at Hinckley and vicinity is well started, and is being well managed.

But relief must be prolonged and of a substantial nature.

Contributions already made by St. Paul and other cities and the towns along the line of the St. Paul and Duluth apply only to immediate necessities, and relieve the situation with regard to food and clothing just now.

For the present, there is no lack of food. All the towns along the line have taken official cognizance of the distress and have dispatched quantities of flour, meats, bread, milk and potatoes.

The Kind of Relief Most Needed.

Three things are needed—money, medical attendance and clothing—and there cannot be too much of any one. Provisions are plentiful; doctors would find a world of good to be done; clothing must be had, and bedding is in pemitive necessity.

The St. Paul committees have raised almost $5,000 in money.

Stillwater has given over $1,000 in cash, besides large stores of supplies.

Minneapolis and Duluth have raised large cash funds, and additional donations of money and supplies will be made.

Next Sunday there will be special church collections in many Northwestern towns.

Relief Work at Pine City.

As the days go by they find the relief work in better shape at Pine City, which is the headquarters for the mass of 300 or 400 refugees who fled southward from the flames. The demands upon the people were almost overwhelming at first, so that there was little or no system, but since then all that has changed. General Bunker, representing the governor, aided the citizens' relief committee in getting into shape.

Generous Relief From Two Harbors.

Citizens of Two Harbors, Minn., north of Duluth, have raised $600 for the fire relief fund, and that amount will be considerably increased at once. The town has adopted a resolution urging Governor Nelson to give state funds to all needy towns.

Searching For Bodies.

A systematic search is to be made for the bodies. Three parties are out from Pine City, consisting of four men each, all experienced wood men. They will search the woods thoroughly for dead bodies and will take along picks and spades, so as to be able to bury the bodies where they find them, as the remains will in all probability be badly decomposed, or in shape that they cannot be removed. The graves, of course, will be properly marked where identification is complete.

An Aged Engineer Dead.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—Henry Revaith, the oldest locomotive engineer in America, has just died. He pulled the throttle on the first engine used on the South Carolina railroad, and had a record of more than half a century continuous service with that road, continuing in charge of an engine until at 75 years of age his sight failed him. At the time of his death he was 83.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co. Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

And Staff of English, American and Scandinavian Physicians. 30 Years' Experience in Private Hospital and Specialty Practice.

Clinical methods adopted and used in the hospitals of London, Hôtel Dieu, Paris, Berlin, Heidelberg and other foreign citizens employed daily in our London Medical and Surgical Institute. Scientific experiments and hourly method by such well-known authorities as Sir Henry Thompson, Sir Spencer Wells, of Paris, Dr. Agnew, of New York, Berne of London, and Langenbeck of Germany, are well known in this and the beautiful retreat here, coupled with our own vast experience, are reproduced by our patients. We are indorsed by leading physicians and medical boards of the United States, by clergymen, statesmen, business men, and the great mass of working men and women throughout the country. Our patients are our friends, and hopefully we offer them health. We can refer to hundreds whom we have cured after they had been almost ruined in health and wealth by unprincipled charlatans. PUBLICATIONS

Of the Great Northern Railway, St. Paul, Minnesota.

The General Passenger Office of the Great Northern Railway will be pleased to forward to applicants any or all of the publications named below, on receipt of the amount of postage named after each. It should be understood that these books, maps and pamphlets were prepared at considerable cost and are worth in each case many times the postage. They will prove of much interest to persons who contemplate a trip to any part of the Northwest, or who desire the information all intelligent people should possess concerning a vast, resourceful, important and growing part of the United States. Several of these publications have been supplied in quantities to public schools at the request of superintendents and teachers, on account of the instructive and useful information they contain.

BOOK FOLDER.—Send 2 cents postage stage.

This publication contains complete time cards, a series of train route maps, a large map of the country; a table giving first and second-class passenger rates, and freight tariff on settlers' goods from St. Paul to all points on the line; a table showing tributary points reached by steamer or stage; through car service and connections important baggage and ticket regulations, and much interesting descriptive matter. In short it is a handy volume of ready reference for passengers about local and through service on the Great Northern to all parts of the Northwest and Pacific Coast.

MAP FOLDER.—Sent free.

This contains the regular time schedules; a large map of the country west of Chicago and St. Louis; baggage and ticket regulations; and other information of value to travelers.

ATLAS OF THE NORTHWEST.—Send 15 cents for postage.

Contains complete maps of the United States. Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and Washington, showing postoffices to June 1, 1894, every important geographical and topographical feature brought down to date; and printed in the highest style of the map maker's art. Interesting description, historical and statistical information appears with each map.

LARGE WALL MAP.—Send 25 cents for postage.

This is a map of the country west of Chicago and St. Louis, mounted on rollers; 30x20 inches; complete in every particular from latest surveys; gives most detail of the Northwest, both above and below the international boundary line from the Great Lakes to Puget Sound; elegantly printed and useful in every office and school; has been asked for by teachers in all parts of the Northwest, and copies are now hanging in the public schools of many towns and cities.

VALLEY, PLAIN AND PEAK.—From Midland Lakes to Western Ocean. Send 10 cents for postage.

This attractive publication contains nearly 100 Northwestern views, singly and in groups, etched from photographs, originally published, and accompanied by descriptive matter and characteristic initials beautifully printed in colors, altogether forming one of the most elegant books of the kind ever issued. It is equal to art books which sell for a dollar or more and contains very much less general information and beauty.

DESCRIPTIVE PAMPHLETS OR BULLETINS. Send 2 cents postage for each.

A series of illustrated publications on Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Washington. Treats of the location, history, climate, agricultural, pastoral, mineral and timberal resources and products of each of these important states.

HUNTING AND FISHING BULLETINS. Send 4 cents postage for the two.

These publications contain the game and fish laws of the Northwestern States, and give much interesting information about various kinds of game and fish, and localities where found, with many fine illustrations

VIEWS OF MOUNT INDEX AND KOOTENAI CANYON.—Send 20 cents each.

These beautiful art reproductions of striking scenes in the mountains of Montana are 20 by 35 inches in size, and cost in large quantities $1.00 each, but are sold at half price to introduce them. Only one of each will be sold to any one address. They will also be sold in a choice frame with glass at $2.00, or half price. An ornament to either office or parlor and do not contain any advertising.

THE EVERGREEN STATE.—Send 2 cents postage.

This pretty souvenir contains 26 views of Washington exhibits at the World's Fair. It cost 12 cents a copy to print.

FACTS ABOUT A GREAT COUNTRY.—Sent free.

This contains a large variety of facts of interest to new settlers, including diagrams showing the simplicity of land surveys, a brief statement of land laws, and map of the United States.

A TOUR OF "OUR COUNTRY"—Send $1.00.

The Great Northern has specially arranged with a large publishing house for an edition of Stoddard's Portfolio of American Views, approaching 16 quarto, each part containing 16 views and retailing at 10 cents, or $1.60 for the 16 parts. Single photographs of these views cannot be had for much less than $1.00 each, but in this portfolio 200 magnificent reproductions of striking photographs of natural and created scenes in all parts of America are to be had for a mere nominal sum. Each part will contain matter and illustrations specially added to give increased value to northwestern subscribers or those interested in the Northwest. The parts will be furnished singly or in whole number by agents of the company as may point.

For any of the above publications or information about rates or routes to the Northwest or Pacific Coast, address

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.
A Page From Her History.
The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician from Chicago was treating me for a short month. My fast and limbs were badly bloated, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was now in perfect health. I procured a bottle and a series of this Heart Cure, and improved so much in one hour after taking the first dose, that I felt a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost numb. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the bloating left my limbs entirely, and I was so much better that I did go to work. On my recommendation six others are using this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 663 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, sold by druggists under a positive guarantee or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

W. A. Lane tot made a trip to Terrebonne and other towns up that way and reports that in the judgment the republican ticket will poll a bigger vote than ever before. The farmers are getting sick of the effects of a democratic administration and are beginning to appreciate the fact that the republican government is the best for the interests of the entire country after all.

W. C. Andrew. Wright, Barret & Stilwell's genial traveling man struck this city like a cyclone early on Tuesday morning. The first intelligible words he said, after he recovered from the effects of the concussion were: "Gosh, you fellows are going to have a big hotel at last hey? I see you have selected a rattling good man, Baker, of the Grand Pacific, at Moorhead, to run it; now if I could be assured that Ira M. DeCamp would be its chief clerk I feel that I could die happy — some day:" with which observation he proceeded to sell goods.

Their stock of fall goods now beginning to arrive is full and complete and they are prepared to give better bargains than ever before offered in this city. Call and be convinced.

The village of Huckley, half way between St. Paul and Duluth was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday and many lives lost. Other little villages and hamlets were also destroyed and the destruction of property has been appalling to say nothing of the valuable lives that have been lost. The fires are still raging and unless rain comes soon it is hard to say where this thing will stop.

Jas. Novotny was in from Tabor on Tuesday on business before the U. S. Land office. Mr. Novotny says crops are not a very good up that way except on summer-fallow'ing and there is little of that because every farmer seems to think that he must sow all the land in the spring that he can cut and cover. "I think that most of them are having a salutary lesson this year that will be of great benefit to them in the future."

H. Smith, a former resident of the Fifth ward, arrived on Monday morning from Superior, Wis., where he is still engaged in the commission business. Says that business throughout the entire Northwest will be very much better in the near future. Mr. S. says he can see a good bit of improvement in our city since he lived here and compliments us on the prospects for a fine hotel.

Duluth Evening Herald: "Nye Normanden, a Norwegian Prohibition paper published at Jamestown, in the Seventh congressional district, charges Congressman Boen with 'electioneering with a whisky bottle.' The significance of this attack is that Nye Normanden is not only a Prohibition paper, but a Populist organ also, and as most of the Populists in that district are also Prohibitionists Mr. Boen's chances of election are likely to be seriously lessened."

On Monday last about noon Peter Berg's team started at the mill, ran up Robert to Main, where it ran into a farmer's team that were leading behind a lumber wagon with a load of rock on, and gang plow on the rock. The shock of the collision threw both teams down, threw the rock off the wagon pitching the driver and the plow unceremoniously out upon the street but curiously enough neither the man nor the horses were injured. Order soon restored from chaos and soon everything was once more serene.

C. H. Starke, early this week, procured a rig and drove out to his farm in Louisville with his guest, Mr. G. L. Read. Snake said: "I have a good crop of wheat on my place this year a pretty fair crop of oats and one of the best crops of potatoes I ever saw grow in this country,' notwithstanding the drouth and the fact that I did not cultivate them not even a little bit. I put them in last spring and hardly ever looked at them during the summer—I reckon the weeds must have kept the bugs off, and I find a splendid crop of nice large potatoes. I took dinner with the Hiltz boys and I think their experience in this country demonstrates what can be accomplished here. When they first commenced farming they bought a span of nice large mares for which they gave $300 note for $225. Now they have nine as good farm horses as one could wish to see upon a farm, including one large 2-year-old colt that he says is the largest colt of its age that I ever saw I think. They also have some good cows, and thus have a little butter to sell when butter is at its best price in the market. They also have eggs to sell and pork when these articles are bringing good prices in the market. They have the reputation of being the best farmers in their neighborhood and we did not hear them complain once of their "hard times" or anything of that sort instead of that they were speaking in glowing terms of their successes—what they had accomplished and what they hoped to do in the future. They are hard-workers, enthusiasts in their business have made and are bound to make money as long as they continue as they have begun. We found some good crops along the road and some not so good, nearly all threshed or stacked."

John Kirkman received from Minneapolis a thoroughbred bled-log belonging to D. C. Jones and will train the dog. Mr. K. is thoroughly up in that line of business it is said.

The city was unusually quiet on Saturday, farmers all busy threshing and every man in town who could get away who had a dog and gun or could borrow them was away to the fields for chickens.

Peter Arntson, who comes from Sioux Falls, S. D., has bought one of the farms listed with the First National bank, a place about a mile east of the city, and will within the month move there with his family.

And still they come—on every train to look up homes in the Red River Valley and many are availing themselves of the opportunities presented for obtaining cheap farms. At this rate farming lands will be higher by next spring.

Chief Justice L. E. Gossman returned last week from an extended visit below. Gossman imagines that he is to succeed Holcomb as county attorney and if Bonnet or Stanton fails to get votes enough to elect that's what he will do.

Uncle James Greenhalgh took a notion to run up to St. Hilaire last week and Theodore, not knowing knowing where he had gone was a little uneasy and skirmished about until he found Chief Louis Gouyen, who soon ascertained the whereabouts of the old man.

Colonel Bonett came up from St. Paul last week, returning to his duties in St. Paul last week. Said he come up to go out in the fields and shoot a little noise to scare all the chickens away so that hunters can not shoot them. He expected to shoot at some, himself but had no regard for his own marksmanship.

Knute Nerland took a bit of a log-off last week which caused T. O. Thompson to take his meals on the counter or wherever it came handy. He could not even go out with the boys to celebrate chicken extermination on Saturday, but had to stay in the store and eat crackers and cheese and wish that Knute would hurry up. Knute is expected to look add the chickens will have to take it to make up for Thompson's lost time.

Mine host Burkhardt reports 50 guests and a scrap for supper last Friday evening. Among those who took supper there were several gunloe cow-boys from Montana, who, by the way are as peaceable a lot as one could wish to see. The "scrappers" were strangers in the city and strangers to each other. They came up from St. Paul recently to work in the harvest fields and each other for the first time in the supper room when they got into a dispute ending in blows. Rudy promptly fired them out and sweet peace once more reigned supreme.

Kops Bros., with main office now located at 215 Wabash Ave., Chicago have sold thousands of musical instruments in the northwest and have yet to learn of a single one that is not giving satisfaction. They are now selling pianos and organs of all makes and all styles at greatly reduced prices, taking old instruments in exchange as part payment for new ones and allowing good cash values for same. Anyone thinking of buying a piano or organ should write for their catalogue and prices stating term of payment desired. [21-37]

Several prominent Fosstonites were down last week tak'ing up the fair. It will be a big thing and will be well worth attending.

August goes on record as one of the hottest, if not the hottest ever experienced in Minnesota. The rainfall was less than ever known before.

E. C. Stringer, the new U. S. district attorney, was in the city on Saturday enjoying a visit with E. M. Stanton and other prominent democrats.

Chris Bonston threshed his crop last week and reports a yield of about 11 bushels of wheat per acre, with his oats and barley not up to the average yield.

Messrs. Strawbridge & Knudson took formal possession of the Palace hotel on Saturday morning. On and after October 1st the hotel will be used as a dormitory for their college.

Saturday evening appearances strongly indicated rain—but appearances this time were very deceiving —it did not rain even a little bit. One would get the impression it had forgotten bow.

D. S. Horwitz was over from Grand Forks last week to report business in his line (piano tuning and selling) lively and said he should take a few days needed rest, while he went to Detroit Lake to rusticate.

E. M. Walsh went over to Grand Forks last week to talk up a telephone line between that city and this. He met with flattering encouragement so much so that a telephone line is among the early probabilities.

The harvest weather has been exceptionally fine but the extreme drouth has not been good for fall plowing. Should September bring an abundant supply of rain it would help out in that particular wonderfully.

The second trial of the state vs Ingeberg Olson and Knute Tweet was on before Judge Holt on Friday. Tweet was discharged and the lady held to answer at the next term of court. Her attorney, Hon. H. Steenson, was given until Wednesday to plead.

The sidewalk around the old part of the McKinnon block has been taken up and replaced with two inch plank. That one inch stuff, laid closely together proves a decided and a sure. There is a little more of it in the city that will have to come up shortly.

The contract for building the new hotel was last week awarded to A. Wallenstine, of St. Paul for $20,113. The plans have been somewhat changed since the first bids were opened to admit of the work being done at a figure to come within the means of the directors. What does not include steam-heating fixtures. It is the intention of the directors to have the hotel completed by the holidays.

Some of the boys thought they had a pretty good joke on Dr. Hennant last week. He had taken a few sacks of oats in on an account and piled them up on the sidewalk, until he could take care of them, but when he came for them they were gone. The boys had grabbed them up and were out of sight "smiling" over the joke. They did not laugh so loud when the sheriff appeared and put in a claim for the oats.

Of an entertainment given by Rev. R. H. Battey's church at Barnesville last week, the Review says: "The entertainment given by the young people of the Congregational church, assisted by Miss Luella Thompson, of Crookston and Miss Libbie McGinn of Barnesville, was the best attended and the most pleasing that has been given in the city for a long time. The programme numbers were pleasing and the variety of the performances added to the interest and made all the more entertaining. The performances of Miss Thompson were varied and pleasing to every one. Miss McGinn's recitation was also well received. The other numbers were all given by the young people of the church and Sunday school, and gave genuine pleasure and the musical numbers were above the average standard of excellence in character and interpretation. The success of the entertainment reflects great credit on the performers and to those who had in charge the management of the affair. It is to be hoped that other entertainments of such merit will be given during the season."

The North American Review for September contains, among other timely papers, three valuable articles on the relations of "China and Japan in Koren" written by three men specially qualified to deal with the question: The Hon. Augustine Heard, late United States Minister to Corea; Durham White Stevens, Counselor of the Japanese Legation at Washington, and Howard Martin, Ex-Secretary of the United States Legation at Pekin. Under the caption of "The Results of Democratic Victory." Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, contributes a vigorous article in which he reviews the achievements of the present Administration from a Republican point of view.

The Review of Reviews is rendering valuable service to its readers by presenting almost every month this season an article by some Australian authority upon some question of public interest. This month the Hon. F. W. Holder, who is the treasurer of the province of South Australia, writes upon "New Zealand Taxation" as exemplified in Australian experience. Perhaps no other article in the September number of the Review will attract more attention than one entitled "The Declaration of the German Bimetallists." The recent Imperial Silver Commission was composed of distinguished monetary experts and financiers. Some half dozen of the ablest of these gentlemen united in a report favorable to international bimetallism and the full restoration of silver, and gave in a very succinct way the arguments in favor of the resumption of the white metal. This document has not been seen in the English language, and it is now translated for the Review of Reviews by Professor E. Benjamin Andrews, of Brown University, whose opinons are undoubtedly quite in accord with those which were reached by the German gentlemen who concurred in making this report.

Huller's Little German Pills are the superior of many and excelled by none. They are anti-griping and do not nauseate. Their use stimulates the liver and corrects the Billous condition of the stomach. They are sugar-coated, small size, easy to take, the mildest and most effective cathartic that can be used. Try them once and you will never want to use any other. Sold by F. L. Durand.

RATES MUST COME DOWN.

Decision of Railroad and Warehouse Commission in the Steenerson Case.

An Annual Saving of $100,000 to Farmers of the Red River Valley.

The allegations of the complaint, numbered one, two and three, are simply formal allegations that the plaintiff is a resident of Polk county, and for several years has been engaged in raising and shipping grain over the defendants line of railroad for hire and otherwise, from the stations of Crookston, Fisher and East Grand Forks; that the defendant is a common carrier, and by its tariff No. numbered two hundred and fifty, as amended March 20th, 1893, charged for transportation of wheat, oats and barley and the mill products of such grains, sixteen cents and five mills from Crookston and seventeen mills from Fisher and East Grand Forks to the terminal points, Minneapolis and Duluth, per hundred weight; that the charges are unjust and unreasonably high. The complaint, in paragraph numbered five, alleges that the commission infringe this action in his own behalf of all those similarly situated in the counties of Polk, Marshall and Kittson, and he demands that the rate be fixed at twelve cents per one hundred pounds from Crookston to said terminal points, and that a proportional rate be fixed from other stations on defendant's railway to said terminals.

The law, ch. 10, Gen. Laws 1887, as amended by ch. 108, Gen. Laws 1891, provides that after hearing of charges against a common carrier, the commission shall fix and prescribe rates which shall be substituted for the tariff of rates complained of; it then provides, "such tariff of rates * * * shall be deemed and taken in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence that the tariff of rates * * * so made is equal and reasonable and such tariff so made shall be in full force and effect during the pendency of any appeal that may be taken in the matter to the courts."

It is also provided in said law that any railroad company affected by any manner by the action of the commission may, at any time within thirty days after the service of the order upon it, appeal to the district court of any judicial district through or into which its route may run, and that the district courts shall have jurisdiction to reform, modify or reverse the order from which the appeal is taken in whole or in part as justice may require; and it is further provided that an appeal as aforesaid shall stay or supersede the order appealed from unless the court hearing and deciding the same shall, upon application to the other party, direct the same. It is also further provided for that the remedy herein shall be in addition to all other legal and equitable remedies.

The reductions made in the grain rates by the railway commission average from one to one-half cents per bushel, and in the Red River Valley will amount to a saving of over $100,000 a year to the farmers and producers of grain. In view of the fact that this railway corporation, as well as every other, is a to large extent dependent upon the state authorities for protection, and had occasion so recently to call for this protection, it is believed that it will not dare to disregard the orders of the commission, or try to set the authorities of the state at defiance, and it is thought probable that they will submit to this reduction as it is a very reasonable one. Should they attempt, by proceedings in court, to nullify or reverse the action of the commission, it is probable that the next legislature will prescribe maximum rates for all railroads in the state, and they will be much lower than the rates granted by the commission. The republican party will no doubt have a majority in the legislature, and if so, the railways have not money enough to prevent suitable legislation. The railways will probably not resist the formal action of the commission and invite such a conflict.

The following is a copy of the decision:

Before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Minnesota.

Ellis Steenerson, plaintiff, vs
Great Northern R. R. Co., defendant.

In the above entitled case we find the following facts:

First, That all the allegations of fact contained in paragraphs one, two and three of the plaintiff's complaint are true.

Second, That the rates on grain, viz: wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn and the mill products of such grains as shown by "Schedule A," hereto annexed and hereby made a part of these findings are unreasonable rates for the transportation of said articles over the defendant's lines of road in the state of Minnesota, and that any greater rate is unreasonable.

It is therefore ordered, That the tariff rates and charges on the above mentioned articles be reduced and fixed at the rates shown in said schedule "A."

Dated St. Paul, Minn., September 8, 1894.

By Order of the Commission,
[Secl.] A. K. TEMBERG,
Secretary.

SCHEDULE "A."

McGREGOR TURNED DOWN.

His Colleague in the Council is Still but an Empty Chair.

The Name of H. A. Stone Rejected by the Honorable Body.

Some Routine Business Attended to—The Session Short and Sweet.

When the Common Council was called to order Tuesday evening by President Morrisey, Aldermen Jennings, Norrie and Wheeler failed to respond to their names, but the former had been excused by the the president.

After the roll call and reading of minutes, the Finance committee reported a grist of bills, which were ordered paid, as reported, except one for grading the approach to the Jerome addition bridge, which was cut from $34 to $18.

The proposition made last meeting for the purchase of hose leak stops having been accepted, the stops were ordered purchased.

Alderman Watts reported bill for grading Broadway which was ordered paid from the permanent improvement fund.

When the Poor committee's bills came up there was one presented by L. W. Latta for $75, for nursing the young man Ogen, who died in the city recently, on the claim that he was a city charge. The Chief of Police was inclined to disparage his claim, but after Mr. Latta had been allowed to plead his case to some extent, the council voted to allow him $25. The Chief then reported that a case of typhoid fever was now wandering about the streets, that belonged in Andover, and he was ordered to notify the town officials to take him away.

The August pay roll for $90 was ordered paid.

It seems the Fire department purchased an extension ladder for $135 some years ago, from the Bangor (Me.) Ladder Co., but it has never been paid for. The company now agrees to take $99 for it, and the Council thought it a pretty good investment, and took them up.

City Engineer Powell reported completion of Sixth street sewer outlet, and recommended payment of balance of contract, $483. Report accepted. He also reported the assessment roll for sidewalk work nearly ready.

Several new bills were referred, and dray license of S. R. Sylvester was ordered refunded, as his was the only one collected for the current year.

Then came the business of filling Alderman Marlette's empty shoes, which alderman Wm. Watts tried to evade by a motion to adjourn, but it was not seconded. Alderman McGregor presented the name of H. A. Stone, which seemed to fall on the council like a wet blanket. The president called for remarks but there was an ominous silence. By a viva voce vote the chair could not decide the result, and a roll call was ordered as follows:

Ayes—Ald. Morrissey, Kirsch, McGregor.

Noes—Ald. Buhu, Gervais, Hall.

Aldermen Watts refrained from voting, and the chair declared no election.

Aldermen Watts renewed his motion to adjourn, which was quickly carried and Alderman McGregor discovered himself in the condition of the man who fell out of the balloon—not in it.

An Engine Turned Loose.

At about 12:45 the freight trom the west pulled in, stopping a few rods north of the water-tank, the engine was uncoupled and ran to the tank, where, after taking water, it was run to the depot when the engineer and fireman left her standing while they went to dinner. They had been gone but a moment or so when a man sprang into the engine pulled the throttle wide open and jumped off. The engine dashed back full speed crashing into the first car of the train, which was a caboose, the force and momentum of the wheels of which took care of the rest, and the tender half way through the car. Everything was in confusion for a few moments which gave the man who had run the engine a good start to get away and he lit out for Sampson's Addition. Officer John Kyle pressed Collins' hack into the service and took after the man overhauling him on the bridge to Sampson's Addition. As soon as Kylegot his hands on the fugitive he pretended to be exceedingly drunk, though before that he seemed to be sober enough to run like a whirlwind. He was taken to the cooler where he lay for hours in a drunken stupor — real or pretended as the case might be. He is said to be an engineer, who was discharged in the recent strike on the Great Northern system but be that as it may he seemed to be onto the combination of an engine all right enough. The rear tender trucks and the end of the box car of wheat were smashed too the for any use but the damage will not be very extensive and fortunately no one was in the way to get hurt.

The culprit was arraigned before Justice Gossman on Wednesday and bound over in the sum of $300. Failing to give bail he was committed to await the action of the grand jury. He gives the name of James Sanderson and says he has been running a threshing engine this fall.

COAL RATES, TOO.

The Northern Pacific Must Reduce Its Moorhead-Duluth Rate.

The decision of the state railroad and warehouse commission in the Steenerson grain rate case was followed today by another important ruling in the case of the city of Moorhead against the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies, involving the rate per ton on hard and soft coal, over the former line, from Duluth to Moorhead, from $3 to $2.25. The commission finds that the Northern Pacific rate of $3 a ton is unreasonable, considering the distance on that line between Duluth and Moorhead. No change is directed in the wood rate. The petition against the Great Northern is dismissed. The findings of fact are as follows:

First—That all the allegations of fact contained, in the paragraphs 1, 2, 3, and 4, of the plaintiff's petition are true.

Second—That the sum of $2.25 per ton for hauling hard and soft coal from Duluth, Minn., to Moorhead, Minn., a distance of 213 miles, is a reasonable rate, and that the rate on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad of $3 per ton, now charged by said railroad, is unreasonable.

Third—The commission is unable to find from evidence that the rate charged on wood is unreasonable.

Fourth—That the evidence fails to establish that the rates charged by the Great Northern railway from Duluth to Moorhead for hauling coal, considering the distance hauled over their line, is an unreasonable one.

It is therefore ordered:

First—That the petition against the Great Northern railway company, be and the same is hereby dismissed.

Second—That the rate on hard and soft coal from the city of Duluth, Minn., to the city of Moorhead, is hereby made and fixed at $2.25 per ton. By order of the commission.

TO THE IRON FIELDS.

The Great Northern will Build a Line to the Mesaba Range.

Duluth, Sept. 8,—For some time owners of Mesaba mines which are not in the Rockefeller syndicate have been objecting to the heavy charges made by its railroad for hauling ore to Duluth for lake shipment. These men opened up some of Gervais & producers on the Mesabi, among them being Capt, Nat D. Moore, and they have been working with J. J. Hill to induce him to build his Great Northern road to Duluth by the way of Hibbing and the Mesaba range. This, it is said, he has consented to do and to do it this winter. A lively war of rates will result, and Mr. Rockefeller, the kickers, says, will find the strongest adversary he has yet met.

Wedding Bells.

At the residence of I. U. Jennings, Esq., in this city on Tuesday evening Sept. 11th 1894, Mr. Christopher Hood to Miss. Hilda Dahl, the Rev. Ilisley officiating. The popularity of the young couple was attested by numerous appropriate presents. Mr. Rood is well-known to Journal readers, having clerked for several of our leading mercantile firms and is now in the employ of Gervais & Gervais, while Miss Dahl has grown from girlhood in this city and has for several years been in Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store, where she has made many warm friends. The happy couple will go to housekeeping in the Fournet block. The Journal adds its blessing to the sincere congratulations of hosts of friends.

PEOPLE'S PENNIES PAID.

The Board of Commissioners in Session Friday of Last Week.

The Bonds for Ditch No. 1 Taken Up, and the Money Expected Soon.

Nils Muus Wouldn't Take Half a Loaf for Extra Clerks, so Gets no Bread.

The county commissioners of Polk county met at the auditor's office last Friday. There were present Messrs. Rhinehart, Kirsch, Oppegaard, Linden and Somers. Owing to neglect in posting notices, several school petitions were put over to next meeting, while the petition of Henry H. Spencer, to be attached to school district No. 13, was granted and that of P. J. Carey and others for the formation of a new school district, was denied.

In the matter of the petition of O. Osmundson and others for a county road through the towns of Bygland and Huntsville, Kirsch, Linden and Somers were appointed a committee to investigate the proposed route, and Messrs. Rhinehart, Kirsch and Linden a similar committee for a similar petition for a road through the towns of Hubbard and Vineland.

The hearing in the matter of ditch No. 2, was postponed to Nov. 21st.

The payment of $8,700 to the Wrought Iron Bridge company for the Marais bridge, in Grand Forks township, was authorized.

The bond of G. H. Palmer as court commissioner was approved.

After some minor business was disposed of, Messrs. Rhinehart, Kirsch, and Oppegaard were appointed a committee to act in the matter of the $15,000 Polk county ditch bonds. Tuesday of this week the bonds were signed and forwarded, and the money is expected in a few days.

An order was drawn in favor of the city for $83.20 for grading Broadway adjoining Court House square, and Commissioner Kirsch was appointed to advertise for bids and let the contract for grading the west side of the county lot in conformity with the street.

E. M. Wheeler was granted the right to erect telephone poles on public highways in Polk county.

Nils Muus, clerk of the court, put in a petition for extra clerk hire, and the board offered to vote him $150 for the purpose. He thought that wasn't enough, and so they gave him nothing.

Metal furniture for the probate judge's office was ordered to the amount of $800, payable march or June next.

The board decided to act as a committee of the whole in the matter of proposed bridges over the Clearwater at Terrebonne, and the Red Lake at Louisville.

The following bills were audited and allowed;

Gervais & Gervais, blankets for jail	$ 13 00
Hamilton Bros., material for bridges on Ditch No. 2	254 82
Red River Lumber Co.	13 45

EDITORS ENTERTAINED AT ST. PAUL

Republican Low-Toast and Then a Lake Trip to Buffalo on the Northwest.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—The Republican Press Association of Minnesota held two business meetings here Thursday, and in the evening attended a banquet given by St. Paul business men, at which W. R. Merriam presided. C. C. Whitney, president of the Press Association, thanked the citizens for the entertainment. Congressman Dolliver of Iowa delivered a strong Republican address, and Senator Davis also spoke. The Minnesota Editorial Association started from Duluth Friday night for a lake trip to Buffalo and return, on the steamer Northwest, as guests of J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway.

SOME GOOD RESULTS OF THE FIRE.

Land Cleared of Brush and Dead Trees, Saving Years of Hard Work.

HINCKLEY, Minn., Sept. 10.—The terrible forest fires which devastated the north end of Pine county, leaving death and destruction in their wake, were not altogether a curse. The area burned over is approximately 16 miles wide and 20 miles long, and therefore contains 480 square miles, or 220,200 acres. To clear this amount of land of trees and underbrush by the slow process of the lumberman would be an almost interminable task. Yet the fire did in a few hours the work of years, and did it in an effectual though terrible manner.

St. Paul Murderers Must Be Hanged.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 11.—On Friday, Oct. 19, between the hours of midnight and sunrise, Otto Mühlmann and Charles Ernstein, the murderers of Wilhelm Lindhoff, will be hanged by the neck until dead in the court house square in Ramsey county.

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—Charles Y. Chauvin, 70 years of age, and a wealthy and prominent citizen of Grosse Point township, was found fatally murdered in his home on the Grosse Point road. Robbery was the object.

ALL STRAIGHT DEMOCRATS, BUT ONE

Minnesota Democrats Meet and Name a Straight Ticket.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 6.—One of the largest conventions ever held by the Democrats of Minnesota met in the Auditorium at 11 a. m. Notwithstanding the ramges of fusion a straight ticket was placed in nomination as follows: Governor, George L. Becker; lieutenant governor, John Ludwig; secretary of state, Charles J. Haines; treasurer, Charles A. Lambert; auditor, Adolph Biergman; attorney general, Logan Breckenridge; clerk of supreme court, C. Kurtz; chief justice supreme court, Seagrave Smith; associate justice supreme court John W. Willis.

The platform adopted declares allegiance to the principles set forth in the national platform of 1892; commends the able and patriotic administration of President Cleveland; favors the free coinage of silver whenever it can be accomplished consistently with the maintenance of a sound and safe currency; demands economy in the administration of state affairs; favors election of senators by a direct vote of the people; denounces the American Protective association, and declares in favor of arbitration in adjusting disputes between capital and labor.

DEMOCRATS WILL NOT FUSE.

Proposition of Iowa Populists Declined by the State Committee.

DES MOINES, Sept. 10.—The Democratic state central committee held a meeting here. The principal question considered was the proposition for fusion with the Populists, an offer having been made by the Populists for the Democrats to accept four of the state ticket as a basis for fusion on state and congressional tickets. A decision was finally reached to reject the offer and instruct the chairman to fill the vacancies on the Democratic state ticket with Democrats.

GOVERNOR PECK RE-NOMINATED.

Wisconsin Democrats Think George W. Is All Right For Another Contest.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—The complete Wisconsin Democratic state ticket is:

Governor, George W. Peck.

Lieutenant, H. J. Schmitze.

Secretary of State, Thomas J. Cunningham.

Treasurer, John Runner.

Attorney General, J. L. O'Connor.

State Superintendent, W. H. Schutz.

Railroad Commissioner, G. C. Prescott.

Insurance Commissioner, O. A. Skaar.

The convention adopted a strong resolution denouncing the A. P. A.

McKinley Spoke in Tom Reed's State.

COMTE DE PARIS DEAD.

Claimant of the Throne of France and a Soldier in Our Civil War.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Comte de Paris died at the Stowe House, his London residence, early Saturday morning. His disease was cancer of the stomach, but it will probably require an autopsy to determine the exact cause of his death.

The comte served on the staff of General McClellan during the civil war in the United States, and wrote a history of that conflict. His name is Louis Albert Phillipe d'Orleans.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by Lewis Anderson, of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagor, to the Northern Investment Company, a corporation, as mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of October, A. D. 1890, and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of October, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on page 610.

And whereas the said Northern Investment Company has duly assigned said mortgage and the note thereby secured to the Northern Loan Company, a corporation, by assignment dated July 20th, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 210.

And whereas the said Lewis Anderson has failed to pay the principal sum of $600, and the interest thereon due August 1st, 1894, and has made default in the payment of taxes and insurance premiums on said premises, which he was required to pay by the terms of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from said date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum on said principal sum of $600 and the taxes and insurance premiums so paid by said assignee, according to the conditions of said mortgage, and no proceedings have been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in said mortgage, and situated in Polk County, Minnesota, to-wit: The north half of northwest quarter (N½ NW¼) and the northeast quarter (NE¼) of section seventeen (17), in township one hundred and forty-two (142) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the United States government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the county court house in said county, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of October, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes and insurance premiums so paid by said assignee, and interest thereon, and the disbursements allowed by law, and no proceedings have been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

JVELY SHAKING UP FOR MR. DONNELLY

Ridiculed Statements Made In a St. Paul Speech by Mr. Horr,

Who Replies with a Terrific Battery of Dignified Argument.

Populist Fallacies Thoroughly Flayed by Republican Wisdom.

DONNELLY vs. HORR.

When the Minnesota Republican State Convention met in St. Paul July 4, a very earnest address was made by Mr. Horr, of New York, but formerly a Michigan Congressman. He devoted considerable time to the People's party while speaking, and discussed some of the alleged reforms that the new party would inaugurate.

Ignatius Donnelly, in a recent issue of his paper, ridiculed the public statements made by Mr. Horr, who in turn discusses the whole matter in the New York Tribune.

Donnelly vs. Horr.

Mr. Horr says in the Tribune:

I am in receipt of an article published in The Representative, a Populist paper located at Minneapolis. The person who sends it states that it was written by Ignatius Donnelly. I should think there must be some mistake about it, because the rhetorical article is full of billingsgate and low personal flings, and a man of the literary reputation of Mr. Donnelly would hardly be expected to stoop to such vulgar journalism; but the initials "I. D." with which the article is signed, seem to decide the question against me, and I assume that my Minnesota correspondent is correct in his statement.

As a rule, I never notice public criticisms of my public work when they are couched in language which shows their animus, whoever he may be, to lack ordinary politeness. When one is writing for publication he can never afford to use the language of the common blackguard. No matter how cultivated and refined he may be, decent and well-informed people will classify him in the vocabulary he himself uses as a blackguard, as fast as the individual may be capable of better things if one happens to catch him "at his best." Epithets are not arguments. They are seldom used except when their authors lack better material.

I was in St. Paul when the Republican state convention met, and had the honor of addressing the delegates there assembled for the space of 45 minutes. I visited St. Paul for that very purpose. "I. D." asserts that I was sent there by the New York Tribune. What difference would it make whether I was employed by the New York Tribune or not? I have no means to support except my earnings from month to month. I am as dangerous to be employed by a great metropolitan journal, such as the New York Tribune is everywhere acknowledged to be? If so, then I acknowledge my disgrace. It is also true that I do a large amount of the editorial work for the Tribune. Is there anything wrong about that? If my views agree with those of the Tribune, and the management of that paper see fit to keep me engaged in teaching such views from the platform, how they not a perfect right so to do? If I teach the truth, does it make any difference my fee less true because I am constantly employed on the New York Tribune? Has not the Tribune a perfect right to select its own methods of education?

Then what does any intelligent man expect to gain by asserting that I am in some way connected with the New York Tribune? I have never sought in any way to deny that fact. It is the kind of work which I select for which he should be held responsible.

The wrath of this Populist writer seems to have been aroused by some things which I said at that state convention. The right to criticise is denied to no one. I now invite the attention of my readers to some of those criticisms.

Wrong Declared Wages.

I quote from the article in the Representative, signed "I. D."

Mr. Horr said:

"Whenever you reduce wages, you stop consumption, and then the markets are ruined."

"I. D." replies:

Well, who in thunder reduced wages? It was your Republican party, when it demonetized silver in 1873, and made the gold dollar the equivalent of twice as much of the workman's muscle and brain as farmer's toil. And now you come here to enlighten the western people with your shallow platitudes. Scat! Get out!

The trouble with this statement is that it is not true. "Wages" began to fall in decline after the passage of the act of 1873. Indeed, during the 20 years from 1873 to 1893, the wages of the workingmen of the United States were increased per capita. The members of the senate committee who investigated that point reported unanimously to that effect, without regard to party affiliations.

There may have been a few isolated instances in which wages were lowered in the United States between those dates; but taken in the aggregate, the wages paid in gold dollars to each laboring man were increased during those 20 years. The claim has been constantly made during those years by nearly all the farmers' journals of the country that there had been a decline in the price of farm products, but that the wages of hired hands had been nowhere less, and in many instances had been higher than they were 20 years ago.

THE DROPPING OF WAGES WHICH HAS RUINED OUR HOME MARKETS TOOK PLACE AFTER THE DEMONETIZATION OF 1892.—During the years 1889, 1890 and 1891 the people of this country were well employed, and at good wages. During those years I traveled over 100,000 miles, entirely within the United States. Do where I would I found factories running full handed and the people receiving good wages. The history and statistics of production in this country will bear me out in this statement. Let us try to be truthful about these matters.

It is the threatened free trade legislation of the Democratic party which has paralyzed industry, thrown people out of employment and cut down the wages of laboring men here in the United States. The fact cannot be gainsaid by calling any one else hard names. Epithets prove nothing.

More Money Now Than Ever.

I again quote from the article in The Representative:

Mr. Horr said:

"They tell us that it is overproduction, when the fact is that it is lack of consumption, because there is no money to buy with."

What do you buy with? Money. Who reduced the money of this country by demonetizing silver? The Republican party.

Again Mr. Horr said:

"The Republican party plants itself upon the position that we should make, as far as possible, everything we need right here at home."

To which "I. D." inquires:

Well, why don't you make your money at home? Why should we borrow money in England, and pay interest on it, when our experiences during the war, with the first $60,000,000 of greenbacks, shows that we can make our money at home ourselves, and pay no interest on it?

The statement which I actually made was this, that the working people of the United States could not buy articles as they had done in the past because their wages had been recently cut down or entirely stopped, and on that account the workingmen had nothing with which to buy. Nowhere did I intimate that such a state of affairs existed because there was no money in the country with which to buy. The statement which I did make is absolutely true. The wages paid each day for work all over the United States for many years past have been the greatest distribution of wealth known anywhere on the face of the earth.

The statement which this writer seems to believe, and seeks to make me utter, is not true. The money of this country was not reduced in amount by the law of 1873. The money in circulation per capita in 1873 was $18.04. In 1874 it was $18.81. There fell a little per capita each year, chiefly in consequence of the population increasing 7,000,000, up to 1878, when it was $16.39. Then the amount began steadily to increase, and in 1893 it had reached the sum of $23.50 per capita.

TODAY IT IS NEARLY TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS for each man, woman and child in the United States.

In the face of this well known fact why keep asserting that there is such a lack of currency in this country? What we need is a revival of business, so as to make the money circulate which has all this time existed in the United States.

What Money Really Is.

Because I stated that we should make as nearly as possible everything we need right here at home, this writer asks:

"Well, why don't you make your money at home?"

That question is founded on the assumption that money is a manufactured article like boots and shoes or woolen blankets. It is nothing of the kind.

"Why should we borrow money and pay interest on it, when experience shows that we can make just as good money ourselves and pay no interest?" quoth "I. D."

That question could be asked only by a person who believes in fiat money.

Experience shows this and nothing more. Under the old system of issuing the limited amount of notes, payable on demand, and keep such notes at par so long as it redeemed on demand, experience also shows that when the amount of such notes issued was increased so as to redeem them on presentation, such notes fell below par. A government might issue $60,000,000 of such notes and keep them good, when it could do nothing of the kind with $70 times that amount. A man worth $5,000 might issue promissory notes of $100 each to the amount of $1,000, and those notes might all remain good. His wellknown ability to pay that amount would give people confidence in him; but when it once be understood, however, that there were $50,000 of his own signature out there and those notes will instantly fall below par. Bottom is reached in any issue of limited amount of promises to pay and keep it good, it by no means follows that it can do the same thing with an unlimited amount.

This Populist writer doesn't say how much of such money can be issued by a government and be kept good. I assert that the limit has been reached in some cases! If not, why did he not name the limitation? Or does he believe that the government can issue money payable in nothing, redeemable in nothing, and to-day, without any limitations as to time and amount, and yet that such stuff will be good money as long as it exists? A Populist may believe such a thing possible. I do not.

People earn money by all kinds of labor. Men who mine gold and silver furnish the world with the precious metals which have been used for ages as money. The government coins those substances for the purpose of showing the quantity and quality of each piece. The people receive the metal out of which the coins are made. By the process of coining the government creates nothing.

Money is used to facilitate exchanges. People make money by producing the articles out of which money is made or by producing the articles that can be exchanged for money. When a man gives his note for $100 in exchange for a horse, the man is worth no more than he was before he bought the horse, if $100 is the value of the animal. He has the horse, but he owes its full value. When the government issues a greenback or a bond, no value has been created by the transaction. The government may exchange them both for gold, but the government at once becomes indebted for the full amount of those obligations.

No doubt it is better to make money than to borrow it; but do not forget that the government must redeem all of that for a single greenback or for any government bond without borrowing the full amount thus received. The moment such a paper obligation leaves the treasury it is a "promise to pay" real dollars, and the property of the nation is pledged to such payment.

These dollars are all the time crying out against mortgages, and yet THEY WOULD PUT A MORTGAGE OF UNTOLD BILLIONS upon the entire property existing in this country. Or do these gentlemen think that greenbacks and government bonds need never be paid? Is there any one who would think that they believe that a kind of money is possible simply for the purpose of circulation, and that such circulation can be obtained for paper money without any kind of redemption. I have tried for years to get some one of them to send me a sample of such wonderful paper money. I am anxious to look at it, to examine it, so as to find out what it is like.

A Few Things Are Right.

Why wonder, then, that I should have said to my St. Paul audience:

You've got to meet a new party. A party that believes that everything is not wrong and that everything is still wrong; that thinks that wisdom never struck the earth until a few years ago, when the first Populist was born.

"I. D." virtually admits that my claim as to the belief of his party is correct when he says:

And the new party, he says, "believes that everything is wrong." Well, isn't it wrong? Will Mr. Horr tell us what is right today? Now, even the money-lenders are not happy, for their securities are turning into chaff. And if "wisdom struck the earth" before the People's Party was born, where did it light?

I assure this Populist writer that the world is full of things which are right. To name for him all such things would require volumes. To enumerate the blessings that I know about myself would be to write a book. For example, patriotism is a good thing; it is right; patriotism was not dead here in the United States.

Honesty was not unrecognized all over this nation. Our country is full of people who are striving to make this world better. It is right that such should be the case.

The great majority of the religious people of the world are sincere, are not hypocrites. They are struggling each day to live pure and upright lives. That, too, is quite right.

Mothers, as a rule, still love and care for their children as tenderly and as patiently as they have ever done. It is well.

The majority of our business men are upright and honest in their dealings. Our country is full of men whose word is good as their bond. That is right.

Most men in this country believe in decency, in law and order. Crime is not generally approved of by the masses, and meanness is not at a premium among our people.

The upward tendencies of civilization are generally recognized by the sensible men and women of the United States. This is all as it should be.

"If wisdom struck the earth before the Populist party was born, where did it strike?" asks Ignatius. I answer:

It has been occasionally lighting through all the ages past. Solomon had a touch of it. Socrates and Plato would compare favorably with Donnelly and Weaver. England, Frances and Germany no doubt had a gleaming of what was the right the last thousand years. Indeed, wisdom at times may have taken up her abode even in this republic of ours. This nation need not despair. I recall with little effort such names as Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, Marshall, Story, Webster, Clay, Greeley, Douglas, Sumner, Seward, Fessenden, Blaine and Abraham Lincoln, besides a host of others that might be readily named.

If Jerry Simpson, Senator Peffer, Governor James B. Weaver, Calamity Weller and Ignatius Donnelly are wise then the men mentioned were all fools. Honestly, I prefer to be found trusting with those old "fogies" rather than with these "new lights." To me, the question of finance was studied carefully by most of these men. More than that, the world has produced thousands of able financiers. Men in all countries which have given careful and lifelong attention to financial questions. The entire army of such men is right because Populism is not right. I hesitate to believe when men tell me that only fools have heretofore been born.

"What This Fool Meant."

Mr. Donnelly seems to be angry because I attempted to illustrate that money must always be composed of some substance which possesses value in itself, or it is no paper money, that it must always has a promise to pay a certain amount of some substance. Hear him:

What this fool meant was that you can't have money unless it is made of something. Now everybody knows that a $1,000 United States bond is not only worth its face, but commands a large premium. It has no intrinsic value. It costs about 5 cents to print it. It is not made of gold or silver. It simply represents the faith and credit of the nation. Now mark what follows: Now, if this bond was cut up into separate notes of $5 each would they not be just as worth their face value? And what is a greenback but a chopped up bond—a little bond, a baby bond? And if the people's faith and credit are good for $1,000 and they good for $5, respectively (if one note is legal tender, which the bond is not? And does not the history of those $60,000,000 greenbacks demonstrate that?

Did any one ever find more financial nonsense than is condensed into the brief quotation above? Mr. Donnelly tells us that a United States bond has no intrinsic value, that it does not cost 5 cents to make it. He ignores the fact that the value of the bond is not in the paper upon which it is IN THE PROMISE of which the paper is evidence. That promise is and always must be an agreement TO PAY SOMETHING WHICH HAS INTRINSIC VALUE. The bond is not "good for silver." True, but it is a PROMISE TO PAY GOLD OR SILVER. Nothing else consists in the fact that the government is able to pay and does pay such promises at maturity. The government is not regarded as such a promise and never put it into writing or print IS in any way. To do such promise would be worth the amount verbally agreed upon, because such amount would be paid on demand.

"If the nation's faith and credit are good for $1,000, are they not good for $5?" asks "I. D." Most certainly they are. That does not touch the point in issue at all. If the nation's faith and credit are good for $1,000, does it necessarily follow that they must also be good for $1,000,000? That is the real question at issue. Indeed, that even will not meet all the purposes for which the Populists would have the government issue paper money.

Will Mr. Donnelly inform whether he believes that there is any limit to the credit of a nation? Does the government can issue money by simply running a printing press, will it make any difference how much of such money it puts in circulation?

Is there any point as to amount beyond which a government cannot safely go? It has been conceded generally in the past that such a limit does not exist as to all nations. That has been the notion by financiers of the world, before the world was illuminated by these modern Populist lights. Since this blazing glory of intelligence teachings irradiated this planet, I am unable to state what the new enlightens has revealed upon this subject.

If the credit of an individual or a nation cannot be destroyed by an overissue of obligations it will be news to me. The world is full of business men who may be "full fledged" and yet they will hesitate to believe such foolishness as these Populists teach.

Some Fatherly Advice.

One word more I address directly to Mr. Donnelly himself. I am somewhat familiar, Ignatius, with your efforts to abolish the bankruptcy law. I meet some people who doubt your success in that direction. Your present effort to abolish all the well-known laws of finance may also prove a failure. I beg of you do not try to do too much. Did you ever contemplate trying to abolish the law of gravitation? Why not? That's an "old fogy" institution. Suppose you try your hand at that next. Just set the planets to running wild through the realms of space. They would not become worse tangled up, be more erratic in their movements or more likely to go to smash than the country would be if the Populists could regulate its affairs.

Permit me just one suggestion. Whatever you attempt in the future try and let your efforts be governed by rules which are recognized as proper among all gentlemen. Never write and publish anything the second reading of which will cause any ashamed of yourself.

According to the philosophy so aptly stated by Gen. Garfield, you are compelled to live and associate with Ignatius Donnelly 365 days of each year of your natural life. How important, then, that you retain your own self-respect. Read over again your letter sent in The Representative and then tell the world candidly if the paper that has a tendency to make you feel proud of yourself. If it does, then it will enable the people of the United States to determine the "kind of man on which you feed, and on which you grow so great."

People may have honest differences in this world. They may state such differences in incisive and impressive language, but of course never object to clear cut and telling sentences.

Mr. Horr, now, never gives a man the right to indulge in vulgar invectives. Men of genuine culture never demean themselves by descending into the slums.

CREDIT TO WHOM CREDIT IS DUE.

Some time ago Elias Steenerson brought an action before the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners to compel the railroads to grant a reduction in freight rates on grain. The usual delays were met with and before a decision was had came "good old democratic times", bringing strikes, confusion and a general depression of business affecting railroads as greatly as other business interests. In the very outset the Crookston Times began a fusilade of abuse against Halvor Steenerson, who was the attorney for Elias Steenerson in the case, claiming that Halvor's sole motives were for money—though when the Times could figure that out for him we fail to see, as the case was brought in the interest of the people by a man who had no money to expend, however the Times made it out a personal matter in some way and fired off its dose against Halvor. Some others joined in the cry, and, as time passed away and no decision was arrived at many began to take some stock in the idea that Halvor was indulging in a game of bluff for political reasons, meanwhile that gentleman kept right on pounding the commissioners and insisting upon a decision, knowing full well that they could not give a decision unfavorable to the people. At last the decision has come and it is one that will greatly benefit the shippers of Polk county. Upon our usual output of grain it will save to the farmers of Polk county alone something like $35,000. And what does Mr. Steenerson get for the work he has done and the expense he has incurred in this matter? Well, he did get a lot of gratuitous abuse from many who should have stood shoulder to shoulder with him in this fight but of money—not a cent. He has the satisfaction of having done more of practical benefit to the farmers than all the preaching of Donnelly and other rabid populists ever did or could do. This matter is so perfectly plain that no man is so obtuse that he can not see that only for the good hard work of Mr. Steenerson this result would not have been accomplished at this time and all who have so bitterly maligned Mr. Steenerson would do the manly part if they now hasten to square themselves as far as they can. There had been no lack of talk but no one had moved until Mr. Steenerson evolved a plan of action and put it into operation. The JOURNAL believes that Mr. Steenerson deserves great credit for his able action in this matter and hereby cheerfully adds its mite.

For the first time in their political history in the state of Minnesota the democrats have nominated for governor one of the strongest and best men in their party—Gen. Geo. L. Becker. Gen. Becker has been a member of the railroad and warehouse commissioners ever since that board was established and a long and useful life has proven his innate honesty and no democrat will now have to vote the populist ticket just for the privilege of voting for an honest man as Gen. Becker is the peer of Owen or any other man in this particular. The only thing wrong with the general is the democratic platform upon which he is to make his run—and even that, bad as it is, is better than that of the populists. There is no doubt however but that the people will repudiate the democratic platform this fall and that, of course will defeat the general's laudable ambition to become governor of so fine a state as Minnesota.

As we predicted in our last issue the democrats endorsed John W. Willis the nominee for Associate judge on the populist ticket. This would seem to make the election of L. W. Collins, the republican candidate for the same position very problematical, but the Morning Call H. P. Hall's new democratic daily predicts that Judge Collins will be re-elected by a good round majority and gives as its reason for so saying that all who know the two men know full well that Judge Collins is by far the better man for the position and that they will vote for Collins regardless of party ties. Judge Collins is a man of ripe experience and is one of the best men who have sat upon the supreme bench of this state and his defeat would be nothing short of a calamity to the state. We have confidence enough in the better judgment of the people of this state to believe that he will be re-elected.

STEENERSON'S ATTITUDE.

While in St. Paul last week the editor of this paper was asked the questions from one to a dozen times: What will Mr. Steenerson do in the congressional campaign? "Will Steenerson stand by the nominee?" It is needless to say that these questions were not asked by men who know him well are prepared to vouch for Mr. Steenerson that he will be found fighting hard for the success of the ticket when the campaign is fully on. Although probably sorely disappointed Mr. Steenerson is not the man to sulk in his tent and try to knife the party, but he will take hold of the campaign vigorously and strike telling blows for the success of the republican party. We were also told that there was a rumor that a few Polk county republicans would knife Governor Nelson in every way possible, but however that may be our friends may rest assured that it is not Mr. Steenerson nor any of his friends that will do it.

THE St. Paul Globe says that Dolliver, in his speech at the banquet last week referred to the past glorious record of the republican party, and proceeds from that to draw conclusions and inferences wholly unwarranted by intimating that that is all there is to it. Well, it is a fact that republicans can get more solid satisfaction contemplating the past record of the republican party than the democrats can from the past record of their party. The republican party, ever sheets organization has represented the true spirit of progress and does to-day while the democratic party has always opposed everything that is for the benefit of America and the American people. The past of the republican party is the best guaranty of its principles and motives in the present, and some who never fully appreciated that fact are beginning to understand it in the light of 18 months of democratic rule.

THE democrats in the second district have nominated Gen. J. H. Baker of Benson with the hope of inducing the pops to pull off their candidate, T. C. Long, who is said to be of an accommodating and pliable disposition who will be liable to fumble into the trap. Gen. Baker has had an itching for office ever since we have known him and for years his desire was gratified in the republican ranks, but after awhile he was sort o' dropped out then he at once went into the Alliance movement and failing to cut much of a figure at that, and become the great leader that he wished to be, he tumbled boldly into the democratic camp. The voters of the second district wish to send as rank a demagogue as the state can produce to congress they will see to it that Jim Baker is elected.

WHATEVER the enemies of Gov. Nelson may find to say against him, they certainly cannot say that he lacks the nerve to discharge a known duty—disagreeable though it often is. Ever since the murderers of Lindhoff, the bar-tender, were convicted he has been beseiged with petitions and people begging him to commute their sentence to life imprisonment. The facts developed a cold-blooded and brutal murder, one richly deserving the death penalty, and the governor has back-bone enough to do his whole duty. The men will explain their crime on the gallows. This is a painful duty for a man with the governor's agreeable nature, but the interests of the public demands it, and the governor does not flinch from performing his full share in the interests of the people.

THE Thief River Falls Press says that Boen's fight against the establishing of another saw-mill at that point will lose him many votes in that vicinity. The Mehnas have had a monopoly of the lumber trade for some time, but recently an attempt was made to buy a mill-site of an Indian and establish a new mill. The Mehnas, of course fought it and Boen turned in with them to defeat the project which has so incensed the farmers without regard to party that they will vote pops to-day solid against Boen, which is just what they should do.

THE republican candidate for congress, F. M. Eddy was in Crookston last week getting acquainted with the people and he will try to keep right along in that line during the entire campaign. It is said that he will devote a great deal of his spare time to those localities in the district where he is personally almost unknown and let his friends take care of him where he is known. This is the true course for him to pursue. Had Felg done this he would have beaten Boen without any doubt.

THE president of the Great Northern railway system, J. J. Hill, subscribed $5000 in cash for the benefit of the sufferers from the Hinckley fire. He also offered to donate 5000 acres of land, to be divided among such as desire to build upon and cultivate it. Mr. Hill has been called a heartless monopolist but such instances as these seem to indicate that there must be a large heart somewhere concealed in his anatomy. This is not an isolated case of Mr. Hill's liberality.

THE Colorado pops have re-nominated "bloody bridles" Waite for governor. They call him the "friend of the laboring man," "an honest patriot" etc. while he is doing his best to establish a dollar for the laboring man worth about 50 cents and has been doing his best to destroy the laboring man's government in the United States. He is a "grand old patriot," he is, but it is such arrant rot as this that the average leader among the pops feeds his followers.

THE democratic state convention that met in St. Paul last week managed to put up a state ticket in direct opposition to the wishes of boss Doran who got as mad as a wet hen just as soon as Biermann was re-nominated and left the convention hall in high dudgeon. It augurs well when the people take hold of politics and relegate the political bosses to the shades, and that sort of thing is becoming quite popular in this day and age of the world.

THE Times essays in (modesty) consider itself endorsed; (?) for some weeks it has raved incessantly, trying to get its party to "endorse Dreux," the populist candidate for governor, saying that "a republican defeat was the next best thing to a democratic victory." The convention, however by an overwhelming majority turned the little man down in elegant shape by nominating a straight out and out democratic ticket—and they did well.

THE banquet given the press club by the citizens of St. Paul on Thursday evening was an enjoyable affair and well attended. Congressman Dolliver, of Iowa, favored the boys with a rattling good speech and other good speeches occupied much valuable space, while a good male quartette occasionally gratified the musical ear. Taken all around the boys enjoyed the affair hugely—they always do enjoy a good dinner.

THE State of Vermont has spoken in no unmistakable language setting the seal of condemnation upon the action of the Democratic party. Maine followed on Tuesday in kind and it only remains for the November states to complete the verdict. Meantime republicans should not sleep on their arms, but stand valiantly by their guns, and the condemnation will be as sweeping as the nature of the case deserves.

THE Grand Army boys are having a good time in Pittsburgh this week. A goodly contingent goes from Minnesota, determined to capture the National Encampment for 1895 for St. Paul and the present out-look is decidedly favorable. We hope the boys will be successful and return with victory perched upon their banners.

IT is rumored that A. R. Holston has been trying hard to sell the Tribune to be run as a republican paper. Populism must be at a very low ebb in Polk county, when the publisher of its leading paper is obliged to sell it to the opposition in order to live.

THE Times that has been jumping upon Halvor Steenerson for personal reasons, now congratulates the people upon the "great victory that has been won for the people," but, of course, utterly fails to give due credit to Mr. Steenerson for his efforts in their behalf.

OWING to smoke and fog on Lake Superior the Northwest did not show up at Duluth on time Friday and the editors had to spend the day Saturday in the Zenith City.

MAINE has gone republican by an overwhelming majority, and the November states will no doubt follow suit.

Thomas Johnson and wife drove over to Fisher on Tuesday.

Threshing in Polk county is nearly done what is left being mostly all in stack. To the surprise of every body the yield will be up to last year and the quality better.

B. C. Jorgenson, who lives on Section 7, town of Andover, brought to the JOURNAL office on Monday a fine sample of yellow dent corn, which is already out of the way of frost. Mr Jorgenson only regrets that he has not a larger piece of it.

Al. Jones, who was a former resident of this city is buying grain at the new elevator at Shirley. Mr. Jones left this city some years since to accept a position as motor-man on the electric line in St. Paul. After living in that city awhile he went out to the coast when, after a year or so he decided that he could make more clean money here and so returned. Al. does not speak very highly of the western coast as a good place for a poor man to make big money. Says it is a good place to spend money and when a man has anything at all to do here he better stay.

The depression that has been the rule in the agricultural world for the past few years bids fair to be succeeded by a few years at least of good prices, and there is no possible shadow of a doubt that next year will see the dawn of an era of good remunerative prices. The farmer in Polk county who has been able to hold on through these "good old democratic times" will no doubt next year have abundant cause to rejoice in a sure prospect of making big money for some years to come—and his prosperity will bring prosperity to this country. If there should be any farmer in Polk county so heartily sick of "democratic prosperity" that he is ready to sell out and get out of the country if he can, there is no doubt but that if he should do so he would regret it for the balance of his natural life, for all signs point to a renewal of remunerative prices in the near future. There will be plenty of chances to sell farms this fall and next spring to farmers who are coming in from other localities and there is plenty of land for them to buy if not a single farm now occupied changes hands. As long as the world has stood seasons of great depression have always been followed by seasons of general prosperity and it will be true in this case. It always requires a great deal of stamina, a great deal of endurance but patience always has her perfect reward.

E. P. Ullund was up from Garden on Monday attending to some business before the probate court.

Mrs. Thomas Billson is up from Wheatonah for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Judge Benson.

Ole Hagen left on Thursday evening of last week via the Northern Pacific for a business trip to Fargo.

Joseph Smith was in from Red Lake Falls on Monday attending to the settling up of his father's estate.

Rev. S. G. Updyke, of Glencoe, will preach in the Congregational church on Sunday morning and evening. The morning subject will be "The House of God," and in the evening his topic will be "Social Regeneration."

The ladies of Crookston have not been idle. As a result of their labors a large number of boxes of goods have been shipped to Hinckley for the use of these who lost their all in the conflagration that destroyed that village recently. Our city can always be relied upon to do its share in such cases.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

No Flies on Vine.

Some time last summer Geo. Vine, while out at his slaughterhouse captured a wild duckling and brought it alive to his market, thinking to let it grow a little more, fat it up, and treat some customers to a nice fat wild duck. He put it in the tank in the front window and quite soon it became very tame and grew nicely. It was not long however before George changed his plan in relation to a roast duck for somebody because the duck became altogether too valuable for that, for the duck had acquired such a habit of catching flies that hardly a fly dares try to make his home in that market. George added two more ducks to the original number and now there are no flies on George.

THE INCOME TAX

Sec. 54. That from and after Jan. 1, 1895, and until Jan. 1, 1900, there shall be assessed, levied, collected and paid annually upon the gains, profits and income received in the preceding calendar year by every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad, and every person residing therein, whether such gains, profits or income be derived from any kind of property, rents, interest, dividends or salaries, or from any profession, trade, employment or vocation carried on in the United States or elsewhere, or from any other source whatever, a tax of 2 per cent on the amount so derived over and above $4,000, and a like tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually upon the gains, profits and income from all property owned, and of every business, trade or profession carried on in the United States by persons residing without the United States. And the tax herein provided for shall be assessed by the commissioner of internal revenue and collected and paid upon the gains and profits and income for the year ending Dec. 31 next preceding the time for levying, collecting and paying said tax.

Sec. 55. That in estimating the income of any person there shall be included all income derived from interest upon notes, bonds and other securities, except such bonds of the United States, the principal and interest of which are by the laws of their issuance exempt from all federal taxation; profits realized within the year from sales of real estate purchased within two years previous to the close of the year for which income is estimated; interest received or accrued upon all notes, bonds, mortgages or other forms of indebtedness bearing interest, whether paid or past due and collectible, less the interest which has become due from said persons and has been duly paid by him during the year; the amount of all premium on bonds, notes or coupons; the amount of sales of live stock, cattle, sheep, horses, mules, cheese, pork, beef, mutton or other meats, hay, wool, hides, poultry, eggs, milk, butter, tallow, skins, being the growth or produce of the estate of such person, less the amount expended by such person in the purchase of said stock or produce, and not including any part thereof consumed directly by the household; money and the value of all personal property acquired by gift, bequest, devise or descent; the gains and profits derived from any private business carried on; that portion of the salary, compensation or pay received for services in the civil, military, naval or other service of the United States, including senators, representatives and delegates in Congress, from which the tax has been withheld; and the gains and profits of any salary upon which the employer is required by law to withhold, and the tax withheld the tax and paid the same to the officer authorized to receive it; the amount received by the assured, or his executors or administrators, arising from any business, premium or insurance, which shall be deducted and paid as interest upon or paid within the year by such person or existing indebtedness. And all national, state, county, school and municipal taxes, not including those assessed against local benefits, shall be deducted and be deducted from the gains, profits and income of the person for whom actually paid the same, whether such person be owner, lessee or mortgagor. Also loss actually sustained during the year, incurred in trade or arising from fires, storms or shipwreck, and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, and debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the year; provided, that no deduction shall be made for any sum paid out for new buildings, permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

Provided further, That no deduction of more than $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of all the members of any family, composed of one or both parents, and one or more minor children or husband and wife; that deduction shall be made only once; and in the case of widows each and every ward, except that in case of the remarriage of any such widow the second or new family and their property interests, the aggregate deduction for such family shall not exceed $4,000, and provided further, that in cases where the salary or other compensation paid to any person in the employ or service of the United States shall not exceed $4,000 per annum, or shall be lost by fire, confiscation or irregular in the amount or in the time of payment, such person shall have accrued or lost, and no salary, gratuity or other compensation shall be included in estimating the income of any person in the employ of the person to whom the same shall have been paid, and provided that portion of the salary or salary upon which a tax has been withheld by the employer, and where the employer is required by law to pay to the excess over $4,000 provided also, that in estimating the income of any person operating a company or association, there shall not be included the amount paid to any corporation, company or association, as dividends upon the capital stock of such corporation, company or association, if the amount of such tax has been paid upon its net profits by such corporation, company or association as required by this act.

Sec. 56. That it shall be the duty of all persons liable to and having an income of more than $4,000 for the taxable year, computed on the basis prescribed by this act, to render a list or statement on or before the day prescribed by law, to such form and manner as may be directed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, to the collector or deputy collector at the district in which they reside, or if they reside elsewhere in the United States or is aforesaid, and all guardians and trustees, executors, administrators, agents, receivers, and all persons or corporations having the control, custody, charge, management or disposal of property, shall make and render a list or return, as aforesaid, to the collector or deputy collector of the district in which such person, ward, estate or property resides or does business, of the amount of income, profits or gains of any such person or persons, and pay the tax thereon, less such part thereof as may lawfully be withheld by the person making such return; and in case any person, guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, agent, receiver or corporation shall refuse or neglect to make and render such list or return, or shall render a false or fraudulent list or return, the collector or deputy collector shall require such list or return to be made and sworn to by such person or persons, and add thirty per centum to the amount of the tax with which such person is justly chargeable by such false or fraudulent list or return; and the additions thereto as a penalty in such case, and in all cases of neglect to render a list or return as aforesaid, and the additions thereto as a penalty in such cases, shall be collected in the manner provided in other cases of willful neglect or refusal to render a list or return or of rendering a false or fraudulent return.

Provided, That any person or corporation in his, her or their behalf, or agent, executor, fiduciary, shall be permitted to declare, under oath or affirmation, the form and manner of which shall be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, that he, she or his, her or their principal is not possessed of an income sufficient to be assessed according to the provisions of this act, and that he, she or they have not, or has not, or their or his ward or beneficiary has been assessed for the payment of an income tax otherwise for the same year by the authority of the United States, upon all his, her or its income, or profits and gains upon oil in the income, gains or profits for which he, she or they is, are or shall be liable, as prescribed by law; and if the collector or deputy collector shall be satisfied of the truth of such declaration, such person or corporation shall be thereupon be exempt from income tax in the said district for that year; or if the collector in turn of any person or corporation, company or association liable to pay income tax, or the collector or deputy collector, such person or corporation, company or association shall be permitted to make return and payment of the tax to be assessed, but such proof shall not be considered as conclusive of the facts, and no deductions claimed in such cases shall be made or allowed until approved by the collector or deputy collector.

Any person or company, corporation or association feeling aggrieved by the decision of the assessor within any such case may appeal to the collector of the district, and his decision in cases appealed by the commissioner of internal revenue, shall be final. If dissatisfied with the decision of the commissioner in any case of corporation, company or association may submit the case, with all the papers bearing upon the question, to the secretary of the treasury, whose decision, and may furnish the testimony of witnesses to prove any relevant facts, having served notice to that effect upon the collector of the district, and the commissioner of internal revenue, at least ten days before the time and place at which, and the officer before whom, such testimony is to be taken, and the commissioner and assessor of internal revenue shall be entitled to be present at the taking of such testimony, and to cross-examine the witnesses, with the assistance of the assistance of the solicitor of internal revenue, if he shall be present at the time fixed for taking the depositions or affidavits.

Witnesses summoned before the collector or assessor appointed by him to hear any question, company or association for such testimony shall be entitled to the same fees as witnesses in courts of record, and collectible, but the interest which has become due from said persons and has been duly paid by him during the year; the amount of all premium on bonds, notes or coupons; the amount of sales of live stock, cattle, sheep, horses, mules, cheese, pork, beef, mutton or other meats, hay, wool, hides, poultry, eggs, milk, butter, tallow, skins, being the growth or produce of the estate of such person, less the amount expended by such person in the purchase of said stock or produce, and not including any part thereof consumed directly by the household; money and the value of all personal property acquired by gift, bequest, devise or descent; the gains and profits derived from any private business carried on; that portion of the salary, compensation or pay received for services in the civil, military, naval or other service of the United States, including senators, representatives and delegates in Congress, from which the tax has been withheld; and the gains and profits of any salary upon which the employer is required by law to withhold, and the tax withheld the tax and paid the same to the officer authorized to receive it; the amount received by the assured, or his executors or administrators, arising from any business, premium or insurance, which shall be deducted and paid as interest upon or paid within the year by such person on existing indebtedness. And all national, state, county, school and municipal taxes, not including those assessed against local benefits, shall be deducted and be deducted from the gains, profits and income of the person for whom actually paid the same, whether such person be owner, lessee or mortgagor. Also loss actually sustained during the year, incurred in trade or arising from fires, storms or shipwreck, and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, and debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the year; provided, that no deduction shall be made for any sum paid out for new buildings, permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

Provided further, That no deduction of more than $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of all the members of any family, composed of one or both parents, and one or more minor children or husband and wife; that deduction shall be made only once; and in the case of widows each and every ward, except that in case of the remarriage of any such widow the second or new family and their property interests, the aggregate deduction for such family shall not exceed $4,000, and provided further, that in cases where the salary or other compensation paid to any person in the employ or service of the United States shall not exceed $4,000 per annum, or shall be lost by fire, confiscation or irregular in the amount or in the time of payment, such person shall have accrued or lost, and no salary, gratuity or other compensation shall be included in estimating the income of any person in the employ of the person to whom the same shall have been paid, and provided that portion of the salary or salary upon which a tax has been withheld by the employer, and where the employer is required by law to pay to the excess over $4,000 provided also, that in estimating the income of any person operating a company or association, there shall not be included the amount paid to any corporation, company or association, as dividends upon the capital stock of such corporation, company or association, if the amount of such tax has been paid upon its net profits by such corporation, company or association as required by this act.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.

The following additional requirements of revenue law are of importance:

Internal Revenue Stamps.

It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue, to whom any tax stamps for any taxes other than the tax represented by an adhesive stamp is required by law to be used under the provisions of this act, to give to the person making such purchase a full written or printed receipt, expressing the date of purchase and the particular kind or kinds of stamps purchased, and where such receipt is required by any collector shall, if required, give a separate receipt for each and every separate sum paid by any collector, on account of payments made by him to the collector, and the collector shall be authorized to require of the collector or deputy collector such receipts and such receipts shall be sufficient evidence in favor of such collector or deputy collector, such person or corporation, company or association shall be permitted to make return and payment of the tax to be assessed, but such proof shall not be considered as conclusive of the facts, and no amount therein expressed from his next payment to his creditor, but such creditor shall upon giving to his debtor a full written receipt, acknowledging the payment to him of whatever sum may be actually paid, and accepting the amount of tax paid as aforesaid, in full satisfaction of the debt to that amount, requiring the receipt to be given to the debtor.

Playing Cards.

On and after Aug. 1, 1894, there shall be levied, collected and paid, in addition to existing taxes, a tax of 2 cents for and upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than 52 cards, manufactured and sold or removed, and upon every pack or parcel of playing cards sold or on and after that date, and the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall make regulations as he may deem necessary.

Goods Made by Convict Labor.

All goods, wares, articles and merchandise manufactured wholly or in part in any foreign penal institution shall not be admitted to and be entitled to entry at any of the ports of the United States, and the importation thereof is hereby prohibited, and the secretary of the treasury is authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of this provision.

Imports of Cigars.

Sec. 2304 of the revised statutes is amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 2304. No cigars shall be imported unless in packages containing not less than one hundred cigars each; and the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to prevent the fraudulent importation of cigars in packages of less number. Every package of cigars imported shall be plainly marked, labeled or stamped on the outside of the package, in such manner as the secretary of the treasury may by regulation prescribe, with the name of the country of which the cigars are the growth or manufacture, and any package not so marked, labeled or stamped shall be subject to a penalty of $100, to be paid by the consignee, importer or owner of the cigars, or any of them.

Value of Foreign Coins.

The value of foreign coins as expressed in the money of account of the United States shall be that which is certified by the director of the mint to be the par of exchange of the standard coins of the countries respectively from which they are derived, and which quarterly shall be certified by the director of the mint, and he proclaimed by the secretary of the treasury immediately upon the passage of this act, and thereafter quarterly on the first days of January, April, July and October in each year. And the values so proclaimed shall be the values at which the custom officers shall receive all foreign coins tendered in payment of duties.

Coins of the Philippine Islands, Mexico, the Central American States, and of South American States, except Peru, and of the British North American possessions, shall not be received in payment of duties.

MINNESOTA RELIEF.

STATE BOARD TELLS WHAT HAS AND WHAT SHOULD BE DONE.

About 800 Worthy Families Must Be Provided For All Winter, or Placed on Their Farms With Means to Provide For Themselves—Public Address by the Minnesota Relief Board.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—The state relief board, appointed by Governor Nelson to look after destitute people in the fire district at Hinckley and vicinity, has published a statement telling what has been done, and what should be done in the future for the poor people. The address says:

The work of searching for and burying the dead has now been practically completed. The devastated district has been thoroughly explored by trained woodsmen and possibly all the dead have been found and buried.

Hundreds of People to Provide For.

Twelve hundred people from Hinckley, Sandstone and other parts found refuge at Duluth, where their immediate wants have been most generously met by the citizens. About 500 people have been cared for at Pine City, and a large number at Rush City, Mora and Princeton.

Hundreds of people have been left, destitute. To re-establish these people as far as possible in their old homes, and, when not practicable, to locate them elsewhere under such conditions as will enable them to support themselves, will be the endeavor of the Minnesota state commission.

What Is Most Needed.

The fire sufferers may be classified as follows:

First—Single men who need only an outfit of clothing and perhaps a little money to enable them to look for work.

Second—Small farmers, most of whom have bought 40 to 120 acres of land on contract, on which they have paid a small amount. Most of these people want to go back on the land. There are probably 150 of these farmers.

Third—Villagers of Hinckley and Sandstone. Some of these people want to return at once; others may have to seek new homes if the industries at these places are not resumed.

Fourth—Widows with small children who were burned in the smaller towns and villages.

Timber to Rebuild Wrecked People.

The efforts by this fire are an excellent index of people. Their requirements are moderate, but the commissioners find that a very large number of money, clothing and food supplies will be needed. Considerations of labor, hay, oats, barley and especially winter rye, are needed to provide seed and food for stock.

While contributions of material are acceptable, the commission would remind the people of the state that money is the most portable and useful contribution possible. A large proportion of the people are farmers. They must be fitted out with home implements, farming implements and supplies until they can raise a crop, and this will require a large amount of money.

Where to Send Cash or Supplies.

Cash contributions should be sent direct to Kenneth Clark, Hinckley, St. Paul. Those having supplies will notify him and he will send instructions as to shipment. The commission has been designated its secretary, Mr. H. H. Hart, to represent them in a general execution of the work. Communications and matters relating to contributions should be addressed to H. H. Hart, Pine City. The commission will have representatives at Hinckley, Pine City and Duluth.

SITUATION AT HINCKLEY.

No Bodies in the Mill-Pond—Sufferers Thank the Generous Public.

HINCKLEY, Sept. 10.—The mill pond, where many people might have drowned had they gone there for safety during the fire, has been searched. No bodies were found.

It seems almost certain that the list of fatalities will be below 60.

When work of interment in Hinckley cemetery was completed four 60-foot trenches contained all that is left of 172 persons. Sixty-five persons were buried without anything in the shape of casket or box. Some boxes contained seven bodies. The total death list of Hinckley in all probability is about 375.

Chairman Davis of the Hinckley relief corps has charge of all persons, especially women and children and disabled men, kept from Hinckley until suitable quarters are provided for them, which will be in a few days. The erection of new business blocks will be commenced early this week.

The survivors have authorized their village organization to prepare an expression of their deep gratitude to the people all over the United States who have come so generously to the aid of the stricken people.

Five more bodies were found Saturday.

BUILDING STARTED AT SANDSTONE

Sandstone Refugees Leave Duluth to Begin Life Anew.

DULUTH, Sept. 7.—Forty men of families will return to Sandstone at once and begin the work of rebuilding the burned town. Their families will be left here in care of the relief society until the new homes are prepared. A notable relief fund has been sent in by Two Harbors amounting to $823, or equal to a contribution of $1 by every person in the place. The refugees who have been provided for at the churches are now at the Bethel.

General Baker for Congress.

MANKATO, Minn., Sept. 8.—General J. H. Baker was unanimously nominated for congress by the Second district Democratic convention here.

CROPS BURNED IN UPPER COUNTIES

Settlers About Brule in Need of Clothes and Provisions.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 8.—D. J. Fitzgerald of Brule has sent in an appeal for assistance for the settlers in that vicinity. He says they are starving as a result of forest fires which have destroyed their crops. They have been fighting fire day and night and sleeping in holes in the ground least they be surprised and burned also. Post Commander Kennedy turned the matter over to the relief committee and provisions were sent on the first train. The town of Brule is surrounded by fires and the plucky homesteaders are making a fight to save their homes. The Musser-Sauntry Lumber company are heavy losers by fire along Moose river. They lost several camps and logging equipments in addition to many thousands of dollars worth of standing pine.

FIRES CHECKED IN WISCONSIN.

A Heavy Rainfall Reported From Threatened Localities.

CUMBERLAND, Wis., Sept. 8.—The first rain for several weeks fell here during the day, checking the progress of the forest fires and relieving present apprehensions. The relief committee for fire sufferers report new cases of destitution still coming from country districts, where the condition of things is truly terrible.

DON'T NEED ASSISTANCE.

Governor Peck Says Wisconsin Can Take Care of Her Needy.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 8.—When Governor Peck learned that appeal had been made to Acting Mayor McClellan of New York for aid to Wisconsin fire sufferers, he sent the following message:

To Mayor McClellan, New York:

I learn an appeal has been made to you from Wisconsin for aid to fire sufferers. The people of Wisconsin do not ask for aid outside of this state at present. I will care for all sufferers in this state. Please do not issue any appeal at this time.

GEORGE PECK, Governor.

Memorial Services For the Dead.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 12.—Memorial services for the Hinckley victims were held in the open house Sunday evening. The address was by Mr. Knutson, the Hinckley pastor who passed through the fire. A commemoration poem, by John Tatan of St. Paul, was read. Bishop Gilbert of St. Paul, brought tears to the eyes of the audience and thankfulness to their hearts by his address.

St. Paul Murderers Must Be Hanged.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—On Friday, Oct. 19, between the hours of midnight and sunrise, Otto Mühausen and Charles Ernisch, the murderers of William Lambert, will be hanged by the neck until dead in the court house square in Ramsey county.

Governor Nelson has affixed his signature to the death warrants of the two murderers.

Needs of the Wisconsin Destitute.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8.—Reports received at the forest fires relief headquarters in this city indicate that about $40,000 will be required to care for the destitute fire sufferers in this state. Reports received on the 20 additional families near Ashland are in need of food, clothing and shelter.

Fires Stopped in Northwest Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8.—Dispatches from Plainfield, Necedah, Green Bay, Hurley, Junction City, Grand Rapids and other cities indicate a heavy rainfall which has broken the drought and effectually quenched forest fires.

Flour Mill, Warehouse and Grain Burned.

DOWNING, Wis., Sept. 8.—The grist mill here was burned early in the morning. Loss $9,000, fully insured. The fire is thought to be incendiary. All grain in the mill and warehouse was destroyed. The mill was built two years ago.

Destitute People May Become Farmers.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—Mr. James J. Hill has set aside 4,000 acres of land near Hinckley, Minn., to be assigned to those made homeless by the recent forest fires who may wish to take up small farms and cultivate them. These 4,000 acres would furnish 200 farms of 25 acres each, thus accommodating 200 families, or a total of 1,000 people.

TRIAL OF DEBS AND STRIKERS.

Sensational Testimony in the Contempt Cases Now on in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The examination of railway strikers has begun in the trial of American Railway Union officials.

A fireman on the St. Paul road testified that he had left his place because of intimidation, and the conductor on the same line said he was told that if he did not leave his cab he would never get out of Chicago alive.

Messages From Debs Read in Court.

William I. Henry of Kankakee, produced several telegrams he received at Kankakee signed E. V. Debs and read these to the court. The first was received by witness on July 1 and read:

Adopt measures to get Big Four out. Promise protection to all, whether members or not. Appoint good committee and have board of clairns.

Straight Democrats in South Dakota.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Sept. 8.—In the Democratic state convention the proposition to fuse on congressman was defeated and nominations were made as follows: For Governor, A. Lovell Hinton, and Andrew F. Couner of Hot Springs.

James A. Ward, of Pierre, is the nominee for governor.

K. of P. Ritual in English Only.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The much-mooted German question has been decided by the supreme lodge of the K. of P. by a decisive vote against permitting the use of the ritual in other than the English language.

NAILING THE LIES.

THE MARKETS OF THE WORLD AND THE DEMOCRATIC THEORY.

American Markets Are Worth $4,000,000,000 More Than All Others—Free Traders Want to Give Them Away—We Would Lose For Foreigners to Gain.

The removal of the free trade party's destructive free raw material wavery against American industries naturally calls to mind their old theory of the markets of the world, and how great a gain it will be if we can only secure them. Let us look into it.

The total manufactures of the United States in 1890, according to the last census returns, amounted in value to $9,054,486,387, of which we exported to the value of $161,102,275, leaving $8,893,332,961 worth of American manufactured goods consumed at home, as follows:

AMERICAN MANUFACTURES.

Total United States manufactures, 1890	$9,054,486,387
Total exported, 1890	161,102,275
Total home consumption, 1890	$8,893,332,961

In the same way we must deal with our farm products, the total value of which during 1890, consumed in 1890, was $2,460,107,454. We exported to the extent of $233,141,490, leaving about the same farm products worth $1,927,065,964 consumed by Americans. Thus:

AMERICAN FARM PRODUCTS.

Total farm products, 1890	$2,460,107,454
Total exported, 1890	533,141,490
Total home consumption, 1890	$1,927,065,964

We see thus the American people consumed American manufactured goods and farm products in 1890 to the extent of $10,831,298,925. To this we must add the value of foreign goods entered for consumption through our custom department, which amounted to $973,674,879 in 1890, thereby getting the following aggregate value of the entire

AMERICAN CONSUMPTION IN 1890.

American manufactures consumed	$8,893,332,961
American farm products consumed	1,927,065,964
Foreign goods	973,674,879
Total American consumption	$11,694,073,757

Against this aggregate consumption of goods in the United States, worth $11,694,073,757 in the year 1890, or $178.52 for every man, woman and child of a population of 65,000,000 people, what was the great market of the world that we may expect to secure?

The markets of the world comprise only such goods as are imported by the different countries of the world, because we cannot claim to supply them with what they already manufacture or grow in their own countries unless they propose free trade, in the Democratic party would have us do. They are not so foolish, however. Other countries prefer to retain what they already possess rather than throw away the substance for the shadow. We find, from the American Almanac of 1893, that the total imports of all other countries in the world at the latest date for which complete returns are available were as follows:

TOTAL FOREIGN IMPORTS.

Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America, Australasia and the islands of the globe	$7,570,000,000
This is less by over $4,000,000,000 than the total consumption of goods in the United States. Thus:
Total United States consumption, 1890	$11,694,073,757
Total imports, all other countries, 1890	7,569,000,000
United States market excess	$4,038,073,757

The policy of the free trade party is to throw our American markets, worth $11,694,073,737 in 1890—open to the competition of the farmers and manufacturers of all other countries, while we strive to secure their markets, all of which put together are worth $4,038,073,737 less than our own home market.

Is it not best to retain the good home market that we already possess, also striving to cause buying the $778,674,879 worth of foreign goods that we consume, and to produce these goods for ourselves, if we can, rather than to throw away what we are sure of and take chances in securing a portion of the smaller markets of the rest of the world in open competition with the cheap labor of Europe, of Asia, of Africa, of Canada, of Central and South America, and of the savage labor of the islands of the sea?

Such is the policy of protection. But the free trade policy is to give our markets to the cheap labor of countries and to compete with the cheap labor in their smaller markets. We already consume over $4,000,000,000 worth of goods more than they can buy from us. Let us keep our own trade first. Always vote for protection.

CHARLES R. BUCKLAND.

Average Rate of Duty.

Free traders lose no opportunity to misrepresent the McKinley act and to bewail its high rates of duty whereas they are not high. An exact statement of the average rate of duties on all importations since 1861 is given below, and it should be preserved by every one:

AVERAGE AD VALOREM RATES PER CENT OF DUTY ON ALL IMPORTATIONS.

Year.	Per Cent.
1861	18.5
1862	36.0
1863	47.0
1864	47.0
1865	48.0
1866	48.0
1867	46.0
1868	46.0
1869	46.0
1870	46.0
1871	44.0
1872	44.0
1873	44.0
1874	44.0
1875	44.0
1876	44.0
1877	44.0
1878	44.0
1879	44.0
1880	44.0
1881	44.0
1882	44.0
1883	44.0
1884	44.0
1885	44.0
1886	44.0
1887	44.0
1888	44.0
1889	44.0
1890	44.0
1891	44.0
1892	44.0
1893	44.0
1894	44.0

It will be seen that during the three years under the McKinley law the rate has been lower than in any year since 1861.

Proof of Solomon's Wisdom.

Solomon said, "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn." This was Solomon's way of forecasting the difference between Republican and Democratic times.—Indianapolis Journal.

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY!

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headaches, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the ideas, etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nervous energy. Indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach, etc., arise from the same cause. One nerve center supplies the stomach with nerve fluid or force. This is frequently cause of many diseases of the heart. The nerve system is like a telegraph system, as will be seen by the accompanying cut.

The Brain is the battery, the nerves convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body, just as the electric current is conveyed by the wires of the telegraph system, large or small. Ordinary physicians fail to regard this fact, hence the many cases of treatment for diseases of the stomach, when they treat the part affected.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a remedy acting directly on the nerve centers, and is especially recommended for all nervous diseases, such as headache, dizziness, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dullness, hysteria, mental depression, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

Dr. Miles' Nervine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by Frederick Ostrom, as mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment dated the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, Minnesota, on the 27th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in book 63 of mortgages on page 307 and 308, which said mortgage bears date the 20th day of August, 1892, and mortgages lots one (1) and two (2) in block one hundred and fifty-one (151) in the town of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, according to the plat of said town on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in book 29 of mortgages, on pages 5 and 6.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $600.00 payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten (10) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and two (10) coupon interest notes, all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the American Loan and Trust Company, trustee, by written assignment dated the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in book 63 of mortgages on page 310.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $600, and the interest thereon, according to the conditions of said note and mortgage, and the whole principal sum of $600 and interest from the 20th day of August, A. D. 1893, is now due and payable and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $666.00, principal and interest, and $25.75 interest upon said principal sum from the date of this notice to the day of sale, and $25.00 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage, and no proceedings have been had to collect the same except to foreclose same by this mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to the American Loan and Trust Company, trustee, by written assignment dated the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in book 63 of mortgages on page 310.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of said principal sum of $600, and the interest thereon, according to the conditions of said note and mortgage, and the whole principal sum of $600 and interest from the 20th day of August, A. D. 1893, is now due and payable and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of $666.00, principal and interest, and $25.75 interest upon said principal sum from the date of this notice to the day of sale, and $25.00 attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage and no proceedings have been had to collect the same except to foreclose same by this mortgage.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises, situated in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southeast quarter (SE¼) of section one (1) in township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres more or less, according to government survey thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk County, Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of October, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock A. MINNESOTA RELIEF.

STATE BOARD TELLS WHAT HAS AND WHAT SHOULD BE DONE.

About 800 Worthy Families Must Be Provided For All Winter, or Virtual Death Faces With Means to Provide, For Themselves—Public Address by the Minnesota Relief Board.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—The state relief board, appointed by Governor Nelson to look after destitute people in the fire district at Hinckley and vicinity, has published a statement telling what has been done, and what should be done in the future for the poor people. The address says:

The work of searching for and burying the dead has now been practically completed. The devastated district has been thoroughly explored by trained woodsmen and possibly all the dead have been found and buried.

Hundreds of People to Provide For.

Twelve hundred people from Hinckley, Sandstone and other parts found refuge at Duluth, where their immediate wants have been most generously met by the citizens. About 600 people have been cared for at Pine City, and a large number at Rush City, Mora and Princeton.

Hundreds of people have been left destitute. To re-establish these people as far as possible in their old homes, and, when not practicable, to locate them elsewhere under such conditions as will enable them to support themselves, will be the endeavor of the Minnesota state commission.

What Is Most Needed.

The fire sufferers may be classified as follows:

First—Single men who need only an outfit of clothing and perhaps a little money to enable them to look for work.

Second—Small farmers, most of whom have bought 40 to 120 acres of land on contract, on which they have also paid a small amount. Most of these people want to go back on the land. There are probably 150 of these farmers.

Third—Villagers of Hinckley and Sandstone. Some of these people want to return to where others may have to seek new homes if the industries at those places are not resumed.

Fourth—Workers with small children who desire to locate in the smaller towns of the state.

How Much Will Be Worthy People.

The sufferers by this fire are an excellent class of people. Their records are complete, and the commission finds that a very large amount of money, building material and supplies will be needed. Contributions of labor, hay, oats, barley and especially winter rye, are needed to provide seed and food for stock.

While contributions of material are acceptable, the commission would remind the people of the state that money is the most portable and useful contribution possible. A large proportion of the people are farmers. They must be fitted out with houses, farming implements and supplies until they can raise a crop, and this will require a large amount of money.

Where to Send Cash or Supplies.

Cash contributions should be sent direct to Kennedy, Clark, treasurer, St. Paul. Those having supplies will notify him and he will send instructions as to shipment. The commission has also appointed its secretary, Mr. H. H. Hart, to represent them in a general execution of the work. All communications not relating to contributions should be addressed to H. H. Hart, Pine City. The commission will have representatives at Hinckley, Pine City and Duluth.

SITUATION AT HINGKLEY.

No Bodies in the Mill-Pond—Survivors Thank the Generous Public.

HINCKLEY, Sept. 10.—The mill pond, where many people sought safety during the fire, has been searched. No bodies were found.

It seems almost certain that the list of fatalities will be below 400.

When work of interment in Hinckley cemetery was completed four 60-foot trenches contained all that is left of 213 persons. Sixty-five persons were buried without anything in the shape of casket or box. Some boxes contained seven bodies. The total death rate for Hinckley in all probability is about 275.

Chairman Davis of the Hinckley relief committee has ordered all persons, especially women and children and disabled men, kept from Hinckley until suitable quarters are provided for them, which will be in a few days. The erection of new business blocks will be commenced early this week.

The survivors have authorized their village organization to prepare an expression of their deep gratitude to the people all over the United States who have come so generously to the aid of the stricken people.

Five more bodies were found Saturday.

BUILDING STARTED AT SANDSTONE

Sandstone Refugees Leave Duluth to Begin Life Anew.

DULUTH, Sept. 7.—Forty men of families will return to Sandstone at once and begin the work of rebuilding the burned town. Their families will be left here in care of the relief society until the new homes are prepared. A notable relief fund has been sent in by Two Harbors amounting to $913, or equal to a contribution of $1 by every person in that village. The pledges which have been made for the relief of the churches around at the Scene.

General Harrison Convinced.

MANKATO, Minn., Sept. 10.—General J. H. Baker was unanimously nominated for congress, by the Second district Democratic convention here.

CROPS BURNED IN UPPER COUNTIES

Settlers Among Ruins in Need of Clothing and Provisions.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 8.—D. J. Fitzgerald of Brule has issued an appeal for assistance for the settlers in that vicinity. He says they are starving. Nearly a million of forest fires which have destroyed their crops. They have been fighting fire, day and night and sleeping in holes in the ground least they be surprised and burned too. Poor Commissioner Kennedy turned the matter over to the relief committee and provisions were sent on the first train. The town of Brule is surrounded by fires and the lonely homesteaders are making a fight to save their houses. The Mississippi Lumber company there are heavy losers by fire along Moose river. They lost several camps and logging equipments in addition to many thousands of dollars worth of standing pine.

FIRES CHECKED IN WISCONSIN.

A Heavy Rainfall Reported From Threatened Localities.

CUMBERLAND, Wis., Sept. 8.—The first rain for several weeks fell here during the day, checking the progress of the forest fires and relieving present apprehensions. The relief committee and fire sufferers report new cases of destitution still coming from country districts, where the condition of things is truly terrible.

DON'T NEED ASSISTANCE.

Governor Peck Says Wisconsin Can Take Care of Her Needy.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 8.—When Governor Peck learned that appeal had been made to Acting Mayor McClellan of New York for aid to Wisconsin fire sufferers, he sent the following message:

To Mayor McClellan, New York:

I learn an appeal has been made to you from Wisconsin for aid to fire sufferers. The people of Wisconsin do not ask for aid outside of this state at present. I will care for all sufferers in the state. Please do not issue any appeal at this time.

GEORGE PECK, Governor.

Memorial Services For the Dead.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 13.—Memorial services for the Hinckley dead were held in the open house Sunday evening. The address was by Mr. Knutson, the Hinckley pastor who passed through the fire. A commemoration poem, by John Talman of St. Paul, was read. Bishop Gilbert of St. Paul, brought tears to the eyes of the audience and thankfulness to their hearts by his address.

St. Paul Murderers Must Be Hanged.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—Up Friday, Oct. 19, between the hours of midnight and sunrise, Otto Mühlmann and Charles Ernisch, the murderers of William Linchoff, will be hanged by the neck until dead in the court house square in Ramsey county.

Governor Nelson has affixed his signature to the death warrants of the two murderers.

Needs of the Wisconsin Destitute.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8.—Reports received at the forest fire relief headquarters in this city indicate that about $40,000 will be required to care for the destitute fire sufferers in this state. Reports received say the 20 additional families mentioned are in need of food, clothing and shelter.

Fires Stopped in Northwest Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 8.—Dispatches from Plainfield, Necedah, Green Bay, Hurley, Junction City, Grand Rapids and other cities indicate a heavy rainfall which has broken the drought and effectually quenched forest fires.

FLOUR MILL, Warehouse and Grain Burned.

DOWNING, Wis., Sept. 8.—The flour mill here was burned early in the morning. Loss $8,000, fully insured. The fire is thought to be incendiary. All grain in the mill and warehouse was destroyed. The mill was built two years ago.

Destitute Folpin May Become Farmers.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—Mr. James J. Hill has set aside 5,000 acres of land near Hinckley, Minn., to be assigned to those made homeless by the recent forest fires who may wish to take up small farms and cultivate them. These 5,000 acres would furnish 200 farms of 25 acres each, thus accommodating 200 families, or a total of 1,000 people.

TRIAL OF DEBS AND STRIKERS.

Sensational Testimony in the Contempt Cases Now on in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The examination of railway strikers has begun in the trial of American Railway Union officials.

A fireman on the St. Paul road testified that he had left his place because of intimidation, and the engineer on the train with whom he was told that if he did not leave his cab he would never get out of Chicago alive.

NAILING THE LIES.

THE MARKETS OF THE WORLD AND THE DEMOCRATIC THEORY.

American Markets Are Worth $4,000,000,000 More Than All Others—Free Traders Want to Give Ours Away—We Would Lose For Foreigners to Gain.

The renewal of the free trade party's destructive fray, raw material swept against American industries naturally calls to mind their old theory of the markets of the world, and how great a gain it will be if we can only secure them. Let us look into it.

The total manufactures of the United States in 1890, according to the last census returns, amounted in value to $9,054,438,287, of which we exported to the value of $161,103,876, leaving $8,893,334,961 worth of American manufactured goods consumed at home, as follows:

AMERICAN MANUFACTURES.

Total United States manufactures, 1890	$9,054,438,287
Total exported, 1890	161,103,876
Total home consumption, 1890	$8,893,334,961
Total home consumption, 1880	4,232,325,443
Increase in ten years	$4,661,009,518

In the same way we must find principal our farm products, the total value of which during 1889, consumed in 1890, was $9,460,107,484. We exported to the extent of $689,141,400, leaving American farm products worth $1,927,965,964 consumed by Americans.

AMERICAN FARM PRODUCTS.

Total farm products, 1895	$9,460,107,484
Total exported, 1889	689,141,400
Total home consumption, 1890	$8,827,965,964

We see that the American people consumed American manufactured goods and farm products in 1890 to the extent of $10,821,300,925. To this we must add the value of foreign goods entered for consumption through our customs department, which amounted in 1890 to $774,812 in 1890, thereby getting the following aggregate value of the entire

AMERICAN CONSUMPTION OF GOODS.

American manufactures	$8,893,334,961
American farm products	1,927,965,964
Foreign goods	774,874,812
Total American consumption	$11,594,975,737

Against this aggregate consumption of goods in the United States, worth $11,604,975,737 in the year 1890, or $92 per capita for every woman and child of a population of 65,000,000 persons, what are the great markets of the world that we may contest for supply?

The markets of the world comprise only such goods as are imported into the different countries of the world, because we cannot claim to supply them with what they already manufacture or grow in their own countries unless they propose free trade as the Democratic party would have us do. Exports are not so foolish, however. Other countries prefer to retain what they already possess rather than throw away their inheritance for the shadow. We find, from The American Almanac of 1888, that the total imports of all other countries in the world at the latest date for which complete returns are available were as follows:

TOTAL FOREIGN IMPORTS.

Europe, Asia, Africa, Australasia and South America, Australasia and the Islands of the sea	$7,520,000,000

This is less by over $4,000,000,000 than the total consumption of goods in the United States. Thus:

Total United States consumption, 1890	$11,604,975,737
Total imports, all other countries, 1888	7,520,000,000
United States market excess	$4,084,975,737

The policy of the free trade party is to throw our American market—worth $11,604,975,737 in 1890—open to the competition of the farmers and manufacturers of all other nations, while we strive to secure their markets, all of which put together are worth $4,084,975,737 less than our own home market.

Is it not best to retain the home market that we already possess, also striving to cease buying the $773,874,812 worth of foreign goods that we consume, and to produce these goods for ourselves, if we can, rather than to throw away what we are sure of and take chances in securing a portion of the smaller markets of the rest of the world in open competition with the cheap labor of Europe, of Asia, of Africa, of Canada, of Central and South America, and of the savage labor of the islands of the sea?

Such is the policy of protection. But the free trade policy is to give our markets to the cheap labor countries and to compete with the cheap labor in their smaller markets. We already consume over $4,000,000,000 worth of goods more than they can buy from us. Let us keep our own trade first. Always vote for protection.

CHARLES R. BUCKALEW.

Average Rate of Duty.

Free traders lose no opportunity to misrepresent the McKinley act and to misstate all high rates of duty, whether they are not high. An exact statement of the average rates of duties on all importations since 1861 is given below, and it should be preserved by every one:

AVERAGE AD VALOREM RATES PER CENT OF DUTY ON TOTAL IMPORTATIONS.

Year.		Year.
1861	19.08	1878	27.18
1862	32.28	1879	33.97
1863	47.56	1880	29.06
1864	35.97	1881	29.75
1865	47.03	1882	29.34
1866	44.56	1883	29.82
1867	44.56	1884	30.03
1868	44.06	1885	30.42
1869	45.73	1886	30.07
1870	38.24	1887	31.09
1871	38.24	1888	30.94
1872	40.43	1889	30.96
1873	29.56	1890	30.04
1874	29.56	1891	29.44
1875	28.09	1892	25.25
1876	27.46	1893	26.69
1877	29.97	1894	27.18

The average rate of duty during the 33 years under the McKinley law that has been lower than in any year under the Democratic tariff of 1857.

Protection is the policy of Republicanism and is written in the platform of the party, and it is the policy to which the people will look for relief from the present financial stringency.

This was Solomon's way of forecasting the difference between Democratic and Republican policy.

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY!

A Great Mistake.

"A great discovery in the bioclinic business; dullness; contagion of the blues etc., due to derangement of the nervous centers which supply the brain with nerve force; the indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, and all nervous diseases of the heart and liver. The nerve system is like a telegraph system as will be seen by the accompanying illustration. The brain is the battery which generates the nerve force; the nerves from the various parts of the body are the wires which conduct the force to every part of the body, large or small. Ordinary disturbance fails to reach, in fact, the nerve centers for the cause of the disturbance arising therefrom. Dr. Miles' Nervine does reach the seat of the trouble. Restorative Nervine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by Daniel Adams and Hilda Adams, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, to the Northwestern Guaranteed Loan Company, a corporation, duly organized under the laws of the state of Minnesota, which said mortgage bears date the 26th day of September, A. D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in book 28 of mortgages, on page 12 &c.

And whereas, the said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $450.00, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten (10) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, and whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal sum of said mortgage and in the payment of the interest thereon, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the debt thereby secured to Andrew E. Downey, of Hot Springs, Fall River county, South Dakota, by assignment dated the 2d day of June, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county, Minnesota, on the 2d day of June, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 83 of mortgages, on page 427.

And whereas, said assignee has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole of said principal sum of $450.00 and the interest thereon due and payable, and has caused to be given to the said mortgagor the notice required by the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises conveyed by the sheriff of said county to the highest bidder for cash at public vendue, to be held at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota, on the 17th day of October, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption within one year from the day of such sale, as by law provided, which premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-three (23), and the southwest quarter (¼) of the southwest quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24), all in township one hundred forty-one (141) north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing forty acres more or less, according to government survey. Dated this 2d day of August, A. D. 1894.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and debt to the undersigned, Angus G. Bredin, by assignment dated the 2d day of August, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county, Minnesota, on the 2d day of August, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 83 of mortgages, on page 428.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises conveyed by the sheriff of said county to the highest bidder for cash at public vendue, to be held at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota, on the 17th day of October, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption within one year from the day of such sale, as by law provided, which premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-three (23), and the southwest quarter (¼) of the southwest quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24), all in township one hundred forty-one (141) north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing forty acres more or less, according to government survey. Dated this 2d day of August, A. D. 1894.

D. 1889, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., and is recorded in book 28 of mortgages, on page 12 &c.

And whereas, the said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $450.00, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of ten (10) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of said mortgage, and whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal sum of said mortgage and in the payment of the interest thereon, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the debt thereby secured to Andrew E. Downey, of Hot Springs, Fall River county, South Dakota, by assignment dated the 2d day of June, A. D. 1894, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county, Minnesota, on the 2d day of June, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 83 of mortgages, on page 424.

And whereas said assignee has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole of said principal sum of $450.00 and the interest thereon due and payable, and has caused to be given to the said mortgagor the notice required by the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the following described premises conveyed by the sheriff of said county to the highest bidder for cash at public vendue, to be held at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, Polk county, Minnesota, on the 17th day of October, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption within one year from the day of such sale, as by law provided, which premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-three (23), and the southwest quarter (¼) of the southwest quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24), all in township one hundred forty-one (141) north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing forty acres more or less, according to government survey. Dated this 2d day of August, A. D. 1894.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

GRAND ARMY VETERANS IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF PITTSBURG.

Parades Monday and Tuesday Were Grandly Successful—Decorations and Display of Patriotism Never Outdone. 200,000 People Present.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 10.—The full forces of the Grand Army of the Republic are in full control of the city in possession.

The parade of naval veterans took place Monday morning. Over 1,000 men, under command of Rear Admiral J. B. Osborn were in line.

Historic Relics of Naval Warfare.

In the parades were carried many historic relics of naval warfare, among them the torn and stained banner which floated over the good old Kearsage when she added lustre to the American standard on the high seas.

Miss Carrie Lowe, daughter of General A. A. Lowe, of Fort Worth, Texas, was in the parade carrying the colors of the Dupont Naval association of Texas. She was the lone representative of the Lone Star state in the parade of the salts, and her appearance elicited unbounded enthusiasm.

Old Salts Had a Mascot.

The column was reviewed by the national officers from a stand on Cedar avenue, Allegheny.

Miss Daisy Tibbs of Cincinnati, was the mascot of the naval veterans in the parade. She was dressed in the regulation sailor uniform and marched beside Admiral Osborn, acting as his messenger. Miss Tibbs has been the mascot of the organization since its inception, and is a general favorite among the tars.

The naval veterans went into their annual convention Monday afternoon. Thirty-four associations were represented. F. B. Allen, of Hartford, Conn., was elected grand commander.

FORTY THOUSAND IN LINE.

The G. A. R. Parade Proud of a Grand Success.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—Forty thousand veterans who fought to save the Union marched through the streets of Pittsburg and Allegheny Tuesday. The old familiar tunes to which they sang in their comrades marched to victory or to death filled the air and echoed back from the surrounding hills. This is probably the last big parade of the G. A. R., as the officers are contemplating abandoning this feature of the regular encampment owing to the age of many of the veterans and the hardships attending a long march on a hot day. The decorations along the line of march were never surpassed, every building having a profusion of flags and bunting.

DISASTROUS RAIN AND WIND STORM

Portions of Iowa, Illinois and Indiana Visited.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—A severe electrical storm, accompanied by high winds, passed over Northeastern Iowa, Northern Illinois and Indiana during the evening, accompanied by heavy thunder and lightning and torrents of rain and hail. Marshalltown, Clinton and Davenport, Ia., report considerable damage, numerous buildings and trees being struck by lightning and telegraph and telephone poles prostrated. Similar reports come from Rochelle, Spring Valley, Bloomington, Galesburg, Elgin and other Illinois towns, and from Columbia City, Fort Wayne and South Bend, Ind.

In this city numerous streets were flooded through the choking of sewers and numerous roofs torn and small outbuildings were blown down.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

Republicans Make But a Slight Gain Over Last Year.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 10.—Returns received by The News up to 8 p. m. indicate that the Republicans have made but a slight gain in the state over last year. It looks now as if Cleaves (Rep.) will be elected governor by a plurality of 35,000 to 38,000 in a total of 110,000.

Oakes Acquitted of All Charges.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 10.—Master-in Chancery A. L. Cary has filed his report on the matters referred to him for investigation in connection with the Northern Pacific receivership contest. It is a complete victory for the receivers, the master exonerating Thomas F. Oakes from every charge preferred against him, but Henry Villard is found guilty of having made unlawful gains as a director of the Northern Pacific, amounting to over $800,000.

Prison Warden's Association.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 12.—The Prison Warden's association of the United States is in session in this city with wardens from all the prominent penal institutions in the country in attendance. Prison discipline was the principal topic of discussion.

Old Minneapolis Market Burned.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 12.—At 1 a. m. the old city market on Bridge Square, a landmark of the city, was totally destroyed by fire.

LOCOMOTIVE FIREMEN CONVENTION

Membership Reduced by Hard Times, But Finances Are O. K.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—Nearly every railroad in the United States is represented in the fourth biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. The attendance is the largest in the history of the order. The present convention is one of paramount importance to the order from the fact that numerous questions growing out of the recent boycott and the attitude of the American Railway union toward this and other railway organizations that preserved an independent course during the recent troubles are to be considered, while the future course of the organization towards similar movements will be clearly defined.

Secret Meetings, With Passwords, Etc.

The convention will last for fully a week, and the business will be transacted in executive session with the usual accessories of passwords, doorkeepers and sentries. The only public meeting of the week took place Monday evening at the Grand Opera House, when the delegates were welcomed in behalf of the city and the local lodges of the order.

At the opening session of the convention Grand Master Sargent delivered a lengthy address, reviewing the progress of the order and the trouble with which it had contended since the last biennial convention.

Total membership Aug. 1 was 26,508. Financially the brotherhood was never in a better condition. The supplies on hand amounts to $77,279.

ARRESTED FOR COUNTERFEITING.

Another Chapter in the Mississippi State Warrant Case.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—District Attorney Dixon has received a copy of the complaint filed before United States Commissioner Crawford at St. Louis against Clarence E. Cheney, president of the Western Bank Note company, and John Homes an engraver of the company, charging them with violating the treasury laws in printing the special warrants for the state of Mississippi. Warrants were sent to Chicago because the defendants both live here. The defendants had previously been apprehension that the government would begin the prosecution, agreed to come in voluntarily and give bail. Commissioner Hoore fixed the bail at $5,000 each and bonds will be given during the day, which will bind the defendants to appear at St. Louis for trial on Nov. 5.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 11.—Governor Stone and all state officials of Mississippi have been arrested by the United States marshal for violating counterfeit laws in issuing $200,000 state warrants.

USED HIS REVOLVER.

John Urich Kills One Man and Seriously Wounds Another.

KANKLEEY, Ills., Sept. 11.—City Marshal Donaldson was fatally shot and M. E. Tobias, clerk for the Star Coal company, seriously wounded by John Urich, a miner. Urich's son law had been placed in the pound and Mrs. Urich attempted to batter down the door and release the animal. The officer and Tobias interfered and as they were leading the woman to the jail Urich drew and emptied a revolver at them, two of the shots taking effect. Urich escaped a posse of 20 men who started in pursuit, and went to Ottawa, Ills., where he gave himself up to Sheriff Taylor.

Has Two Wives Living.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—William H. Jones, a waiter, is under arrest here charged with abducting pretty Angeline Mason, sole heiress to the Sunnyside estate, which includes the Northside resort known as Sunnyside. Jones was employed at the Sunnyside hotel and last August disappeared with the heiress. The pair was located in Montreal and later the girl and Jones, who claimed he married, returned to Chicago and his arrest followed. It is claimed that Jones has two wives living in this city.

Back Pay For Letter Carriers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The claims of the letter carriers for back pay, for which judgments were rendered by the court of claims and for which appropriations were made in the last deficiency bill, are being paid at the treasury department. The vast majority of these claims, however, are still pending before the court of claims, but it is expected that when the court meets again, Oct. 23, judgments in those pending will be quickly rendered, based on the decisions in former cases.

Had Forgotten His Own Name.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Colonel Thomas Jefferson Dolan, the well-known Democratic politician, was found wandering about the streets in a dazed condition during the day and was taken into custody by the police. Dolan had forgotten his own name and will be examined by the insane court.

The Rails Spread.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Spreading of rails caused a serious wreck on the Shell Beach railroad during the evening. Julius Applenaus, aged 16, was almost instantly killed. Willie F. Locke, aged 10, has since died of his injuries, and Engineer Crawford was badly hurt.

Death Warrants Signed.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 11.—The death warrants, ordering the execution of Otto Wenigkeit, alias Otto Milhausen, and Charles Ernisch, were delivered to Sheriff Chapel at 9:40 a. m. A receipt was given by Chief Deputy Irish, and afterwards verified by Sheriff Chapel himself.

Prison Warden's Association.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—The Prison Warden's association of the United States is in session in this city with wardens from all the prominent penal institutions in the country in attendance

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

James Miller is up from Georgetown, Minn., this week.

F. M. Eddy will speak at Beltrami on the evening of the 18th inst.

Jake Andrews who beats the big drum for the Salvation army, starts for Chicago this (Thursday) evening where he goes to perfect himself in his line.

Ole Iverson, of Chippewa county, arrived in Crookston Tuesday morning on his wheel, having ridden over 200 miles. He is visiting Gay and other Halvorsons.

Capt. A. Dunlavy, of Fisher, was a delegate to the democratic convention last week. The Capt. is rejoicing in the sight of a full-fledged democratic ticket in the field.

Lew Gooler, who recently made a trip through eastern part of Marshall county, says that he saw fields near Holt post-office that had yielded 30 bushels of wheat per acre.

Alexander McKinnon went down to St. Paul last week to look after his drainage bill, and luckily/only take in the democratic convention on the side. To say that Mac is pleased with the action of the convention but partly expresses it.

The attendance at the state fair from Polk county this year bids fair to be less than ever before, owing, no doubt to the prevalence of democratic times. In the good old republican days everybody could afford to go and almost everybody did go.

W. W. Fegan drove down to Fisher and Mallory on Monday, looking up horses for the road and securing samples of crops. Among other things, he brought back samples of corn from Joe Jurvals' big corn-field to be seen in the land department of the road at St. Paul.

D. W. and W. S. Hodge, of Buffalo, N. Y., are spending a fortnight out at Maple Lake, fishing, hunting and recreating generally. Thursday noon tone drove them out last week and reports that they were in love with the way and out there. They will carry back a good report of Polk county.

An exchange very pertinently remarks that a newspaper should give its party candidates the same support which it receives from them. A man who does not contribute a cent to and the support of a paper till he is a candidate for office should not expect the editor to waste over $30 worth of space, booming him for the office. Such men are often clumps enough to do it.

On Sunday afternoon, one of our most prominent business men, Mr. Ingvald H. Bjorkman himself out in his very slickest toggery and when the N. P. train came along, quietly boarded the train for Fertile, where, at 6 p. m. on Monday, he was married to Miss Karl Gilbertson, of the town of Garden. The happy couple left Fertile on the Monday's coming train for a brief wedding tour to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Reports from Aitken last Saturday were to the affect that hundreds of tons of hay had been destroyed in that locality by forest fires during the week. As a large portion of this hay was intended for use in the lumber-camps during winter it will have a tendency to create a demand for some of our prairie hay and every farmer who has any should be extremely careful about setting out prairie fires until wet weather comes.

Rudy Burkhardt: "What do you suppose I had nice to eat on Sunday? It was a genuine product of Polk county soil and as you are liable to guess "bunanas" or some other common products of our soil I will tell you. It was watermelons! Indeed a few miles out in the country and as fine as I ever tasted. Far better than those we get that are imported from the south. Weare counting on when we get so that we can raise such things here."

Jo Jarvais was up from Fisher on Saturday talking up politics with his republican brethren. He seems to be a far better practicing than political farmer. He is this week engaged in cutting up 40 acres of the finest corn ever raised in Polk county. This corn is of the Dent variety was planted last of May and finished on June 1st. Notwithstanding the dry season it grew splendid and filled out perfectly and is as good corn as can be produced anywhere in any northern state.

Mr. Edward Lanetot, who owns and cultivates a farm near Gentilly, had as fine a lot of potatoes for sale last Saturday as we ever saw raised in Polk county, and we have seen some elegant tubers produced here. He said that in a dry year like this has been, he always takes especial pains with his potatoes and he thinks that it always pays. His crop is the only one in Polk county this year that will turn out 200 bushel per acre—and even this is smaller than our land can do in ordinary years.

R. A. Whitehead was in the city from St. Paul on Friday.

Mr. Anglim went down to St. Paul last week to attend the democratic state convention.

If you want a choice farm, near the city—price no object, call at this office or write us for terms.

Miss Maude Beams left on Friday morning on the N. P. line for a week's visit with friends at Grand Forks.

Dr. A. Gilmour, of McIntosh who was a delegate to the democratic state convention returned on Friday morning on his way home.

Jack McPhee was up from the Lockhart farm this week. Says he had a yield of 17 bushels of wheat and 30 bushels of oats per acre this year. That is good for as big a farm as the Lockhart.

The JOURNAL has been rushed with job-work for the past ten days or so. Our new job man, Mr. Barker is however able to take care of all that may be offered in the latest styles of the art. Give the JOURNAL job-rooms a trial.

J. E. O'Brien was a delegate to the democratic convention, returning on Friday morning exceedingly well pleased with the work of that august body. He was more than pleased at their action in putting in the field a straight ticket throughout.

Col. Cobban Post intends to add a new member at its last regular, S. W. Freeman, of Fisher, and has three or four more applications upon which favorable action has been taken. As the years roll by, however these services will become fewer and further between, until m/a very few years there will be no more who can be initiated and it will not be many years before the Grand Army itself will be but on historical reminiscence.

That ad of Mr. M. H. (Brown's that for several weeks has been rambling offering "2s and 50 foot lots" for sale is a mistake in heading as to exact size, for every body who has been to see those lots with a view to purchasing has found upon examination that the lots are 25 by 100 feet wide instead of 25 and 50 feet. That any man in these times could offer to sell lots of that size at the prices and on the terms that Capt. Brown quotes, seems to have been beyond the comprehension of the intelligent competitor who naturally concluded that the lots must be the same old size, that is, 25 and 50 and so put it that way. The JOURNAL always delights to give its readers a pleasant surprise and has been able to do so in this case when they find that they can get just twice the size they were expecting to get—and for the same money. There are still a few of those lots left—and bear in mind that they are 50 and 100 feet front!

Kops Bros. sell sheet music at one-half price to all mail fill orders by return mail. A great number of beautiful compositions have recently been written. All of their customers are kept posted regarding la test publications. Musicians both professional and amateur will find it to their advantage to intrust orders for musical supplies of all kinds to Kops Bros., 215 Wabash Ave, Chicago. [21-37]

Any Honest Lady wishing to make $15 per week quietly at her own home, address with stamped envelope, NETA L. WILLARD, Los Angeles, Cal. This offer is bonafide. Work ready to send at once. Steady position. 11.

RESIDENCE PROPERTY. FOR SALE.

I have forty desirable lots in Jerome's addition, which I offer for sale at reasonable prices and on terms to suit purchasers. These lots have 50 and 100 feet frontage, and are situated on high land, where good dry cellars can be got, and an abundance of pure water can be procured at a depth of from 15 to 25 feet. Jerome's addition is the healthiest and pleasantest portion of the city. Not a single case of typhoid fever has ever been reported there, and this is no doubt owing to the good water found everywhere on that addition. For further particulars regarding lots, prices, terms, etc. inquire of or address M. R. BROWN, Crookston, Minn. [19-25]

FATAL FLAMES.

Five Charred Bodies as a Result of a Factory Fire in Washington.

OTHER EMPLOYES MISSING.

The Building Was Five Stories High but Had No Fire Escape.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The most fatal fire of recent years in Washington was the burning of the mattress factory of Stumph & Bros. Four bodies are at the morgue, charred and unclaimed, beyond recognition, one is dead at the hospital, three injured men are at the hospital and there may be others buried under the ruins, as several of the work men are unaccounted for.

Two of the dead at the morgue are now known to be William H. Teunyson, an old man employed in the factory, and Willie Aslo, a boy of 13 years. James F. Vaughn, a clerk, died at the hospital. The others, who are missing, are Henry Fowler, Phillip Ackerman, Robert Reitzel and an old man who has been employed in the factory but a few days and whose name is not remembered by his employer.

Had No Fire Escape.

The factory which is owned by C. Claude and Edward Stumph, stood at the intersection of Seventh and K streets and Massachusetts avenue, a 5-story structure with thin brick walls, windows only at back and front and no fire escape. It was stored with feathers, shavings and other inflammable materials and 20 persons were at work in it, six of whom were young women.

Fifteen minutes before noon fire was discovered in the picking room of the front of the second floor. Almost before the alarm could be given to the workmen, it had spread through the second story and Burst Up the Elevator Shaft.

As the escape of those on the upper floors was cut off they stood in the windows shouting for help, while hundreds on the streets, unable to give them assistance, yelled to them to wait for the hook and ladder company. Three men were soon on the roof, two of them gesticulating frantically, while the other leaned calmly against a chimney waiting. Policeman Flynn found a ladder and with the help of two stalwart men dragged a mattress to the roof of a blacksmith shop beneath the eaves of the factory. While these preparations were under way one of the men jumped from the roof, whirling over and over in the air and striking on his side. A man jumped to the roof and was caught on the mattress, held by Policeman Brown and others. The third leaped headlong so that in the force of his fall he as though it had been a blanket. Other men clung to narrow projections outside the windows until a pile of mattresses had been heaped on the sidewalk and jumped off without sustaining severe injuries.

Twenty minutes after the fire had been discovered the east wall fell, crushing the blacksmith shop, Palmer's oyster house and the horse and cattle feed company's building. Shortly afterwards the other walls tottered and came down, crushing the 3-story brick building of the Woodruff File Holder company. Truman J. Bennett's marble shop and Hall & Comstock's furniture store, a frame building. One fireman and several spectators were hurt by falling brick.

TORNADO IN OKLAHOMA.

Fifty Houses Blown to Atoms and Several People Killed.

PERRY, O. T., Sept. 18.—A tornado passed through Langston and Mining and blew 50 houses to atoms. A young lady and two children were killed and several people injured. Several houses caught fire at Mining and a conflagration followed. The town of Mining is 12 miles from the nearest railroad and particulars cannot be learned.

Fired For Reporting Cruelty.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 18.—Mrs. L. A. Randall, an aged lady who was for a time an inmate of the Home for the Friendless, reports that she was expelled because she reported acts of cruelty on the part of the matron. This cruelty she states was practiced on infants unable to talk. She offered to produce evidence, but no attention was paid to her.

The Pullman Charter Case.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—The Pullman pig warrants proceedings have been again brought into court, and Attorney General Maloney will be given leave to file his information against the Pullman company, without objection from the counsel for the Pullman company.

Postmasters Go Out.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The terms of between 20 and 25 postmasters will expire during next month. It is probable that no action will be taken in any of the cases until Postmaster General Bissell returns from Buffalo. No important cities are included in the list.

CONGRESS MUST ACT,

Before Settlers in Burned Districts Can Cut Timber.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. — Commissioner Lamereaux of the general land office, has been receiving many communications from homesteaders in the burned districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin, concerning pine lands which they have taken, but which have not been finally titled, or in which the title does not rest with the settler. Homesteaders are prohibited from cutting the pine until they acquire complete title. To this they make no objection, except in cases of fire, when the pine must be cut at once or it will lose its value for lumber. In any section where the fire has raged and the bark of the trees is burned, they must be cut the following winter or the worms at once begin their ravages, and by the second winter the trees are almost if not wholly destroyed. The settlers have been inquiring of Commissioner Lamereaux whether the department cannot grant them permits to cut the timber on their land so that it may be saved. The commissioner says that such permission cannot be granted, and congress must act before the settlers whose titles are not yet perfect can cut and save their timber. It is expected a bill will be introduced and an effort be made early in the next session of congress to grant the homesteaders the relief they are asking. Commissioner Lamereaux made a tour of the burned section while he was in the Northwest. He says that there will be extensive lumbering in that section this year, as the owners of all timber lands where the flames swept the country know that they must cut the injured timber in order to save it.

Chicago Relief Fund.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—City Controller Ackermann has received instruction by telegraph to send all relief for the sufferers by the recent fires to Milwaukee for Wisconsin sufferers, and to St. Paul for Minnesota. The total amount received to date is $1,163. Quite a large amount of clothing, shoes, etc., has also been received, probably enough to fill two wagons. The controller has decided to send one-third of the total to the Wisconsin committee and the other two-thirds to the Minnesota committee, as the suffering in the latter state is much greater and more extensive than in Wisconsin.

Over $80,000 Received.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 18.—The total cash subscriptions received by the state and local committees during the day was $6,105.86, making the grand total to date $80,198.77. Cities, towns, firms, societies and individuals, not only all over the state, but from every part of the country, are pouring in their contributions and the work by committees goes on without interruption.

Will Cancel Taxes.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 14.—The state board of equalization has adopted the recommendation of the special committee appointed to investigate into the devastation at Hinckley, Brook Park and Mission Creek, in Pine county, and remitted the bulk of the personal property assessments, amounting to about $30,000.

SPLIT IN THE K. OF P.

Secession of All German Lodges Expected by Monday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Charles Al Lee, supreme representative K. of P., was asked regarding the secession of the German lodge in Indianapolis. He said he was not surprised to hear of it and would not be surprised to hear of 20 more.

"This is America," said Mr. Lee, "and we want our order to be an American order. It will be better for these disaptors to get out of the order if they are not willing to conform to the American style of things. We have over 500,000 members and about 13,000 German members. If those 13,000 German members go out 26,000 new men will come in on the strength of the new rule."

Mr. Lee denied that the last supreme chancellor had affronted the German members and asserted that the new chancellor was in perfect accord with him.

JACKSON'S FORFEIT DOWN.

Last Round in the Windy Pugilistic Battle Finished.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The $10,000 forfeit which Peter Jackson had posted with Will J. Davis for a fight with Corbett, was taken down Wednesday. Jackson and his manager "Parson" Davies, called on Manager Davis at the Columbia theatre, shortly before noon.

"The fight is off," Jackson said, "and I want myatm thousand."

Mr. Davis promptly produced the check, turned it over, and the last round in the windy battle had been finished.

"Jackson will never get a fight with Corbett," said "Parson" Davies, Wednesday. "The big fight will never come off. Jackson will sail for the West Indies at once, and I will go to London. How long he will stay I don't know, but he has given up all hope of meeting Corbett in the ring."

A Mennonite Colony.

DENVER, Sept. 17.—Representatives of the Mennonites from Hays City, Kans., have arrived here on their return from an examination of the San Luis valley. As a result of their visit the party will purchase 10 sections of land, to which 3000 families from Hays City will remove to engage in farming.

LEGISLATIVE CONVENTION.

Republican Candidates Placed In Nomination—The Convention Season Over.

The Republican convention for the 81st legislative district, comprising the counties of Polk, Norman and Beltrami, was held in the court house in Crookston on Saturday last.

The convention was called to order by J. J. McGuire, and John Wright of Norman county was made temporary chairman. W. A. Hammond was elected secretary.

The credentials committee was composed of P. S. Ware, O. A. Thorson and G. W. Roberts, of Polk, and O. H. Auker and H. A. Sorley of Norman, and reported 26 delegates entitled to votes in the convention.

The resolutions committee, consisting of P. J. McGuire, H. A. Sorley, P. S. Ware, John Alderman and O. Walter, reported in favor of delivering resolutions until nominations were made and the report was accepted.

The temporary organization was made permanent, after which nominations were made as follows, all by acclamation:

For Senator—B. Sampson, of Polk.

For Representatives—J. J. Rue, of Norman, P. S. Ware, of Polk; and John Wright, of Norman.

Calls for Ware induced that gentleman to address the hour for a few minutes, during which he thanked the convention for the nomination, and expressed confidence in ability of the Republican party to win in this district.

A legislative committee was appointed as follows: W. A. Hammond, O. A. Thorson, Ira C. Richardson, J. V. Campbell, H. A. Sorley.

After instructing this committee to do possible vanquishing on the legislative ticket, the convention adjourned.

Stanton on Fusion.

At the democratic congressional convention at Fergus Falls last Friday, Mayor Thomas N. McLeod was nominated to lead the forlorn hope. An effort was made by the Pope county delegation to endorse Boen. At this, chairman Irvin M. Stanton called a delegate to the chair and made a vigorous speech against fusion of any kind denouncing the idea and the originators in unmeasured terms:

"If" said he, Democrats should vote for Boen this time, why not next time and so on forever? The great trouble with a certain class of democrats has been that they are more about beating some one than they do for the success of the party principles. If democracy was simply a thing of no duty it would be all right to trade and barter away the positions on our tickets, but the principles of democracy are eternal, and we should do all in our power to adhere to them. We are the party of the national government, and it is our duty to promote the success and permanency of our party.

"In Polk county we have always maintained our organization, and had the pleasure and satisfaction of voting for democrats. The result is that we have one of the best organizations in the state to-day. And if the other counties had pursued the same policy there would be no doubt about carrying the state this fall. We have a splendid state ticket, and we should strengthen it by nominating a good, clean congressional for congress.

Mr. Stanton is the democratic candidate for county attorney in this county, and while some of the democrats have been favorable to fusion in county affairs it would be the master and gives the fusion idea its quietus. Mr. Stanton's ideas upon that question are sound.

Republican Candidate for Congress.

Frank A. Eddy came up on the N. P. road on Tuesday morning from Fertile where he spoke on Monday evening to a good audience and left on the afternoon train where he was to speak on Tuesday evening. He gave the JOURNAL a pleasant call while in the city. Mr. Eddy has met with success since he opened up the campaign and everywhere finds great interest manifested. The people this fall are evidently thinking, and as sure as they do they begin to see that under a republican reign the country enjoyed the greatest prosperity, besides the months of democratic misrule has convinced them that the country needs another change. Mr. Eddy is a plain, practical, matter of fact man, a man of broad views and liberal education and should he be elected as no doubt he will be, we shall have a man here to represent the people of the district. The people are becoming convinced that it is time to call a halt on the state of things that exist under a democratic reign and there will be a wonderful change in the complexion of congress at its next session. The good old Seventh district should fall in line by electing a thorough republican and we think she will do it.

Will Grade Court House Square.

The bids for grading the west side of the Court House square to conform to the grade recently established on Broadway by the city, were opened by County Commissioner M. E. Kirsch Saturday last at 3 p. m.

The following bids were receives:

Thomas Young	15c.	per cubic yard
Thomas Schmidt	12½c.	" " "
William Barin	20½c.	" " "
H. J. & J. A. Castle	20½c.	" " "
McKinnon Bros	18½c.	" " "
Louis Johnson	12c.	" " "

The bid of H. J. & J. A. Castle being the lowest, the commissioner awarded them the contract, which provides that the work must be completed by Oct. 15. This will make a decided improvement in the appearance of the county property, as well as access to the Court house more convenient.

Prison Warden's Association.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.— The Prison Warden's association of the United States is in session in this city with wardens from all the prominent penal institutions in the country in attendance Prison discipline was the principal topic of discussion.

Dr. Black Nominated.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 14.—Democrats of the Fifth district nominated Dr. Henry Blank of Washington county for congress.

An Attorney Shoots Himself.

RICHLAND CENTER, Wis., Sept. 18.—O. F. Black, a prominent attorney, shot himself in his office, the ball taking effect in the head, producing a scalp wound from which it is considered dangerous.

One Dead, Three Injured.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 18.—A premature blast occurred at Honeybrook colliery by which one man was killed and three injured. The men were working on a coal stripping at the time.

Alderman I. U. Jennings left a bruce of prairie chickens at our office on Monday for which he has our thanks. They were fine spring chickens and he had lots more.

C. T. Lanman, of the McIntosh Times, came down on Thursday evening to witness the "large and enthusiastic" county division meeting, wishing of perhaps some one or a dozen people. Wonderful enthusiasm!

When the well at Felix Fournet's new block had reached a depth of 160 feet, a big rock was encountered that called for the use of nitro glycerine. Two charges were used and at each discharge the workmen in that vicinity all thought that an earthquake had struck the country.

Dept. Collector T. B. McMunn came home on Sunday morning from a trip to Wilkin and Ottertail counties. He occupied his time attending democratic convention and hunting blind pigs—and thereby hangs a tale. It is whispered on the q. t. down there that one rosy genial Dept. did was wrested by a slight less swine of the feminine persuasion but Mac aint saying much about that. The story goes that he got wind of a blind pig and when he went to raid it he found a woman, armed and equipped as the law (don't) direct and in the war of words that ensued Mac got the worst of it and he came home and left his pet stuffed owl to the tender mercies of Mac, for once in his life was talked to a stand-still—but then he was not talking politics with her.

THAT DIVISION SCHEME

Is not Such a Beautiful Plan as Some Would Have You Believe.

Farmers Are Not Serving Their Own Interests by Voting.

For a Division of the County of Polk at the Coming Election.

It is the opinion of some who have traveled over the county extensively that the question of division, if it should come before the people today would carry. And the strongest reason given—or rather the excuse oftenest used is "that the people can't stand the exactions of Crookston schemers." The JOURNAL is prepared to accept this view of the case. We do not believe that the average voter is anxious to saddle upon himself a burden of debt, just because he imagines that there is a dishonest man in Crookston, or, as the case may be, several of them. The average voter is not so obtuse that he does not know that a division act men exist every where, and that every new county sent that might be created, would, as soon as it attained any importance whatever be subject to the same objections, in fact they might get some of the very men they now complain of to deal with. When these men of whom they complain are occupants of public office the remedy is plain and simple—instead of getting up all this extra expense to get rid of the bunnacles, why, just simply decline to re-elect them when they show up. However much authority the advocates of division may use to deceive the voters, the have fact is too plain to be mistaken that division if it should take place will cost the average taxpayer at least doubt what he has to pay now. The fact that certain men who are interested in real estate in the villages that expect to be county-seats have put up big money to fight their project through the legislature and are tieming the heavy expense necessary to carry on the work is very significant when you stop to think about it. No one can imagine for a moment that they are doing all that work and spending all that money just to benefit the average taxpayer. They are looking out for their own interests and that is just what the farmers of Polk county should do in this matter which is of so vital importance to them. If they will do that we believe that they will decide that division is not for their benefit—at least not in four counties.

Was it Spite Work?

P. S. Ware informs the JOURNAL that a number of moons ago he presented a bill to the county board. At the first meeting the bill was referred back to him for correction; at the next meeting some other matter was found with it to prevent allowing it and so it has been at each succeeding meeting. Mr. Ware says it looks to us like personal spite work that he will bring an action against the county to recover the amount of his bill. It is singular if our county officials will allow personal spite to interfere with the proper discharge of their sworn duties and put the county to the expense of defending against such and proper bills. It is a prostitution of official duty that calls for investigation and punishment if found to be true.

Free Lectures on the Yakima Valley.

The wonderful fertility of this now farf-famed valley in eastern Washington, on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, under irrigation farming, has attracted widespread attention. Soil, climate and location all unite to make it an ideal spot for the farmer.

Residents of Crookston and surrandingcountry will have an opportunity to hear all about this region. Capt. William Brown will lecture at Crookston on the resources and advantages of irrigation farming on the afternoon and evening of Saturday September 22nd. Admission free, as G. A. R. hall.

Afternoon lecture for country people at 3 o'clock and evening lecture for townspeople at 7 o'clock p. m. Take your wives and go and hear about this Eden.

FAVORABLE TO MINNESOTA.

Report of the British Agricultural Investigators Expected Soon.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 17.—Secretary Scarlett of the board of trade, has received a letter from Ireland, concerning Mr. Anderson, the Irish member of the committee which came to Minnesota from the British Isles, to investigate the agricultural interests of the Northwest. The letter stated that Mr. Anderson was enthusiastic over the prospects and outlook for diversified farming in Minnesota and that he had practically decided to remove to this state with his two sons, and some-in-law. Mr. Anderson is willing to invest $2,000 in the purchase of a farm, provided he can find the land he wants. The letter further stated that the report of the committee may be expected on this side of the water any day. The report is said to be highly favorable to Minnesota.

TWO THOUSAND KILLED.

Japanese Defeat the Chinese in a Bloody Battle.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A dispatch received here gives further details of the capture of Ping Yang by the Japanese forces. After the place fell into the hands of the Japanese a strong party of infantry and cavalry were assigned to the duty of patrolling the town. A search was made in houses for Chinese soldiers and many were found and taken prisoners.

When the Japanese troops made their final assault several thousand of the Chinese defenders threw down their arms and fled panic stricken to the valley northward. The Japanese, however, controlled the entrance to the valley and the fleeing Chinese found their retreat in this direction cut off. Whole regiments seeking to escape from the victorious army were thus compelled to surrender.

Over Two Thousand Killed.

It is now stated that the total number of killed will not exceed 2,200. The remainder of the Chinese army, some 16,000 men, are either wounded and in the hands of the Japanese, or are submit prisoners of war.

The emperor of Japan has telegraphed congratulating the field marshal upon the victory he has achieved over the enemy. The field marshal has issued an order in which he commends the troops for their action.

The dispatch says the Chinese outnumbered the Japanese three to one. The artillery was vastly superior to that of the Chinese. The Japanese flying column is now pushing northward for the purpose of securing the passes and thus preventing the Chinese army from marching within Korea.

ODD FELLOWS IN SESSION.

The Supreme Lodge Meets at Chattanooga Some Reports.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 17.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows is now in session here. After the grand sire's address the report of the grand treasurer was presented, as follows:

Receipts: Cash balance as per last report, $48,078.72; sundry receipts during the year, $74,638.31: total cash received, $108,534.94.

Expenditures during the year, $76,-236.08. Balance in hands of treasurer, $38,281.26.

Assets: The available assets of the Sovereign Grand lodge at this date are as follows:

Cash balance in treasurer's hands, $83,251.25; Lehigh Valley Railroad company 4½ per cent bonds, $15,000; Erie 4 per cent general company 4 per cent bonds, $15,000; total, $53,251.25.

The total available assets as per my report, Aug. 19, 1893, were $76,076.72, showing a loss in assets of $16,825.47.

The total membership of the order in the United States was 780,192 at the close of 1893, or including the states of Rebekah degree, 889,742. Adding some 35,000 members in foreign jurisdictions, shows a total of about 913,000 at the end of 1893.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by James W. Keir and Mary Keir, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, as mortgagors, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, mortgagee, which said mortgage was filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 7th day of February, A. D. 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 7th day of February, A. D. 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 83 of mortgages, on page 216.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $600, payable five (5) years from the date of said mortgage, and interest at the rate of seven per cent (7%) per annum, payable annually, according to the conditions of one (1) certain promissory note and ten (10) certain interest coupons, all bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas the said the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and note to The Commercial Trust Company, a corporation, trustee, by written assignment dated July 23rd, A. D. 1894, and duly recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 83 of mortgages on page 466.

And whereas the said note and mortgage have become wholly due and payable by the terms thereof, and the whole amount due thereon is now due and payable, and there is now due and payable on said note and mortgage the sum of $884.00 being the sum of $600.00 principal and $84.00 interest on said note to the date hereof, and no proceedings at law or otherwise have been had or instituted to collect the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and therein recited, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein and hereby conveyed, viz: The south half of the northeast quarter (S½ of NE¼) of section twenty-three (23), township one hundred forty-six (146) north of northwest range ninety-seven (97) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the United States survey, to satisfy the amount due on said note and mortgage, with interest and taxes, at the front door of the county court house in the city of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of October, A. D. 1894, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to pay and satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and the costs and expenses of the foreclosure, and the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fee as in said mortgage stipulated and agreed to be paid on foreclosure thereof.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

AN ELECTRICAL SLIP.

Public opinion had been triumphantly vindicated. The insanity plea had broken down, and Albert Prior was sentenced to be hanged by the neck until he was dead, and might the Lord have mercy on his soul. Everybody agreed that it was a righteous verdict, but now that he was sentenced they added, "Poor fellow!"

Albert Prior was a young man who had had more of his own way than was good for him. His own family—father, mother, brother and sisters—had given way to him so much that he appeared to think the world at large should do the same. The world differed with him. Unfortunately the first to oppose his violent will was a woman—a girl almost. She would have nothing to do with him and told him so. He stormed, of course, but did not look upon her opposition as serious. No girl in her senses could continue to refuse a young man of his prospects in life. But when he heard that she had become engaged to young Howen, the telegraph operator, Prior's rage passed all bounds. He determined to frighten Bowen out of the place and called at the telegraph office for that laudable purpose, but Bowen was the night operator and was absent. The day man, with a smile, not knowing what he did, said Bowen would likely be found at the Parker place, where Miss Johnson lived with her brother parents being dead.

Prior ground his teeth and departed. He found Miss Johnson at home, but alone. There was a stormy scene, ending with the tragedy. He fired four times at her, keeping the other two bullets for himself. But he was a coward and a cur at heart, and when it came to the point of putting the two bullets into himself he quailed and thought it best to escape. Then electricity did him its first disservice. It sent his description far and wide, capturing him 25 miles from his home. He was taken back to the county town where he lived and lodged in jail.

Public opinion, ever right and all powerful, now asserted itself. The outward and visible sign of its action was an ominous gathering of dark browed citizens outside the jail. There were determined mutterings among the crowd rather than outspoken anger, but the mob was the more dangerous on that account. One man in its midst thrust his enclosed hand toward the sky, and from his hand dangled a rope. A cry like the growling of a pack of wolves went up as the mob saw the rope, and they clamored at the gates of the jail: "Lynch him! Father, give up the keys!" was their cry.

The agitated sheriff knew his duty, but he hesitated to perform it.

But the keys were not given up. The clamor had ceased. A young man with pale face and red eyes stood on the top of the stone wall that surrounded the jail. He held up his hand, and there was instant silence. They all recognized him as Bowen, the night operator, to whom they had been engaged.

"Gentlemen," he cried, and his clear voice reached the outskirts of the crowd, "don't do it. Don't put an everlasting stain on the fair name of our town. No one has ever been lynched in this county, and none in this state so far as I know. Don't let us begin it. If I thought the miserable scoundrel inside would escape —if I thought his murder would help him off—I'd be the man to lead you to batter down those doors and hang him on the nearest tree, and you know it." There were cheers at this. "But he won't escape. His money can't buy him off. He will be punished by the law. Don't think it's mercy I'm preaching; it's vengeance!" Bowen shook his clinched fist at the jail. "That wretch there has been in hell ever since he heard your name. For he is hell, for he's a bastard, until the time his trembling legs carry him to the scaffold. I want him to stay in the hell till he drops through into the other, if there is one. I want him to suffer some of the misery he has caused. Lynching is over in a moment. I want that murderer to die by the slow, merciless cruelty of the law."

Even the worst in the crowd shuddered as they heard these words and realized as they looked at Bowen's face, almost inhuman in its rage, that his thirst for revenge made their own seem almost innocent. The speech silenced the crowd. The man with the rope threw it over into the jail yard, shouting to the sheriff, "Take care of it, old man; you'll need it."

And so it came about, just as Bowen knew it would, that all the money and influence of the Prior family could not help the murderer, and he was sentenced to be hanged on Sept. 21, at 6 a. m. And thus public opinion was satisfied.

But the moment the sentence was announced and the fate of the young man settled a curious change began to be noticed in public opinion. It seemed to have veered round. There was much sympathy for the family, of course. Then there came to be much sympathy for the criminal himself. People quoted the phrase about the worst use a man can be put to. Ladies sent flowers to the condemned man's cell. After all, hanging him, poor fellow, would not bring Miss Johnson back to life. A dozen or few spoke of Miss Johnson; she was forgotten by all but one man, who grounded his rank when he realized the insularity of public opinion.

Petitions were got up, headed by the local clergy. Women begged for signatures and got them. Every man and woman signed them—all except one, and even he was urged to sign by a tearful lady, who asked him to remember that virgin was the name for her.

"But the Lord has his instruments," said Bowen grimly, "and I swear to you, madam, that if you succeed in getting that murderer reprieved I will be the instrument of the Lord's vengeance."

"Oh, don't say that," pleaded the lady. "Your signature would have such an effect. You were noble once and saved him from lynching, be noble again and save him from the gallows."

"I shall certainly not sign. It is, if you will pardon me, an insult to ask me. If you reprieve him, you will make a murderer of me, for I will kill him when he comes out, if it is 30 years from now. You talk of lynching. It is your words, not mine, that make me lynching possible. The people scorn all with you now, more shame to them, but the next murder that is committed will be followed by a lynching just because you are successful today."

The lady left Bowen with a sigh, depressed because of the depravity of human nature, as indeed she had every right to be.

The Prior family was a rich and influential one. The person who is alive has many to help; the one in the grave has few to cry for justice. Petitions calling for money poured in on the governor from all parts of the state. The good man, whose eye was entirely on his own re-election, did not know what to do. If any one could have shown him mathematically that this action or the other would gain or lose him exactly so many votes, his course would have been clear, but his own advisers were uncertain about the matter. A mistake in a little thing like this might easily lose him the election. Sometimes it was rumored that the governor was going to commute the sentence to imprisonment for life. Then the rumor was contradicted.

People claimed, apparently with justice, that merely imprisonment for life was a sufficient punishment for a young man, but every one knew in his own heart that the commutation was only the beginning of the fight, and that a future governor would have sufficient pressure brought to bear upon him to let the young man go.

Up to the 20th of September the governor made no sign. When Bowen went to his duties on the night of the 20th, he met the sheriff.

"Has any reprieve arrived yet?" asked Bowen. The sheriff shook his head sadly. He had never yet hanged a man and did not wish to begin.

"No," said the sheriff, "and from what I've said this afternoon is like to be by to arrive. The governor has made up his mind at last that the law must take its course."

"I'm glad of that," said Bowen.

"Well, I'm not."

After 9 o'clock messages almost ceased coming in, and Bowen sat reading the evening paper. Suddenly there came a call for the office, and the operator answered. As the message came over the wire Bowen wrote it down mechanically from the clicking instrument, not understanding its purpose, but when he read it he jumped to his feet, with an oath. He looked wildly around the room, then realized, with a sigh of relief, that he was alone, except for the messenger boy who sat dozing in the corner, with his cap over his eyes. He took up the paper again and read it with set teeth:

Sheriff of Breuling County, Brentlingville:

Do not pursue further to execution of Prior. Sentence commuted. Documents sent off by mail and registered. Advise me that you understand this message.

JOHN DAY, Governor.

Bowen walked up and down the room with knitted brow. He was in no doubt as to what to do, and he wanted to think over it. The telegraph instrument called to him, and he turned to it, tapping the answering click. The message was to himself from the operator at the capital, and it told him he was to forward the sheriff's telegram without delay and report to the office at the capital—a man's life depended on it, the message concluded. Bowen answered that the telegram to the sheriff would be immediately sent.

Taking another telegraph blank, he wrote:

Sheriff of Breuling County, Brentlingville:

Proceed with execution of Prior. No reprieve will be sent. Reply if you understand this message.

JOHN DAY, Governor.

It is a pity it cannot be written that Bowen felt some compunction at what he was doing. We like to think that when a man deliberately commits a crime he should hesitate and pay enough deference to the proprieties as to feel at least a temporary regret, even if he goes on with his crime afterward. Bowen's thoughts were upon the dead girl, not on the living man. He roused the dozing telegraph messenger.

"Here," he said, "take this to the jail and find the sheriff. If he is not there, go to his residence. If he is asleep, wake him up. Tell him this wants an answer. Give him a blank, and when he's filled it up bring it to me. Give the message to no one else, mind."

The boy said "Yes, sir" and departed into the night. He returned so quickly that Bowen knew without asking that he had found the sheriff at the jail. The message to the governor, written in a trembling hand by the sheriff, was:

I understand that the execution is to take place. If you should change your mind, for God's sake telegraph me at once. Prior shall delay execution until last moment allowed by law.

Bowen did not send that message, but another. He laughed and then checked himself in alarm, for his laugh sounded strange. "I wonder if I am quite sane," he said to himself. "I could tell it."

The night were slowly on. A man representing a press association came in after 12 and sent a long dispatch. Brentingville except through him until the day operator came on, and then it would be too late.

The newspaper man, lingering, asked if there would be only one telegrapher on hand after the execution.

"I shall have a lot of stuff to send over, and I want it rushed. Some of the papers may not be goodies. I would have brought an operator with me, but we thought there was going to be a reprieve, although the sheriff didn't seem to think so," he added.

"The day operator will be here at 6, I will return as soon as I've had a cup of coffee, and we'll handle all you can write," answered Bowen without looking up from his instrument.

"Thanks. Grim business, isn't it?" "It is."

"I thought the governor would cave. Didn't you?"

"I don't know."

"He'd a shrewd old villain. He'd have lost next election if he'd reprieved this man. People don't want to see lynching introduced, and a weak kneed governor is Judge Lynch's friend. Well, good night. See you in the morning."

"Good night," said Bowen.

Daylight gradually dimmed the lamps in the telegraph room, and Bowen started and caught his breath as the church bell began to toll.

It was 10 minutes after 6 when Bowen's partner, the day man, came in.

"Well, they've hanged him," he said.

Bowen was fumbling among some papers on his table. He folded two of them and put them in his inside pocket. Then he spoke:

"There will be a newspaper man here in a few moments with a good deal of copy to telegraph. Rush it off as fast as you can, and I'll be back to help before you are tired."

As Bowen walked toward the jail he met the scattered group of those who had been privileged to see the execution. They were discussing capital punishment, and some were yawning, combining about the unearthly hour they son for the function they had just beheld. Between the outside gate and the jail door Bowen met the sheriff, who was looking ghastly and sallow in the fresh morning light.

"I have come to give myself up," said Bowen before the official could greet him.

"To give yourself up? What for?"

"For murder, I suppose."

"This is no time for joking, young man," said the sheriff severely.

"Do I look like a humorist? Read that."

First incredulity, then horror, overspread the haggard face of the sheriff as he read and reread the telegram. He staggered back against the wall, putting up his arm to keep himself from falling.

"Bowen," he gasped. "Do you—do you mean to—to tell me—that this message came for me last night?"

"I do."

"And you—you suppressed it?"

"I did and sent you a false one."

"And I have hanged a reprieved man?"

"You have hanged a murderer—yes."

"My God! My God!" cried the sheriff. He turned his face on his arm against the wall and wept. His nerves were gone. He had been up all night and had never hanged a man before.

Bowen stood there until the spasm was over. The sheriff turned indignantly to him, trying to hide the feeling of shame he felt at giving away, in anger at the witness of it.

"And you come to me, you villain, because I said I would help you if you ever got into a tight place?"

"I—a your right hand!" cried the young man. "I come to you to give myself up. Can you be afraid I—I, a coward. There will be no petitions got up for me. What are you going to do with me?"

"I don't know, Bowen; I don't know," faltered the official, on the point of breaking down. "I did not wish to have to hang another man and a friend at that. "I'll have to see the governor. I'll have to fly the town. I don't suppose you'll try to escape?"

"I'll be here when you want me."

So Bowen went back to his duties as operator, and the sheriff left by the first train for the capital.

Many strange thing happened. For the first time within human recollection, the newspapers were unanimous in denouncing the conduct of the head of the state, the organs of the governor's own party lavishly praising him, the opposition, shrieking grudgingly admitting that he had more backbone than they had given him credit for. Public opinion, like the cat of the ballad, had jumped, and that unmistakably.

"In the name of all that's wonderful, sheriff," said the bewildered governor, "who signed all those petitions? If the papers wanded the man hanged, why in the fiend's name did they not say so before and save me all this worry? Now, how many know of this suppressed dispatch?"

"Well there's you and your subordinates here and—"

"We'll say nothing about it."

"And then there is me and Bowen in Brentingville. That's all."

"Well, Bowen will keep quiet for his own sake, and you won't mention it?"

"Certainly not."

"Then let's all keep quiet. The thing's safe if some of those newspaper fellows don't get after it. Let it be recorded in the books, and I'll burn all the documents."

And thus it was. Public opinion was once more vindicated. The governor was triumphantly re-elected as a man with some stamina about him.—Robert Barr.

Doubtful About the Doubt.

We are justly proud of our jury system, but the 19 "good men and true" are not always the wisest of mankind. At a recent session a prisoner was indicted for pocket picking, and to most people in court the clearest possible case was made out by the prosecution.

"Have you anything you would like to tell the jury before they retire?" said the judge.

"Why, I will say we are, I hopes as 'ow they'll give me the benefit of the doubt," replied the prisoner despondently.

The jury considered their verdict. They were no little time over it.

"Can I assist you in any way, gentlemen?" said the judge, as last becoming impatient.

"We are almost agreed, me lud," said the foreman, "but we can't quite understand what the doubt is the prisoner wishes us to give him the benefit of."—London Tit-Bits.

The Reflex.

The Kaffirs are great philosophers. If an ox should die the owner never grieves, but remarks: "Now I must go to work for master (all white men who treat them well are called masters), and in six months he will give me a cow. It will have a calf. If it is a bull calf, in a year I'll have a pair of oxen, but should it be a heifer calf I'm all the richer, for the next year I'll have two calves instead of one."—New York Tribune.

EVEN Louisiana lines up this year as a republican state.

IT is said that Donnelly and Owen have kissed and made up—but Donnelly still has it in for McDonald—he draws the line on Mac.

IT is a very easy thing to divide the county if there are votes enough in favor of it, but it will not be so easy to pay the extra taxes incurred thereby. In times like these, when a man needs every cent he has, one should be very careful how he votes on this question.

THE people of Crookston seem to think that if the farmers can afford to lose the revenue derived from Crookston taxes, we can afford to let them do it. The fact is that there is not a taxpayer who would not pay more taxes in case of division than he would as it is.

W. C. P. BRECKENRIDGE does not propose to abide the result of the concenses that resulted in the nomination of Owens instead of himself. He claims that frauds were practiced to beat him and will appeal to the voters as an independent candidate. This may result in the election of a republican from that district.

IN the Democratic Congressional convention at Fergus Falls, Otterlail county democracy was conspicuous by its absence. It is accounted for upon the theory that Otterlail county has no democrats left. Wonder what has become of L. Ed. Davidson, of Henry Kemper and of that old-time democratic war-horse, A. S. Wilmer?

THE Hawley Herald appears upon our table with the names of N. H. and J. N. Fulton at the mast-head. N. H. will be remembered by many of our readers as a former resident of this city, where he worthily conducted the creamery at this place. His son, J. N., was at one time an employe in the JOURNAL office, and is a good all round printer. The JOURNAL extends greetings and wishes the Herald abundant success.

A meeting was called for Tuesday evening at the city hall to consider the question of county division and perhaps a dozen people appeared. This does not look as though our people were breaking their necks to defeat division. They seem to think they can stand it if the farmers who will pay the increase of taxes there by can. It is clear that they are not wasting barrels of money in the effort to defeat the division.

IN the times were flush and everybody had plenty of money, and if the territory embraced in Polk county was as thickly settled up as it might be, the question of division would not cut so much of a figure as it does. As it is it is a very important question to the farmer who has nothing to gain by the rise of real estate, as he will surely find his taxes increased very materially, no matter what sophistries the secessionists urge to the contrary.

AT the primaries in Breckenridge's district in Kentucky, Owens defeated the central figure in the Pollard case by a good round majority. The ladies took a hand in the fight against the old sinner and it is said that it was their influence that defeated him. If every congressional district should be as particular, it would have a tendency to purify the congressional body that would be creditable to the people of this country.

THE republican legislative convention was held on Saturday in this city. Hon. B. Sampson was nominated for senator, and P. S. Ware, of Polk county and John Wright and J. J. Ins, of Norman county for representatives. The ticket is a good one and every man on it will hustle from now until the polls close and if they are not elected the fault will not be theirs. Mr. Sampson's efforts in behalf of the drainage matter while in the senate before will be remembered and all interested in drainage matters would feel assured that they have a strong friend at court if he is elected. Mr. Sampson is also a farmer and well knows the needs of that class also and the farmers would always find a strong champion in him.

THE Pope county democrats, when they could not make fusion win withdrew from the congressional convention. This is the county in which F. M. Eddy, the republican nominee for congress lives, and the local democrats saw that the only chance to beat him was by fusion with the pops. Had he been a weak stick, one whom they thought they could have beaten at the polls, it would not have been an object for them to fuse.

THE pops in the Sixth district met at St. Cloud last week and resurrected Ex-Kittel Halvorson by nominating him for congress. It is almighty clear that with all their demands the pops do not demand ability in their law-makers. They seem to think if they deem a man honest nothing else is essential. Of course honesty in every candidate is very essential, but it is only one essential element, for lacking ability no matter how honest a man may be he is of no earthly use as a law-maker.

IT is very natural for people living in villages that are designated as county-seat in case of division to desire division, for while their taxes will be higher they make more than enough in rise of real estate to justify the extra cost but what the average farmer, who will have to pay far more taxes than he does now and gets no rise in real estate or anywhere else to help him out by the benefitted, we fail to see clearly. It is reported however that some farmers will do that very thing. Well, it is a free country and a man has a perfect right to burden himself with taxes even if he wishes to do so.

THE divisionists say that the expenses of four small counties would be less than the expenses of one containing the same territory. Take the erection of county buildings and say that the total cost is $35,000 or $40,000; of course it is reasonable to suppose that the taxes divided about among the number of tax-payers comprising this county would be greater than they would be if the county was cut in four parts, and each parted an equal amount to raise for the purpose. As it is, the whole number pay taxes on $40,000, if divided, the same number of people would pay taxes on $150,000 or $160,000. That's cheaper, of course!

IN the Great Falls News, a copy of which is before us, we notice that its editor, O. M. Holmes, is the populist nominee for the Montana legislature. As the pops, at the last election in that section were right in it, O. M. will stand a pretty good chance to write "Hon." before his name next winter. O. M. was formerly a resident of Polk county, was editor and publisher of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, a rabid democratic newspaper, but since he located at Great Falls, he has discovered what we often told him when he lived here, that the democratic party was an earthly good, anyhow, but tainted of allying himself with the party of progress, he went and joined himself with the pops and has been popping away in great shape. At heart O. M. is a good fellow, but he has made one mistake which only proves that the best of us will make mistakes once in awhile.

LAWLER ELECTED.

THE ILLINOIS MAN CHOSEN COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

Of the Grand Army of the Republic—Monster Parade Viewed by Half a Million People—Next Encampment to Be Held at Louisville.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 19.—Colonel Thomas G. Lawler of Rockford, Ills., has been elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. in the hottest contested fight for the office in the history of the organization. His opponent was Colonel L. N. Walker of Indianapolis and Colonel Lawler won by a scant 11 majority. Major A. P. Burchfield of Pittsburg was chosen senior vice commander and Charles H. Shute of New Orleans junior vice, both by acclamation.

The next election was that for surgeon general. Comrade O. O. Weeks of Marion, O., was without opposition and was unanimously elected.

Chaplain-in-chief was the next elective office. For this Chaplain Haggerty of St. Louis and Chaplain Southard of Maine were nominated, so the matter went over for election later.

T. H. Haggerty of St. Louis was elected unanimously chaplain-in-chief, his only opponent, Comrade Southard of Maine, withdrawing before a ballot was taken.

The Fight For Commander-in-Chief.

The features of the encampment and the hottest and closest contest ever known in the Grand Army was the fight for the position of commander-in-chief. The contestants were Colonel Thomas G. Lawler of Rockford, Ills., and I. N. Walker of Indianapolis. Electioneering of a most vigorous character has been going on all week, and the friends of both candidates claimed a victory by a good margin. The closeness of the result was a surprise to both victor and defeated. It took 45 minutes to cast and count the ballot of 649 delegates. Then Commander Adams announced that the vote stood: Lawler, 326; Walker, 319, the Illinois man winning by the narrow majority of 11 votes. As soon as the election was announced peals of applause rang through the opera house. When some semblance of quiet was restored Colonel Walker withdrew his name and the election of Colonel Lawler was made unanimous.

Installation and Adjournment.

General Adams returned thanks for all the honors bestowed upon him, and Past Commander-in-Chief R. B. Beath installed, with all the ceremony of the ritual, the elected officers and all the G. A. R. flags, records and effects were turned over to the new officials. Commander-in-Chief Lawler here grasped the gavel, but soon this new chaplain-in-chief, Haggerty, came to the footlights to pronounce the benediction, and the 18th encampment was finished. This is the first time the encampment has concluded its business and elected and installed its officers in a sitting of two days.

VETERANS IN LINE.

Monster Parade of Old Soldiers Viewed by Half a Million People.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—Forty thousand men who fought to save the Union marched through the cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny during the day. The old familiar war tunes to which they and their comrades rushed to victory or to death, filled the air and echoed back from the surrounding hills.

At 10:30 o'clock the parade started from the historic Monongahela House, on the banks of the river from which it takes its name. First came Company A, Second battalion, Naval Reserves, guard of honor to Commander-in-Chief Adams. Then followed the departments of the G. A. R.

A rough estimate is that between 500,000 and 600,000 people saw the parade. Of this number 300,000 to 350,000 came over the railroads; 100,000 arrived this morning. The almost innumerable lines of electric cars running to thickly settled suburbs within a radius of 15 miles brought as many more.

Getting Down to Business.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The real business of the encampment was begun Wednesday, when the reports of the commander-in-chief and other officers were read. In his address Commander Adams referred at length to the pension question and condemned the policy of the present administration toward the old soldier.

GOES TO LOUISVILLE.

Next G. A. R. Encampment to Be Held in the South.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The encampment goes to Louisville for 1895. A careful canvas by the St. Paul committee convinced them that they had about one-third of the encampment safe for St. Paul and were gaining rapidly when the question was suddenly sprung 24 hours in advance of the accustomed period.

Colonel Davidson moved to make the selection of Louisville unanimous, at the same time presenting the claims of St. Paul for 1896. This was received with universal manifestations of approval, and enough pledges were at once tendered to make the selection practically certain. The St. Paul committee will remain to close the encampment work for 1896, and have already secured quarters for 1895 at Louisville.

Ladies of the G. A. R.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The annual convention of the Ladies of the G. A. R. went into session in the First German Evangelical Lutheran church, Mrs. Amanda I. Wetherin of Anderson, Ind., presiding. The building was elaborately draped with flowers, ferns and palms. Among the delegates were a number of colored women from Southern states. A committee on credentials was appointed and the convention adjourned.

Joseph Is All Right

Joseph E. Zeiber, Red Oak, Iowa.

Since he took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Greatest Medicine on Earth. My boy had Catarrh in the Head so badly he lost his hearing, and medical treatment failed to help him. Then I was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before he had taken all of one bottle, he began to break out with boils all over his back and neck. They were not very large, but they discharged freely. Slowly his hearing began to come back and by the time the third bottle had been taken, the boils had all disappeared and his skin was as clear as a baby's when at before it was dull and yellow and dark under the eyes. He can now hear well and is taking his fifth bottle." Miss M. J. Zeiber, Red Oak, Iowa.

'Round Home.

Prof. Gambell was down from Euclid on Saturday.

Agent Sisson returned to his post of duty in the telegraph office on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rafferty of the Snake River farm at Warren were in the city on Monday.

The editorial excursion reached St. Paul at about 8 p. m. on Saturday night. The boys all declare it was out of sight—the excursion.

Jacob Andrist reports the finding of a team, a light bay and a deep bay, that came to his house with a light harness on Monday morning.

Walter Winchester came down on Sunday from Warren on his way back to Oberlin to school, and stopped until the evening train for a chat with friends in this city.

Chris. Olson, who was recently placed in the county hospital died of consumption on Monday morning. He was a middle aged man and his home was at Thief River Falls.

Talking about dogs, John Vig says he has a cow worth more than Col. Gorgas' pointer, Ben, or Wilson's carriage horse. This seems to be a horse on Wilson—Ben ain't in it. The Col. says John deserves to be banished for poor judgment.

Engineer Tom Hunt rejoices in the safe return of his wife from a visit to Mr. Hunt's brother at Rolla N. D. While she was there an accident happened to one of her nephews by which the boy lost an arm. He had been helping a neighbor thresh and some way got an arm caught in the machine and injured so badly it had to be amputated near the shoulder.

Engineer Tom Hunt has indulged in the luxury of a new house this summer. That is, he has built a fine new addition to his residence on North Main street. The plasterers are through with it this week and pretty quick Tom will have as fine a residence as any in the city. Well, if anybody deserves a nice, cosy, comfortable home a railroad engineer does.

Notwithstanding the good hard work put in by the Minnesota boys the next encampment goes to Louisville—but St. Paul is to have it in '96. The G. A. R. boys from Minnesota worked hard, but the question got tangled up with the election of commander—and the Indiana man seems to have had the call. Our boys worked with the Illinois man and got left by just one yeer.

J. F. Creamer and Will Lanctot went up to Euclid on Monday.

E. C. Marney the Euclid blacksmith, was in the city on Monday.

Mrs. Chris. Houston returned from Bay City, Mich., on Monday morning.

N. S. Gervais and wife went up to Red Lake Falls on Sunday to visit friends.

S. L. Collins has bought Al. Sargeant's buck to add to the Collins buck line.

Wheat opened the week at 44 cents for 1 hard—a drop of one cent since our last report.

The Rev. S. G. Lindyke of Glencoe preached at the Congregational church on Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Streeter returned on Monday morning from a pleasant visit to her old home very much refreshed by her vacation.

St. Paul enjoyed a fine rain on Friday of last week. This country did not but would have liked to see as fine a soaker.

Mr. A. Daniels sugged a buck on Monday morning of S. L. Collins to go and yet his boy home. The lad has been lying very ill at the house of a relative near Marsh station.

The Crookston laundry is being moved to a lot adjoining the Crookston Hay and Commission store on Main street between Second and Third streets. We had the impression that that block was in the fire limits.

Hay still continues to sell in this market at $4 per ton notwithstanding the conditions all indicate an extremely limited supply for future demands. Under the circumstances the wise man will buy all he needs for the winter on this market.

Assist. Adj. Gen. J. K. Mertz came up this week to organize a new Post at Fosston on Wednesday evening. The old boys around Fosston, many of whom have belonged to the Grand Army, are getting to miss their Post and so will undertake to support one up there. The JOURNAL wishes the new venture abundant success.

The State fair, while more slimly attended than ever before in years is said to have been a financial success. The display of horses was fine; the display of cattle rather light and the display of vegetables and small fruits excellent. The farmers institute was a new and agreeable feature and will become a permanent fixture if sufficently encouraged.

Max Eriesson came up from St. Paul Saturday for a few days business trip.

To-day is Crookston day at the Fosston fair. Appearances indicate that it will be well attended by Crookston people.

Doc Warninger is making the circuit of the fairs. Started in at McIntosh last week, is at Fosston this week, finishes up at Fertile next week.

The McIntosh fair, it is said, was not a very brilliant success, financially or otherwise. This year does not seem to be a very "fair" sort of a year anyhow.

Mrs. Emma Bohler, whose mind has been more or less unbalanced for the past two years, has been recently adjudged insane, and committed to the asylum at Fergus Falls, to which place she was taken last week by Chief Olmyen.

If you have any idea of purchasing a piano or organ it will pay you to address Kops Bros., of Chicago, whose ad appears elsewhere in this issue. For years they have been in business in this county, and by liberal dealing have built up a name second to none in their line. Be sure and get their prices before you buy.

The first freeze of any account occurred on Sunday night. Ice formed from a quarter of an inch to one half inch thick on pools and all garden stuff that was not sufficiently protected was destroyed. As a rule we always have a period of four or five weeks nice warm weather after the first general freeze up in September.

Speaking of the recent visit of our next congressman to Hawley, the Herald of that place says: Hon. Frank M. Eddy, Republican nominee for congress in this district, spoke to a fairly respectable audience in the old chapel last evening for over an hour. The address was what might be called a plain statement of the positions of each of the parties now in the field upon the great question of the hour, and after careful comparison, the voter was asked to choose that which would be of the greatest good to the greatest number. Mr. Eddy is a pleasant gentleman and a fluent speaker, and is well posted on the political issues in this campaign, and left a good impression upon those with whom he came in contact. It is safe to say, he would make an aggressive congressman something this district has not had for four years past.

Somewhat cooler weather these days.

P. M. Ringdal is sick with typhoid fever.

T. H. Bjolu and bride returned on Saturday morning from a wedding trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Louis Fontaine purchased a four months old Brown Swiss bull calf at the fair and will take him out to his farm later in the fall.

Complaint in insanity was entered in probate court on Tuesday against John Nemitz of the town of Farley. The case being a violent one the judge sent the sheriff out with authority to produce John in court for examination, as soon as he could accomplish it.

Hon. S. G. Comstock is billed to speak at Fosston to-day. Mr. Comstock is a fluent speaker, well posted upon the living issues of the day and one of the leading statesmen of the district. Without a doubt Mr. Comstock could have had the nomination at Fergus Falls had he cared to pursue the tactics common among politicians, that is to hustle for delegates. Mr. Comstock is a far better statesman than politician.

In relation to that application for clerk hire, mentioned in our report of the proceedings of the board in the last issue of the JOURNAL, clerk of the court, Nels Maus, says it is apt to be misleading, conveying the idea that he had applied to the board for extra clerk hire to perform the ordinary routine work of the office which is not the fact. The board had called for bids for indexing files previous to 1887, which files were in such shape as to render it almost impossible to find anything in them; he had estimated the cost of doing the work and had offered to do it for $300. The board thought it could be done for $150 and offered him that sum which he declined to accept. Mr. Maus thinks if the board attempts the work they will find that his offer was quite within the bounds of reason.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Hans Larson is reported on the sick list with typhoid fever. He is a very sick man, but the case is considered very hopeful.

A daily train service will be put on the Fosston line of the Great Northern road during the Fosston fair, Sept. 20, 20, and 21, and tickets sold at one and a third fare for the round trip. The train leaves Crookston at 9 a. m., returning leaves Fosston at 6 p. m. This rate makes the fare $1.35 for the round trip.

Hay bids fair to reach an unheard of price in the history of this country. Add to a light crop the unusual losses by fire and the shortage will be excessive.

Never before in the history of this country has the fall's work progressed so favorably and rapidly. The threshing is nearly all completed and most of the farmers are busy with their fall plowing, which will soon be done. There will be little if any left until spring.

A PROBLEM SOLVED.

PROGRESS MADE BY GERMANY IN MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

Councilors Are Excellent Citizens and Serve Without Pay—Administration Put Into the Hands of Experts, Who Are Often Chosen For Life.

Municipal housekeeping as a science and an art evolved out of the conditions of life prevailing in the last half of this century can be observed to better advantage in Germany than in any other country. It is true that the German cities have been somewhat tardy in providing themselves with modern conveniences and improvements, but now having fairly entered upon the task they are accomplishing it in a more systematic, thorough and businesslike way than any other cities, whether in Europe, America or Australia.

To this work of modern improvement, especially in public appointments, the Germans seem to have brought more of the scientific spirit and method than any other people. Their habits of thoroughness in research and of patient, exhaustive treatment of any subject in hand naturally characterized their progress in the arts of civilized life. Above all, the Germans had already developed a system of public administration more economical and more infallibly effective than could have been found elsewhere, and they were prepared when the growth of their cities and the new demand for modern improvements made necessary a great increase in the number and variety of public functions to do in the best possible way whatever it was decided to undertake. So confident were they indeed in the efficiency of their administrative organization that they dared to assign to the municipalities spheres of action which elsewhere have been left to private effort and control.

Municipal councilors in Germany are, as a rule, very excellent citizens. It is considered a high honor to be elected to the council. Membership is a title of dignity that merchants, professional men and scholars are usually eager to hold. No salaries are paid to the councilors, and a penalty is attached to a refusal to serve if elected. The sentiment toward these positions is much the same in Germany as in Great Britain, though stronger with men of high education in German than in British towns. The re-election of good councilors term after term is common in both countries. It would be difficult to estimate fairly the influence of the class system in Prussia upon the character of city councils as regards their conservatism, intelligence and business ability. Undoubtedly the recent growth of the social democracy would have a sharper influence upon the city councils if the class system were abolished and if the municipal franchise were made identical with the simple manhood suffrage that exists for purposes of representation in the imperial legislature—the reichstag.

In addition to the magistracy and the council, there is in Berlin a body of about 2 hundred citizens' deputies,* who are selected by the council for their general fitness to serve as associates on committees charged with the oversight of various municipal interests, such as parks, schools, the care of the poor and the sanitary services. They have no authority to vote in the council, int they illustrate, at the center of administration, the excellent practice which is followed throughout the entire ramification of German city government, of calling the co-operation of intelligent citizens in managing the ordinary concerns of the community.

The burgomaster and magistrates are the most highly trained experts that a German city can secure. The burgomaster is an expert in the general art of municipal administration. Associated with him in the magistrate or council are experts in law, experts in finance, experts in education to administer the schools, experts in engineering to oversee public works of every character, experts in sanitary sciences, experts in public charity, experts in forestry and park management, experts in the technical and business management of water and gas supplies, and so on.

The analogy would not be perfect, but it would answer roughly to compare the governmental structure of a German city with that of a railway corporation, in which the board of directors, chosen by the stockholders, appoints a general superintendent or manager, a general passenger agent, a general freight agent, a chief legal adviser, a chief engineer, a superintendent of motive power and other general officers and leave to these high salaried experts, drawn from the service of various other transportation companies, almost the entire management and operation of the road. The shareholders represent the voters of Berlin, let us say, the board of directors are the municipal council, the general superintendent is the chief burgomaster, and the general officers at the head of departments are the magistrates.

The magistratsrath, or stadtrath, of a German city is, then, a body of distinguished and honored, highly paid, professional, expert employees and not a body of citizen representatives, although experienced members of the body of citizen representatives may be, and not infrequently are, promoted to membership in the magistratsrath. The professional civil service is a vastly greater and better established field of employment in Germany than in England or America, and it is particularly difficult for an American to appreciate its position and significance. The mayor of an American city is usually some well known citizen who is called temporarily from private life to occupy the most authoritative place in the corporation. The burgomaster of a German city is a civil servant—he remains in the head of a permanent body of trained officials. The difference between the two is somewhat like that between our secretary of war and the general commanding the army.—Dr. Albert Shaw in Century.

WOES OF THE MILKMAN.

Try His Heet, He Never Succeeds in Getting Back All His Bottles.

"The greatest trial of my life," says a milkman, "is bottles. Yes, sir, bottles. If it wasn't for bottles, I'd want nothing better. Other people never think of bottles. I actually dream of bottles. It's bottles, bottles, bottles—we've got the bottles with me all the time!

"The most perfect system of bookkeeping ever invented will not account for bottles. When I send out 100 bottles of milk in the morning, I'm dead certain to lose track of half a dozen. I never look upon them bottles all again. Never again, sir! The milks are 8 cents and the bottles are 8 cents. But the people who would scorn to steal milk will keep the bottles. They think bottles don't cost nothing, or they don't think nothing at all.

"Some time ago a lady was behind about seven bottles and hadn't returned any for a week. I know some people get two or three days behind with their empties, but I couldn't account for all of these. While I was thinking about it and look over across toward her flat I saw her maid chuck an empty out of the kitchen winder into the lot. And, don't you know, I went over there and found a whole pile of brokco bottles and two or three whole ones. They didn't know any better. Now, there was a lady in the other day, and I says, 'Ma'am,' says I, 'I've got you charged with five bottles merchandise.'

"'What's that?' says she. 'I haven't got any of your old bottles. You don't suppose I'd steal milk bottles, do you?' When I get to stealing, I'll take some thing worth while and cantoff milk bottles. I don't like your milk anyhow, and it's more'n half water, and I'm going to change.'

"And she did change, and I lost a good customer by the mero mention of bottles. Some people keep their tea and things in the bottles. You can't go and search for them. You must take their word for it that they ain't none. They are supposed to return their empties the next day, and they'll keep them for a week. I'd have to get a cartload of extra bottles to suit them. Some of them just slap on their empties and then they're under their way, for, and some other milkman goes off with them. They don't care. And then, when you call up for their empties, they get mad as hops and swear they sent them down—which perhaps they did, but not to us.

"And there's the servants that break bottles and swear they returned them a week ago, and their mistresses back them. He's enough to drive a man to drink!"—New York Herald.

THE DRUMMER WILTED.

A $1,000 Note Is a Sentorial Game Was Not Worth the Candle.

A group of millionaires were playing what was probably the stiffest game of poker ever played in the state of Illinois. It was at Chamberlin's, in Washington, in the winter of 1889 and 1890. The exact list of the players will not now be known, but Senator Wolcott of Colorado and ex-Governor Hanser of Montana were two, and Senator Farwell of Chicago was in the room.

About midnight a swell drummer for a Chicago dry goods firm made his way to Senator Farwell. The senator went down to see him and brought him up to the room where the game was going on. He introduced him to the other players.

"Have you any objection to my playing?" asked the drummer.

"Well," said Senator Wolcott, "I have no objection, but—er—well, you see, the game is pretty steep."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the drummer. "That is the kind of a game I like."

Ex-Governor Hanser remarked that if he could stand it the rest of the crowd had no objection, which is what at Senator Farwell, the drummer sat down, pulled out a "wad," peeled off a $1,000 bill and said to Governor Hanser, who was dealing:

"Give me some chips!"

Then he looked around the table, as much as to say:

"No flies on me, eh?"

"Give the gentleman one white chip," said Senator Wolcott. Governor Hanser passed over the chip without a smile and remarked:

"Jack pot for $5,000. Put up your money."

The drummer sat aghast for an instant; then he picked up his money and said:

"Too rich for my blood!"

It is currently reported that one man won only $100,000 that night.—Chicago Times.

A large part of the works of Ben Jonson were destroyed in manuscript by a fire which burned his house.

TATTOO THE WEDDING RING.

A British Social Reformer Suggests Branding Both Bride and Groom.

DEAR SIR—I wish in all earnestness to make known a suggestion that would save many a broken heart among the sensitive and many a breach of promise case among the unfeeling, and would considerably lighten the labors of the police courts and law courts. My suggestion is that every married man and every married woman should have a circle tattooed around the third finger of the left hand in place of or as well as the wedding ring. This would be a sign that could never be taken off or effaced and would therefore leave a lesser margin for the treacheries and tricks of bigamists and other great and small offenses against law, society and individuals.

To make this proposition practical and distinctive, of course certain rules would have to be made. For instance, no man married man or woman tattooing their third finger to be heavily fined. Also a widow and widower to add a distinguishing mark to their ring. Every married man or woman disunited by law to have a bar of erasure across their wedding ring, and those who marry two or three times to add the circles marks accordingly.

The operation of tattooing could with all reverence be performed by an expert in the vestry after the church service, or at the registrar's office for those who only go through the civil ceremony. This tattooing may seem a return to barbarism, but our present national civilization has introduced such numerous aids to deceit that a safeguard and a warning, such as a tattooed wedding ring, would become a practical preventive of lunch sham, folly and wrong.

Only those who have sympathy for unlawful thirsty will demur against the idea being realized. I shall be pleased to hear from all who approve of my scheme and are willing to assist in forming a society to influence others by ringing about a custom that would help to insure peace, respect and happiness to many homes and hearts. Yours faithfully.

Daniel Webster once sat for his portrait to the late G. P. Healy, and the painter's reason for so long enlivened the completed picture became known. The artist's favorite anecdotes in after years. "I think," said Webster as he looked at his counterfeit presentment, "I have a face I have often shaved." Healy found Andrew Jackson a congenial and unwilling "subject," and he soon persuaded himself by painting Old Hickory with chamber lye to enhance, not glossing a single defect. This portrait gives Jackson an ugly, savage and pallid face.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Thomas Fenton, of Polk County, Minnesota, to Thomas Fenton, as Mortgagee, to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, therein and hereinafter called Mortgagee, dated the 15th day of December, 1888, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 17th day of December, 1888, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 5 of mortgages on page 462.

Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of $600, and the interest thereon, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note of said Thomas Fenton, of even date with said mortgage, and payable to the order of said Mortgagee, on the 15th day of December, 1893, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the coupons of interest notes attached to said note.

Said principal sum of $600, and the interest thereon, has not been paid, and by reason of such default the said mortgage has become wholly due and payable, and the whole amount due thereon is the sum of $684.80 for principal and interest to October 1st, 1894.

Said mortgage has been duly assigned by said Mortgagee to the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated October 1st, 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of October, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 5 of mortgages on page 462.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company, a corporation, duly assigned said mortgage and the debt thereby secured to Mary Louise Thomas, by written assignment dated October 1st, 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of October, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 5 of mortgages on page 462.

And whereas the said Mary Louise Thomas, by written assignment dated October 1st, 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of October, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 5 of mortgages on page 462, assigned said mortgage and the debt thereby secured to Nils Hallet.

And whereas the said Nils Hallet by written assignment dated October 1st, 1894, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of October, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 5 of mortgages on page 462, assigned said mortgage and the debt thereby secured to Nils Hallet for a valuable consideration duly paid and delivered and transferred to Nils Hallet by written assignment of said mortgage and the debt thereby secured by said mortgage, which said assignment said Nils Hallet dated on said 1st day of October, 1894, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 1st day of June 1894 at 9 o'clock a. m. in book 6 of mortgages on page 414.

Notice is hereby given, that by reason of such default the said mortgage will be made at the front door of the court house in Crookston, in said Polk County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of October, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public auction by the sheriff of said county, to satisfy the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and note, with interest and costs and disbursements allowed by law, and the sum of $25.00 attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same, are described as follows, to-wit: The south west quarter (S W ¼) of section twenty-eight (28) township one hundred and forty-seven (147) Range number forty-two (42) west of the fifth principal meridian.

A BRIG IN THE DESERT

SURPRISING DISCOVERY OF A TRAVELER IN DEATH VALLEY.

A Man Constructed and Fitted Up a Vessel on a Sandy Waste He Wants to Be Ready When the Water Rises, as He Firmly Believes It Will.

"One of the queerest and most surprising sights I ever saw in all my wanderings over the wilds of this country," said S. C. Traver, a well known prospector and civil engineer, a few days ago, "was a newly constructed brig lying on the floor of Death valley. And it is there yet, so that anybody can see it.

"When I first saw it, I was almost paralyzed. I could not believe my eyes and thought I must have passed through some unusual lapse and was not in Death valley at all. But, after gazing at the strange object a few minutes and then looking around me and smelling the waters of burning sands and feeling the hot breath of the desert wind, I knew that everything about me was most realistically real.

"It was by the merest chance that I ran across the vessel," said Mr. Traver, "because had I been a few feet farther south I would never have seen it. You see, I had been working on the eastern side of the valley for several weeks without success and concluded to go to Mount Dawson, where I would at least be sure of expenses. I was crossing the valley at the northern end, which is quite narrow, but about the lowest spot on the earth's surface. I am not exactly certain, but I think that where the vessel is it is about 200 feet below sea level.

"After the first surprise had worn off I began to figure out how the craft came there. That the vessel was a relic of a past age never entered my head for a moment, because it was constructed on perfectly modern lines and the wood had a yellow appearance, indicating that it had not been out very long. I am something of a sailor myself, and the first glance told me that it was the work of some modern shipbuilder, but that only made the mystery greater.

"Going close, I made a careful examination of her gray timber. It proved to be a perfect brig of about 400 tons, that had never been in water. Everything about it was of the best style of workmanship and showed plainly that the builder and put forth his best efforts. The keel was laid down on sand and the starboard side placed up against a small part of water. The partials was supported in the most manner.

"Climbing into the deck by a small rope ladder, I found everything shipshape. The decks were as clean and white as a man-of-war's, and every rope was in place. Entering the cabin, I found everything neat and clean and several bunks with bedding ready to sleep in. Such a thing, however, would have been impossible, as the heat was simply unbearable, and I had to go to the door, gasping for breath, before I had completed my investigation. The more I looked the more mystified I became. It was plain the brig had been built where she was, but by whom and for what?

"I spent the whole afternoon climbing over the vessel. I went into the rigging and looked over the surrounding country, but could see no sign of a human being. When night came on, I concluded to camp near by, but felt so sure I got fixed comfortably when a voice from somewhere called 'Good evening!' You may be sure I jumped, my nerves were feeling a little weak through my strange afternoon's experience.

"There was no need to be alarmed, though, for a good natured looking man, with gray hair and beard, was smiling at me. Of course I at once concluded that he knew something about the brig. I was right, and in a few moments he explained the whole thing to me and also showed to what ends a foolish idea will drive a man.

"He said that his name was Frederick Evans, that he was a ship builder by trade and one of the California pioneers of '49. He had never made a big strike, but had always kept prospecting, and when the water rose in Salton lake a few years ago he was at work in the mountains around Death valley. It was then that he got it into his head that the water would eventually reach that locality, and he was determined to have the first vessel to float in the sea.

"Evans was not a poor man, but had money enough to hire a couple of men to help him by the keel of the vessel put in the masts and do the other heavy work. At first the work was pushed rapidly, but when the water commenced to recede Evans took things easily and did all the work himself because he thought the water would not come again for a year. He has been disappointed every year since, but still thinks that Death valley will become a sea, and he is ready for it.

"I was well treated by Evans," said Mr. Traver in concluding. "He took me to his abode, which was a deep cave a few feet from the brig, with a delightful temperature. I staid with him two days and found him a well-educated man and very interesting. But when I left him his last words were, 'When the water rises, I will be ready for it.'"—San Francisco Call.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

A Young Lady Who Had a Narrow Escape from Conviction.

"Stories of conviction on circumstantial evidence are rife in the lawbooks and have afforded the plot of many a novel," said J. S. Haberling of New York. "A very sad case, not of conviction, but almost as bad, was recently occurred in New York recently. A young lady of refinement, a stranger in the city, obtained employment of governess in a gentleman's family. One of her pupils, a girl 15 years old, lost a diamond ring. It was found in the desk of the governess. She declared she had not seen it since it was last on the girl's hand, but she was insulted off to the Tombs, and unable to give bond was kept there several days, exposed to the companionship of the most depraved of her sex. She was taken to court in the Black Maria with a negress and a white woman, both convicted felons, going to be sentenced. She was kept in the pen waiting for her case to be called, exposed to the impudent gaze of the hordes of common loafers.

"When her case was called, the court appointed a lawyer to defend her, as she was penniless. The prosecuting lawyer and her father told the story of the finding of the missing ring. The presumption that the accused had pinched it from was more or less strong until the lawyer began to cross-question the owner of the ring. Guessing at the truth by adroit questioning he drew from the unwilling witness the fact that she had often pried into the desk and dressing case drawers of the governess, and that she had been so engaged an hour or so before she missed her ring, and the further fact that the ring fitted loosely. The judge dismissed the case against her and the accuser's father apologized, but the young woman, being of a highly strung and nervous temperament, was completely prostrated by her terrible experience in the Tombs, and the ill effects will, it is feared, be permanent."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

before, although he has been prominent in politics for many years. He was born in Philadelphia 61 years ago, was graduated from the high school in 1850 and spent 10 years in a commission house, receiving a thor ough business education, which proved valuable to him later in life. His father was a prominent colonel during the war, and young Singerly displayed such shrewdness in the management of his sire's properties that he made a fortune. His father left him $750,000 worth of street railroad stock, which young Singerly in a short time doubled to a round sum.

In 1877 Mr. Singerly bought the Philadelphia Record, which, under his management, became a successful and influential newspaper. He is interested in many enterprises and seems to possess the touch that turns everything to gold. An illustration of the manner in which fortune smiles upon him is shown by his experience with the thoroughbred Morello. When Morello was a yearling, Pearl Van Ness bought him for $2,350 and sold a half interest in him to Mr. Singerly. As a 2-year-old he was named Morello when $20,000 Futurity. One of Mr. Singerly's hobbies is the development of horses and the breeding of Holsteins at his stock farm in Montgomery county.

He has built nearly 1,000 houses in Philadelphia, and his numerous and diversified business interests make him a very busy man. He has been an active Democrat since 1856 and took an especially active part in the presidential campaigns of 1884 and 1888. He is a personal friend of President Cleveland and an ardent champion of tariff reform. He is president of the Record Street National bank and the Chestnut Street Trust and Savings Fund company and owns very many other fine parts of the largest paper and pulp mills in the United States.

consin by the Republicans, has had a most romantic career. He was born in Racine, Wis., May 3, 1841, and when only 20 years of age enlisted in the Bells City rifles, which organization was subsequently changed to the Company F of the Second Wisconsin infantry. In his first skirmish at Bull Run Upham was shot through the left shoulder and lung and was left for dead on the field. Confederates who were burying the slain saw that he was still alive and sent him to the prison, where he was confined eight months, and where he gained important information, which was afterward personally communicated to Presidents Lincoln.

Upham had long been mourned as dead, and when he returned home had the pleasure of reading his own obituary notices in the papers. President Lincoln appointed him, at the age of West Point, where he was graduated in 1866 and appointed second lieutenant in the Fifth infantry at Fortress Monroe. During his service there he was guard officer over Jefferson Davis. In 1869 he resigned to devote himself to the law, being admitted. The following year he located in Marshfield, Wis., when the place was only a name, and in a few decades it is a thriving lumber town.

In 1887, when fire annihilated the entire town and the citizens were in despair, Upham procured the flag he had fought, bled and officially died under, planted it among the still hot embers of his factory and announced that he proposed to rebuild on a much larger scale. His example inspired his fellow townsmen, and Marshfield rose out of its ashes larger and more prosperous than ever. Mr. Upham is president of the First National bank of Marshfield, founder of the local G. A. R. post, a prominent member of the Loyal legion and was state commander of the G. A. R. in 1891.

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE

THERE ARE MANY WAYS, AND CONNOISSEURS DIFFER IN TASTES.

A Delicious Berry That Is Much Abused by American Cooks Who Do Not Know Its Possibilities—Some Recipes Which Are Worthy Deed or Note.

Have you ever passed a place where a person was making coffee and inhaled a wandering breeze of the delicious, inspiring fragrance? Every cup of coffee that you drink should smell and taste just like that fragrant odor, which was the veritable soul of the berry seeking to escape from its transmutations into liquid. Unless you can arrest that slippery sylph of opulent fragrance or prevent its entire escape from your coffee pot before serving you are no expert, but n bungler.

The amount of badly made coffee that is inflicted on the public is simply enormous. One connoisseur says that there are not 20 places in New York, outside of private houses, where a first rate cup of coffee can be counted on. Another man about town says this is a gross exaggeration, declaring that no man is sure of a fine cup of coffee in more than half a dozen places in this city. Coffee, to be fit for civilized drinking, should be made, he asserts, on the principle of "little and often." Size in art is of all sizes, and bulk in coffee making runs the risk of a dreadful discount in appreciation of the learned.

The best kind of coffeepot is one that has a filter. They can be had of many sizes and shapes, all the way from simplicity to an extreme of elegance. To secure a good infusion quickly the ground coffee should be placed in the cylinder on top of the coffeepot, the strainer should be pressed down on top of the coffee, and the boiling water should be poured over so that the infusion runs slowly. While it filters the pot ought to stand in a vessel containing very hot water, so that the infusion may keep a high degree of heat without allowing it to boil. Boiling is the spoiling of coffee.

If you are making coffee for a good many, take 1½ pounds of Java, 1½ of Mocha and 3 of Rio, and add to it 7 gallons of water. The Mocha, which is meant for the aroma or bouquet, should have been not slightly roasted; the Java, acaibo, which is for color, should be well roasted, and the Java, which is for body and effect, should be roasted just between the two.

Cafe a la Turque is made in a peculiar way and only appreciated by peculiar people. The recipe for its composition is this: Take Java and Mocha in equal proportions; grind and pass through a very fine sieve. Put ordinary black coffee, as many cups as needed, in a coffeepot, and for each cup add a teaspoonful of the sifted coffee and n lump of sugar. Boil this for two minutes; then take it off and pour in a little cold water to settle it. After it has stood a few minutes serve it with the reserved sugar.

Iced coffee, in New York style, is merely cafe fruit that has been cooled in a china freezer by placing ice around it, slightly salted. For what is called mixed coffee n pint of milk, a gill of cream, n gill of syrup and a quart of black coffee subjected to the same cooling process and served when just this side of freezing is considered a proper thing by all who are not real coffee connoisseurs.

Brandy coffee is prepared by some in the following way—a gill of brandy, 6 ounces of sugar to the quart of coffee taking the place of the other ingredients. But brandy coffee to many connoisseurs means n cup of cafe noir, love which a spoonful of brandy, poured on a lump of sugar, has been floated, as well as the blue fringed golden flame is carrying the spoon should dip into the coffee, and after one deft stir the contents of the cup should glide down the gladdened throat.

A sherbet of coffee is quite fashionable now and quite delicious if properly made. To a quart of coffee add a quart of double cream and 13 ounces of sugar, and if you wish to be very ohic add a few drops of vanilla essence. Then freeze this. In a freezer with salted ice surrounding, keep the sides free as fast as the ice begins to cling, and when it has reached congelation serve in glasses.

Another fashion of coffee drinking, which was first introduced into this country by the Mexicans at the New Orleans exposition 10 years ago, and which is held in high esteem by many bon vivants, is to make coffee in the French way without boiling and then mix it with the very richest cream, one half and half, or one to two, or two to one, the second proportion being perhaps the most frequent. This is to be served with whipped cream topped with a little sugar dust. The Mexicans used to use the Soconosco chocolate, but now it is made with a cinnamon addition and is rich beyond description.

In spite of the injunction about adding refined gold or painting the lily, useless ingredients are frequently used to improve on coffee in worse ways than by marrying it to chocolate. For instance, take cafe au Kirsch, which is made by shaking up black coffee, cracked ice and Kirsch wasser in proportions to suit the taste. By devotees of the shaking Arabian berry this is considered a profanation and eschewed accordingly, but for physical and mental depression, if one is not a habitual coffee drinker, it is a pick me up of rare potency.

Coffee is not a food, but a stimulant and an antidote against some kinds of poisoning. Its excessive use produces a trembling of the hands and a thinning of the optic nerves. To keep one awake and to help one endure fatigue or exposure to rough weather there is probably no equal to coffee, except possibly the cocoa plant of the Peruvians. Coffee and tobacco—which we owe to the Arab and the Indian—are the heavenly twins in the eyes of every true bohemian. They, like all blessings, may become a curse.—New York World.

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as the helplessness of her young womanhood. Following is an instance: Two daughter, Blanche, now 25 years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and standing her home. In fact, on fact, we feared for her mind, and would have had to have her taken to an asylum had we not heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine. We had employed physicians, but are received no benefit from them. The first of last August she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervine she now weighs 106 pounds; her nervousness and sympathetic pains have entirely disappeared, and she is in every way well. She writes with comfort and ease. Nervine has restored the use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and we money could not purchase for our daughter the health she now enjoys has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle of Nervine. We are now using the fifth one. Mrs. Minnie Schneider."—Mrs. A. B. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

One of the stock arguments the advocates of division use is that Norman county, which is very much smaller than Polk county has proportionally less taxes to pay, hence every small county would be in the same shape. This is very misleading for Norman county has no county buildings of any account nor has made near the improvements that Polk county has. We admit that their affairs have been very economically administered so could the affairs of Polk county be.

This week we send out our annual fall statement of account on subscription to give our friends ample opportunity to settle without expense. Circumstances beyond our control will probably place all uncollected accounts in the hands of an attorney for collection by process of law after November 1st, and however much we desire to be lenient it may not be in our power to do so then time. We trust that all will do the best they can to settle before November 1st and that will be sure to save trouble and needless expense. We have not got a mint on our list to-day who can say that the JOURNAL has ever manifested a disposition to distress him—in some cases we are led to the belief that we have been too lenient for the best good of ourself and our subscribers also. We do not desire to make extra expenses and shall not unless forced to do so. Everybody will at least have ample opportunity to avoid trouble if they wish to.

The heavy frosts of the latter part of last week destroyed the late flax that was not quite ripe. It has been a peculiarly hard year for flax. Most of it that was sowed was sown late, about the time the drouth came on. A few days after sowing a light rain started some of the seed, then a week or so later another shower started more of it and so on through the season so that in some fields ripe flax could be found and many plants with blossoms on them.

THE CONTEST ENDED.

ONE OF THE HOTTEST CAMPAIGNS IN KENTUCKY ENDED

And Colonel Breckinridge Is Retired to Private Life, Owens Being Nominated by a Fair Plurality—The Story of the Struggle.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 16.—W. C. Owens has defeated W. C. P. Breckinridge and E. E. Settle for the Democratic nomination for congress from this Seventh, better known as the Ashland district. Owens' plurality is placed at about 300.

MADE A FIGHT FOR IT.

Breckinridge Still Claims He Has a Majority of Legal Votes.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—The Commercial Gazette's Lexington special says: There seems to be no doubt about Colonel Breckinridge making a fight for the nomination before the district committee. Breckinridge has made public a statement in which he says he secured a majority of the legal Democratic votes of the district and fraud was practiced against him in several counties. The following is Breckinridge's statement:

"The Democratic committee of the district alone has the power to declare who is the nominee, and until that declaration is made no one is the nominee of the party, and when it is made I will loyally submit to this decision and support the person

Declared to Be the Nominee.

"Under the law and under the rule of the party it alone has the power to assert which votes have been cast and what votes shall be counted and what declared to be fraudulent. No court has any power over its action and I would regret to see New York political methods introduced into Kentucky politics and pliant judges corrupt by giving their apparent sanction of the judicial proceedings to base methods. I believe that at least 300 illegal votes have been cast against us in the county of Fayette, and perhaps nearly as many in the county of Franklin.

"I shall make no frivolous contest, but shall raise no technical questions nor enter into contest about doubtful points; but shall reserve until next Saturday the right to have such proceedings taken before the district committee as will accord with my judgment."

JONES ASKED TO RESIGN.

Republicans of Nevada Don't Want Him in Congress.

CARSON, Nev., Sept. 17.—Senator John P. Jones of Nevada has been requested by the Republican state central committee to resign his seat in the United States senate, to which he was elected by Republicans.

This request is made in a long letter which was drafted by Chairman Trenmor Smith and approved by the state central committee at a meeting held in this city. The letter exhaustively reviews Senator Jones' letter of Aug. 28, to the former chairman of the committee, Enoch Strother, in which Jones announces that he left the Republican party to join the Populists, and severely criticizes his course of action.

McKinley's Date in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Sept. 17.—Governor McKinley of Ohio will speak in St. Paul on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 6 and on the afternoon of Monday, the 8th, will speak at Duluth. This was announced by Chairman Tams Bixby of the Republican state central committee. Mr. Bixby has not yet heard when Congressman Thomas B. Reed will speak in Minnesota, but he says he will come it is certain that he will make one speech in Minneapolis.

Fifty Houses Blown to Atoms and Several People Injured.

PERRY, O. T., Sept. 17.—A tornado passed through Jennings and Mining and blew 50 houses to atoms. A young lady and two children were killed and several people injured. Several horses caught fire at Mining and a conflagration followed. The town of Mining is 40 miles from the nearest railroad and particulars cannot be learned.

Will Not Publish Lists.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The custom of publishing in the newspapers throughout the country the lists of unclaimed letters at postoffices will be abandoned and the list will be bulletined in the postoffice buildings hereafter. Acting Postmaster General Jones has decided to stop the old custom, as congress failed to make any special appropriation for the usual amount of advertising. The expense of publishing the lists last year was $19,000.

Smallpox at La Crosse.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Sept. 17.—A case of smallpox has developed here. Dr. Charles Marquart, a member of the state board of health, was taken with the disease in his mild form. The doctor was at Milwaukee 10 days ago in consultation with other members of the board, and while there visited some smallpox patients, thereby contracting the disease.

Census Work About Completed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The work of the eleventh census is about completed, the work on population and vital statistics being all that remains to be done. The portion of the work on population remaining uncompleted is that on occupations. The vital statistics are made up largely from the figures on population and have been held back on account of the work in the population division.

RESIDENCE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I have forty desirable lots in Jerome's addition, which I offer for sale at reasonable prices and on terms to suit purchasers. These lots have 50 and 100 feet frontage, and are situated on high land, where good dry cellars can be got, and an abundance of pure water can be procured at a depth of from 15 to 25 feet. Jerome's addition is the healthiest and pleasantest portion of the city. Not a single case of typhoid fever has ever been reported there, and this is no doubt owing to the good water found everywhere on that addition. For further particulars regarding lots, prices, terms, etc. inquire of or address M. R. Brown, Crookston, Minn. [19-25]

GOVERNOR NELSON.

SETS AT REST.

A CAMPAIGN LIE.

Elect Able Republican Legislators Who Will Select An Able Man Like W. D. Washburn for U. S. Senator.

In a speech at Albert Len on Saturday evening of last week the governor laid at rest the story that he has been secretly planning to succeed W. D. Washburn in the U. S. Senate. Of that speech the Minneapolis Evening Journal says: Gov. Nelson wasn't able to reach Albert Lea in time to speak in the afternoon, and so the evening meeting was arranged, it being understood that it was to be a Republican meeting. The hall was crowded with a representative audience when the governor arose. Never did he speak better or more to the point. There was no attempt at labored oratory—simply a masterly yet simple marshaling of the facts and figures with which the governor seems so thoroughly conversant. All the problems of the day were handled fearlessly and frankly in much the same manner as in the opening speech of the campaign at Argyle. Passing lightly on matters of state interest the governor contrasted very vigorously the records made by the Populist legislature of '91 with that of the Republican legislature of '93. He showed that the only hope of effective and wise legislation in this state lay in the election of Republican legislators. He then polated out that there were other reasons why Republican legislators should be chosen. There was a United States senator to be elected upon whose vote on these matters he had been discussing much depended. It was important that the man selected should be a staunch and able Republican. The governor then took his audience into his confidence. He had been accused, he said, of being a candidate for the senate and for the governorship at the same time. That was not true. He was a candidate for governor. He wanted to be elected governor, and if elected expected to serve out his term. But he was not, and had been, and should not be, a candidate for the senate. He hoped that some such man as Senator Washburn would be elected to fill that seat, and it was the paramount duty of the hour to send Republican legislators to St. Paul who would encompass that result."

Will Not Appeal.

Appearances indicate that the Great Northern road will not appeal the Steemerson rate case and in that case, in 30 days from the day the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners made the decision the new rates will go into effect. This will be a big thing for the farmers of the Red River Valley, making a saving of thousands of dollars in freights. While such populists as Donnelly et. als. have been fussing and scolding at railroads and accomplishing nothing at all, such republicans as Halvor Steemerson, while not saying much have been trying to do something, and as the result in this case shows, have actually accomplished great good for the country. Mr. Steemerson has been roundly abused on every hand during all the time that he has been trying to bring about a reduction of rates, and that too by many who should have stood shoulder to shoulder with him in the fight, but this only makes his victory more complete. He has won a great victory for the people and is deserving of all the credit there is in it, and no doubt the people will one day accord him a just recompense of reward.

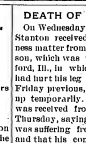
DEATH OF S. L. DOBSON.

On Wednesday of last week Robert Stanton received a letter on a business matter from his uncle, S. L. Dobson, which was written from Rockford, Ill., in which he said that he had hurt his leg on a street car on Friday previous, which had laid him up temporarily. Later a telegram was received from the hospital on Thursday, saying that Mr. Dobson was suffering from a broken thigh and that his condition was considered critical. Mrs. S. L. Dobson started that same evening to go to the bedside of her husband, and on Thursday morning Mr. Stanton received a telegram stating that Mr. Dobson had expired about midnight of Wednesday.



SAMUEL L. DOBSON

Was born in Turleenan, near Moy, County Tyrone, Ireland, in January, 1828, where he lived until about 24 years old, when he came to American landing at New York City on St. Patrick's Day, 1852, locating in Davenport, Iowa, going from there to Chicago, there to Muskegon, Mich., from whence he returned to Chicago again. In 1872 he was married to Miss Maggie McKee, of Milwaukee, very soon thereafter removing to Minneapolis, where he lived until he came to Crookston, which was in '79 or '80, he having previously purchased considerable real estate in our then young city. As soon as he came here to live he began to improve his property by putting up buildings, of which he built quite a number on the present site of the Eckert block and elsewhere. He finally disposed of most of them and built an out-meal mill which still stands a monument to his enterprise. Mr. Dobson's real estate ventures did not turn out extra well and he lost quite a bit of the money he had made as traveling salesman for a Chicago tea house, and finally went back to that business and was thus engaged when he met with the accident which resulted in his death. He leaves an only sister, Mrs. Thomas Stanton, who resides at Ocean Springs, Mississippi, a wife and four children, two boys and two girls, besides a nephew, Mr. Robert Stanton, of this city, to mourn his loss. The remains were buried in Chicago, Sunday, and the funeral was attended by a large concourse of people who had known Mr. Dobson in life. He was extensively acquainted both north and south and universally respected wherever known. In his death Crookston loses a leading spirit—a public spirited citizen, whose loss will be keenly felt, one of the kind that a city can secure afford to lose, and many near friends here will sympathize with the bereaved ones in their great loss, which also comes as a personal loss to all who knew him here.

On Sept. 25th and October 9th, the Chicago, Burlington & Northern R. R. will sell at very low rates (about half fare) Harvest excursion tickets from all its stations to the following territory: All points in Kansas, Nebraska and South western Missouri; all Missouri River points, from Sioux City to Kansas City, inclusive; all points in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, North and South Dakota, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana (except Memphis and New Orleans), Arkansas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma and Texas (except Hot Springs, Ark.); all points in Montana except West of Missoula and Kalispell; all points in Idaho except West of Nampa; all points in New Mexico, except on Southern Pacific and Atlantic & Pacific Railways; points on the Southern Pacific from Lafayette to St. charles inclusive. A Good Well.

Dr. J. H. Thomas has one of the finest artesian wells in this city of artesian wells. It is fixed after a plan of his own. After the well was completed he dug down some twenty feet, a hole some four or five feet square, which he curbed up with 2x4 stuff. Inside of the curbing he put a galvanized iron tank, then tapped the pipe so that the water runs into the bottom of the iron tank and when the tank is filled it runs out and is lost in the sands of gravel. This will cost something more than the ordinary style and is worth all it costs, with no surplus to make a nuisance of itself by running all over everywhere. The water is brought up by a force pump and can thus be made serviceable in case of a fire.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

OF RAILROADS.

Report of the Inter state Commerce Commission on Government Control of Railroads.

The senate committee appointed under the resolution of Senator Pettigrew has dug out some interesting data which they give out as follows:

"It appears that ten countries do not own or operate railways—viz. Columbia, Great Britain and Ireland, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru, Spain, Switzerland, Turkey, United States and Uruguay.

The following governments own and operate some of the railways: Argentine, Australasia, Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Cape of Good Hope, Chili, Denmark, France, Germany, Guatemala, India, Japan, Norway, Portugal, Russia and Sweden.

The following governments own part of their railways, but do not operate nay, leasing all the present mileage to private companies—viz: Greece, Holland, and Italy.

Though not claimed to be accurate, it is believed that the foregoing summary represents in approximately correct statement of the relationship of the various governments to the railways of the world.

The relative rates charged for freight and passenger service on the government-owned railroads and other roads are calculated to afford little encouragement to the advocates of government ownership. A comparison of passenger charges a mile shows an average in Great Britain of 4.42 cents for first-class, 2.29 cents for second-class and 1.94 for third-class; in France the average is 3.86 cents for first-class, 2.36 for second-class and 2.65 cents for third-class; in Germany the rate is 3.10 cents first-class, 2.22 cents second-class and 1.54 cents third-class; in the United States the average charge is 2.12 cents.

The average charges per ton per mile are as follows: In Great Britain, $2.80; in France, $2.20; in Germany, $1.84, and in the United States, $1. The lowest on capital invested in the several countries is as follows: United kingdom, 4.1 per cent; France, 3.8 per cent; Germany, 5.1 per cent; Russia, 5.3 per cent; Austria, 3.1 per cent; Belgium, 4.6 per cent; United States, 3.1 per cent. The world, 3.2 per cent. The systems of operation of the railroads in different countries are indicated:

In Austria about 4 per cent of the railway mileage is owned and about 70 per cent is operated by the state. Upon the expiration of charters, not exceeding ninety years, the lines, lands and buildings of the companies are to be the property of the total government, but the equipment remains the property of the private owners. Before a railway is opened, it must be approved by the minister of commerce. The tariffs of state roads are fixed by the government; those of the companies are subject to revision by the government every three years, and the government has power to reduce rates if the net earnings exceed 15 per cent of the capital.

In Canada about one-tenth of the mileage of about 15,000 miles is owned and controlled and operated by the government. For the year 1892 the operation of the government lines resulted in a loss of over $600,000.

At the present date by far the larger portion (about five-sixths) of the French railway system is operated by private companies, each company serving a definite territory and being comparatively free from the competition of other lines. But the railway properties are ultimately to become the property of the government. This system is a mixed one of state and private ownership.

In Germany nearly 90 per cent of the railway mileage is owned by the government. Under the law the government is required to manage the railways in the interest of general traffic and police regulations.

In Great Britain and Ireland the government does not own the railways. There are stringent regulations provided by law and administered by the railway commission and board of trade.

Italy has tried both state and private railroads and has come to the conclusion that it is not advantageous to own and operate the railways. The result was a reorganization of the whole railway systems. Under the present system private companies operate the state roads under contract with the government.

In Russia the government is estated to own and operate about 40 per cent of the railway mileage. Nearly all of the railways owned by private companies have received subsidies from the government.

It is stated that in the United States several of the states have tried ownership in a limited way. Illinois constructed a road at a cost of $1,000,000, but disposed of it for $100,000; Indiana had a similar experience; Georgia owns a railroad, but found it expedient to lease it to a private company; Pennsylvania constructed a railroad from Philadelphia to Columbia, but subsequently sold it. Massachusetts, Michigan and several other states tried the experiment without success.

Needs The Dairy Cow.

While in the main the Fosston fair was quite beyond criticism there was one very important industry to Polk county farmers that was conspicuous by its absence—the dairy cow and her products. While there was a truly wonderful display of vegetables, a good display of small fruits and of wheat, barley and oats, an abundant display of as fine corn as the writer ever saw at any exhibition and only made the lack of the good dairy cow too painfully evident in a country that seems so peculiarly adapted to good dairying. Abounding as it does with grass and timber belts sufficient to afford protection from rigors of winter and the heat of summer, with plenty of pure fresh water easily accessible on every farm; with plenty of fresh nutritious native grasses, in fact with every facility for first-class dairy work there was absolutely no evidence that there is a dairy farmer in that vicinity. This is decidedly not as it should be but is a deficiency, however, that seems liable to be remedied in the near future, as we see by the Fosston paper that a creamery is an industry liable to be established there in the near future. Butter will always bring a remunerative price when properly handled and the cow would make a wonderful difference in the income of the Thirteen Towns farmers and help to make him what nature very evidently intended every farmer up there should be—a king among men. But they seem to need the cow and need her bad!

Good Price For Flax.

Farmers who have flax this fall are in great luck as that product is booming beyond the most sanguine expectations, and it is hard to predict just where it will stop. It is quoted in Duluth at $1.45 and takes a 5 or 6 cent jump every day or so. It was a scarce article on the market last spring and the crop has been everywhere exceedingly light. Any farmer who buys it for seed next spring will be liable to pay $3 per bushel at least.

That Tired Feeling

Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attack of illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for such a condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

HUSTLING.

The republican candidate for clerk of the court is out getting acquainted with people. Mr. Lanctot is one of the brightest young men of Polk county and will make an excellent clerk. His vote will be a surprise to some who think he is not in it.

C. C. Snyder, postmaster at Fairview, S. D., writes under date Jan. 18, 1894. "Gents:—I consider your Pain Paralyzer richly named. Instant relief has followed its use in all cases when thoroughly applied. I have successfully used it for toothache, pains in the chest, colic and cramping pains in the stomach. I can cheerfully recommend it, and as for myself would not keep house without it." It is a ready relief for all aches and pains. Sold and guaranteed by F. L. Kermott Druggist.

HARD LINES.

A COLLECTOR IN LIMBO.

An Irate Granger Turns the Tables And Ties up a Collector.

For a Time.

The pathway of the average machine collector this fall is by no means a pathway strewn with roses. On the contrary quite the reverse and in his zeal to collect a just account the ambitious collector sometimes innocently exceeds the bounds of his legal authority and finds himself within the stern grasp of the law, closely guarded by one of its eagle-eyed minions. No one who is acquainted with Billy Box Jr., would take him to be a cold-hearted vampire, lying in wait to suck the heart's blood of the honest granger, and yet, in his zeal in the interests of the machine company, for which he is collector, Billy got himself into a nasty tangle which caused him to go about for a few days wearing a constable as a sort of an ornament. It seems that a certain granger near McIntosh had become indebted to a machine firm to the sum of a number of simoleons and a certain wheat field became in some way security for the debt. In due time the wheat was threshed and Billy took possession thereof, whereupon the irate farmer had the feisty collector arrested for stealing wheat. After being in durance vile for several days Billy was released and the court will decide the case.

THE FOSSTON FAIR.

In point of numbers and interest the Fosston fair this year was a howling success. The crowd commenced to gather on the opening day and swelled until it assumed extremely large proportions on the last day. The display of stock was very good while the vegetable display was never excelled at any event of the kind in this county; there were potatoes that would make your mouth water to look at; turnips, beets, carrots, onions, mammoth pumpkins, squashes, watermelons and muskmelons, small fruits till you couldn't rest—in fact almost everything in the fruit and vegetable kingdom was there in great profusion. The cereal kingdom was also well represented and the wheat, oats and barley display was worthy of exhibition anywhere. Bushels of excellent corn showed that the Thirteen Towns is right in line while a few samples of excellent sugar cane showed that it was a huckleberry abead of some other portions of Polk county. Taken as a whole the agricultural exhibit was an exceedingly creditably one for the farmers of that section and shows to good advantage the adaptability to produce everything that the northern farmer needs in his business. The races were excellent and taken as a whole the Thirteen Towns fair for 1894 was a notable success.

NOT IN IT.

Speaking of the attitude of the Cleveland administration toward the old soldiers the Grand Forks Herald says:

"At the recent national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic evidence was presented which disposed effectually of the pretense that the administration is the friend of the soldier. The veterans at Washington had caused a careful canvass to be made, from which appears that nearly 2,000 old soldiers and sailors have been disabused from the service of the government in that city alone since Mr. Cleveland's second inauguration. In many instances their places have been supplied by ward heelers and strikers, in plain violation of the statute which provides that, other things being equal, preference must be given in federal employment to honorably discharged soldiers and a record of the Union army and navy. This law, it may be remarked in passing, has a lamentable infirmity in the failure to provide any penalty for infractions. Evidence is produced that in the pension bureau old soldiers have been dismissed for alleged incompetency who had a record of 97 per cent for efficiency, prior to their removal."

State Convention to Be Held at Winona Oct. 19, 20 and 21.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 25.—This years Young People Society of Christian Endeavor convention of Minnesota takes place at Winona, Oct. 19, 20 and 21. A. W. Laird is chairman of the general committee of arrangements. A chorus of 100 voices is being drilled for the occasion. All sessions are to be held in the new opera house. Arrangements are making for the entertainment of a large convention—at least 500. Railroads have made a rate of one and one-third fares.

Excursionists Scored.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 26.—The excursionists en route to Hinckley stopped at F. E. Boyle's place at Mission Creek for, n short time. While there Mr. Boyle says that in the face of the earnest protest of himself and his men they carried away in the neighborhood of $1,000 worth of property as relics. Much of the property consisted of new and second hand tools gathered together since the fire to supply the necessities of the settlers. Mr. Boyle, who is a very fair, candid man, characterizes the whole proceedings in very severe terms.

Grain and Thresher Burned.

MOORES, Minn., Sept. 26.—The threshing machine of John Stinson was burned, together with a large setting of oats belonging to John Van Klook. The fire is supposed to have caught from the engine. The loss was covered by insurance.

TEN LIVES LOST.

In and Around Le Roy and Spring Valley, Minn.

AUSTIN, Minn., Sept. 24.—A cyclone, followed by a heavy fall of rain, passed through this east part of this county Friday night, destroying the lives of 10 persons and a considerable portion of the villages of Le Roy and Spring Valley. The storm came up from the southwest, and with hardly a moment's warning the village of Le Roy found itself in the center of a terrific storm. A dancing party was in progress at the opera house, where quite a number of people were congregated. The building was entirely destroyed and three young men killed and quite a number were more or less seriously injured.

From Le Roy the storm pursued an easterly course, destroying all farm property, grain and hay, in its path until it reached the village of Spring Valley, in Fillmore county. From these the report of the loss of life is considerable. Seven persons are known to have been killed, and it is feared that when the debris is cleared away the list of dead will be found to be much larger.

MANY DEATHS NEAR FOREST CITY.

Thought the Number of Casualties Will Reach Twelve or Fifteen.

FOREST CITY, Ia., Sept. 25.—The loss of life in this vicinity will probably reach 12 or 15, and the number of injured twice that number. The loss of property is also heavy. Buffalo and Eden townships, in Winnebago county, and Ellington and Madison townships, in Hancock county, seem to have suffered the most. In Buffalo township the list are known to be killed, and in Ellington nine. Reports are very meager, as most of the casualties are in the outlying districts.

Church Blown to Atoms.

SPENCER, Ia., Sept. 26.—A Swedish church 10 miles southwest of here was blown to atoms and several houses were blown down. No lives were lost in Clay county, but Cylinder, Burt, Fenton City, Manly Junction, and all through the counties east there was great loss of life.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Work of the Deep Waterways Convention Completed.

TORONTO, Sept. 26.—The deep waterways convention elected the following officers: President, Oliver A. Howland, Toronto; vice presidents, G. E. Cooley, Chicago, and James Fisher Winnipeg; state presidents: Minnesota, James Sargham, St. Paul; Wisconsin, Frank A. Flower, Superior; Michigan, H. W. Seymour, Sault Ste. Marie; Ohio, Luther Allen, Cleveland; North Dakota, George B. Clifford, Grand Forks; South Dakota, Edward Bach, Aberdeen; Iowa, A. Macomber, Davenport; Illinois, Captain J. S. Durham, Chicago; Indiana, C. W. Vennenan, Connersville; New York's, Whitbeck, Port Henry; Nebraska, E. S. Rose, Omaha; Montana, Senator Saunders, Helena; Colorado, Senator Wolcott, Denver; Wyoming, Senator Carey; Lansmine; Pennsylvania, James S. Henderson, Pittsburg.

Invitations were extended from Duluth, Cleveland, Chicago and Superior for the next convention, but the matter was left over.

SENTENCE OF STRIKERS.

At Baltic Four of Them Get Thirty Days and a Hundred Dollars Fine.

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 25. — Judge Knowles of the United States circuit court here, has rendered a decision in the case against 24 men arrested at Lima, this city a few weeks ago for contempt of court in interfering with the running of trains on the Union Pacific road during the recent railroad strike. The road is in the hands of receivers, and in preventing trains from running, the men, the judge held, were in contempt of court. H. Calderhead, president of the local American Railway union, Fred Wyckoff, chief train dispatcher; L. D. Garvin, the operator at Silver Bow; W. B. Dye and H. Barton, railroad employes at Butte, and George Boomer, an engineer of this city, were the only ones convicted, and received a sentence of 30 days in jail and a fine of $100. The trial lasted about 10 days and was bitterly fought by the defendants.

A. R. U. Men Sentenced.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 25.—Judge Ross, in the federal court, has sentenced Gallagher and Buchanan, American Railway union strikers, to eight months imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $500. The men are among those who attempted to intimidate Arthur Brown on the Southern Pacific railway during the strike.

ARREST BANK OFFICIALS.

Plankinton and Day Will Likely Have to Stand Trial.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 24.—The examination of witnesses regarding the Burkhardt complaint against the officers of the Plankinton bank will be concluded in the morning, and it is then time District Attorney Hazmel will make application for the issuance of warrants for the arrest of President Day and Vice President William Plankinton. There is little doubt that the request will be granted. The warrants will charge the defendants with having received a deposit from August Burkhardt, a Wells street grocer, when they knew, or had good reason to know, that the bank was insolvent.

Described Their Scratch.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 26.—The Democrats of Carroll have passed resolutions strongly declaring Gorman and Gibson and advocating the election of senators by direct vote.

St. Louis Will Be in It.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26.—To establishment of a ball club in the proposed National association at this point is being discussed here; but who the prospective backers are is not known.

A MAN OF MILLIONS.

JOHN L. BLAIR OF BLAIRSTOWN, N. J., AND HIS SUCCESS IN LIFE.

His Earliest Dollars Earned by Trapping Muskrats—Railroad Ventures East and West—Small Economies and Great Benefactions.

The life story of John I. Blair, the multimillionaire of Blairstown, N. J., whose health has broken at last, is a remarkable nineteenth century romance of acquisition. Blair himself has been a no less remarkable example of low shrewdness and prudence and "inside" may completely change conditions without altering personal characteristics one whit, for, though he has endowed an academy in his own home with $200,000, built quite 100 churches along his railroad lines, given at least $350,000 to various colleges and in many ways has proved himself to be one of the most liberal of men, as becomes one of his vast wealth, his personal expenditures are ridiculously small. He has drives about Blairstown in the same carriage for 25 years at least, and his residence, though comfortable in appearance, is a house that would be selected as the home of a well to do farmer.

John I. Blair is almost 92 years old. He was born Aug. 22, 1802, at the foot of what is known as "Foul Rift," two miles below Belvidere, N. J., on the Delaware river. His family were Cov-enanters of the strictest sort, and his father had to do with the shipping of iron from the Oxford (N. J.) furnaces. In 1816 the old gentlemen died, leaving his widow with eight sons and three daughters on her hands. John I. was barely 14. He had been working in a country store for a cousin for nearly four years, and he told his mother that his brothers and sisters "might get an education," if they wanted to, but he was going to get rich. How he set about it without delay.

His first dollars were earned, when he was very young, trapping muskrats, the skins of which he sold at the rate of eight for the dozen. All the millions he has made since that time have not pleased him as much as did the proceeds of those skins. When he was 17, he went to Buttstown, now Blairstown, N. J., and opened a store as a partner for his cousin. Two years later he bought out the cousin ont. A little later he started the Belvidere bank, of which he has been president ever since more than three-score years. Then he made $15,000 on one cargo of supposed to be damaged cotton which he bought "on spec." By 1844 he was ready for larger enterprises than he had heretofore attacked, and the chance for which he sighed shortly came to him. It was furnished by hard coal and iron. He was laughed at when he said he could make the latter by the aid of the former, but he went ahead, supplied the Erie railroad, then building, with rails, and under the title of "Legget's railroad" laid the first few miles of what is now the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad.

The extension of the D., L. and W. property helped the development of Scranton, Pa., and it, in turn, helped the railroad, and from them both and the anthracite mines Blair drew tribute.

In 1860 he turned his attention to the west as a profitable railroad field, being incited to do so by his observations of the resources of the states he passed through while on his way to and from Chicago, where he was a delegate to the Republican national convention. He was laughed at for his belief in western railroads, as he had been for his confidence in hard coal, in iron rails and the future, but he kept right on, and when 120 miles of the Chicago, Iowa and Nebraska railroad had been laid it began to pay, and very well too. Then he went into the construction of the Union Pacific with Oakes Ames and others and was later concerned in the building of many western roads, some short and some long, and now most of them parts of the Chicago and Northwestern and other trunk lines. In no case was Mr. Blair frozen out when these short lines were transferred, he made money out of every transaction and was popularly supposed to be worth $60,000,000 a few years ago. He says $20,000,000 is nearer right, and it is enough for one man at all events.

In 1876 he built a railroad 12 miles long to Blairstown for the convenience of students at the Blairstown academy. In 1888 he ran for governor of New Jersey at a cost to him, of $80,000. He lost. He has since then agreed to nothing higher in politics than town committeeman. He never built a railroad on credit, and he never speculated. He said the other day to an inquirer that all our present financial troubles are due to our speculation. Though he lives very plainly at Blairstown, his son lives splendidly at Belvidere. Once when he was asked about this difference he said, "Oh, he has a rich father, and I have not."

HE ANSWERED THE QUESTION.

General Sheridan Explains What Is the Matter With the Democratic Party.

Some years ago, while General George A. Sheridan was addressing a great audience in Cleveland, a man yelled out, to him, "What is the matter with the Democratic party anyhow?" Sheridan dropped the line of argument he was pursuing, turned toward the man and replied as follows: "What is the matter with the Democratic party? I will tell you, my friend. The Democratic party was born under pleasant circumstances. Its position. It lives in the objective case. Like a mule, it has no pride of ancestry, no hope of posterity. It never originates anything. It always shines by borrowed light. Democracy has never been joined in honest wedlock to a principle, but lived for years in open adultery with a harlot called slavery, lived with her till she died of corruption and was buried amid the sobs and groans of her paramour.

"The atmosphere that surrounds Democracy is full of noxious vapors that breed contagious and fatal death. The sun never shines through it, vice seeks its shadow, and corruption grows lusty with rankness. Filth and scum with which stagnant pools and waveless waters always offend the eyes of men. The soil which Democracy has cultivated has failed to yield harvests of value to the nation, but has given crops of worthless weeds and briers.

"Democracy has no love of country, believes in states instead of nation, drives loyalty from its doors and welcomes treason to its habitation, holds the deeds of our soldiers and sailors as naught, strives to blacken the names of our heroes, weeps over the lost cause, hates the hills and loves the grave, stabs loyalty in the back, binds up the wounds of treason and speaks words of hope and comfort to its devotees, applauds when helpless blacks are stricken down in the south and caresses the hands red with their innocent blood, denies the right of American citizens to make homes for themselves in the south, justifies the man who shoot them down or drives them out.

"Democracy is a curse to the land, the source of our bitterest woes, the haven where vice finds friends and crime is apologized for and defended. Democracy is original sin let loose to rend and destroy, is the spirit of evil filling the veins of the land, the incarnation of, unholiness, the child of the devil. Its home should be in that outer darkness where there are weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. Such, faintly pictured, my friend, is what is the matter with the Democratic party."

Sheridan picked up the thread of his speech at the point where he had been interrupted. He was asked no more questions during the evening.

THE SENATE AND CHEAP LABOR.

Free Traders Are Still Odious In the Eyes of the Nation.

The following historical document is of particular interest at this time:

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES.
JAN. 10, 1867.

Whereas, The traffic in laborers transported from China and other eastern countries, known as the coolly trade, is odious to the people of the United States as inhuman and immoral; and

Whereas, It is abhorrent to the spirit of modern international law and policy, which have substantially extirpated the African slave trade, to permit the establishment in its place of a mode of enslaving men differing from the former in its details only as the subjugation of fraud instead of force to make its victims capacitated for service:

Be it resolved, That it is the duty of this government to object to the moral sentiments of the nation through all its agencies for the purpose of preventing the further introduction of coolies into this hemisphere or the adjacent islands.

Ordered, That the secretary lay the foregoing resolution before the president of the United States.

Attest: J. W. FORNEY, Secretary.

It is equally "the moral sentiment of the nation today" that the work done by cheap labor is "as inhuman and immoral" as cheap labor itself. Those members of congress who vote to reduce our existing protective tariff and thereby permit the importation of foreign goods made by coolly and other cheap labor to compete with goods made by American labor—all members of congress voting for such "traffic" will be "odious to the people of the United States" and will be "inhuman and immoral," according to a resolution passed by the United States senate on Jan. 18, 1867.

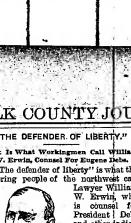
"THE DEFENDER OF LIBERTY."

That Is What Workingmen Call William W. Erwin, Counsel For Eugene Debs.

"The defender of liberty" is the name the laboring people of the northwest call



WILLIAM W. ERWIN.

Lawyer William W. Erwin, who is counsel for President Debs and other indicted officials of the American Railway Union in Chicago. He is a native of Erwina, N. Y., a town named after his ancestor, General Arthur Erwin, and is 52 years of age. He studied law in the office of Judge George B. Bradley at Albany and was admitted to the bar in 1864. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted as first lieutenant and took a company to the front. After serving through the peninsular campaign in the brigade of General Biddle he left the service and in 1868 removed to Nebraska, where he practiced law until the time of his removal to St. Paul.

He was elected county attorney of Ramsey county in 1873 and the next year ran for state senator, but was defeated. He then abandoned politics and devoted himself so assiduously to the law that he soon had a wide reputation in the northwest. Many of his cases were those of poor persons against powerful corporations, cases in which the plaintiff had received injuries owing to the alleged negligence of the corporation sued. He was so successful in this line of work that is fame rapidly increased, and when the Homestead riots concerned the labor organizations of Minnesota sent him to Pittsburg to defend Critchlow, O'Donnell and Clifford.

These cases attracted the attention of the whole country. There were 10 indictments for treason, 80 for murder and 244 for aggravated riot and conspiracy, but the task confronting him did not in the least daunt "Big Bill" Erwin, as he is called in St. Paul. He went to work with a will, and after a herculean legal effort forced the state to abandon the prosecution after three trials without a conviction. His success was so pronounced that when Debs et al. recently ran afoul of the United States district courts in Chicago Erwin was at once secured as counsel for the accused men. He is a tall, well built man of commanding presence and is an eloquent talker. He can talk the average jury into doing almost anything. He is a devotee of athletics and is ex-president of the St. Paul Cricket club and president of the Minnesota Athletic club and Mississippi Rod and Gun club.

QUEER JAMES KEIR HARDIE.

The Scotch M. P. Who Recently Made an Attack on the Eighth Hussars.

James Keir Hardie, the Scotch M. P. who recently had the courage to insult the royal British lion in his parliamentary den and poke fun at one of his cubs, is a queer specimen of humanity. He is English public life. He is a socialist, a champion of labor's cause and an ardent hater of royalty and hereditary rulers. In the honor of commons recently, when Sir William Vernon Harcourt moved the usual address of congratulation to the queen upon the birth of a son, the fact of Kent, to the Duke and Duchess of York, Hardie got the floor and proceeded to handle royalty without gloves.

He said he owed allegiance to no hereditary ruler and wished to know what blessings the royal family had conferred upon the nation. The queen had reigned but, not, ruled for many years, and she had enjoyed the great privilege of securing the Prince of Wales at race courses, "but what special blessing," he asked, "had the prince conferred on the nation?" The motion proposed to raise to £30,000 an annuity for the duke of Connaught, and at present there was no means of knowing the qualifications of the infant Earl of Kent to reign over the British empire. In regard to his future, he would be surrounded by flunkeys and sycophants and in due time would doubtless tour the world with rumors of morganatic marriages following in his train. The speech created a great sensation, but the address of congratulation was carried despite Hardie's single dissenting vote.

Hardie was born in Ayrshire 38 years ago and became a miner. He obtained an election in Mid-Lanarkshire in 1888, but was defeated. Then he became president of the Ayrshire miners' union and won wide fame by his masterful management of the London dockmen's strike several years ago. The strike proved to be soon.

JUDGE PETER S. GROSSCUP.

He Has Presided at Many Important Trials In Chicago.

The trial of Assassin Prendergast and the several anarchists in Chicago brought into considerable prominence the name of Peter S. Grosscup, judge of the United States district court of the northern district of Illinois. Judge Grosscup is the last of President Harrison's appointments and had the almost unanimous support of the Chicago bar, regardless of politics, when the candidates for Judge Blodgett's vacant chair were being considered in Washington.

Peter Stenger Grosscup was born in Ashland, O., 42 years ago. His ancestors came to America when the colonies were still under the British and with the first Paul Groscop represented Berks county, Pa., in the colonial assembly and after the Revolution was a member of the Pennsylvania state legislature and the constitutional convention. Early in the seventies Judge Grosscup's ancestors moved to Ohio. He was educated in the Ashland common schools and attended Witterberg college at Springfield, O.

Attracted to the legal profession, he was graduated from the Boston law school in 1874 and began the practice of his profession in Ashland. About this time he took a hand in politics, and, although only 24 years of age, was nominated for congress by the Republicans, but could not poll enough votes to get to Washington. He won considerable fame as a stump speaker in 1876 by nominating William McKinley for congress in an eloquent speech.

In 1883 Mr. Grosscup removed to Chicago and formed a partnership with Leonard Swett. He soon made a reputation as a keen, hardworking, studious lawyer and argued many important cases before the United States supreme court.

One of Judge Grosscup's best known decisions was in a famous interstate commerce case. Certain shippers and freight agents accused of combining to secretly lower railway tariffs were brought before him. When questioned they refused to answer on the ground that under the constitution they could not be compelled to give self incriminating testimony. Judge Grosscup ruled that their position was well taken and refused to compel them to answer. The decision practically nullified the law.

CAPTAIN KING, THE NOVELIST.

How the Indian Fighter's Life Was Saved by a Brave Irish Sergeant.

Captain Charles King, the famous novelist whose field is American regular army life, has been in his day as mighty with the sword as he is now powerful with the pen. He was born in Albany 50 years ago and was descended from Rufus King, who "well served his country" in the Revolution. He was educated at Columbia college, New York city, and then went to West Point, where he graduated in June, 1866. He was a drummer boy in the war of the rebellion, and 14 years of active duty in the regular army have given him many interesting experiences to draw from.

He entered the service as an artillerymen, but was afterward transferred to the cavalry and was present at the Custer ing King and Taylor to their fate. The two white men became separated, and King was struck by an arrow in the corner of the left eye.

He jumped behind a rock amid a rain of bullets and arrows, his carbine sought his shoulder, and an Apache dropped dead as the flash came. An instant later a bullet pierced his right arm, disabling it. He ran, followed by the yelling redskins, but tripped on a clinging vine and fell nearly senseless. Taylor came to the rescue, picked him up in his arms and retreated down the hill, pausing now and then to shoot one of the pursuing savages. King implored, even ordered, Taylor to leave him to his fate, but the gallant Irishman refused to do so, and just as the Indians were closing upon them the other party of troops came up and saved their lives. For his heroism Taylor received the army medal of honor.

Captain King's wounds forced him to retire in 1879, and he began writing books, as he says, because he wasn't in for finding out that keeping a family on retired captain's pay is "a bogus business."

THE republicans of New York State have nominated Levi P. Morton for governor and governor Flower declines to stand for re-election seeing clearly the hand-writing on the wall. This is a republican year in New York.

FOR some reason or other our friends, the enemy are using almost superhuman efforts to elect John W. Willis associate judge in place of Judge L. W. Collins. The country should have only the best in places, and if the farmers are true to their own interests, they will vote for Judge Collins, without regard to party affiliations and elect him.

OUR home market is the best market for our farmers. The republican party has always striven to foster and protect the home market, while the policy of the democratic party has always been against it. Hence the republican party is the best party for a farmer to tie to. This is no theory—no untried experiment, but has the experience of years of trial to demonstrate its soundness.

IN the third congressional district Joel P. Heatwole was nominated for congress on the republican ticket and it is thought that his chances for election are good. Heatvole is a thoroughbred republican and would make an excellent congressman. It is said that Capt A. H. Reed, who was an aspirant for the nomination will run independent, but he can hardly afford to do that.

THE average taxpayer will think long and seriously before he will be fooled into voting any extra taxes upon himself to help any would-be county seats and aspirants for county office. It would be well enough to let these schemers, who desire to split the county into kindling wood take a sneak off by themselves somewhere and go to work like folks. The people have taxes enough to pay as it is.

THERE does not seem to be very much said in the papers of the county in favor of division except in the McIntosh papers, and up there they vent division pretty bad [judging by the papers. Every issue of one paper in particular is filled with a lot of trash intended to deceive the farmers and details them into voting the county into little bits. The divisionists seem to have no lack of money to keep up that sort of thing.

IT is rumored that president Hill, of the Great Northern road, intends to extend the Fosston branch to Duluth in the near future and that work will soon commence and be prosecuted all winter. The great demand for the road on the eastern end is caused from the fact that the great iron corporations own their own railroad and are discriminating against the small concerns who are urging Hill to build his road through.

ONE of the stock arguments the average pop uses against the republican party is that there are too many base, designing schemers in it. Well, there may have been a point to that a few years ago, when the republican party was in power up here, but the fault for the existence of such men is due more to human nature than the republican party and that that sort of material is always found in the dominant party. But supposing we allow for the sake of argument that that sort of men are not all weeded out yet, that has nothing to do with the underlying principles of republicanism. Honest men belong to the party because its principles are the best for good government. Rogues belong to it for the same reason they do to any other parties for what they can make out of it. Republican principles are the best for all.

The new telephone "musicears" have arrived and are being put up, and soon the "hello" business will be in perfect running order.

THE political conundrum of the hour seems to be—Will David B. Hill accept the gubernatorial nomination on the democratic ticket in New York? As this is decidedly a republican year it is quite reasonable to suppose that he will not.

THE Republican ticket, as a whole, from governor down to coroner, presents the best set of men of any offered for the suffrages of the people. And then the republican principles are so far in advances of all other parties that it counter-balances any defects that may exist in the ticket. The republican government is the best for the interests of all the people and as soon as the people get a chance to be heard at the polls it will be re-instated.

THE JOURNAL is not so stilted that it cannot recognize the merits in a man, even though he lives in a dog city, but when it comes down to a contest between a man of medium talents living in St. Paul, and a man of brilliant talents living outside of it, as is the case between John W. Willis, of St. Paul, and Loren W. Collins, of Stearns county, ofer sympathy and our voice is for the man from the country. And why should the country people prefer our own man? He is in every way the most able man of the two and he belongs to the northern part of the state. He is, in fact, the first man outside of the big cities that ever occupied a seat on the supreme bench. Everybody in the northern part of the state, without regard to politics should vote for Judge Collins.

REPORTS from all over thestate indicate that the republican party will win a more signal victory this fall than ever before. The rank and file are becoming exceedingly weary over the seductive but unfulfilled promises of the pops and are returning to their first love, the republican party in droves.

THERE is one thing that cannot be gainsaid, and that voters should take into consideration when they go to the polls to vote this fall, and that is that the country has enjoyed a greater degree of prosperity under the republican rule than it ever did under the rule of any other party. To restore good times, restore the republican party to power.

WHEN Col. Wright was mayor of St. Paul, the Globe and other democratic papers used to raise a great howl against the inefficiency of the St. Paul police force, and charge it all up to Col. Wright. At last election the democrats succeeded in electing a democrat mayor, making great brags of the great reformation that would take place in the police regulations. Week before last two hobos got into a scrap near the Union depot, and in a few seconds down came the patrol wagon, and the toughs were quickly tumbled in and hustled off to the lock up. One night last week, about nine o'clock, a prominent barber on Robert street locked his shop and started for his home on 10th street. On the way he stepped into a saloon to dodge a shower of rain, remaining but a few minutes when he resumed his journey toward ward. He was followed a block or two, sand-bagged into unconsciousness, and while the thugs were going through his pockets he began to recover consciousness and resist, whereupon one of them drew a revolver and shot him—and not a policeman knew anything about what was transpiring until some one went and hunted one up and reported the outrage. Again, the dead body of another man was found on one of the most prominent business streets under conditions that indicate a brutal murder, and again the police got their information second-hand. A truly wonderful improvement over the old regime!

The big rain that commenced on Saturday night, Sept. 15, and continued for three days, was the heaviest county precipitation in WHATEVER MAY be said of the object of such men as Fish and Donnelly, in organizing the populist party the object of nine-tenths of the farmers in joining it, was to obtain relief from evils that existed operating against the agricultural interests of the country. They believed the specious promises of these adventurers and thought that a wise and speedy relief would be afforded them through that party. After a fruitful trial they begin to find out that the object of the leaders of the populist party is not what they supposed it to be—the good of the masses, but everything indicates that it is for the political aggrandizement of the leaders only and they find that this is not for the best interest of the masses. Meantime, the republican party has kept right on pursuing the policy for which it was created, and accomplishing reforms in the interest of the people, and the facts are so plain that farmers who sought relief through the new party are beginning to see and appreciate these facts. While the populist leaders were howling about the "downtrodden laboring man," and doing nothing to relieve him, the republican party established Labor Day and made it a legal holiday. While the pops were howling about "extortionate freight rates" and doing nothing to remedy the evil, the republican party took the matter up in the only practical way and obtained the reduction. . . . The republican party believes in the protection of American interests as against the interests of all foreign countries, and is hence the right party for every true and loyal American to be identified with. If a man believes that the interests of foreign countries are more sacred than those of America, he has no business to be in the republican party. Republicanism is Americanism. Republicans believe in law and orderly good government. They do not believe in paternalism, in socialism nor in anarchy. The events of the past 18 months have so plainly illustrated what republican principles are that all honest men, who were led astray by that lousy farrago, that for a time blinded them to their real good, are now returning to the good old party that has done more for the true interests of the country than any other, and that party will be re-instated just as soon as the voice of the people can be heard at the polls.

THE wife of Phil Scheig, the Minneapolis bank defaulter, who is now serving a term in the Stillwater prison on has brought an action for absolute divorce and Scheig will not oppose her wishes. He says he loves his wife and was in hopes she would not proceed to this extremity. Verily, the way of the transgressor is hard. What a prize Phil Scheig pays for a brief indulgence in sin. With home, wealth, a good business and many friends all sacrificed to a few hours of sinful indulgence. What a warning is here to the youth of our land.

THE hollowness of the populistic professions in regard to two or more terms for county officials is made clearly apparent by their action in putting up men for a third term. Now the JOURNAL does not and never did believe in the idea that a man who has served several terms should be rejected solely for that reason for if it very often occurs that experience in office renders a man invaluable. It is sometimes for the best interests of the people to keep one man in office for years, that is, where he is the right man in the right place, but where a party makes evolution in office one of its ground principles it should live up to its idea to be consistent. No populist to be consistent with his populistic ideas can consistently vote for a third-termer.

THE republican candidate for superintendent of schools, Miss Ida Hancock, was out to Fosston last Thursday, getting acquainted with the people. We heard a group of pops discussing the young lady's chances of election and each one agreed that he was going to vote for her and one of them voiced the sentiments of all when he said: "I am a populist all right enough and I don't know Miss Hancock very well but I shall vote for her for the reason that I do know McCrillis thoroughly and wherever he is best known he is weakest. All that is needed to secure Miss Hancock's election is for McCrillis to go about the county and see every voter in it."

Here's the Idea

Of the Non-pull-out Bow

The great watch saver. Saves the watch from thieves and falls—cannot be pulled off the case—costs nothing extra.

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down in the pendent (stem) and fits into the groove firmly locking the bow to the pendent, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

Can only be had with cases stamped with this trade mark.

Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases are now fitted with this great bow (ring). They look and wear like solid gold cases. Cost only about half as much, and are guaranteed for twenty years. Sold only through watch dealers. Remember the name

The JOURNAL is pleased to note that Mrs. John Wyand was able to ride to the city on Monday. She has been very ill.

A slight break-down at the saw mill caused a bit of a lay-off for the boys on Tuesday morning, but they got to work again by noon.

The Fertile Fair opened yesterday with a fair attendance. To-day is Crookston day and everybody who could do so has gone down.

Supt. Jenks and Gen. Supt. McCanns were in on a special on Tuesday, looking up the freight service. They say that important changes are to occur in the near future.

The business men of the village of Fosston have entered into bonds to provide a good and sufficient building for a courthouse for Nelson county in the event that such a county is created this fall.

A man named Herman Nelson was found under the Northern Pacific bridge in East Grand Forks one day last week with one leg broken and other severe injuries. He was removed to the hospital where the injured limb was amputated. He said that somebody had relieved him of quite a sum of money while he was unconscious.

I. I. Hillistad came down from Fosston on Friday evening.

Abel Leppert and Tom Dougherty came down from Wylie on Tuesday.

The train on the Great Northern round on Sunday was three hours late.

W. W. Fegan will make Crookston his headquarters hereafter instead of Fargo.

Ed. Berg and Gay Halvorson left for St. Paul on their wheels on Thursday morning, via Fargo, reaching that point on Thursday evening.

A. Daniels brought his sick son to the city on Tuesday to have an operation performed. A specialist from Minneapolis arrived on Wednesday morning to assist the local physicians in the operation.

A. Halvorson, a former Crookston resident, has opened a lunch room at Fosston. During the fair he was kept busy feeding the hungry multitudes and he says his ordinary every day business is pretty fair.

Mrs. G. F. Hathaway is suffering from a severe case of blood poisoning. She scratched her hand severely and in handling her daughter's child that was afflicted with running sores she got some of the virus in her blood.

Speaking of feeding wheat to hogs, Harry Horn, a prominent farmer near Euclid, said that he made his wheat net him 80 cents per bushel last fall, used it to fatten his hogs on. This corroborates what we have heard before, that wheat fed to hogs pays better than to sell on the market.

Sam Dalnerd, republican candidate for sheriff of Polk county went out to Fosston with the Crookston excursionists to the fair on Thursday. Sam has the material in him to make a good sheriff of, and he is making a good impression wherever he goes. The people can rest assured of having a com patent official if Sam is elected.

Judge C. O. Christianson returned from St. Paul on Saturday morning after several weeks on the state board of equalization. While he was not able to accomplish all he desired for this upper country he did pretty good work for us, after all, as the published report soon to be forthcoming, will show. Lands in Polk county are assessed at $4 per acre; in the south part of the state they run from $10 to $15. Hogs were raised from $2 to $3 per head.

Charlie Holt and Billy Davis were down to Fosston clerking during the fair last week.

The Fertile fair is in full swing this week. There should be a good attendance from Crookston.

Will Martin tended shop for C. E. Misner while Charlie went out to the Fosston Fair last week.

A. W. Foss, with commendable enterprise issued his paper daily during the fair at Fosston last week.

The funeral of Mrs. John T. Beaudry occurred on Thursday morning attended by a large concourse of relations and friends.

Will Olds is keeping store for Ed Berg during the absence of that gentleman who is on his way to St. Paul with Gay Halvorson via the bicycle route.

Aaron Cooke, on section nine, Fairfax, informs the JOURNAL that he has some choice pigs and a few fine Jersey heifers that he would part with for a reasonable money consideration.

T. A. Harris returned from Minneapolis last week just in time to superintend the job of backing the Crookston laundry building into the new site on Main street. The boys had it nearly ready to swing into position.

While working about a threshing machine near Beltrami, about dark on Wednesday, Johnny Hathaway received a severe and painful hurt that bids fair to lay him up for awhile. One of the men managed in some way to run a pitch-fork entirely through John's left hand. Became home on Thursday for treatment and will lay off for awhile.

A few weeks since the JOURNAL mentioned the arrival of a man from Sioux Falls, who came to seek a home in Polk county. On Saturday he came into our office and informed us that he had bought 40 acres of land just east of the city. The tract includes the house that Bob Houston built shortly before he left, in which no one has ever lived so far. He will establish a market garden.

Quite a number of the dwellers on Sampson's Addition got up hay land near the Beltrami swamps last summer—and are cut their work and expenses. The hay was all destroyed by fire recently. Johnny Hathaway was one of the fire sufferers losing something like ten tons of hay which he had worked hard to secure. It is said that some of the farmers down there have lost their entire supply.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

While looking over the magnificent displays of vegetables, small fruits, corn, oats, barley and even sugar cane that were exhibited at the Fosston fair, we were led to wonder whatever makes the farmers in that vicinity try to raise wheat at present prices. Should the Great Northern railroad be extended to Duluth in the early future, they will find abundant market for all the produce they can raise if they do not raise a bushel of wheat for years.

BUCKEYE DEMOCRATS

SENATOR BRICE INDIRECTLY CENSURED BY THE CONVENTION.

A Resolution For the Election of Senators by Direct Vote of the People—Free Coinage Favored—New York Republicans Nominate Morton For Governor

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—The Democratic state convention consumed about four hours in making an important bit of history. The convention was slow in convening, the all-night session of the committee on resolutions being responsible for the delay.

Hon. Frank Hurd of Toledo was introduced as temporary chairman and J. J. McNally of Youngstown as temporary secretary. Mr. Hurd was received with an outburst of applause. His remarks on the new tariff law were loudly cheered and his denunciation of the A. P. A. was also loudly applauded.

After the report of the committee on permanent organization had been adopted making the temporary organization permanent, General R. B. Finley of Bucyrus, chairman of the committee on resolutions, read the report of that committee.

The Platform.

The platform praises the efficient, honest, and economic administration of President Cleveland; declares protection a fraud, and while recognizing the benefit of the reduction of the duty on imports just made by congress, favors such further reduction as can be made, to the end that purely protective duties be abolished; declares that the McKinley law caused the business depression, reduced the revenue and led to the necessity for issuing government bonds; business failures, strikes, low wages, low prices for farm products are enumerated as the result of the McKinley law. Under the new tariff business is declared to be reviving.

Favors Free Coinage.

"We dissent," says one plank, "from the president's views, construction and treatment of the silver question, and therefore believe that silver should be restored to the position it occupied as money prior to its demonetization by the Republican party and to that end we favor the unlimited coinage of silver at the legal ration of 16 to 1, and with equal legal tender power."

The platform denounces the last general assembly of Ohio, Governor McKinley's administration and the American Protective association. It favors labor pensions, "a corrupt practice law" limiting amount of money to be expended by candidates and a law prohibiting free passes on railroads.

The following ticket was nominated: Secretary of state, Milton Turner of Guernsey; judge of the supreme court, James D. Ermiston of Hamilton; member of the board of public works, Harry B. Keiffer of Tuscarawas; state commissioner of common schools, Dr. J. A. Leech of Franklin.

A resolution was also adopted favoring the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. This was considered an indirect censure for Senator Brice.

MORTON NOMINATED.

The Ex-Vice President In the Republican Candidate For Governor of New York.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Ex-Vice Presidents Levi P. Morton has been nominated for governor by New York Republicans, receiving 687 of the 793 votes cast. The other votes were divided between Fassett, Woodford, Butterfield, Russell and Bliss.

At 12:39 a. m. Charles T. Saxton was announced for lieutenant governor on the first ballot. Albert Haight was nominated for judge of the court of appeals on the second ballot. The convention adjourned sine die at 2:10 a. m.

The nomination of Morton was made unanimous, each of the opposing candidates making short speeches pledging him their support.

OWENS THE CANDIDATE.

Breckinridge Turned Down by the Ashland District Convention Committee.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 22.—The Democratic committee for the Seventh congressional district was called to order by Chairman Field McLeod at 12:30, with all members present. A protest against Chairman McLeod's action, and a decision of Chairman Carroll of the state committee, declaring that McLeod could vote only in case of a tie, was filed in behalf of Breckenridge.

A long letter was also received from Breckenridge in which he pointed out to the committee the manner in which they should proceed, and also the fact that they were the sole judges as to who should be entitled to vote at the After canvassing the vote by counties a resolution was unanimously adopted declaring Owens the nominee by a plurality of 255 votes, and the committee adjourned.

HEATWOLE NOMINATED.

The Northfield Editor to Make the Race For Congress.

CRASKA, Minn., Sept. 22.—Joel P. Heatwole of Northfield was nominated for congress on the first ballot in the Third district Republican convention here.

THE MICA MINERS.

A Southerner Who Demands Protection and Fights Republican Battles.

Having been a manufacturer of pottery in Pennsylvania and having represented the United States Potters' association during the centennial exhibition in 1876, and afterward, in 1877, the international exhibition of Philadelphia, I had occasion to visit many manufacturing establishments in England, France, Germany and Austria, and while there had occasion to compare their pauper labor with our labor. If some of these free trade politicians would take a trip through the manufacturing and mining districts of Europe, as I have done, they would soon change their minds and never talk free trade any more.

I am nicely situated here in the mountain region, own a comfortable home with beautiful gardens and several thousand acres of fine timber land. I am engaged in mining and also sell large tracts of land and have over 4,000,000 acres on the market now and about 400 mines of all sorts.

Of course I want protection. Mica was mined here on a large scale at one time and shipped to parts of this country and Europe. During Cleveland's former administration they put it on the free list, and our mines were closed up, as we could not compete with the cheap labor (10 cents per day) of India. During Harrison's administration it was put at 35 per cent duty, but before it took effect they laid in heavy supplies to last for some time, and now congress has put it on the free list again. As it is, we are in hot water, and nobody is willing to risk money in the business. Kaolin, or china clay, was discovered by me and became a great industry. Not knowing what these fool politicians will do finally, this business also is of a standstill.

I am doing all I can to assist and always have assisted the Republican cause in the endeavor to protect American industries.

W. A. E. SCHREIBER.

Webster, N. C.

Republican Versus Democratic Wages.

Sheffield's 4% Republican states pay an average of $1.32 per day in farm wages. Eighteen Democratic states pay an average of 87 cents per day in farm wages. This is from a report of the department of agriculture in 1890. Look the sum to see their folly in remaining Democratic, could they only put aside the old sectional hate, forget their foolishness, adopt protection and develop their resources, wages of farm hands would be as high as in the north, and wages of laborers in other industries would be much higher than now. There are vast opportunities in the south as soon as they throw off the shackles of Democracy and free trade. The farm flourishes with the factory. Rock helps the other, and when factories are running at full time the farmer will get good prices for his products and his hands good wages for their toil.

Buy American Silks.

Why should your wife buy an imported Japanese silk dress? There are American factories that are making silks just like the Japanese patterns. The Japanese men work for a few cents a day. The Americans cannot do so. There is no difference in the price or quality of the two different silks, so why not encourage the American silk industry by buying a dress pattern that was made in your own country? By doing so you will help to give work to an American and make an American home happy.

TOO MANY SPARROWS.

The English Bird Is Not Even a Favorite In His Own Home.

It appears that the detested English sparrow is by no means a general favorite in his own home across the water, where his habits have been more carefully noted.

In the course of his paper on "Wild Birds, Useful and Injurious," in the Royal Agricultural society's journal, Mr. C. F. Archibald says: "The sparrow has received an overflowing measure of abuse from farmers and gardeners, and, notwithstanding all that has been urged in its favor by enthusiastic advocates, there can be little doubt that it deserves a large share of the vituperation bestowed upon it. The keynote to the sparrow's character is to be found in the delusion under which it labors that corn growing is carried on for its especial benefit. Grain is undoubtedly the mainstay of the sparrow. Take it obtains in the fields at seedtime, when sprouting in the ample, milky condition, and when fully matured. At this last named period a quantity of grain is wasted by being shaken out on the ground by the birds, in addition to the amount actually consumed. At this time, too, numbers of sparrows which live for the greater part of the year in towns are tempted to visit the field, their gray appearance proclaiming their usual haunts.

"In gardens the sparrow finds full scope for its destructive propensities in devouring peas, of which it is very fond, as well as a few gooseberries and cherries. In the most mischievous way, too, it pulls to pieces the flowers of the crocus, dahlia, primrose, polyanthus, hepatica, heartsease, wistaria, the shoots of pinks and carnations, the pods of the laburnum and the blossom of fruit trees. It also does considerable damage to beds of young radishes and lettuces, besides levying toll on the grain sown on lawns. On the other hand, it must be freely admitted that the sparrow does a great deal of good.

"Among the pests destroyed by the sparrows are wireworms; daddy longlegs, weevils from peas and beans, aphides, caterpillars of various kinds, chafers, 'bibo beetles,' 'black beetles' and white butterflies. In some districts orchovies, otherwise known as maybugs, commonly do immense damage, and at such times sparrows have been seen with their mouths crammed full of them. The quality of wood seeds which the sparrow eats must also be placed to its credit, for in this way is helps to suppress such objectionable plants as charlock, corn bind weed, groundsel, knotgrass, hatterup, dandelion, chickweed and dock."

CHANCE AND CHANGE.

"There was a rose by your gate last year,
Good neighbor, tell me now," he said,
"Does the fragrant one whom I long to hear
Or blooms it yet in your garden bed?"

"Two gates there were
Have the red buds blown,
Two for one fair maid to need to be!
For there's many a day
'Twixt May and May,
And many a change in a year!" said she.

"And there was a girl 'neath your roof
Last year,
Good neighbor, tell me now," he said,
"Does her foot full light in the cottage
Or is she wooed and is she wed?"
She lies apart
With a noiseless heart,
A broken heart, 'neath the red rose tree!
For there's many a day
'Twixt May and May,
And many a change in a year!" said she.

The Woman In Black.

"One of the most mysterious circumstances connected with the keeping of national cemeteries is a woman in black who visits them all," said E. C. Trindle. "I was in charge of one of these cemeteries for several years, and the woman made two visits that I know of. She never comes during the day, and it is purely accidental when we learn that she has been there at all. Hiring a carriage at midnight, she will come to the wall, and climbing the inclosure will search the entire cemetery by means of a dark lantern for the grave of some relative. She has never found it, but every year she makes the round of every national cemetery in the country in the vain hope that some day she will learn where her loved one lies buried."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

IN TENTS BY THE SEA

OCEAN GROVE THE WORLD FAMOUS METHODIST CAMP MEETING.

Much Unlike Camp Meetings of More Primitive Times and Places, It Resembles Them In the Fervor of Its Love Feasts. The New Auditorium.

A man with a fringe of white whiskers on his chin and a woman who wore prunella shoes stepped from a railroad train at Asbury Park one day in August last year and gazed about them. For 30 years they had "been to camp meeting" together. This year they had been persuaded—overpersuaded they almost felt like telling each other as they beheld the worldly sights and heard the worldly sounds of the broad station platform—by their grownup sons and daughters not to give up their week of tent worship, but to enjoy it at Ocean Grove, the location of the most famous camp meeting in the world, instead of going to the meetings they had so many years attended in "Brother Fosdick's woods."

They had made the journey from their inland home fully prepared, they believed, for the unexpected, but not for such a crowd of persons, to their eyes themselves "unclothed" in dress and manner, nor for such noise and bustle, nor for the policemen that were scattered about. But after a little they plucked up courage and took seats in one of the carryall-like stages that navigate between the station and "the Grove." The fare was 10 cents apiece, and later they learned with dismay that all but 2 cents of the 20 they expended for the transportation might have been saved by walking a half mile or thereabouts and paying a five-cent fee of a man who across the little lake that divides "the Park" and "the Grove."

He took their intention, on the advice of friends who knew of the arrangements for temporal comfort at Ocean Grove, to rent a furnished tent and live under canvas there, as they were want to do at home, but when they learned that tents rent for $1 a day, tables for 50 cents a week, chairs for 25 and other things in proportion they figured up the cost when the food should be paid for, considered the trouble of keeping house and decided to board at the hotel at which they had been set down by the stage driver and devote their time to worship and rest and decorous sightseeing.

During their first day at "the Grove" they met with but one experience at all familiar. It was repeated often during the fortnight which their stay was extended and was furnished by the fervor of the love feasts. No other feature of these gatherings reminded them of the feasts they had enjoyed at home. There it was an extremely well attended love feast if 300 were present, and in such cases the feast would be held under the trees in front of the "preachers' stand."

Often the attendance would not exceed a score or so, and then the gathering would be under the canvas of one of the larger of the brethren's tents. At Ocean Grove the love feasts were held in a vast auditorium, and the attendance varied from 6,000 to 7,000. The size of the building and the immensity of the throng at first quite took their breath away. At the feasts they had been accustomed to the brethren and sisters broke bread together and drank water from the same cup. Here they could do nothing of the sort because of the vastness of the assemblage, but a substitute was introduced that warmed the hearts of the visitors mightily.

"Let every brother and every sister," said the leader in loud, clear tones, "shake hands with every brother and sister within reaching distance."

Then every one stood, and there was a swaying of the multitude as if a mighty wind had swept over the field, and there every one reached for hands, and the man with the fringe of snowy chin whiskers and the woman with the prunella shoes found that, though the hands extended to them were softer than those of most of the brothers and sisters met at the love feasts at home, they were not less cordial. Above the rustling of garments and the murmur of well spoken greetings, too, were heard the familiar ejaculations of "Praise the Lord!" and "Hallelujah!" and there came from the lips of the fervid appointment himself a soul satisfied "Amen!" as his being was permeated with the spirit of the time and place.

After a little the voice of the leader, penetrating every part of the building, was heard again.

"Now shake hands with me!" he cried, and every right hand in the throng was held aloft and shaken, and exclamations of religious fervor were heard in every direction.

When the multitude sat again, the face of the good woman was wet with tears, and the lips of her husband were tremulous with ecstasy. Then followed the "testimony." There was no urging needed here, as there often had been at home, to induce the worshipers to "tell the time." The leader, on the other hand, was obliged to hasten some of those who seemed to desire to speak at Settle and his friends, but this denial does not appear to be taken as being grossly significant, because it is a denial and not an admission that would be put forth if the charges were true, and nothing is added to its weight by the fact that Breckinridge's friends are quite as strenuous in voicing the denial as are Settle's.

Major Henry Clay McDowell is certain, as things look now, to be the Republican nominee—that is, if Breckinridge should succeed in winning the Democratic nomination. Notwithstanding the fact that his political affiliations have not been acceptable to the bulk of the best people of the Ashland district in the past, there are not wanting those who declare that thousands of good Democratic votes would be cast for him in preference to Breckinridge. He is a cousin of the late General Irvin McDowell of the United States army and has the blood of the famous Clay family in his veins, being grandnephew to Henry Clay. His wife is great-granddaughter to the same eminent statesman, and their home is Ashland, the old time estate of the Clay family. Major McDowell is the richest resident of his part of the state, he is recognized as one of the leading citizens by all classes, and Ashland is a social center. His wife's father was the third Clay of the name of Henry and was killed in the Mexican war at the battle of Buena Vista. The fine old residence at Ashland is furnished regally and tastefully, and its contents include a remarkably well selected library of rare and valuable books. Major McDowell has never been personally prominent in politics. His ownership of some of the finest blooded horses in Kentucky has, however, made him very well known. Among the famous horses that have been raised on the Ashland estate was the stallion Dictator, sire of some of the fastest trotters in the world, including Phallas, Jay Eye See, Nancy Hanks, etc. So much for the standard bearers in the fight against Colonel Breckinridge. His career and characteristics are too well known to need space here. The fight itself has presented some truly curious phases.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of these has been the publication of a book containing the record made daily of the words and doings of Madeline Pollard by a young woman in the employ of the colonel during the trial of the notorious breach of promise case. It was a piece of ingenuity worthy of a Breckinridge to hire a woman to worm herself into the confidence of the plaintiff during the progress of the suit, and it was a logical sequence to bring out the book at the time. Whether or not it will serve the proposed purpose of counteracting the feeling of aversion that has manifested itself in some quarters because of the revelations made on the trial against the man who is now being tried a second time by a jury composed of the voters of his own neighborhood will be decided by time.

Throughout the entire campaign so far most of the women of the district have been against him, and their opposition has not been lessened by the fact that his managers have revived many old scandals concerning members of such families as do not now countenance his candidacy. In return for these tactics on his part an old scandal of a financial nature, in which a dynasty is principal, has been raked up against him.

In many places flags and banners and transparencies bearing mottoes directly referring to the social significance of the campaign have been displayed, and these have in several instances added greatly to the existing tension. As one plans a flag inscribed with the words, "Protect American Womanhood," was torn into small pieces and trampled under foot by the crowd, and this action, so the telegraph states, was participated in by some of the women who were present.

Mr. Owens, like Major McDowell, is something of a turf devotee, and this characteristic is held up as having against both of them among the Methodists and Presbyterians of the district, who are very numerous.

It can be readily seen why the inhabitants of the Ashland district, no matter what their personal views regarding the congressional nomination may be, are already tired of the present campaign. They are a great people, and the charges and countercharges that have been made and are sure to be made later are likely to leave some wives and sons standing in society and public life has always been unimpounded till now. Very few of these charges are true, but none of them—will be proved. In fact, they are so wild by the nature extremely difficult to substantiate. But they will be quite as difficult to disprove and are certain to leave lasting stains, whether true or not.

It is this that excites apprehensions of bloodshed, for with regard to the social honor of the women of his household the Kentuckian has held from time immemorial that the only thing that will wipe out a stain is gore. If shooting once begins, there is no telling where it will end or for how many generations the feuds it engenders will last. The fact that there are yet rising of two months to be lived through before the holding of the Democratic convention called for Sept. 16—is to be deplored, for that is enough time to work the whole district into a frenzy. The Republican convention will be held on Sept. 26. If in the meantime there may be existing telegrams to the newspapers from the Ashland district "incest any day."—HENRY ALLEYOUR.

ACTS ONE AND TWO.

THE THEATRICAL PROFESSION NOW STUDIES THE TARIFF.

Anxiously Wonder About the Closing Scene of Act Three—Prescribe Means for Good Houses—"Tariff Reform" Closes the Doors. Idle Actors Interested.

Attention has already been brought to the condition of the theatrical profession in the United States this year as compared with 1892 and 1893, showing the large number of unemployed actors who have been the recipients of charity from a fund especially collected for that purpose. In order to investigate this condition more fully, a number of the leading theaters in different states in the country have been asked to furnish a comparative statement of their receipts during the first three months of 1893 and 1894. Taking 100 to represent their receipts from January to March, 1893, the figures in the second and third columns represent the receipts during the corresponding three months of the two years as follows:

States.	Number of theaters.	Receipts Jan. to March, 1893.	Receipts Jan. to March, 1894.	Loss.
Alabama	2	200	143	57
Georgia	3	300	200	100
Illinois	5	500	901	199
Indiana	2	200	141	59
Iowa	1	100	81	19
Kansas	1	100	150	50
Kentucky	1	100	90	10
Maryland	1	100	68	1
Massachusetts	5	500	402	98
Michigan	2	200	179	21
Minnesota	1	100	60	40
Mississippi	1	100	100	—
New Hampshire	2	300	141	59
New Jersey	3	300	171	129
New York	6	900	533	367
Ohio	4	400	268	132
Pennsylvania	6	500	418	82
Tennessee	1	100	77	23
Texas	1	100	87	13
West Virginia	1	100	52	48
Washington	1	100	60	40
Wisconsin	1	100	55	45
Totals	47	4,700	3,406	1,292

Average loss, 27 per cent.

The foregoing shows reports from 47 of the leading theaters of the United States. For every $4,700 received by these theaters during the first three months of 1893 their receipts amounted to only $3,408 during the first three months of the present year, the loss being $1,292, or 27 per cent for the whole country. While the actor is not directly protected by a tariff, it is very evident that the prosperity of the country under a protective tariff affords larger receipts to those engaged in the theatrical profession than the disturbed condition of the country will permit under the mere threat of free trade. When people are not earning money at all or are not earning good wages, it is impossible for them to spend money upon amusements. Protection to American industries means prosperity to the theatrical business.

Free New Material Theory.

Free traders pretend to want raw materials. They do what is possible in a state of northern production, but not when it comes from the south. We have had free cotton, free hides and free silk. What the result has been the following figures will show:

Free raw materials.	Importation of manufactured goods. 1893.	Exportation of manufactured goods. 1893.
Cotton	$32,252,200	$31,135,431
Hides	12,566,193	12,275,476
Silk	11,063,000	1,000,000

Instead of capturing the markets of the world, we have imported far more of the manufactured article than we have exported. Thus another free trade bubble is exploded.

Free Traders Disagree.

The following shows how well free traders agree. Both speeches were made on the same day:

Extract from speech of Senator Hoke Smith in 1892:

Our tariff is closing the foreign markets against us. We must have access to the people who want our farm products. Sixty-six cents a year extra for the holding of the Democratic convention—called for Sept. 16—is to be deplored, for that is enough time to work the whole district into a frenzy. The Republican convention will be held on Sept. 26. If in the meantime there may be existing telegrams to the newspapers from the Ashland district "incest any day."—HENRY ALLEYOUR.

Extract from speech of Senator now Secretary of State Gresham in 1893:

The trade between these states is largely by thousands of miles of dollars that could save easier between this and all other countries of the world, if we had abolished free trade.

Can't Waste Time on Go Between.

The next monster petition that congress should do something and adjourn ought to be addressed to Mr. Have mayer.—Chicago Times.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No surgery has ever compared with that of nerves. It has been the leading subject of medical research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact there is scarcely a physician who will not admit that the seat of life is located in the spinal cord, and that the brain and spinal cord are the only nerve centers that control the various organs of the body.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve force are also deranged. When it is recognized that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the limbs, or the injured point, because the nerve force prevented by the injury from reaching the organs below, it will be readily understood that the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of all sickness and pain to-day is caused by the derangement of these nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a disease primarily originating in the nerves themselves. The great dictator of physicians in treating these diseases is that they seek to reach rather than the nerve centers which control the diseased organs.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many wonderful discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treating the wrong end—touching, dosing, stimulating, inflammation, pressure, blisters, nauseating medicines, etc., instead of the Vitus Gauze, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, 6 bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates or dangerous drugs.

Extra coaches will be attached to the morning freight train during the fair to accommodate all who desire to visit the fair at Fertile this week. A person can go down in the morning and return in the evening.

The hearing in the case of appointing a guardian for Knute Nelson, of Garfield, was had before Judge Benson last week and adjourned until Tuesday at Fertile. The judge went down on Monday evening to preside.

The walls of the new hotel are up even with the streets and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. It will require lively work to get the building enclosed ready for the finishing touches before winter sets in.

The long continued drouth was broken by a good soaking rain on Saturday that soaked the ground up good and plenty. The ground was not only getting almost too dry for plowing, but in many cases wells were beginning to give out, the natural water courses were drying up and it was becoming a difficult thing to get water for stock. It was becoming a serious matter and the rain did not come too soon.

The Wabasha County Herald says: "Mrs. John Monroe and children, of Crookston, are in the city on a visit."

Several Nebraska farmers, who have suffered a total loss of crop from drouth in that state during the past summer are up looking over Polk county for farms.

Northern Iowa and southern Minnesota was visited by a fearful wind-storm last week. Several small villages were wrecked and a number of lives were lost.

Dr. Warninger's trotters, Ham Nut and Nut Ham make a dandy carriage team. They are almost perfectly matched and take no dust from any Polk county team.

Jas. E. Morrisey has secured the contract for the steam heating plant for the new hotel. This is as it should be. Our home people should have all of the work in connection with the building.

Wm. Becker was arrested on Tuesday charged with passing a forged check on Lemon Bros. He claimed to have received the check from Frank McLennan, at Angus but that gentleman says he knows nothing about it.

Notwithstanding the statement that the elevators in Chicago and other eastern points are all filled, it don't seem to depress the price of of wheat which has a strong upward tendency. We could stand a ten cent raise.

Fosston did the square thing by sending her band down to our fair last summer and Crookston returned the compliment on Thursday with three coach loads of visitors to the Fosston fair, besides many during the entire session.

Lincoln J. Carter's new play "Fast Mail" will be put on at the opera house on Friday evening. This is said to be one of the finest plays ever produced here and manager Holm assures us that we cannot say too much in his praise.

The balloonist at the Fosston fair was playing in hard luck it would seem. He did not manage to make an ascent until the last day of the fair and while descending in his parachute he collided with a barn and was quite severely injured.

To-day is Crookston day at the fair at Fertile. As no excursion train runs on the N. P. it is probable that not so many of our citizens will go down as attended the Fosston fair last week, though lots of 'em have signified a wish to do so.

It seems that Judge Benson got a prize at the Fosston fair—a gold ring. What kind of a vegetable or animal he was entered for our informant did not say. Perhaps it was for speed, as he has always come out ahead in the political races he has run so far.

S. L. Collins: In the death of Mr. Dobson, Crookston lost one of her most enterprising citizens. I believe Mr. Dobson has built as many houses in this city both business and residence as every other man in it if not more. We can ill afford to lose such men.

Barney Fleisch, a son of John Fleish, of Fosston, was severely injured in a threshing machine one evening last week. While the wounds were painful Constable Fleisch informed us that the boy was doing nicely and without doubt speedily recover. He got his foot badly lacerated in the cylinder.

Prof. J. Walseth gave us a pleasant call last week. The Prof. is the republican candidate for judge of probate, and those who know him best say that he specially adapted to the position. The office, under the workings of the new law, requiring legal talent, and Mr. Walseth being a lawyer, would work in to good advantage.

The McIntosh fair seemed to be devoted almost wholly to advertising and urging county division by parading about carrying banners with mottoes. One motto said that one town in Norman county paid only $500 in taxes while several in Polk pay twice that. If that is true the town in Norman county is taxed higher then the ones in Polk county refered to because while Polk county has made many and great improvements, Norman county is far behind in this particular.

On Thursday night, the dwellers in the vicinity of the M. E. church were startled by a pistol shot that rang out short and sharp on the stilly night, and several went out for to see what was up—but more of them didn't. It seems that S. Sundet and Mike Brosseau got into an altercation in Austin's saloon and Sundet took after Mike chasing him to the corner of Broadway, where Mike turned and fired a shot—in the air he claims to scare off his assailant. In the excitement that followed Mike put up leg-ball and got away. He was however brought before the bar of justice later and fined $5 and costs as the latter found that there were two sides to the question.

Miss E. Veronneau informs the JOURNAL that her new fall goods are now arriving and desires us to request her lady friends to await her grand opening event which will occur in about ten days.

Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. Brennau and Miss. E. Veronneau went over to Grand Forks on Sunday and spent the day with friends in that city.

"Crookston's day" at the Fosston fair was a big one. Still there were over 200 Crookston people out there, including those who were there before the special train arrived on Thursday morning.

On the road to Fosston on Thursday we saw some flax being cut, that we were informed seemed good for 8 to ten bushels per acre. It has been a poor year for flax, especially that sown late, and early flax even, is not up to the usual average yield.

When S. M. McKee sold out a year or so since T. Hynes and son bought his thoroughbred shropshire. They now have some fine specimens to sell which they offer elsewhere in this issue. This is a good chance for any who wish to secure some good sheep.

The contributions to the relief of the sufferers from the forest fires that destroyed Hinckley, and other villages on the Eastern Minnesota road amount to nearly $100,000 and are still pouring in. They come from all over the world and show that there is still a great deal of true charity in humanity.

The election of the republican candidates for superintendent of schools, Miss Ida Hancock, seems a foregone conclusion, especially since the ladies, who can all vote on that office, have heartily espoused her cause and are putting in good, effective work. She is every way well qualified for the position and will make an efficient superintendent.

Congressman Boen came up to Crookston last week and went out to the Fosston fair to interview the agricultural products of the soil. Of course Boen's visit was merely from a deep personal interest in his constituents and had no political significance whatever. He will (possibly) find time to go up into the Thief River country and look after square his actions against their new mill with the farmers.

The balloon business at Fosston last week was as near akin to a fake as it is possible to get—for, all of which the fair management was not to blame and it is possible that the aeronaut himself was not, for it is certain that every accident that occurred to prevent the ascent of the man with the balloon looked so natarnl that no one could tell the difference.

C. T. Lannan when in the city last week was heard to remark. "If we don't succeed in our attempt to get Polk county up the back this time we will give it to you fellows good and plenty next time we get a chance at it. We will devise a scheme to get out a few more county seats and a few more sets of county officers and then well have you dead to rights." or words to that effect.

It strikes us that our farmers could well follow the example of Iowa farmers and fatten hogs on wheat. Iowa farmers are shipping stock from Minneapolis by the carloads to fatten hogs on, paying the Minneapolis price with freight added. It strikes as if they can afford to do that there is a good margin for the Northern Minnesota farmer to work on—and a good hint. There is cheaper to feed than barley, and better.

Notwithstanding the harvest was finished a good bit sooner this fall then ever before known in this country, the plowing does not seem to be proportionally advanced, owing, no doubt to the continued drouth. The prairie grass was also getting extremely dry thus endangering farm buildings ingresses and everything that could be destroyed by fire. Saturday's good soaking will change all expedite matters.

We have sometimes been led to wonder how these county division boomers figure out that the simple act of dividing Polk county into four counties would bring untold prosperity and build up, not only the villages that will be county seats but the surrounding country as well. We have an idea that it will require something more substantial to bring true pospserity than a simple division of the county. That act will not create better markets, will not make better prices for produce, and we believe the boomers themselves are deceived (if indeed they believe any such things) That same idea was urged when Norman county was set off, that it would make a fine large city of Ada—but did it? If so we have failed to notice it. And in those days we were supposed to be on a tidal wave of prosperity. No it will require something else to bring true prosperity to the country.

We have read a great deal about the wonderful yields of vegetables in old England, and natives of that country are never weary of telling about the large amount of garden stuff they have seen produced on very small patches, and it is indeed rarely that an Englishman will concede that anything like it can be produced in America. Therein, however, one Englishman in Crookston, who has to admit that he has at last met up with a garden here that crowds old England's record wonderfully close, if indeed it is not as good as anything she ever produced, and that man is English Tom, who has just finished harvesting Dr. J. H. Thoma's garden patch. This garden is a patch only about 50x50 feet in size, but if there is any kind of a vegetable indigenous to this climate, that has not grown upon it this summer we don't know what its name is. The doctor says that he commenced using radish and let one from it on the 5th day of May and it has supplied his family with choice vegetables all summer and he has stored away for winter's use, cabbage, turnips, squash, winter radishes, celery, carrots, beets, onions and potatoes; he has used cucumbers all summer and put down a barrel or so for pickles; has had tomatoes in plenty to use and has canned a good many; he has the finest asparagus bed in the city beside some fine bushes for small fruits berries and such like. This is only the second crop ever raised on the land and shows what fertilizers and attention, intelligently applied will do with Polk county soil. If you should ever hear a man say that Polk county soil is no good tell him to go and see Dr. Thoma's garden.

A production of unusual magnitude will be given at the Opera House next Friday evening. Lincoln J. Carter's superb scenic melodrama "The Fast Mail." As its name indicates, it deals largely with the railroad in its incidents, but it presents an abundance of effects that are daring in their magnificent and admirable in their execution. The steamboat is said to be a wonder of elaborate completeness in masterly mechanical work, and the railroad scene, with its trains going at a terrific rate of speed, makes the stage seem like a piece of reality. The Niagara Falls scene is wonderfully beautiful, and it may safely be said is more elaborate than anything of the kind ever before attempted in this city.—There are a multitude of minor effects that contribute to make the performance a revelation of realism. The whistles, bells and splashing are heard as the boat leaves the wharf. The sounds that tell us of an approaching train herald the approach of the freight and the fast mail follows, the latter rushing by with people gazing from the window as the heroine who has just saved her lover's life by fastening a letter to the mail pouch. The roaring of Niagara Falls is heard, and the start that rises from it shown vividly. The play is under the personal direction of L. J. Carter, the author. The cast is said to be a capable one. The play is startling at times in the intensity of its climaxes, and these, when presented with all the effects of the intricate stage settings, bring the interest to a degree that is rarely attained even in the melodrama. A large number of people are employed in the production which is in many particulars plainly the result of care and skill combined.

George Bunay came over from North Dakota and went out to his home at Mentor on Thursday. George said that for several years back he has been in the habit of going over there to run a thresher engine and up to this fall he always came back with from $300 to $400 in good coin of the realm but this fall was a corker—breaking all records as he didn't have enough left to buy a good horse with and they can be bought for $30 over there. He is confident that business will pick up again, however—when the republicans again come in power.

A Marvelous Showing.

The U. S. Government, through the Agricultural Department, has been investigating the baking powders for the purpose of informing the public which was the purest, most economical and wholesome.

The published report shows the Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful preparation, absolutely free from alum or any adulterant, and that it is greatly stronger in leavening power than any other baking powder.

Consumers should not let this valuable information, official and unprejudiced, go unheeded.

RESIDENCE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I have forty desirable lots in Jerome's addition, which I offer for sale at reasonable prices and on terms to suit purchasers. These lots have 50 and 100 feet frontage, and are situated on light land, where good dry cellars can be got, and an abundance of pure water can be procured at a depth of from 15 to 25 feet. Jerome's addition is the healthiest and pleasantest portion of the city. Not a single case of typhoid fever has ever been reported there, and this is no doubt owing to the good water found everywhere on that addition. WILL WINN.

ON ITS PRINCIPLES.

TAKEN as a whole the republican ticket is the strongest, the best one in the field. It is possible that there may be one or two weak places, one or two candidates that might be bettered and this cannot be so much a matter of wonder in a world where nothing is absolutely perfect, and if there be any weak spots in the ticket they are counter-balanced in the fact that the underlying principles of republicanism are in the interests of good government—of equal rights for all, and hence the republican ticket is worthy of support. The JOURNAL does not believe in bossism, in machine methods in politics and is the organ of no boss, of no machine politician. It believes in advocating the interests of the common people, defending their rights and supporting that party that was formed by the common people in the interests of the true spirit of American liberty. Many times the JOURNAL could have advanced its financial interests, temporarily, if it would have allowed its course to be dictated by some local politician, but this course would not be in the interests of the rank and file of the party and we have never permitted it. Republicanism does not mean bossism. Its principles go deeper and are founded upon the true spirit of American liberty and hence we say that the republican party is worthy the support of every man who believes in equal rights for all, and while it is true that mistakes may be made in some non-essential points we say that there are less mistakes of this kind than any ticket in the field presents. Other parties have made their choice with a view to availability and the power to elect their ticket. The republican party has sought to select only such men as would properly discharge the duties of their office if elected, and this course is less liable to error than the one that considers more the question whether a man can be elected then whether he will be a true and competent official after he is elected.

ONE of the most prominent pops in the state, last week remarked in high glee, to the writer: "Owen will be elected governor of Minnesota by a fall by an old-time republican majority—anywhere from 30,000 to 40,000 majority." We asked him what he based his glowing hopes upon and instead of replying that the principles of his party are becoming recognized as the best for the people, he said: "Why, the masses in St. Paul and Minneapolis, (many of whom do not read a paper from one year's end to the other, and more of whom do not care a continental about the kind of government they live under, and know little, if anything, about the principles of government) are SOLID FOR OWEN, and besides that," he said with a grin, "Gen. Becker is dissatisfied with the way the democrats are using him and will support Owen, we shall get all of those democratic votes." In the first days of populism the average pop would tell that his party was bound to win because it was the people's party; because the old parties had become so corrupt, relying upon all such underhanded methods as the above for success, but now they seem to be doing the very things they so bitterly condemned in the old parties, showing that their main object is to secure the offices, at any cost and by any means. If there was anything in that rumor, it implies a trade between the pops and dems, and you may depend upon it that Gen. Becker is not a party to it.

H. B. DAVIS, the republican candidate for county auditor, is one of the leading farmers of Polk county. He is also a thorough business man, fully capable of discharging the important duties of the office for which he has been nominated. He was not an aspirant for that or any other nomination, in fact he did not come near the convention that nominated him and he was chosen wholly upon the grounds of his fitness for the office. That the choice was a wise one, everybody who knows Mr. Davis well knows. He is not a man to push himself forward obnoxiously but he is a man of sterling worth, who will be a credit to the county in the office of county auditor.

STRIKES ARE LEGAL.

IN CERTAIN CASES.

Judge Harlan Rules that a Strike is not Necessarily Illegal—but strikers Must not Conspire to Injure Property.

In the United States Court of Appeals at Chicago on Oct. 1st., Judge Harlan gave an opinion in the great strike case in which he handles Judge Jenkins famous strike order rather severely. Judge Harlan held that a body of men has a right to quit work, no matter what discomfort to other might result from that action. They however, have no right to conspire together to the injury of others or the destruction of property. He disagreed with Judge Jenkins in his famous opinion that "a strike is necessarily illegal." Judge Harlan holds that there is such a thing as a legal strike. The opinion concludes with the statement that the act of congress of July 2d 1890, known as the inter-state commerce law has no bearing on the case before the court. The order of Judge Jenkins is reversed in part and the cause is remanded.

F. M. EDDY,

OUR NEXT CONGRESSMAN.

The JOURNAL takes great pleasure in presenting its readers this week with an idea of how the next congressman from the seventh district looks in actual every day life. It is not very much for pretty, except on the theory that "pretty is that pretty does." On that theory he does pretty well, thank you. He is a thoroughly educated, practical, farmer-like man, one well acquainted with the needs of the people of this district, and knows how to get them. He will be the best man in the business shoe Comstock was sent to Congress, and he ought to be elected by our old-time rousing majority.

DEATH OF CAPT. PARKER.

Past-Department Commander, Charles D. Parker, died at his home in St. Anthony Park on Saturday, Sept. 29th after a brief illness caused by an ulcerated stomach. The death of Capt. Parker will come as a complete surprise to his many Grand Army friends, very many of whom did not even know of his illness, and many of whom saw him for the last time in life at the state encampment, where in the best of health and spirit he earnestly championed the cause of Capt. Jack Mallen, who was a candidate for Dept. Commander. How few of us, when we saw these two men march together upon the platform, Capt. Parker apparently in rugged health, and poor old Capt. Jack, with his one limb off, sick and suffering from his serious illness, how few of us thought that Capt. Parker would, after all, answer the last roll-call before his afflicted comrade did. But so it often is, the strong and robust lay aside life's burden while the weak and the crippled continue to suffer on. Many a comrade will drop a silent tear to the memory of Capt. Chas. D. Parker, and long will his memory be cherished in the hearts of every true and loyal G. A. R. man who knew him—and everyone in the department of Minnesota did. He enlisted at 18 years of age and served in an Ohio regiment, and was 50 years old when he died.

REV. R. H. BATTY arrived in Monday morning for a visit of a day or so, going north from here to Warren, where he is to deliver temperance lectures this week.

POTATOES.

AS A MONEY CROP.

ARE MORTGAGE LIFTERS.

The Prinston Union Gives the Experience of Farmers in Mille Lacs County this Fall.

In its last issue the Princton Union has the following interesting article that should be of interest to Polk county farmers as well as to those it renders as our soil is just as well adapted to potato culture as is theirs: In Mille Lacs county and the surrounding country, the farmers for many years, stuck to grain raising. Good crops were generally raised, but the income was not much more than the cost of living from year to year and oftentimes, when the balance was struck, the farmer found himself in debt. Starch factories sprang up three or four years since, and began the consumption of potatoes for the purpose of making starch. Princeton's go-ahead business men built a large factory at this place. Though the price of potatoes at that time was extremely low—18 to 20 cents per bushel, farmers, even then, found there was more money in raising potatoes at that modest figure than in grain raising. The price of potatoes having advanced beyond profit in the storch business, the factory has been inactive a greater part of the time, but it must always have the credit of getting the farmers into the right channel of farming, and of putting them on the road to financial prosperity. Farmers found themselves with mortgages lifted, homes free from incumbrance and a cash balance on hand. This year, a heavy acreage was planted and the crop started from the ground with the most promising prospects. The long drought set in, and farmers throughout this part of the country began to shake their hands and predict a dismal failure. The time of the potato harvest is now at hand. Every day, hundreds of loads of potatoes come into this market. They are sold at prices ranging from 40 to 60 cents per bushel. Men who predicted failure, are going to the bank with checks in hand to draw their money, or deposit the same to their credit. Hundreds of new settlers who have settled on the lands around Princeton, managed to put in a few acres of potatoes this spring. They will receive all the way from $100 to $1,000 in cash from their little clearings. Under the old method of only raising on a new farm, they could not have made a living without going out to work by the day, now they are well prepared for the winter and can remain at home to open up and improve the lands ready for a larger acreage next season. On some of the old farms with a large acreage under cultivation, the farmers were fairly well to do while rising grain, but as before noted, not above debt. Teams are in the market, to-day, belonging to a farmer who has a 12,000 bushel contract to sell at 60 cents per bushel. $7,200 in clean cash from a 160 acre farm, and only one third of the farm was planted to potatoes. Where in the line of farming can you beat it? In a little over three months from time of putting seed into the ground the farmer has over $7,000 in the bank! Another farmer well-known at this office has 20 acres of potatoes that are turning out over 250 bushels to the acre. 5,000 bushels at 60 cents, or $3,000 from 20 acres of his 160 acre farm. These are veritable facts, and not theories. Throughout this county and the contiguous territory, the land is found to be especially adapted to the growth of the taber. This year has demonstrated the soils wonderful adaptability under the most adverse circumstances—that of a long-continued drouth. For weeks, there was no rain, yet the potato came on with a fine yield of the finest quality. $250,000 will be handed out in cash to the farmers in the vicinity of Princeton for potatoes this year.

Money to Loan at Six Per Cent.

FARM MORTGAGES.

Do they Constitute a Tax.

Speaking on this subject the Fargo Argus says:

"Tax is a pecuniary burden imposed by authority. Therefore, when one voluntarily places a mortgage upon his land to cover deferred payments, to make improvements, to add to his stock in trade or machinery, or even for the purpose of paying old debts he acknowledges a debt and does not thereby assume a tax burden to the extent of the debt. A very large proportion of North Dakota mortgages were given to cover the cost of entering government lands. The mortgage is evidence that the person giving it is doing business upon the capital of others instead of upon his own. It is not an evidence of poverty or of oppressive laws or of the evil working of laws. The debt against new property in the state of North Dakota amounts to $14F per capita. The North Dakota Independent falsely styles this a tax and devotes nearly two columns of double leaded matter to prove this a burden put upon the people by republican wickedness. Every one so shaking the people and then offer them the socialistic remedy of direct loans from the government at what they are again pleased to call a tax in order to avoid the long term interest or the harder but appropriate term usury. Debt is not a tax; interest is not a tax. It is ille to call these burdens a tax. The farm mortgages of North Dakota average $635 each—lower than thirty four of the forty-two states. The percentage of taxed acres mortgaged is $3.38. This does not take into consideration the homesteads and tree claims on which final proof had not been made in 1894, nor the large amount of railroad lands then not taxed, which will reduce the percentage below 3%. California, District of Columbia, Kansas, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Mississippi have a much lower per-centum mortgage debt than North Dakota. New York, notwithstanding its heavy city population, has a per capita mortgage debt of $368, while that of North Dakota is $141."

And the Minneapolis Evening Journal says:

"The census office has just issued a bulletin on farm mortgages in Kansas.

We have all heard a good deal about those Kansas farm mortgages. Weaver, Donnelly, Lonehs, Owen and all the other petulant, pessimistic demagogues have pointed to Kansas as a state where the farmers were crushed mercilessly by the 'insatiate shylocks.' Let us see what this census bulletin says:

It shows that less than a third of the farms are mortgaged, 30 per cent of them are owned by the farmers who work them. Farms incumbered by mortgages constitute 55.5 per cent and they are mortgaged for $5.99 per cent of their value, the average interest rate being 8.15 per cent. The interest burden per family on each encumbered farm is $92.

Now look at other sections. The interest burden in New Jersey is $138, $115 in Rhode Island, $80 in New York. It is estimated from experience that a horse or two or three cows or steers sold every year will prevent foreclosure of the farm mortgage. The mortgage debt certainly does not mean chains, seldom and pauperism. Most of the debt circulated in Kansas, as elsewhere, is the purchase of land and erection of buildings. In a vast majority of cases the borrowed money is used for the farm mortgage. The total incumbrance of the farms, enhancing its value. The census investigation into mortgages shows that considerably more than half the mortgage debt of the United States is found on the realty of Illinois, New York, Ohio, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania and chiefly in the cities in those states. Six counties of New York, which contain as many cities as there are in the entire state owe two-fifths of the mortgage debt of the country, and, of the $5,000,000,000 of mortgage debt of the entire country, New York owes $1,608,874,301, of which $1,390,-001,246 is on lots. Mr. Geo. K. Holmes, chief statistician, in a pamphlet recently issued by the American academy of political and social science on the mortgage debt of the country, says that 'the voluntary character of this kind of indebtedness proves a general consensus of opinion that it is a means of profiting prosperity; otherwise the purchase of real estate and the erection of buildings with the aid of mortgages would cease.' He suggests that, of course, the farmer may sometimes fail to realize the expectations of betterment, entertained when he mortgaged his farm, when a catastrophe like a drouth or excessive moisture ruins his crops, and he is not able readily to meet the interest. But that is exceptional disability. The mortgage debt is the heaviest in the most prosperous sections of the country."

The Kansas farmer, is not in the disastrous condition which the Populist pessimists assert he is. In a vast number of cases, his voluntary mortgaging of his farm has been of great advantage to him. When drouth intervenes his disability is discouraging, to be sure; but he is not justified in censuring the mortgagee for his voluntary act done with a belief that he will better his condition. The mortgagee certainly can't be blamed for a bad crop season. The farmer has his second chance for recovering always.

LOREN W. COLLINS,

Candidate for associate judge of the supreme court is a native of Massachusetts. His father was one of the early settlers of the town of Eden Prairie, Hennepin county, removing his family there in 1854. Young Collins studied law in the office of Smith & Crosby, at Hastings. He enlisted in the Seventh Minnesota infantry and became a first lieutenant. Discharged with his regiment in 1866 he immediately located at St. Cloud, where he practiced law until 1883, and was then appointed district judge to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. James M. McKelvey. At the 1884 election he was elected district judge, and in 1887 was appointed associate judge of the supreme court, a vacancy having occurred upon the decease of Hon. John M. Berry. Judge Collins was elected to the position in 1888, having a majority of 48,806, several thousand more than any other man on the ticket. While practicing law at St. Cloud, he was several times elected county attorney in the democratic county of Stearns, and was also sent to the legislature for the session of 1881-1883. No other member of the supreme court, and no other candidate for a place in that court, now does or ever has resided north of the Twin Cities. Be sure and make a x mark on your ballot after the name of Loren W. Collins.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

On Wednesday Evening October 10th, 1894.

EVERYBODY TURN OUT.

Governor Nelson and Wm. Henry Eustis will address the citizens of Crookston and vicinity on the political issues of the day on Wednesday evening next at the opera house. Everybody cordially invited to attend.

A COMPARISON.

Our populists friends are wont to tell us that their ideas of government all tend to economy. As the JOURNAL likes to prove all things so that a fair conclusion may be arrived at, we have procured a comparison between the legislature of 1891, which was supposed to be fully representative of the populistic idea and that of 1893 which was republican, and we have the following:

APPROPRIATIONS.

By the legislature of 1891	$3,995,329
1893	2,892,243
TAX LEVY.
By the legislature of 1891	$ 6.0026
1893	.0055
The levy of 1891, produced for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1892	$1,545,353
And on the next year ending July 31, 1893	1,657,261
A total of	$3,205,656
The levy of 1893, produced for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1894	$1,414,620
And the produce for the next year ending July 31, 1895	1,443,188
A total of	2,857,816

Which is $347,840 less than under the levy of 1891.

The 1891 rate of levy for all purposes was as follows:

Revenue tax	$0.0069
Soldiers relief tax	.0007
Redemption fund tax	.0010
Funding tax	.0091
General expenses tax	.0023
School tax	.0010
Total	0.0066

The 1893 rate of levy for 1893 was as follows:

Revenue tax	$0.0031
Soldiers' relief tax	.0001
Redemption fund tax	.0001
Funding tax	.0062
General expenses tax	.0031
School tax	0.0015
Total	0.0055

Which is $0.00083 less than the total levy rate of 1891.

PRESIDENTIAL PREVARICATION.

Which Shows "the Result of Patriotic and Unselfish Work."

President Cleveland's message to congress, letter to Hon. Wm. Hem L. Wilson, July 30, 1894.

A measure has been prepared by the appropriate congressional committee embodying tariff reform on the free list of articles herein suggested, It is the result of much patriotic and unselfish work.

The committee have wisely embraced in their measure the only additional internal revenue taxes including a small tax upon incomes derived from certain corporate investments.

If "I deprecated the incorporation" in the Wilson bill "of the income tax feature," why was it necessary to say that the ways and means committee "wisely embraced" it?

If the income tax were "wisely embraced" by the ways and means committee "in the house or even the senate north of the Twin Cities. Be sure and make a x mark on your ballot after the name of Loren W. Collins.

Editor Dana Short on Wheat.

"Any great fall of the price of wheat is no longer possible, as the consumption increases faster than the production."

The above remark was made by Mr. Charles A. Dana, the editor of The Sun, when interviewed in Paris. Mr. Dana may be correct in stating that "any great fall in the price of wheat is no longer possible," because farmers have seen the price of wheat tumble down to bedrock since the election of a Democratic administration, which was aided and abetted by The Sun.

Mr. Dana is wrong, however, in stating that "the consumption increases faster than the production." There was a surplus of wheat stocks throughout the world larger by 63,000,000 bushels July 1, 1894, than on the same date two years ago, larger by 65,000,000 bushels than three years ago, larger by 80,000,000 bushels than four years ago and larger by 86,000,000 bushels than five years ago, when the area planted to wheat was 5,000,000 acres greater than last season's area. Mr. Dana should not be led away by wheat statistical theorists. He should study facts.

More than half the street railway mileage in the United States is now operated by electric power.

IN A BAD FIX.

Disorganization in China Is Appalling—Nothing For the Troops.

SOLDIERS ARE WITHOUT ARMS.

Europeans and Many Chinese Go to Coast Towns For Protection.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—A dispatch sent from Shanghai states that the Chinese war doncell continues to sit, but the disorganization is appalling. The corruption in the commissariat passes belief. There is nothing for the troops. Food is scanty and weapons and war munitions bought and paid for can neither be found nor traced. The great Chinese camp between Tien Tsin and Taku is filled with raw levies and disorder is rampant. The men are without rifles. Foreigners do not venture in the camp unless amply guarded. Most of the Europeans have gone to the coast towns for protection. Many Chinese merchants have gone to the coast towns, feeling that they will be more secure with the foreigners.

The transport Hung Chang arrived at Hunkow for the purpose of embarking troops for the north. Troops have been ordered to proceed from Canton to Formosa.

HOSTILE TO FOREIGNERS.

Chinese Soldiers Assault Prominent Europeans.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—Dispatches received here from Tien Tsin say that private advices have reached the latter city from Pekin, warning all foreigners from proceeding to the capital. The road and waterways from Tung Chow to Pekin are alive with soldiers who are hostile to all Europeans. Several British residents of Pekin have been assaulted, including Mr. Touss, interpreter of the British legation, Dr. Dudgeon and others who were journeying north.

It is rumored that the British steamer Irene, which arrived at Tien Tsin on Sept. 25 from Shanghai, having on board a number of Maxim rapid firing guns and a quantity of ammunition for the Chinese, has infringed the neutrality laws. The representative of the British government is understood to be taking action in the matter.

MAY BE DEPOSED.

Chinese Emperor May Be Dethroned in Favor of Prince Kung's son.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says: The emperor of China will very likely be dethroned in favor of Prince Kung's son, who will treat with the Japanese. Li Hung Chang has been superceded in the supreme command by General Sung Ting of the province of Hunan, who has received full power. Li Hung Chang retires disgraced to Pao Ting Foo, the capital of the province of Chi Li. His alleged defection to the Japanese is only a rumor consequent to the recall of Prince Kung. Twenty thousand Indian soldiers are gathered around Shan Hai Kwan, the terminus of the great wall, where it forms a boundary between the provinces of Chi Li and Shang King. Li Hung Chang's army is distrusted.

SIGNIFICANT MOVEMENTS.

Japanese Warships Cruising Along the Coast of China.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—A dispatch from Chee Foo to the Pall Mall Gazette says that Japanese cruisers are sighted daily off that port. It is added that the nature of their operations are unknown. But, coupled with the fact that it has already been reported that the Japanese have effected a landing to the northward of Chee Foo, these movements are regarded as significant and as tending to confirm the story of the Japanese landing. The British squadron in Northern Chinese waters is cruising in the gulf of Po Chili.

An insurrection is said to have broken out in the province of Shanghai Tung. The result of the uprising or its nature are unknown.

Will Increase Her Army.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Times publishes letters from Yokohama, bearing date of Aug. 24, stating that Japan is preparing to increase her army in Korea to 100,000 men. A letter dated Sept. 1 says that no news of any kind has been received except that a naval battle has been fought somewhere in the neighborhood of the Gulf of Po Chi Li. It is added that vessels on both sides were damaged.

Advancing on Pekin.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 2.—The Japanese army has reached Anuy, in Northeastern Korea. The first column advanced to Chong Ju and Sin Song, further northeast and about 60 miles from the Chinese boundary without finding the enemy. The third and fifth divisions have established their headquarters at Ping Yang.

Deny the Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Chilian legation here discredits the reports that China has bought the Chilian navy. The reports are regarded as preposterous, as Chili is proud of her modern navy, for which country and great stretch of coast it is regarded as a most essential arm of her defense.

A Broker Suicides.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—John S. Mathewn, 46 years old, a broker, living at the Plaza hotel, committed suicide at the hotel by cutting his throat with a razor. He died instantly. He was dependent over having sprained his ankle a week ago and being confined to his room since.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA.

The Minneapolis Tribune is now a penny paper.

An appeal for aid for cyclone sufferers at Le Roy has been sent out by a citizens' committee.

A heavy fall of snow is reported from Alexandria and other points in the northern part of the state.

The county commissioners of Mower county have appropriated $5,000 for the cyclone sufferers at Le Roy.

This year, with 31,801 pupils will receive $86,077.10.

Not so Bad as Reported.

WORTHINGTON, Minn., Oct. 1.—The dispatch sent regarding the fall of the grand stand at the fair grounds was greatly exaggerated. There were not 500 people on the stand, nor was there any wild excitement, screaming or fainting. Several people were slightly bruised by their fall, and some had slight abrasions of the skin.

HILL ACCEPTS.

The Senator From New York Decides to Make the Run For Governor.

ALBANY, Sept. 27.—Senator Hill and Hon. Dan Lockwood, the candidates for governor and lieutenant governor respectively, were serenaded at the Kenmore hotel when they came from Saratoga by the Albany Democratic phalanx. A mighty swell of voices went up when Senator Hill was introduced. He said:

"For the gracious reception and the encouragement of this serenade I tender you my sincere thanks. This demonstration is a part of unexpected events of the day which to me has been one of mingled surprise and embarrassment. The action of the Democratic convention, which is the sequence of this assemblage, and which was as unforeseen by you as by myself, imposes responsibilities and obligations of which I cannot speak tonight.

"Unwilling as I was to receive the honor which the convention, in spite of my protest, has sought to confer upon me, I am deeply touched by the personal manifestation of confidence and esteem which accompanied the action of the convention and tonight I ask only express in feeble language a small part of the gratitude which I feel towards the Democracy of New York."

STILLWATER'S FIRE.

THE PRISON CITY HAS A QUARTER OF A MILLION BLAZE.

Stillwater Manufacturing Company's Plant and the Thresher Company's Warehouse Destroyed—Narrow Escape for the Inmate Now Fast Asleep—Forest Fires in Crow Wing County.

STILLWATER, Minn., Sept. 29.—This city was visited by a $250,000 fire during the night which destroyed the Stillwater Manufacturing company's plant, the warehouse of the Minnesota Thresher company and four dwelling houses. The fire originated on the ground floor of the shop of the Stillwater Manufacturing company and spread from there across Main street to the large three-story frame building owned by the same company and used as a warehouse.

The fire broke out at 10:30 and fanned by a strong southwest wind burned fiercely, extending to the very doors of the prison, one block and a half north. The Stillwater Manufacturing company has 80 per cent of insurance on its plant. Its loss is about $60,000. The building used by the Minnesota Thresher company was formerly owned by Isaac Staples and was the first flour mill built in Stillwater. It was unoccupied and when it caught on fire the accumulated flour dust exploded, scattering the building in fragments, and several spectators and firemen had Narrow Escapes From Death.

The loss on this building was about $60,000 covered by insurance. The fire spread from the old flour mill, which is directly south of the Stillwater Manufacturing company's plant, to a row of dwelling houses on the hill, facing North Second street, and four of them were burned. Two of these are owned by Isaac Staples, and were valued at $1,200 each, partially insured. The fire did not reach across North Second street and was confined within the boundaries described by the burned buildings. Mayor Staples of Stillwater called upon the St. Paul fire department for assistance at 11:30 when it seemed as though the north end of town was doomed to destruction. Two engine companies, No. 1 and No. 4, in charge of Chief Jackson, reached the city by special train from the Omaha, but at that hour the fire was under control and the engines were not unloaded.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE.

Crow Wing County, Minn., Devastated by a Great Forest Fire.

BRAINERD, Minn., Sept. 28.—Forest fires have laid waste a goodly portion of the southern and eastern parts of Crow Wing county. From early yesterday the flames traveled with lightning rapidity, swooping everything in their path. Many farmers have lost their entire crops and buildings, but it is impossible to get anything like an authentic report of the loss. Among the people who are known to have suffered are John T. Fraser, county treasurer. His dwelling on his farm was burned, including the household effects.

Including Crops and Household Furniture.

Lon Vincent, who occupied the farm, barely escaped with his family. John Hodgson also loses everything except his team. Albert La Fond's buildings and grain were burned. It is reported that Mrs. Hodgson was severely burned in the face and A. F. Defuil have also been devastated. No fatalities have yet been reported, but great havoc has been committed for the safety of many families will have to move from the belt. The fire is still burning, but the wind has abated and it is hoped the worst is over.

FEAR THE JAPS

China Concentrating Troops to Prevent an Invasion of the Enemy.

HER FORCES BADLY ARMED.

Every Nerve Being Strained to Retrieve the Disaster at Ping Yang.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A dispatch from Shanghai says: Captain Tang, commander of the Chinese warship Chin Yuen, which was sunk in the engagement of the Yalu river, is among the saved.

The British steamer Irene, from Hamburg, with large quantities of munitions of war, has safely arrived at Taku and landed her cargo.

It is understood that the governor of Manchuria is concentrating all the troops raised in that province upon Mukden, and that on the route to Wiju extensive earthworks are being thrown up. The levies are composed of hardy North Chinamen and are excellent material, but they are badly armed, only about 4,000 of them having good military rifles. Further supplies, however, are being hurried up from the southern arsenals.

The Chinese force entrenched upon the Yalu river is estimated to number 38,000 men. Many of them are raw levies and also badly armed. The loss of field guns, rifles and ammunition suffered at Ping Yang has greatly embarrassed the Chinese war department. It is recognized that a on the Yalu, and the Chinese are straining every nerve to retrieve the disaster at Ping Yang.

Battle Must Be Fought

European officers have doubt whether Mukden is really the immediate objective of the Japanese. It is considered more probable that if they attack Wiju the Japanese will make a descent from the sea upon Niu Chwang with an expeditionary force. If this movement should be successfully made the Japanese would cut the Chinese main line of communication and could attack the Yalu army in the rear. Niu Chwang, in the possession of the Japanese, would form a base for a movement upon Mukden, or upon Pekin itself, and the forces landed there could co-operate with the army advancing from Corea. This is the plan credited by experts to Field Marshal Yamagata.

The island of Yaitantan in Korean bay has been made a coaling store and station, from which the Japanese can keep a constant watch upon the mouth of the Gulf of Pe Chi Li, nine Japanese gunboats being stationed there.

The emperor of China holds a war council every afternoon at 4 o'clock. He is completely under the influence of his former tutor and aged adviser.

Russia Now Has a Pretext.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A dispatch to The Times from St. Petersburg says: It is reported here that the Chinese marauders have attacked the station of the New Usurieisin section of the Siberian railway, plundered the telegraph office and killed eight Russian employes. It is feared that the government will make this a pretext to interfere in the Korea struggle between China and Japan.

Japanese Parliament Convened.

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 25.—A rescript has been issued convoking an extra session of the Japanese parliament at Hiroshima on Oct. 15, for seven days, in order to discuss matters requiring the sanction of parliament. A letter received here from Tien Tsin says that the Chinese fleet landed 7,000 troops on the banks of the Yalu river in spite of the attack of the Japanese squadron.

Suicide Rather Than Be Shot.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 26.—Lieutenant Colonel Cienfengos, the young Central American refugee, whose extradition to San Salvador on a charge of attempted murder, has been ordered by Judge Morrow, spent a lonely day in his cell at the Alameda county jail. He said that he was confident of regaining freedom, as soon as his case is brought before the president, and he declared that he would commit suicide rather than be extradited.

May Lose the Legacy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, which was left $140,000 by the will of the late Isaac Clarence Marsh on condition of remaining "high church," is likely to lose the legacy through a second will, which was found on Monday. By the second will the property is bequeathed to relatives of the deceased.

Bombarded by the Dutch.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 25.—Dispatches received here from Batavia, Java, say that Mostarim, capital of the island of Lombok, has been almost destroyed by the bombardment of the Dutch fleet. The besieged Balinese are beginning to suffer from famine and are expected to capitulate shortly.

An Accidental Shooting.

LEAD, S. D., Sept. 25.—Willie Scanlon, the 14-year-old son of Dan Scanlon of this city, shot and killed himself while at his play home from a hunt. The ball went through his neck severing the jugular vein. The accident was caused by the boy slipping while climbing a bank.

Bayard Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Private advices received here state that Ambassador Bayard will sail from Southampton Oct. 6 for the United States. Mr. Bayard was granted leave of absence several months ago, so he is at liberty to come home at his pleasure.

LONG DEATH ROLL.

SCORES KILLED BY THE CYCLONE IN IOWA AND MINNESOTA.

The Storm Was Worst Near Algona, in the Vicinity of Which Four Were Killed and Many Injured—The Total Death List Likely to Reach the Hundred Mark.

MASON CITY, Ia., Sept. 24.—The cyclone which swept over Northeastern Iowa Friday night caused the loss of at least 60 lives and the death list will no doubt reach 100.

A large number of people were injured, some fatally, while the destruction of property was enormous.

The storm started near Emmetsburg and traveled in a northeasterly direction, crossing the Minnesota line near Le Roy.

The path of the storm lay 13 miles north of this city. Four persons were battered to death by flying timbers, and nine injured and not expected to live. At the farm of David Haddow, the house was lifted in the air over a grove of trees, landed in a cornfield, then smashing to bits and killing Haddow and wife. A lad, 15 years old, was blown three-quarters of a mile away. He still lives. At the farm of D. E. McKeirnan, three miles west of Manley, the premises are all a mass of ruins, his 12-year-old son was killed and also his hired man, Louis Grengquist. The father, mother and two children are badly injured. A lady seamstress, Maggie Baker, had a piece of wood so driven into her leg that three men could hardly extract it. She was also struck on the lungs and will probably die. Those who took refuge in cellars were saved. Pieces of timber were carried for miles. All buildings struck are total wrecks. The loss will exceed $50,000. Medical aid was at hand and the sufferers are having the best of care.

Swept Back Against the Trees,

AROUND ALGONA.

The Dead Number a Score and the Injured Twice as Many.

ALGONA, Ia., Sept. 24.—The cyclone of Friday night caused great loss of life in Kossuth county. The dead number at least a score and the injured twice that number. Of the injured at least six will die.

Many Fatalities Elsewhere.

Professor A. J. Lilly of the Northern Iowa normal school and wife from Garner and reports 13 dead in Ellington township, north of Garner, 12 near Manly Junction and 16 north of Britt. Coffins for the dead are piled up at every station and scenes of the wildest grief are enacted. The storm, as witnessed from this place, was one of indescribable grandeur. Funnel-shaped clouds of inky blackness swept along to the northeast, illuminated by almost continuous flashes of lightning. The roar of thunder was deep and continuous. The opera house was packed with people to witness a popular play and almost a panic was occasioned by

The War of the Elements.

Robert Stevenson, living four miles north of Whittemore, was the first victim. His grove looked like it was mowed down by a scythe. Calvin Barrick's house, on the Henry Durant place, was made into kindling wood in an instant and all the 14 occupants, except two children, were injured. Mrs. Barrick was hit in the back with a timber and her skull was fractured and her body and lower limbs are paralyzed. A 6-year-old boy, Charles Lee, was hit on the head and will die. The house of Fred Pompe was completely demolished but his wife and five children came out of the wreck unhurt. The force of the wind was such that barbed wire

Was Stripped From the Posts.

At George Holman's the roof of the house was blown away, leaving the walls standing and the whole family was carried up from between the walls and away about 30 rods, one of the children being killed. M. W. Ferguson's family was carried almost the same distance through the air and all but one of them landed in a willow hedge. The baby went a little farther and was found seated on a piece of roof. The wife of Swan Peterson had her skull cut open in two places and exposed parts of her head were literally packed with sand, plaster, hair and grass. Particulars are coming in all the time which indicates that of the cyclone is not told. The scene of desolation was visited all day by great crowds, every available conveyance being chartered. The destruction of property will not be less than $100,000. Most of the farmers are well-to-do, with bank accounts, and others are wealthy, but numbers of the victims are renters who lost everything. The permanently crippled will make a long and sorrowful list. The wires were down much of the time and news was hard to get or to send.

Collision Caused by Wind.

ALGONA, Ia., Sept. 24.—A loaded freight car, standing on the sidetrack at the Algona station, was set in motion by the wind and ran out on the main track and down the grade east for about a mile, where it came into collision with a heavily loaded coal train. The engineer and fireman were very seriously injured.

No Loss of Life at Lowther.

ELMA, Ia., Sept. 24.—The town of Lowther, located five miles north of this city, which was unfortunate enough to be in the path of the cyclone, is a mass of bent timbers and splinters. The damage done to Lowther and vicinity will exceed $100,000. No lives were lost.

CHARLES DENBY.

Hon. Charles Denby, United States minister to China, believes the Celestials will score a knockout in the war with Japan, and that, although the battle may last a great number of rounds, China's immense resources and staying power will give her the victory in the end. Mr. Denby has on leave in this country when the war began, but he is now hastening back to his post at Peking, which he expects to reach about Nov. 1. During his absence his son, Charles Denby, Jr., is charge d'affaires as secretary of the legation.

Minister Denby, who is now a citizen of Evansville, Ind., was born in Rockport county, Va., about 60 years ago. He was educated at Georgetown college and was such a good student that he captured three medals for his efforts in his work. His education was finished at the Virginia military institute, and in 1858 he followed Greeley's advice and went west to grow up with the country. He located in Evansville, where he wrote for a newspaper and studied law. He was admitted to the bar and dabbled in politics with such success that he was sent to the legislature. In 1858 he married a daughter of ex-United States Senator Pitch of Indiana and was surveyor of the port of Evansville under President Buchanan.

When the civil war began, Mr. Denby entered the Union army and made a gallant record in the field. He was lieutenant colonel of the Forty-second regiment, Indiana volunteers, and colonel of the Eighteenth regiment and was twice wounded while in the thick of the fight. He left the service in 1863 and resumed the practice of his profession. After over 20 years of work at the bar, in 1885 he was appointed minister to China, a post he has held ever since, although ex-United States Senator Henry W. Blair was appointed as his successor by President Harrison. China, however, politely informed the United States that, owing to his antiChinese legislative record, Mr. Blair would be considered non persona grata in the Celestial Kingdom, and consequently Minister Denby remained at his post.

WILL BE QUEEN OF TRINIDAD.

How an American Girl Married a Baron Who Aspires to Kingship.

One of the numerous ambitious American girls who aspire for the lords and harems of the monarchies of the effete east has married a prospective king and will be queen of the new kingdom of Trinidad. To be sure, the island she is to assist in ruling over "has neither goats nor hogs nor any people," but the people and the pork will come later, and as for the goats—the winds of Trinidad will doubtless get on very well without bewhiskered Billy.

The name of the prospective queen of Trinidad was Miss Anna Flagler before she became the wife of Baron Harden Hickey, who is to be James I of Trinidad, and she is the daughter of John H. Flagler, the Standard Oil magnate. Trinidad is about 23 miles long and 3 miles wide. It is rocky and mountainous, but has a fertile soil, and despite the fact that it was taken possession of in the name of Great Britain by Dr. Hallay, the explorer, in 1797 no one seems to care for it except Baron Harden Hickey.

The island is about 700 miles off the coast of Brazil and should not be confounded with the Trinidad near Cadiz, Venezuela. It has no good harbor and may only be approached by shipping when the sea is calm. The shores are thronged with huge turtles, many of which weigh 700 pounds, and the sea is full of palatable fish.

Baron Harden Hickey is 40 years old, was born in France, although his ancestors, the Hickeys, originally came from Ireland. He was educated at the college of the Jesuits at Namur, and afterward at Leipsic, where he became well known as a duelist who would fight at the drop of the hat. In 1873 he devoted himself to embryos and kindergarten, and later founded a royalist paper in Paris which involved him in a dozen duels, for which he paid government fines aggregating $60,000 francs. He then took a long sailing voyage, was cast upon Trinidad, became a Buddhist in India and married Miss Flagler of New York in 1891. The baron will people the island with subjects chosen by himself and will be monarch of all he surveys, providing Queen Victoria does not call a halt on the seizure of her territory.

AMERICANS IN ASIA.

HOW GENERAL LE GENDRE DIPLOMATICALLY UTILIZED HIS GLASS EYE.

When He Took It Out and Replaced It, Chinese Officials Gave Him What He Wanted—The Great Work of United States Minister Anson Burlingame.

Americans have played a very conspicuous part in breaking down the prejudice that for centuries existed against foreigners in Korea, Japan and China and in opening the ports of these auspicious and exclusive races to trade and intercourse with the more progressive and civilized nations of the world. At the present tremblous time the most important offices in Korea are held by Americans, for the king of the Hermit Nation loves America because he knows the Yankee has no designs upon his territory.

One of the most prominent Americans now in Korea is General Charles W. Le Gendre, who has been vice minister of home affairs for several years. General Le Gendre commanded a New York regiment during the civil war, and after the great struggle ended he was sent as consul general to Amoy, China. In 1867 he went to Japan and took the side of the young mikado, who was battling with the shogun, a powerful Japanese who had usurped the mikado's power. The mikado won the fight, and owing to the advice of General Le Gendre adopted a more friendly policy toward foreigners, a policy that has given Japan the beautiful navy and splendid army she now possesses in her war with China.

For many years General Le Gendre remained in Tokyo, and, it is said, planned Japan's successful campaign against Formosa. When China began to receive foreign embassies and refused that of Japan because the Japanese were "not men, but descendants of monkeys," the general was hastily sent to Peking. While urging Japan's claims on one occasion all the general could get from the Chinese officials was, "We have expressed our master's will." This angered the general, who cried: "Your master? Can he do this, your master?" And, to the amazement and terror of the Chinese officials, he took out one eye, tossed it into the air, and deftly catching it as it descended thrust it into its vacant orbit and then turned it upon them again in a fierce gaze. The eye was glass, but the Chinese had never heard of such a thing, and it is declared that they were so afraid of this terrible agent of Japan that the Japanese embassy was received even before those of England and France.

Among the other prominent Americans in Korea are Mr. Greathouse of California, once United States consul general in Yokohama and now legal advisor to the king of Korea; General Dyce and Colonel Nienstead, who command the Korean troops armed with modern weapons, and Dr. Allen, now secretary of the United States legation and for a long time the king's physician.

Anson Burlingame, who was United States minister to China in 1861, probably did more than any other foreigner to alter China's policy toward the civilized nations of the world. For many years China, like the ostrich, was in the habit, when pursued, only desired to be let alone. She wanted nothing to do with the "foreign devils," as she called all white men. Even after England and France had opened her ports to their opium ball persuaders China refused to receive the embassies of other countries in Pekin. Burlingame would perform the kotow, a ceremonial in which the diplomats must knock their heads against the floor when presented to the emperor, thus acknowledging that he was a greater potentate than the one they represented. This no diplomat would do. Lord Amherst, representing England, refused in 1816 and was denied admittance to the emperor's presence, and in 1859 Minister Ward of the United States also failed to see the son of heaven because he objected to pounding his head on the floor in front of the dragon's throne.

In 1861 Mr. Burlingame, a native of New Berlin, N. Y., one of the founders of the Republican party, an ex-member of the Massachusetts senate and an ex-congressman who had made a reputation as an able antislavery orator, was sent as minister to China. By his tact and diplomacy he won the entire confidence of the Chinese government and negotiated the famous Burlingame treaty with the United States, by which China for the first time in history officially accepted the principles of international law and agreed to treat another nation as an equal. When in 1867 Minister Burlingame announced his intention of returning home, Prince Kung, who was then regent of the Chinese empire, appointed him China's special envoy to the United States and the great European powers, for the purpose of framing treaties of amity with those nations, an honor never before conferred upon a foreigner.

These treaties Mr. Burlingame arranged with the United States, Prussia, Holland, England, Denmark and Sweden and was negotiating with Russia in St. Petersburg in 1870 when he died.

WHETHER business will revive much this fall depends upon how the coming election goes. We believe that business will revive, because we believe that the republican ticket will win.

JUST as soon as the danger of further democratic monkeying with the tariff is over, just so soon will the manufacturing interests revive and prosperity will again return to business circles.

THE city of East Grand Forks, by the smallest vote ever polled there, voted in favor of an issue of $15,000 in bonds to aid the county division scheme. An injection against the issue was promptly served and the date for argument set for Oct. 1st.

GOVERNOR NELSON is striking some sledge-hammer blows in the cause of good government from the stump, that will have a good effect in swelling the republican majority in Minnesota this fall. The governor is doing more good, hard work than lots of younger men.

THERE is no earthly reason why every patriot, every lover of equal rights for all, every believer in the principles of good government should not vote the republican ticket this fall from top to bottom. Every name on the ticket represents a good republican—a true and loyal supporter of republican principles. Vote the straight republican ticket from governor down to coroner.

WE wish that every voter in Polk county could just realize the importance of a republican victory this fall to the business interests of the country and in fact to the financial welfare of every individual. If they could see it once as it exists there would be such a landslide as never before took place. We believe that enough of them do see it to ensure a victory for republican principles.

ANN DAVID B. was nominated as gubernatorial candidate for governor of New York in spite of his modest refusals and gentle remonstrances. The name of Hill was mentioned and a regular stampede occurred and David Bennett Hill was declared the gubernatorial candidate almost before he knew what had happened. That's a case where a man is actually forced to commit suicide in spite of himself.

OUR candidate for county attorney, B. S. Bennett, is not very well known throughout the entire county. Where he is known, however, he is said to be every way thoroughly competent to fill the office to which the republicans have nominated him. The Detroit Record, published at Bennett's old home, says he is one of the brightest lawyers ever in business in Detroit. The office of county attorney requires ability and Bennett has that qualification.

IF all of the farmers of Polk county should be so foolish as to vote to split the county into four parts, as doubt it would be done, but they would never cease to regret the action when they came to realize the results which they would do every time they came to pay their taxes. No matter what the interested secessionists say as to division not entailing extra expense any intelligent farmer can see that it will necessarily do so. He will find out if he does not know it now that each new county has to assume its share of the old debt and build new buildings—will have to transcribe the records and incur a great many incidental expenses that will constantly arise all of which will pile up a burden of debt grievous to be borne and wholly unnecessary if the county remains as it is. It cannot be that the farmers will consent to assume this burden at this time.

WITHOUT regard to party the voters throughout the state should rally to the support of Judge Collins, and thus defeat the efforts to seat another twin city democrat upon the supreme bench. Judge Collins is the only man the country ever had and now St. Paul wants to take that place away from us. We like a hog well enough but that suits too quick.

THE populists have already insisted that the old parties have always used barrels of money to carry elections. Well, this year ought to satisfy the most particular pop on that point as far as the republican party is concerned, at least for the republican committee this year finds hard scratching to get money for absolutely necessary expenses. No fear of boodle or bribery this year if indeed there ever was.

THE unexpected happened and Tammany's representative, David B. Hill was nominated for governor at the democratic state convention in New York last week. At date of present writing he has not formally accepted but will do so no doubt unless all signs fail. Undoubtedly David B. will make as strong a pull for the office as any man they have but this is a republican year in New York.

WHETHER it was by design or otherwise we know not, but it is an indisputable fact that Judge L. W. Collins is the only member on the supreme bench who represents the country. Every other member is either from the twin cities or from some other city not many miles from them, and the democrats have combined with the pops in the effort to seat a St. Paul democrat, John W. Willis in Judge Collins' place.

FOR good and sufficient reasons we believe that the republican county ticket will be elected this fall because it is composed of the best men for the position for which each is named of any ticket in the field, and because it was placed in the field nearer in accordance with the wishes of the people. It will be remembered by all who have been in Polk county long enough to look back three or four years that a great deal of dissatisfaction was manifested with the manner in which conventions were managed, with how much reason it is not our province to discuss; suffice it to say that great dissatisfaction did exist and people from the county districts would return to their homes thoroughly disgusted, saying that the "conventions were all packed in the interests of designing politicians" that "the rulings of the chairman was always in the same line" and that "a country delegate never could get a chance to say a word" because the chair would invariably rule that he, (the country delegate) was "out of order." After a year or so of vigorous kicking the revolt came. Men went into the independent farmers movement and afterwards followed that into the populist camp. But the honest ones, those who were led into the populist movement hoping to better their conditions have found that they have not got rid of all of the cheeseners. That all the methods they so bitterly condemned in the old parties are, if there is any change intensified in theirs. And so it was that these men joined in the republican caucuses and helped to elect good representative men to the republican county convention. And that convention followed out the will of the people by selecting an able, fair-minded man, one who had never been identified with cliques or factions, a true-blue dyed-in-the wool republican as chairman, and that man ruled that convention as a convention was never before ruled in Polk county, giving everybody a fair and equal chance to say anything he chose to say. So eminently fair was he that not more than that vast body of delegates' could find the least fault with anything that he did. And the convention, after it was organized then proceeded to select a ticket, composed of solid, representative business men, not all taken from one little circle in the county, but scattered about over the county, giving every locality an equal chance to secure a place on the ticket. So successful were they in their selection that there has not one word been said against any candidate on the republican ticket for the reason that no fault can be found with any one of them. The methods by which the other tickets were placed in the field are too well known to need commenting on. The populists voluteered every principle of their platform, by selecting men for tiled term, by nominating men simply for the reason that they could be elected and not because of their fitness for the office, and the democrats—well everybody knows what kind of a deal they hoped to consummate, and everybody repudiates their ideas. For these and other reasons the JOURNAL confidently expects to see the whole republican county ticket elected.

ONE of the most important elections ever held in the United States is at hand. Upon the result hangs the fate of the American government for many years to come. THE JOURNAL has enough faith in the good common sense of the American people to believe that that verdict will be in favor of the republican party —the party of the people, the party of good government. Every true patriot will take off his coat and do valiant work for the country from now until the polls close in November.

AMID from stirring up a feeling of discontent, the populist party has never done one thing for the farmer. They are full of the evils that afflict these classes, but as yet they have never furnished a remedy. As a rule the stock argument of the average pop is: "Elect me to some office and everything will be easy." It is time the average voter began to put a stop to this foolishness and looked out for his own personal interests a little. If the republican party ever could do any good for average humanity, it is high time that it began to show up.

SOME of the pops are laying the flattering unction to their souls that Gen. Becker intends to resign his gubernatorial candidacy. They need not worry about that for the Gen. is not that kind of a democrat. He did not seek the nomination but after it came and he accepted it he is not the man to turn back. He is so fully imbued with the old time Jacksonian democracy that he has an idea that there are enough more like him in the state to elect a good old Jackson democrat as governor of Minnesota. Oh, no! He will not pull out until November.

WE notice in a democratic paper a complaint that the republican papers were charging the existing state of things, the depression in business and the general commercial woe prevailing, all up to the democratic party. Well, why shouldn't they? It is the attitude of the democratic party on the tariff and the right to somewhat steps that party might take that paralyzed business and brought on the general depression now prevailing. That is the reason, and the democratic party is responsible for it and must take its medicine.

YEARS of trial have proven the wisdom of the republican tariff policy but it only required 38 months of democratic rule to convince even the most skeptical unbeliever what the effects of free trade would be. Only those who are too densely ignorant to realize the present situation or those whose personal interests would best be subserved by free trade, or those who are so blinded by prejudicial as to be utterly self-deceived can vote the democratic ticket this fall.

IT cannot be denied that the country has enjoyed a great degree of prosperity under the republican rule than it has since. It is a fact that the country never can regain that degree of prosperity that it enjoyed until the republican party is fully restored to power. Then what can be gained by delay? Why not do all that can be done at the coming election to hasten that end? We believe that the voters are fully aware of this fact and will roll up a grand republican victory next month.

WE cannot see how any farmer whose financial success in life depends wholly upon a good home market, can vote the democratic ticket. The ticket of a party whose entire tariff policy is devoted to the destruction of the farmers' home market. And the populist party occupies almost identically the same grounds as the democratic party on it's tariff views. This experience of the past few months under democratic rule, when the belief that that our tariff system was liable to be changed, has so paralyzed business as to almost destroy our home market, ought to convince any farmer to reflect what a free trade market would mean to the farmer. It is certainly too dangerous an experiment for people to try at this time.

IF any man deserves the vote of the common people without regard to party that man is Judge L. W. Collins who has always stood by the people in every case wherein their rights came in conflict with the wishes of the corporations. The Judge a man of the people and they will make a great mistake if they don't stand by him.

REPORTS from all over the state indicate that the republican state ticket will be elected by the old-time majority, except perhaps our candidate for associate justice, L. W. Collins, who is confronted by a fusion candidate. Judge Collins is the only member on the bench from the north part of the state, and should he be defeated the country has practically no representation on the bench.

SOME of the pops are kicking vigorously because they say that Donnelly assumes to set himself up as dictator of the party. Well, why should not the creator "assume" to rule the creature? Donnelly made the party and has a perfect right to boss it. It is his machine and he has a perfect right to run it.

IN the coming election next month there is nothing at stake far more important than any mere party victory. The policy of the democratic administration having been thoroughly tried, has proven inadequate in every particular, and this free-trade ideas have proven so disastrous to the business interests of the country that a speedy change is absolutely necessary to restore business confidence and prosperity. It is only the prospect of the return of the republican party to power that gives any tone whatever to business, but if the republicans win the fight next month, as they undoubtedly will, this will indicate that in '96 that party will be restored to power and will then arrange the tariff in accordance with the business requirements of the country. This will stimulate business and bring better times.

THE Fertile Journal says: "Read the record of mortgages that have grown on the people's homes under republican rule." Well, read it and what does it show? It shows that under a republican government, a man who has no capital of his own and needs money to use in his business, can get the money to use—which is more than he can do to-day. It shows, that under a republican form of government a man is a free moral agent and has the right, if in his own judgment it is judicious to do so, to use money to use in his business, and to give security for it. Our Fertile name-sake would seem to imply that under a populistic form of government a man would be under a kind, protecting hand and would not allow him to exercise his own judgment in the matter at all no matter what the circumstances or circumstances. Well, it is a fact that in every state where the populists have had control, capital is driven out to such an extent that no person can borrow money, no matter what security he has to offer. We prefer to be free to act as we see fit in this matter.

THE idea that some had cherished, of making an independent ticket, or rather a combination ticket for county officers, composed of republicans and democrats, seems to have been nipped in the bud and died a natural death and that is as it should be. If any party cannot stand upon its merits before the people let it die—and the sooner the better. Any combination ticket would surely be defeated, and it would deserve to be.

AFTER FIFTY MILLS.

An English Syndicate Getting Control of Wisconsin Paper Plants.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 1.—A special to The Wisconsin from Appleton, Wis., says: The greatest syndicate deal since the purchase of the American breweries by English capitalists has just been concluded, and unless something unforeseen occurs, all the paper and pulp mills on Fox river will pass into the hands of an English syndicate on April 1. It is learned from parties interested in the sale that every paper and pulp maker on Fox river, with two exceptions, has signed a contract giving options on all mills, machinery, water rights, leases and other properties. The option is good for six months from Oct. 1. The two firms who have not yet signed have agreed to do so soon. The reason for the delay is to gain time to complete schedules of the properties which must be attached to the options when given to the syndicate in London.

Fifty Miles in the Deal.

The properties involved in the deal include 29 paper and 21 pulp mills, situated at Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kimberly, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Combined Locks and De Pere, situated along Fox river for a distance of 75 miles. The value of these plants is estimated at $10,000,000. The daily product will run from 700 to the full capacity amounts to 1,300 miles of paper in a sheet 7 inches wide and 300 tons of pulp. The value of the product is about $5,000 daily. The terms of the option are that the value of the plants be appraised on a basis of actual cost of mills and machinery and present value of the water rights and leases and the earning capacity of the mills as shown by past business records. The payment for the properties is to be half cash and half in three-year notes, to be secured by mortgages on the mills and power.

IN TWO ROUNDS.

Middleweight Contest at New Orleans Easily Won By Fitzsimmons.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—The glove contest between Robert Fitzsimmons of Newark, N. J., and Dan Creedon hailing from St. Louis, for a purse of $5,000, took place in the arena on the Olympic club and was won by Fitzsimmons in the second round. They fought as middleweights at 154 pounds. Both men are Australians by birth, but Fitzsimmons is now an American citizen and Creedon is. This was the star event of the carnival and was a match that had attracted much interest and more than most of the pugilistic matters of recent date.

Fitzsimmons Signs.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—President W. A. Schell of the Olympic club a few hours after Fitzsimmons defeated Creedon sent the following telegram to Creedon's backer: "Fitzsimmons has signed articles of agreement to meet you in February for the world's championship for a purse of $25,000 and a $10,000 side bet.

Bad Blood

I have for some time been in sufferer from a bad blood trouble, for which I took many remedies that did me no good. I have now taken S. S. S. and nothing else, and am entirely cured. I feel that I have used the most wonderful medicine. Am enjoying the best health I ever knew, have gained twenty pounds and my friends say they never saw me so well. I am glad to make this a matter of public record, as I am a well known man.

J. V. E. Wyatt went to Fertile last week to act as Secretary at the fair.

The Fertile Journal says that the contract price of Otto Kaukel's new brick house with W. E. Walker is $7,000, and that the work will be ready for finishing off by the time it freezes up.

The Uncle Tom's Cabin business at the opera house on Wednesday evening of last week was as near a rank fake as they get them. If there was any redeeming feature to the concern it was in the juvenile singers and the plickaninny band. They were fairly good. The less said about the rest of it the better.

Dr. Holte and a specialist from Minneapolis successfully performed an operation upon the son of A. Daniels, on Wednesday of last week. It was a case of appendicitis and the boy was in a critical condition, but has been doing nicely since the operation with every prospect of an early recovery.

H. G. Fargo was in from Euclid on Thursday and dropped in to have a chat with the JOURNAL a few minutes Mr. Fargo informs us that Mr. Fairweather's flax yielded 16½ bushels per acre, which is a splendid yield for this year. He thinks that very much less wheat will be sown next year in his neighborhood, and while everybody will not rush recklessly into flax, there will be more of it grown, also more oats and barley.

Prospects for cheap fuel seem good for this winter. Notwithstanding teams have been hauling mill-wood from the big mill every day all summer, there will be an immense pile left on the mill yard when the mill closes down for the winter. There will be enough to keep as many teams busy all winter if a market can be found for the stuff. There is also considerable dry cord wood tributary to the city. Soft wood can be had at $3.00 per cord.

Herb Mason, who was for a long time one of the most public-spirited and enterprising citizens that Crookston has ever had, has accepted a position in Wright, Barret & Stilwell's branch paper house in Minneapolis, and has entered upon the discharge of his duties. Herb is a hustler from Hustlerville, and his qualifications in this particular will make him invaluable to this concern, who have a habit of getting there themselves. They don't let any grass grow under their feet.

Quite a good bit of rain fell on Friday night of last week which helped the fall plowing very materially.

E. M. McCaslin, was up from the Wells farm on Thursday. Reports the fall work well advanced on this farm.

The funeral services of the little babe of C. C. and Mrs. Lawton, that died last week, were held at Mentor on Sunday.

Bert Teal and Will Davidson came down from Euclid on Monday evening to attend the Strawbridge Business College the coming term.

Anton Houg, of Fisher was arrested on Friday last on a charge of assault and brought before Esq. Gossman. The case was continued until next Friday.

Bishop Gilbert conducted services at the Episcopal church on Sunday. The Episcopalians have given a pastor a call and expect soon to have services regularly every Sunday.

Norman Preuss, an Illinois farmer who is also interested in Polk county soil came up last week to look after his farm interests here. He is a firm believer in Polk county dirt as a wealth producer.

Dr. McLean, the democratic candidate for congress in the seventh district, was in the city last week consulting with the remnants of the unterrified that are still clinging to a forlorn hope. The doctor seems to be the right kind of a man for the dems this fall, as he is chuck full of the idea that he can get votes enough to elect him. Let him keep on hustling.

If the bosses and the schemers in the populist party can manage to keep up the agitation and keep the rank and file dissatisfied with the conditions prevailing, they hope to succeed in electing their ticket once more—but the voters are beginning to get onto their racket; they are getting to that point where you can't fool all of the people all of the time. Honest men among the pops are beginning to tire of specious promises never fulfilled.

Capt. L. S. Hancock was down from Euclid on Monday.

Henry Biever, C. Stahr and S. Curtis were prominent Euclidites in the city on Monday.

A. G. Gallusch is in the city this week looking up business matters.

Frank Hertz returned last week from a visit to the old home in Pennsylvania.

H. C. Misner, of Euclid was paddling about in the rain on Monday afternoon.

M. P. Losey Esq. of Euclid was visiting his son, dept. sheriff Losey in the city on Monday.

The Norman County Herald says that August George brought his mare and colt down to the farm for the winter one day last week.

Rev. S. W. Squier, departed for conference on Monday evening. The JOURNAL would regret it if he is not sent back to this charge again.

The new hotel does not seem to be rushing along at a rate of speed that will ensure its completion by Jan. 1st or thereabouts, owing to delays of various sorts.

In the East Grand Forks injunction case on Monday, no one appearing to represent the city, the injunction holds for 20 days and unless the city can show that it should be dissolved it will be perpetual.

They do say that dept. Sheriff Losey missed his calling when he did not qualify for a lawyer, for the way he argued that case in justice court last week made the disciples of Blackstone jump aldeways—especially the one who had the opposite side of the case.

Judge Ira B. Mills went north along the St. Vincent branch looking up matters of which complaint has been laid before the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners recently. On his way to St. Paul he called upon many of his friends in the city on Saturday.

The Crookston Normal School and Business College opened its fall term on Tuesday, with a fair attendance. With their increased facilities they are prepared to accommodate very many more pupils than ever before.

L. Rivard will bring suit against the city, it is said, to recover for the value of a horse that fell on the street crossing between the M. E. church and Vance Monk and broke its leg. The animal was shot on Monday morning, and it is said that Issue will try to secover damages.

S. L. Collins was observed perched upon his back on Tuesday afternoon driving along as unconcerned as though that was what he was doing every day—winter and summer. Inquiring the cause therefor we were informed that the regular driver, Ed. Ross had the misfortune to fall off the hack and injure his crippled leg severely.

Ira M. DeCamp took the position of chief clerk at the Merchant's hotel, in St. Paul, on Monday morning. Mr. DeCamp is well known in this city, where he has spent several years of his life and where he has made many friends. He is an experienced clerk, having been nearly all of his life connected with some of the best hotels of the country, among them the Columbia hotel, at Fargo; the Brunswick, Minneapolis; the Hayes, at Chicago, Hotel Dakotah, at Grand Forks; the Commercial, at Crookston, and others that we do not recall just now. We had reserved the chief clerkship of our new Crookston hotel for Ira, now being built, and while we regret that the Merchant's hote has interfered with our plan yet we are compelled to compliment the management of that hostlery upon its excellent good judgment in securing him. Hardly a travelling man in the state that does not know Ira DeCamp, and a more popular hotel clerk don't step in shoe-leather in Minnesota.

POPULIST LOGIC.

St. Paul Dispatch:

Last night's demonstration at the Market hall was worthy of those who got it up. It was a whooping, howling gathering, and the declarations which it put forth, through the lips of its speaker, were largely of the same variety.

There is no amusing side to such intense expressions of individual and collective thought such as that which manifested itself last night. It was observable in that case in the sweet unconsciousness with which occasionally sound principle was set forth, in sustainment of crazy policies. As for instance Mr. Owen's reference to England in his speech. They were made to turn a point in favor of the silver craze; but, carried out to their logical and inevitable results, they can tend only in the direction of sustaining the economic teachings, policies and practices of the republican party, both in opposition and in administration.

Mr. Owen is a free-trader. All advanced philosophers like him are. They prefer to consider the cause of the universal brotherhood of man than that brotherhood which springs from the well-being and happiness which are seen prevailing among one's own neighbors and countrymen.

And yet here are a few of the choice sentiments which Mr. Owen gave expression to in his Market hall speech: "We are a debtor and England a creditor nation." "She is a manufacturing and we are a producing nation, and shall we permit England to make our laws? If England and our conditions she would soon declare a policy suitable to her needs." "Let us try a change. Let the world take our manufactured products, not our raw material."

So say we all of us, we protectionists included. England and the other countries of Europe are sending us their raw material, in the shape of humanity, every day. Let her send us her inanimate raw material as well. We will turn both into the finished, American-made commodity, and thus we will furnish steady work at good wages for all those whom Mr. Owen and Dr. Donnelly and the rest of them claim to have a patent to speak for and represent.

An Encouraging Campaign.

Pioneer Press: Public attention has been so diverted recently by other and stirring issues that no adequate description has been given of the tremendous welcome that the people are giving to Governor Nelson] wherever he appears to talk Republican doctrine and carry on the Republican campaign. It is already very evident that the spirit which produced the unheard-of majorities in Vermont and Maine is abroad in Minnesota. One can seldom pronounce, at a date so early in the struggle, on which side popular favor inclines to rest. But there can be no doubt about it now. It is early in the campaign, still more than six weeks before the date of election, and there are no burning questions of local policy that would develop an intense interest in politics among the people of Minnesota. But the voters show themselves as much aroused as if it were the closing days of a presidential contest.

This is markedly true of the country, where the farmers are thinking for themselves. They probably conclude that the likes of Donnelly have led them by the nose long enough. At any rate, they are thronging by thousands to the meetings held by Gov. Nelson. Wherever he speaks, immense crowds gather to hear him making audiences out of all precedent. And it is characteristic of these meetings that those present pay the strictest attention, following every word of the governor's presentation of the state and national issues with the most careful scrutiny and apparently with the fullest approval. The Republican rallies which have taken place up to date record an attendance and exhibit a spirit that has removed all doubt from the minds of those who set any uncertainty as to the disposition of the voters. It is to be a Republican year in Minnesota, as well as elsewhere. Gov. Nelson is doing hard work and splendid work for the ticket, and his presentation of the issues involved is simply unanswerable. The reception which he has met thus far indicates the largest Republican vote that has ever been cast in the state.

Autumn Novelties for Ladies' Gowns.

Woolen goods for autumn wear are light in weight, a desirable feature—as skirts of dresses are now so generally lined and interlined that they become too heavy for comfort even in midwinter, if made of weighty fabrics. Plain colors, mixtures of two or three colors and clouded effects are seen among the new goods. Small figures are preferred to large. Narrow stripes lengthwise, bayadere and diagonal, neat checks or blocks, and some plaids are shown in dull and in light colors though not in Scotch tartans. The peculiar blue called Alsatian appears in all materials and there are many bronze shades, with green prevailing in some and brown in others. Capes will be worn again and must continue in vogue while large sleeves are used. For general wear the golf cape of cloth with Scotch plaid lining will be chosen. The McDowell Fashion Journals from which the above information is gathered contain in their last issue a great variety of novelties for the coming season. They offer besides, by means of coupons, patterns of the very latest styles at very moderate prices. "La Mode de Paris," and "Paris Album of Fashion," cost $3.50 each per annum, or 6 cents a copy. "The French Dressmaker" is $2.00 per year, or 30 cents a copy. "LaMode," which is considered the finest journal, with colored plates, costs only $1.50 per year, or 15 cents a copy. The three first mentioned publications offer each $1.00 worth of coupon patterns and "La Mode" fifty cents worth of the same as a premium for a yearly subscription. If you are unable to procure any of these journals from your newsdealer do not take any substitute from him, but apply by mail to Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York City.

COLONISTS FOR WISCONSIN.

A Douglass County Settlement Will Operate Under a Novel Scheme.

DULUTH, Sept. 24.—The first of the colonists from the East who will settle in Douglass county, Wis., have arrived at the head of the lake. They are men at White Birch. The scheme under which the colony will be started is a somewhat novel one. The whole number of families will be incorporated and elect officers, who will handle the affairs of the colony the same as a bank or other incorporated institutions. The money that is to be loaned them will be furnished by the loan association at a stipulated rate of interest, for which loan the entire corporation becomes responsible.

GREAT LOSS ON BOTH SIDES.

Four Chinese Warships Lost in the Battle on Yalu River.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20.—A telegram from Yokohama has been received here containing the reports that the Japanese were victorious in the battle in the Yalu river. It says that three Chinese warships were sunk and that one was burned. No Japanese vessels were lost, the dispatch asserts. The Japanese warships Matsushima and Yoshe and the transport Saikonmaru were damaged, but to what extent the dispatch does not state. There was great loss of life on both sides.

ALIX, BROKE THE RECORD.

She Trotted a Mile in 2:03 3-4 on the Galesburg Track.

GALESBURG, Ills., Sept. 20.—Fifteen thousand people rolled themselves hoarse when the great trotting queen Alix beat the world's record by coming under the wire in 2:03½. It was a noble performance from start to finish, justifying Williams' boast about the fastness of the track and Jones' assertions about the ability of Alix to beat the world's record.

CONTRACTORS AGREE.

Striking Garment Workers of Boston Accorded Their Demands.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—The striking garment workers gained their first victory during the morning, when eight contractors signed the agreement proposed by the strikers and gave the requisite bonds. As a result nearly 1,000 men and women returned to work. About 20 other contractors have signed the agreement and will at once put the shops in bonds, and it is expected that by night fully 2,500 operatives will be at work.

Endeavor in England.

The editor of the English national Christian Endeavor organ wisely says that "C. E." should stand for "converts expected."

A Christian Endeavor picnic lately held in London entertained 150 children. The entire affair was got up within a week by the simple use of Christian Endeavor co-operation.

One of the most pleasing features of the marked advance of Christian Endeavor in England last year was the fact that 3,876 members of Christian Endeavor societies joined the church.

LIGHTS OF THE LEGAL WORLD.

They Will Shine In Saratoga When the American Bar Association Meets.

Barristers, briefless and otherwise—principally the latter—will talk shop at Saratoga Aug. 23 when the seventeenth annual convention of the American Bar association opens that day. The convention will be held in Convention hall, and the session will begin with an address by Judge Thomas M. Cooley of Ann Arbor, Mich., the present president of the association. The election of members and the general council and the reports of officers will follow. In the evening Hampton L. Carson of Pennsylvania will discuss "Great Dissenting Opinions," and Alton B. Claflin Allen of Mississippi will read a timely and interesting address on "Injunction and Organized Labor."

Moorefield Storey of Massachusetts will open the second day's session with an address, and interesting papers will be read by eminent legal luminaries. In the evening special committees on uniform state laws, expression and classification of the law, and federal code and criminal procedure will make their reports. At this session the association will again discuss the great question of uniform divorce laws.

President Cooley was born in Attica, N. Y., in 1824. He studied law and was admitted to the bar of Michigan in 1846. In 1857 he was chosen reporter of the state laws and the following year became reporter of the supreme court. He organized the law department of the University of Michigan in 1859 and in 1864 was appointed justice of the supreme court of Michigan and four years later was made chief justice. In 1885 he sought re-election, but was defeated.

When the interstate commerce commission was organized, Judge Cooley's great reputation as a jurist impelled President Cleveland to appoint him a member of the commission, and his associates elected him chairman. Ill health compelled him to resign in 1891. Judge Cooley is a very unsentimental looking man, but he eloped with the girl who became his wife. Young law students who appear backward in their struggles with Blackstone, Reed and Parsons may find a grain of hope in the fact that after young Cooley had been holding down a chair in a law office for a year the attorney he was studying with told him solemnly that he would never make a lawyer if he studied law 50 years.

TO TEACH CHINESE GIRLS.

Miss Etta Montgomery's Mission Will Keep Her Ten Years In the Celestial Empire.

To minister to the spiritual and physical needs of the young girls of China is the mission Miss Etta Montgomery has chosen, and she will start for the antipodean side of the globe to carry out her philanthropic plans as soon as the yearcloud that now overhangs China and Japan shall have passed away. Her work will be done on the island of Hainan, just off the coast of China, and if health and life are spared her she will remain at her post for 10 years. The field is a new one, and in her work Miss Montgomery will be assisted by a trained native woman. The Chinese are by no means total strangers to her, for the reason that as a member of the Reseue band she has accomplished much gold in the Chinese quarter in New York city.

When she reaches her island station, a boarding school for girls will be established, and there will also be a day school. The work done will be chiefly along educational lines, but Miss Montgomery has taken a year's course of training with the International Medical

MISS ETTA MONTGOMERY.

Missionary society in New York and is consequently well prepared to look after the physical as well as spiritual welfare of her little almond eyed charges.

Miss Montgomery was born in New York city, but has passed the most of her life in the west. For several years she was principal of one of the largest schools in Topeka and was also superintendent of the Young Women's Christian association. Her work in China will be done under the auspices of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions.

From seven to ten years is the usual time that a missionary remains at his or her post, and none of them feels like returning before that time unless ordered by a physician.

PRIME MINISTER STOILOFF.

Interesting Career of the Statesman Who Has Overthrown Stambuloff In Bulgaria.

Dr. Stoiloff, the prime minister of Bulgaria, who has succeeded in overthrowing Stambuloff, the "Bismarck of Bulgaria," is a statesman of considerable ability and experience, and a devoted friend of Prince Ferdinand, who rules Bulgaria, but does not enjoy the recognition of the powers of Europe. Dr. Stoiloff was born in Philippopolis and is about 43 years of age. He was educated at Robert college in Constantinople and at Heidelberg university.

In 1879 he was a member of the constitutional convention at Tirnova, and was one of the delegation chosen for the important mission of submitting to the czar for his approval the choice of Prince Alexander of Battenberg to be prince of Bulgaria. He was the prince's secretary when Alexander visited the courts of Germany, Austria and Constantinople and was the confidential reception accorded the prince when he entered Bulgaria.

In 1883 Dr. Stoiloff was sent to Russia as a diplomatic agent of the Bulgarian government at St. Petersburg. When a prominent Russian statesman asked him, "Whom and what do you represent—Bulgaria freed by us and the prince set upon his throne by the czar?" the words were snub a blow to Stoiloff's national pride that he at once returned to Sofia. During the war with Servia Stoiloff was an officer on the prince's staff and remained faithful to him, even in 1886, when the prince left Bulgaria forever. The following year Stoiloff visited the courts of Europe, seeking on behalf of the sobranje acceptable candidates for the vacant throne. After long negotiation in Vienna he secured the acceptance of Prince Ferdinand of Coburg.

THE BRYANT POETS' FESTIVAL.

Centennial of the Birth of the Author of "Thanatopsis" at His Old Home.

William Cullen Bryant, the poet, would have been 100 years old on Nov. 3 of this year had he lived, and the centennial of his birth will be appropriately celebrated by a festival of poets at the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts on Aug. 16. The old Bryant home is in the western Massachusetts, between the towns of Cummington and West Cummington, and the festival will be held near the old home, where Parke Godwin, the poet's son-in-law, has a residence. Parke Godwin will preside, Rev. Robert Collyer will deliver the invocation, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes have been asked to read poems, and among those invited to be present is Hon. John Howard Bryant of Princeton, Ills.

John H. Bryant is the only surviving brother of William Cullen Bryant. He was born at Cummington in 1807 and removed to Illinois in 1831, where he became justice of the peace for Bureau county in 1834. He has been twice a member of the Illinois legislature and has held other modest offices. Until his sixtieth year Mr. Bryant was an enthusiastic farmer. He has no modest fame as a poet and has published two volumes of verse.

William Cullen Bryant's greatest poem, "Thanatopsis," was written at Cummington when he was but 18 years of age. It was while wandering through the primeval forests, over the floor of which were scattered the gigantic trunks of fallen trees, sauntering for long years and suggesting an indefinitely remote antiquity, that the poem was composed.

When the young poet left Cummington to begin his law studies, he left the poem among his papers. When his acquaintance with Judge Phillips led him to be read it to a lady who happened to be in the house, and both were moved to tears. The poem was printed in The North American Review in September, 1817.

Burning Novels at the Stake.

The Salvation Army held a "moral burning night" in Dunedin, New Zealand, recently. In the center of the ring on a bier were placed "yellow backs" of all kinds, ranging from "Bluecap, the Bushranger" to some of Dessala's works. The proceedings were under the leadership of Captain Chapple and Lieutenant Mathers. The former declared that if persons gave their time, money and admiration to novels they were idolaters quite as much as the heathen who worshiped his ugly elephant. Works like Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," written for a purpose, were exempted, but the average religious novel was denounced as scathing terms and was declared to be to all intents and purposes a "yellow back" without the covers, with a dash of religion tacked on to gull professors of religion. After some singing and addresses some 300 books and periodicals were destroyed.

KINS INJUNCTION OVERRULED BY THE COURT OF APPEALS.

tice Harlan of the Supreme Court civers the Opinion—The Decision s ional Recognition of the Right of mployes to Quit Work—Other Labor ews.

HICAGO, Oct. 1.—Judge Jenkins' ous strike injunction was overruled the United States circuit court of nals and the cause was remanded h directions to strike out from the training order of the court the se which avoused the country when order was issued and which re ted in the Boatmer investigating mmittee of congress. The inter ions who are representing the leading or organizations of the country asked at two sections of the injunction be minated. The court of appeals de ed that no court could compel a man a body of men from quitting in idually or in a body the service of employer. The court said that Judge kins

THE STRIKE COMMISSION.

Members Meet in Washington and Agree on a Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The United tates commission, appointed to investi ate the Chicago strike, after a two days executive session for the purpose f discussing and deciding on the na ure of the report to be submitted to he president, has adjourned until the ast week in October. The commission was able to harmonize each difference of opinion as existed, and there will be no minority report. The report will be a full document, so one of the members of the commission said, and will, after summarizing the facts as set forth in the testimony and discussing at consid erable length the scheme suggested for adjusting and avoiding differences be tween labor and capital, give its con clusions. Their conclusions, the com mission have decided not to make public. It would, they say, be discour teous to the president to do so.

A Difficult Problem.

"The solution of the problem with which we are to deal," said one of the commissioners, "is a more difficult one than that of the civil war. The government knew what it had to do—meet force with force. This problem is beset with all the perplexities that surround the rights of capital and of personal liberty. We are hoping that the experience of other countries to guide us. The report will discuss the question in all its phases, and, I think, offer something practical, although, of course, any legislation must be tentative."

It is believed that the report will lay special stress on arbitration and will offer a good scheme of arbitration for the settlement of future difficulties.

TO DISCUSS LABOR QUESTIONS.

Congress of Notables to Be Held in Chicago in November.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The Civic Federation of this city has decided to hold in Chicago, Nov. 12-14, a congress of labor leaders, thinkers, manufacturers, representative employers and students of the social questions as related to the laboring fields. Chauncey Depew and Terrence V. Powderly are expected to address a public meeting at the time of the congress. Among the other speakers will be Hon. D. J. Ryan of Ohio, Congressman Springer of Illinois, Hon. Weeks of Pittsburg, Archbishop Ireland, Samuel Gompers, F. K. Sargent, P. M. Arthur, Martin Fox, P. J. McGuire.

MONSTER OF ISSOIR.

MYSTERY OF THE FOURTEENTH ARRONDISSEMENT OF PARIS.

Singular Disappearance of Many Inhabitants of the Quarter—Exciting Its Visitors With Mutte—Death of the Gigantic Spider.

For many years it is undeniably stated that in the fourteenth arrondissement of Paris—called the tomb of Issoir —a number of persons living in that quarter had mysteriously and periodically disappeared. The most careful researches, the most minute inquiries, the most skillful agents of the police had failed to discover the least trace of them.

Every year successively some inhabitants of this quarter would suddenly disappear, leaving their friends overwhelmed with grief and anxiety. It is also stated that these strange, inexplicable facts always occurred in the early spring—from the 20th to the last of March—and without regard to age or sex.

First a notary disappeared. It was thought he had used his client's funds and fled to parts unknown. Then an old woman, returning late one night from market, was the next victim, then a laborer going home from work. The last victim had been a young girl—a flower maker out late delivering her goods. From that time she had as completely disappeared as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Strange to say, no children had been among the victims.

This peculiar fact was accounted for in this way. These mysterious disappearances always occurred late at night, when the children were at home asleep.

As the time was drawing near for one of these periodical mysteries the chief of police became very anxious and instituted a strict surveillance, confiding the matter to a number of the most skillful of his agents, hoping the combined efforts of so many zealous agents would surely be crowned with success. Few will now see the result.

One night—this fact can be verified by applying to the office of the prefecture—a policeman about 2 o'clock in the morning heard a distant musical song, which seemed to come from the bowels of the earth. He listened and fancied the sounds came from an opening in the center of the street, at the foot of the enormous rock called the tomb of Issoir, or the Giant's cave.

It may be interesting to state that this rock received its name from a legend that a great giant had been buried there many years before the Christian era, and this rock had been placed there to mark the tomb.

Surprised at this strange discovery—for the opening had never been noticed before—the policeman waited, listening to this peculiar song, when he suddenly saw a young man approaching. He knew from his costume that he was a countryman lately arrived in the city. This young man also seemed to hear the subterranean sounds, first watching slowly with a peculiar wavering step, as if in cadence with this musical chant, then faster and faster as he drew near the fatal rock, until he ran with such velocity that in spite of the warning cries of the policeman he was swallowed up in this mysterious opening. Without taking a moment to consider the policeman drew his pistol, first firing his revolver and giving one or two vigorous blasts on his whistle.

At this signal several of his comrades quickly arrived. The musical chanting had ceased, but they could hear in the dark, cavernous depths the muffled sounds of a desperate struggle.

By the aid of ropes and ladders they succeeded in entering this mysterious chasm. The light of their lamps revealed a sickening sight.

The policeman was lying on his back writhing in the grasp of an unknown monster. Those horrible appearances and hristling with coarse brownish hair. Eight jointed legs, terminated by formidable claws, were buried in the body of the unfortunate victim. The face had already disappeared. Nothing could be seen but the top of the head, and the monster was now engaged in tearing and sucking the blood from his throat.

As soon as they recovered from their horror and surprise dozen balls struck the body of this sanguinary beast.

He raised up on his legs, a greenish, bloody liquid flowing from his wounds, and, with a frightful cry, expired.

The first policeman, who had given the alarm, was lying unconscious in one corner of the cavern, where he had fallen, a distance of 30 feet.

It was with great difficulty they succeeded in removing the two bodies and the unknown monster from the cavern. The poor countryman was dead, but the policeman was soon restored to life.

The agents immediately sent for the commissioner of police, who summoned a naturalist in great haste.

The first established the identity of the victim; the second declared the creature lying before him was a gigantic spider. The species had been considered extinct for centuries—ever since the days before the deluge. It was called Arachne gigantea, and was said to have the power of enticing its victims by a peculiar musical song. None had been seen or heard of for ages, but it is now believed some of these sanguinary beasts still exist in the deepest galleries of the catacombs.

The dead body of the spider was conveyed to the Museum of Natural History, where it was carefully prepared and stuffed and is now on exhibition.—Once a Week.

THE PICNIC SEASON.

ABOUT THE ANNUAL OUTING OF THE VILLAGE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

It Is One of the Most Important Events of the Entire Twelvemonth—A Long Predicted, Never Expected Accident That Came at Last.

It was after the grass had been cut and cured into hay and stored in the mows and the hays and before the grain harvest was well under way that the Sunday school picnic used to be held by the good people who lived in and about the village called "The Hook." Two and a half decades ago the picnic was one of the three or four really important events of the year there. The three Sunday schools—Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian in order of size—all joined in. Time had been when each school had picnicked by itself, but the liberalizing tendencies of the age had caused a lowering of the denominational bars, so far as recreation was concerned, some years before. The result had been so good the first time the union plan was tried that the next year each of the three preachers, two or three weeks before the outing, stated from his pulpit after the sermon that all who desired to enjoy the picnic were cordially invited to do so whether they attended any of the churches or Sunday schools or not. This took in the remnants of the Universalist church, which had once been a considerable factor, but had gradually declined as the working creed of the three more fervid evangelical churches had grown more liberal. The preachers added to their invitations, and quite properly, that, since all who attended would expect to eat, it was desired that each family or couple accepting the invitation should bring a cake, or a chicken, or some other edible.

In order to avoid any possible friction as to location it was agreed when the union plan was adopted that the schools should decide by ballot on it on the day's outing should be. Of the three available grounds the Baptists were for choice Deacon Allen's grove, both because the deacon was a Baptist, and because the grove was no more than two miles from The Hook, and from its easy sloping reaches free from underbrush the village itself could be seen nestling white in the green of the valley. The Presbyterians were fonder of Crystal lake, a little pond some 10 miles away, where there were better picnic conveniences in the way of permanent seats and tables than at the deacon's grove, while the Methodists always gave their voice for Battermill falls, also a good 10 miles distant, where Bass's creek dropped sheer 180 feet into a gorge that had been worn by the action in the limestone that underlies all that region. There were those among the older members of all the denominational Sunday schools that always mildly opposed either the lake or the falls. They were fond of the entrancing if somewhat lonely picturesque, and that the tables and seats at the lake were far superior to those at the deacon's grove, and they could, sooner or later, some one was pretty certain to pay a dreadful price for these improvements. The placid lake was declared, was as treacherous as it was beautiful, and the fate of whoever should some day fall from the brink of the 200 feet deep gorge into which the falls plunged would be too horrible to think about. In spite of all, the picnics folks continued, to vote for the falls or the lake, and one of these places was chosen two of every three years. And finally the gloomy foreboding of the Baptists and the older Methodists and Presbyterians were in a measure realized.

It was Methodist year, and the falls was the almost unanimous choice of the large picnic meeting held the first Saturday in July between the preaching of the morning and the Sunday school in the afternoon. On the Wednesday evening following there was a meeting of the three superintendents and the picnic committees of the schools at the Presbyterian session house. It was then voted to have martial music, to display more banting than usual, and in other ways to devote more money and attention to the picnic than had ever been done before. There were no serious objections to this plan, nor was there much of the usual talk against the falls as a picnic site. The farmers were making money, for crops and prices had been good for several years, most men had their places paid for, some of them had money in bank, and why shouldn't they devote a little of it to having a good time one day in the year. There never had been an accident at the falls. There was really no good reason why one should happen now.

The sun rose bright, but not too warm, in a blue and cloudless sky on picnic day. At 7 o'clock the three church bells began to ring out in lively measure the approach upon assembly call. Shortly afterward the picnickers began to drive up in all sorts of rigs. There were empty wagons, into which were packed baskets and boxes and barrels of good things to eat—such good things as are produced and eaten only in communities like that of which The Hook was then the central point. There were allipido spring demount wagons and top buggies and open buggies and market wagons provided with seats for human loads that were due day to take the place of loads of small fruits designed for the city markets. There were farm wagons — lumber wagons the people themselves used—that had been fitted out with picnic racks that would carry 40 or 50 persons each for the conveyance of those who had no other way to go or preferred riding in "loads" to going in their own family vehicles. These "loads" were drawn by four horse teams, managed by the most young men driving in the neighborhood, and right proudly did these drivers handle the ribbons. One of the loads was made up of young women clad all in white, with patriotic red and blue sashes.

Promptly at 8:30 the start was made from each church, and a little out of the village the procession took orderly form, the Methodists leading, because it was their year. White whiskered Uncle Nelson Gaylord Ferguson, who had served gallantly in the war and had been mounted marshal every year since the picnic plan had been in force, had charge as usual. He had two assistants on horseback for each school, and three were fifes and drummers scattered at intervals among the wagons. The leading "load" of each school supported a polo from which floated the national flag, and each displayed its own banners and mottoes. The horses were full of spirit and preparations were made to feed the multitude. It was the older men and women who had charge of the heavier duties, of course. Some of the young'r ones climbed down the 1,000 steps that led to the bottom of the gorge, where the little stream whose drop of nearly 200 feet into the abyss formed the ghostlike and beautiful mist and gathered itself together again for its farther seaward journey. Some sat on benches under the trees and exchanged their social views and talked—of the weather perhaps.

In due time dinner was served. It was followed by the usual toasts from the preachers and teachers and singing by the children. Then the young folks played and looked on at other and older talked again, the men discussed the crops and the latest stock sickness, and, mingled innocently, the children romped and swung. By 6 o'clock the home going began to move. All the loads had gone away, the covered carriages and buggies were thinning out, and then came the final packing for but really never expected accident.

The horse that had been driven by handsome Tom Sparks before the picnic buggy in which pretty Susie Allen had shared with him the seat on the way to the picnic was very restive when Tom put him in the shafts for the return journey. However, the beast was finally harnessed all right, and Tom stepped into the buggy to drive to the hock where Susie stood blushing and smiling and waiting. But the fates were against buggy yawned the gorge with its 200 feet of sheer abyss. An impish young steer who had owned one firecracker from the Fourth of July and had been waiting for a good chance to fire it put a match to the little fuse. Then he threw it, hissing and spitting, in front of the prancing horse. The horse reared and backed frantically, the wheels struck the light railing at the edge of the gorge and broke loose. An instant the buggy toppled on the brink, and then all went crashing to the bottom—that is, all but Tom. He thought at first that he could control the horse, but at the last moment he gave it up and jumped to take his chances. The wreck of the horse and buggy was indescribable.

Some many years after that before The Hook again picnicked at the falls, if indeed it ever has. The shock suffered by the inhabitants of the entire region was intense, and of all the sufferers the lad who threw the firecracker probably suffered most, for he was soundly spanked on the spot, although really quite soundly punished by his conscience that he had killed Tom Reynolds.

Tom and Susie were married before the next picnic day.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the studied subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is to-day generally known that the seat of life is located in the upper part of the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that the prick of a needle will cause instant death.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of this nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are damaged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also damaged. Thus the spinal nerves control the muscular system, the second will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by injury to the nerve reaching the paralyzed portion. It will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs of the body, and cause disease.

The chief of all diseases which are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement originating in the organs themself. The great mission of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the effect and not the cause, and rarely ever reach the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. Dizziness, fits, nervousness, sleeplessness, paralysis, pressure, blues, mania, monomania, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principles.

DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by druggists on a positive guarantee first bottle benefits. Dr. Miles' Nervine is positively not a beverage, contains no opiates, no cocaine, no alcohol, no narcotic. Book on Nervous Diseases sent free. Address Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind. Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle, 6 bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

(First pub. Aug. 16th, 1894)

DEFAULT has been made in the condition of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Herman E. Monsell mortgagor, to Olof Stai, mortgagee dated the 30th day of June, A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety three and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk aforesaid on the 5th day of July A. D. 1893 at 10 o'clock A. M. in book 40 of mortgages, on page 457 and did on which there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by the amount of five hundred twenty-seven and 77-100 dollars and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And which Mortgage and the debt thereby secured was duly assigned by said Olof Stai to Ole J. Stai for a valuable consideration and said assigned and transferred to Ella Haller by an instrument of assignment duly executed and duly delivered by said mortgage, Ole J. Stai to said Ella Haller dated on the 29th day of August and the office of said Register of deeds on the 11th day of June 1894 at 9 o'clock A. M. book 57 of mortgages on pages 414-415.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described which sale will be made by the sheriff of said county at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston in said county of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Saturday the 20th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety four at two o'clock in the afternoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and seven per centum on the amount so due as dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described as said mortgage, and sold by said sheriff are all that tract or parcel of land situated in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The south west quarter of section twenty-eight (28) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) Range number forty-two (42) according to government survey.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

W. B. Dowley has been stopping at home for a week, owing to the illness of his wife. Meantime he has made all the villages on the branch lines so as to be ready to go to work next week.

On Hagen, one of the king bees in the populist party, says that Hon. B. Simpson, the republican candidate for state senator, is the smartest and best man mentioned for the position on any ticket. The best man for the people and the best man for the interest of the farmer—and yet, we suppose, Ole will not lend a helping hand to elect such a man.

Cheering reports reach us from different parts of the county. It begins to look as though the whole republican ticket will be elected. We believe it will if the republicans throughout the county will do their whole duty. Farmers are not saying very much but they seem to have reached the conclusion to vote for their own interests this fall. The republican policy of protection to home markets is clearly in the interest of the farmers.

The Princeton Union says that over a quarter of a million of dollars will be paid out to farmers in that vicinity for potatoes this fall. There will not be that amount paid out to farmers in this vicinity, nor anything like it, and yet there is no better potato producing land in the state than we have right here. Princeton has a starch factory that insures good prices every year and that is the only advantage Mille Lacs county farmers have over Polk county farmers.

E. J. Hinsethne was a caller at the JOURNAL office on Friday of last week. He reports having just obtained a fine flowing well on his farm in the town of Belgium at a depth of 36 feet. A. O. Litvik did the business and was only 18 days at it. This is the pioneer well in that vicinity though efforts have been made before and Mr. Hasselthe justly feels proud of its successful issue. It will add at least one-half to the value of the farm also, as well as encourage his neighbors to go and do likewise.

The Fertile fair was a pronounced success in every particular. The display in every term was creditable, the attractions good and the financial part of the business came out ahead of the board. J. V. E. Wyatt assisted Prof. Walseth in his duties of secretary. On Thursday, which was Crookston's day, special coaches went down from here carrying a goodly number and all declared that they had a grand, good time. The baloon part of the business was, as the JOURNAL a few weeks since predicted it would be, "out of sight." The wind blew too hard.

Joseph Lambert was the happy owner of a fine field of potatoes on Tuesday of last week. On one side east of the court house and last week he commenced to dig them, figuring that upon upon the rich rewards they would bring in. When he went out one morning to dig, lo, and behold a great gaseous dell appear in the side of one pile to the extent of some 30 bushels or so. So nonplussed was he came down town and did utter complaint to the minions of the law. And with county sheriff Losey and several other minions did return to the potato field aforesaid from whence they did proceed to follow various and sundry wagon wheels until they came down to the residence of one Julian La Jaube, whose residence they proceeded to search under the authority of a certain search warrant that they had previously secured and found some potatoes corresponding in quantity and quality with the missing lot, so they held Mr. Lajaube in duress and brought him forthwith before Hizzoner judge Gossman. The evidence, while it showed that the potatoes may have been the ones that had been stolen, showed also that the man arrested did not steal them so he was dismissed and went his way rejoicing—but the end is not yet, for it is thought that the right man will have to go before the grand jury and explain.

ROBERT BUCHANAN A BANKRUPT.

His Books Have Been Successful, but His Plays Were Uniformly Unprofitable.

Bankrupt authors are no novelty in London, but when a man like Robert Buchanan, who has been for 20 years a popular poet, for 15 years a successful novelist and for 10 years a professional playwright, becomes insolvent it causes special wonder. Mr. Buchanan is an unusually gifted man, and his literary work, which has been prodigious in volume and uniformly good in quality, has been quite profitable.

His plays, however, have been less successful, and his recent appearance in the bankruptcy court is probably due to ill considered dallying with the drama. Our London dispatches attribute it partly to the failure of the play "A Social Butterfly," which he wrote in collaboration with David Christie Murray, and which was lately produced at the London Opera Comique with Mrs. Langtry in the leading part. The critics were very severe on the production, and Mr. Buchanan, in turn, was very severe on the critics, but the public would not accept the play.

Mr. Buchanan has turned out a large number of plays during the past 10 years, and most of them have been failures, partial or complete. He secured a few successes, however, notably "Alone In London," a melodrama well known in this country, and "Sophia," a play founded on Fielding's "Tom Jones," which ran for several hundred nights at the Vaudeville.

Robert William Buchanan was born in Staffordshire, England, in August, 1841. His father was first a socialistic missionary and afterward proprietor of a newspaper in Glasgow. Robert was educated at the high school of Glasgow and Glasgow university and in his father's newspaper office. In 1860 he went to London and found employment on the newspapers, and his pen has been busy ever since. His first volume of poems, "Undertones," appeared in 1860 and was followed by others in rapid succession, by which he established his reputation as "one of the minor choristers of Victorian song." His first novel, "A Shadow on the Sword," appeared in 1876, and the list of stories which followed is is too long to here enumerate.

It is safe to predict that Mr. Buchanan's financial difficulties will not interrupt his literary activity for he is just as versatile and his mind as vigorous as ever, and his is a spirit that cannot be conquered by adversity.

THE NAVAL WAR COLLEGE.

Lectures For Young Naval Officers In the New Building on Coaster Island.

Up to a few days ago the United States Naval War college at Newport was an institution that existed only to recommend it except a reluctant name and a lofty and useful purpose. For the past two years a number of elegant lectures have been delivered at Coasters' island in the old asylum originally built as a home for the poor of Newport. The war college languished for lack of the sinews of war until congress realized the necessity for a new building and appropriated $100,000 for the purpose. The structure which was recently erected with imposing ceremonies is the result. The summer session of the school has already commenced in the new home, and results of much practical benefit to our naval officers may be hoped for. Speaking of the purpose of the institution, Admiral Stephen B. Luce says:

Intended for officers of mature years, it proposes, on the part of those who attend its sessions, a good technical education, such as is furnished by the Naval academy, and the extra professional attainment generally acquired by men of reading and observation. With such a foundation those who seek to pass to the advantages are expected to take up military and naval history and the laws of war as laid down by the best authorities on international law. The study of war includes strategy, grand tactics, minor tactics, logistics and those branches of international law which enter the domain of entente amiable. Its comprehensive scheme of studies and the ends proposed likes it to the military staff colleges of Europe. In fact, it might be called a naval staff college. A naval staff, using the term in its military sense, has become a recognized necessity of a modern navy.

The new building is situated near the old college. It is of gray Fall River granite roughly finished and is rectangular in form, with a front of 210 feet by 48 feet deep. The style of architecture is Flemish in design, and the entire building is lighted by electricity and heated by steam. Between the two wings the main body will be devoted to the college proper. The western portion of the building is given up to the library. On the second floor there is a large lecture room at each end, which runs up to the roof.

VOL. XVIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1894. NO. 26.

Minnesota Historical Society

ALL lovers of good government should see to it that an X mark follows the name of Judge Collins. The judge has proven his worth upon the bench, and it is no experiment to re-elect him. He represents the country upon the bench.

ONE of the leaders of democracy in the state, Judge Flandreau, cannot accept the endorsement of J. W. Willis by his party. The judge is in a position to know the requirements of the bench, hence his action is significant. There are a great many democrats who feel the same way.

IT is said that Capt. A. H. Reed will contest the election of Joel P. Heatwole to congress, by running independent. It is said that his object is to rebuke the party for not giving him the nomination. The prospects are that Heatwole will be elected in that case the rebuke will be on the captain—where it ought to be. This is no year to allow personal considerations to jeopardize the welfare of the party.

THE populists ridicule the idea of a man's thinking a great deal of his party, but this may be taken with a grain of allowance. "My party, right or wrong," is not a safe guide or rule of action, but where a party is based upon patriotic principles, as the republican party is, we do not see why a man should not be proud of his party and be proud to belong to it. The principles of the republican party are all right.

WHILE F. M. Eddy is going about this district, speaking once or twice a day, Mr. Bob'u is said to be pursuing his still-hunt policy again as he did in his former campaign. We would naturally think that one term in congress would have given him something to say to his constituents but it didn't seem to. Mr. Eddy well understands the principles of his party and knows how to talk about them. Mr. Eddy is good timber to make a congressman out of.

UNDER the pension act of 1890 every old soldier has a constitutional right that this democratic administration has done all in its power to violate. Under a pretense of economy the boys are deprived of their just rights under the law, and this thing will continue until this administration is relegated to the shades. The law was passed by a republican congress and under a republican administration was construed just as the farmers intended it should be.

ON election day, next month, the fate of the country for the next two years at least, will be decided. If the election indicates the early return of the republican party to power, business of all kinds will feel the immediate effects of that event and begin to brace up. If the voters have a due and just appreciation of the condition of things that verdict will be all right. If they haven't had enough yet, their experience will be bitter enough before they get out of the mud.

WE wonder if the average voter ever stopped to reflect that if the democrats retain their ascendency in congress, the same state of things will exist as at present. If indeed it does not grow more so. If because in democratic ascendency, and there can be no doubt of it, then the sooner the danger of its continuance is removed, the sooner will the country get back to a prosperous condition. If there was ever was a time in the world when a man should vote for self-interest, that time is at the coming election.

ON the question of county division the general opinion seems to be chrystallizing in favor of remaining as now, unless, perhaps, in the eastside of the county, where the sentiment runs quite strong for division. There the majority seems to favor the Nelson county project. There are also many in Crookston, while not in favor of any division, who are fearful that unless they favor this project the other will carry, and for that reason they will vote for Nelson county and against the project entirely, they will find out by a rather bitter experience what the JOURNAL has told them all along, that they have paid too dearly for their whistle.

WHEAT FOR HOGS.

Experiences of Farmers and Stockmen in Different Sections.

$1.52 A BUSHEL REALIZED

By a Missouri Farmer Feeding His Wheat and Selling It in Pork.

A good deal has been said on the subject of fattening hogs on wheat versus selling it at the prevailing low prices, but we read the following will be of interest to our readers, as showing what results have been achieved by actual experiments.

These experiments are not confined to any one state or section of the country, but are general.

The following from three different states, widely apart, all tend to prove that fattening hogs on wheat is not only feasible, but profitable.

A Jefferson City dispatch to the St. Louis Republic says:

"Squire Lester, a farmer living fifteen miles west of here, weighed twenty-two hogs and afterwards fed them exactly one hundred bushels of cracked wheat. Today he brought the hogs to this city and sold them at five cents per pound on foot. When weighed for sale it was found that they had gained 1,100 pounds. It cost Mr. Lester five cents a bushel to have his wheat cracked, but even this left him a margin of more than $1.32 per bushel for wheat only about 47 cents in the local market."

Then from the extreme northern part of our own state we have the following in the South St. Paul Daily Reporter:

"A fine lot of wheat-fed hogs raised and fattened on wheat, at Northcote, Kittson county, Minn., came down from the Canadian line, were killed yesterday at O'Leary's packing house. They were fine, and dressed out as well as any corn-fed hogs that come to these yards. When such hogs as these can be raised clear outside of what used to be known as the 'hog district,' and 'corn belt,' it means a new kind of prosperity for the Northwest. There is an abundance of cheap wheat in this country, and we expect to see many loads of choice wheat-fed hogs in the yards this winter."

The St. Paul Pioneer Press of Saturday, Oct. 6th, had an editorial on the subject which is so much to the point that we copy it here:

"The desirability of using wheat as food for five stock, during the continuance of present low grain prices, at least, is having a wide discussion and a frequent demonstration. It has been found to be the satisfaction of the people of the Pacific slope, as the following extract from the Salem (Or.) Statesman shows:

"It took 488 pounds of wheat to make 100 pounds of increase, and 455 pounds of corn to make the same gain in weight. A bushel of wheat made 13.7 pounds of pork, while a bushel of corn made 12.5 pounds. This is in part due to the different feeding value of the wheat and corn and in part to the fact that wheat fed 60 pounds in a bushel of wheat and only 56 pounds in a bushel of corn. The hogs sold for $5.30 per hundred weight. Putting aside the question of labor, a bushel of wheat brought us 70.5 cents, and a bushel of corn 63.3 cents."

"So that a solution of the problem presented at starting, whether fifty-cent wheat and fifty-cent corn may be fed profitably to five-cent hogs, is answered affirmatively as to both; the greater margin of profit appearing, as might be expected, in the use of the grain that has the higher place in the list of cereals. If this is true in a Pacific state, where the home market alone for pork products is available, much more is it true in the case of those farmers who have easy access to the markets of the East, and, through them, to those of the world. It is becoming reasonably clear that competition must be made of the mighty wheat surplus which we have been carrying over from year to year, which will seem to grow larger in the face of successive decreases in price, and which effectually prevents any recovery in the domestic market as long as it remains to bear the price of each new crop. Dairy farming was the key to the puzzle of those who found themselves some years ago on the verge of ruin through exclusive wheat culture. To that is now added hog-raising as an alternative industry for those who find themselves in the same position, for the same reason that they, with this advantage, however, that the transition from the one to the other is facilitated by the proved value of wheat as a food for live stock. We believe that, with this bridge to help the farmer across, the diversification of agricultural industry in the Northwest will proceed rapidly."

Congressman Boon Set Right.

The Fergus Falls Journal calls Ole A. Hagen down thusly:

"There is but one paper in this congressional district which is wasting much space, ink or sleep over the reelection of H. E. Boen to congress, and that is the Roothogger of this city. This paper is pursuing the somewhat remarkable course of ignoring Boen and the principles of the party which he represents and hanging the whole campaign upon the fact that one Foss, who runs a Norwegian newspaper at Moorhead got drunk or said that he would enjoy Dr. Tiegen's wine cellar. What has the fact of Foss' enjoying Dr. Tiegen's wine cellar to do about whom we shall send to congress or the policy of the national government? Can the Roothogger say nothing in defense of Boen's act voting for the silver and whiskey treats? Can it say nothing in his favor or in support of the ridiculous and absurd bills which he has introduced into congress, and which, as Senator Young well put it, "have challenged the astonishment of the civilized world." Can't de that the Roothogger realizes that the less said about Boen and his work the better it will be, and is discussing Foss with a view to filling the eyes of the people with dust? As he proposes, but which he does not believe in and only introduces for the purpose of hoodwinking the ignorant of his district. Boen is too bright to take any stock in the bills he has introduced and the majority of the people of his district are too intelligent to believe that he does. When one goes into the side-show of a circus and sees the Circassian girl with her hair coloring heavenward, or the wild man from Borneo, he naturally thinks that those freaks are true samples of the people of the land from which they came. Now, the people of the United States, seeing Boen in Congress and reading of his bill to print a billion dollars of irredeemable money, to make a mill car a train, to run the Red river south, to reduce the salary of the president of the United States and other equally absurd propositions, at once infer that the great Park Region and Red River Valley are populated by men just like Boen and entertaining his absurd ideas. It has been well said that the Seventh congressional district deserves no such treatment. We believe that the people are getting tired of this business and that they want to see it represented by a man who will cease to make it ridiculous; one who will have confidence instead of creating distrust; who will give to congress and the rest of the United States the impression that his district is made up of sensible and intelligent men who believe in paying their obligations, not in "irredeemable currency," printed in billion dollar lots, but in the honest, legitimate money of the country."

Another Fire.

The fire department was called out about 2:30 a. m., on Thursday last to attend to a conflagration in a house near the Seventh street bridge. The house had recently been taken possession of by A. A. Buckingham, who with his family was visiting at their old home at Argyle, at the time the fire occurred, and there was no one in the house that anyone knows of; it is, however, supposed that tramps had broken into it, and either accidently or intentionally set it on fire. The house belonged to J. W. Wheeler and was insured. The goods are also supposed to be covered by insurance.

While in St. Paul recently we met E. S. Thompson, a former Detroit lawyer, who is now located in St. Paul, practicing law there. Mr. Thompson said: "I hope you people in the country will not allow St. Paul to deprive you of the only representative on the bench the country has. I know Judge Collins personally and I know that a more competent man never sat on the bench. I know that St. Paul will leave no stone unturned in the effort to send a St. Paul man on the bench as Judge Collins' place—not because Judge Collins is not all right, but because St. Paul wants another member on the bench. It will be a shame if Judge Collins is defeated and a St. Paul man succeeds him—but you fellows have got to work sharp or that is just what will happen."

GOVERNOR NELSON,

The Present and Next Governor of Minnesota, Discourses on C. O. P. Principles.

WILLIAM HENRY EUSTIS,

Mayor of Minneapolis, Also Talks Entertainingly on the Issues of the Day.

Gov. Nelson addressed a large audience of the intelligent voters of Polk county, at the Grand opera house in this city last evening. The governor was listened to with marked attention, and his audience was convinced that here was an honest, earnest American statesman, whose anxiety is for the commonweel of American citizens. There is nothing fleaky about the governor and if any went with the expectation of being entertained by any literary pyrotechnics, they were disappointed. The governor is fully convinced that the republican principles are the best for the government of this country and he is armed with an invincible array of facts and figures in support of his belief that are incontrovertible. Every where that the governor goes he finds a crowd anxious to listen to him, and he finds that the people everywhere are tired of the democratic administration and are anxious for a change. The governor's speech was ably supplimented by a rouser from William Henry Eustis, mayor of Minneapolis, who always carries his audience by storm. If we may judge from the size and the enthusiasm of the crowd we should say that republicanism in Polk county is not dead yet by a long shot—and the votes next month will justify. this prediction.

Deserves Your Support.

Miss Ida Hancock, the republican candidate for superintendent of schools is a teacher of long experience in our county schools, has had also the benefit of one term as assistant superintendent. The most serious objection we have heard against her yet is (said to be a fact) that she is not 40 years old. Why that particular age should cut any figure we fail to see clearly, but we can confidently assure all those who make this objection a point, that the little lady is doing her best to overcome that objection and will ultimately succeed. Meantime she is devoting her time and talents wholly to perfect herself in her chosen profession, and her work in this county is a sufficient guaranty that the interests of our schools will not suffer if trusted in her hands. What the county needs in this office is competency, ability, and conscientious work, and this we are assured would be secured should Miss Hancock be elected. The office of school superintendent should be removed so far as possible from the arena of politics and the selection of a lady comes as near this as is possible under existing laws. Again, a lady is apt to be more anxious to make a good record than to be laying wires for re-election. She would devote her whole time and energies to the work and for that reason it might be said of her that she is the best superintendent the county ever had, and she would prize such a record more highly than re election. The JOURNAL is confident of the election of Miss Hancock.

Farmers who paid less attention to wheat this year than to barley oats and flax are not worrying much over the price of wheat, especially if they have hogs to fatten on the wheat, while they depend upon their flax and barley for their money crop. And if they had potatoes and corn also they are in clover.

M'KINLEY TELLS WHY

Plain Reasons For Prosperity in '92 and Distress in '94.

PEOPLE LISTEN AND LEARN

Congress Revised the Tariff, While People Revised Their Views.

M'KINLEY IN THE NORTHWEST.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 8.—Another glorious Republican event was celebrated in Minnesota Saturday night, when Governor McKinley was greeted in this city by patriotic hosts. Ten thousand earnest citizens assembled in the Auditorium to listen and to learn. Governor McKinley was escorted to the mass meeting, at nine o'clock, by enormous processions of Republican clubs, brilliant in campaign uniforms and carrying significant political mottoes, all illumined by miles of waving torches. On rising to speak the governor was greeted by a man in the University club as

"Our Next President."

Governor McKinley delivered the following address:

In November, 1892, a Republican national administration, able, efficient and patriotic, which had been in control of the government nearly four years, and at the head of which was one of our greatest American presidents, Benjamin Harrison, was, by the voice of the American people, voted out of power and a Democratic administration voted in. That administration has been in control of the federal government, in all of its branches, for one nearly nineteen months, and during that period it has employed to the utmost power its time in revising the tariff. It must have been apparent, even to congress, that while they were engaged in revising the tariff, the people were employed in revising their views, and they are only awaiting an opportunity to express those revised views in a constitutional way at a national election. The people of the country were never so anxious in all their history to vote as they are at this hour, and if I have been looking for some one who would move the previous question, and stop all debate, so that a vote might be taken at once.

Those who voted the present administration into power, and those who were opposed to the taking control of the government, are equally regretful and unhappy. There probably never has been in the political history of this country a greater revolution in public sentiment than that which has taken place within the past two years. Every state of the North that has had an opportunity to vote, has voted a condemnation of the present administration, and an approval of Republican policies and principles.

The South Is Dissatisfied Too.

Not only, my fellow citizens, has the revulsion of public sentiment taken place in the North, but there are the same evidences in the South. In the state of Louisiana, less than two weeks ago, the great sugar planters of that state met in convention—men who had all their lives been Democrats, by tradition and by practice publicly proclaimed their allegiance to the principles of the national Republican party. [Great applause.]

When, my friends, has been the cause of this mighty revolution of public sentiment? It is answered in a single sentence. The Democratic party has been running the government for nearly 19 months, and during that time times else has been running. Every industry in this country has been disturbed, every investment has been imperiled, there has been found little employment in their accustomed places, and when they have employed it has been at greatly reduced wages.

Congress has trifled with the sacred trusts of the people, imperiled their investments, disturbed their occupations; they have quarreled and compromised. And at length we get a tariff law, which nobody approves, certainly nobody who lives beneath our flag; a tariff law to which the president of the United States refused to sign. A tariff law which he characterized before its enactment as an act of party perfidy and party dishonor. A tariff law of the chairman of the committee on ways and means of the house declared to be the product of a most gigantic conspiracy to hold the congress of the United States by the throat. A law which has given no protection and some free trade. It has some protection for the southern section of the country; it has a good deal of free trade for the northern section of the country. It makes wool free, and puts a tariff on sugar. Wool is a Northern product, sugar is a Southern product.

That law was made, not in answer to any demand of any party, American people, or not in response to any public sentiment, not after hearing the representatives of the vast interests of this country; but it was made by three senators—one from Arkansas, one from Louisiana, and one from Tennessee. Thirty-two Democratic senators in caucus assembled, by a vote for any bill that that committee might propose.

Tariff Laws of '90 and '94.

Ah, but they say, "Did not the bill is its better than the law of 1890?" Better for what? Better in what particular? Better for whom? Better for any American citizen? If it served any American interest at all it was the sugar trust and the whisky trust. [Applause.] Has it opened up any new factories? Has it opened up any new industries? Has it lighted a single fire in a furnace? Has it given an additional day's work to the workingmen of the United States? Has it increased their wages? How many men, who were employed in 1892, are idle today? How many men are receiving less pay today they received in 1892? Workingmen of St. Paul, workingmen of Minneapolis, workingmen of Minnesota, how many of you who were employed at remunerative wages, are idle today? [A voice: "Two thirds."] Another voice: "More than that." And, my fellow countrymen, whether it be one third or whether it be two-thirds, let me ask you whether that is not a most serious condition of affairs? How many of you who have employment are getting as good wages today as you got in 1892? [Many voices: "No!"] I venture to say, not 10 per cent of the workingmen of Minnesota, or of the cities of St. Paul or Minneapolis, are getting as good wages in 1894 as they got in 1892. [Voices: "You're right."]

Better than the law of 1890? Why, under the operation of that law every industry in this country was working to its fullest capacity. Not only was every industry working at its fullest capacity, but every man in this country who wanted work could get work at remunerative wages. New industries were builded up under that law, and they were bulls up in every direction.

Under the stimulus of the law of 1894, if the representative of the Commercial club of London, that famous man Mr. Wilson, can be relied upon, the law of 1894 has stimulated English industries.

The Dinner Pail Incident.

While on this stand a workingman brought me this dinner pail—this bucket. He told me it was American tin made from American steel, and that steel made by an American workingman, and this tin pail made by an American citizen here, in the city of St. Paul. One week ago today every tin-plate factory in the United States closed down. Why? Because the tariff law of 1894 had so reduced the duty upon the foreign product as to make it impossible for those manufactories to produce and pay the scale of wages they had been paying under the law of 1890, and 10,000 men last Saturday night were put out on the industrial highway in the law of 1894. Not only the 10,000 men engaged in the manufacturing industry, but the 10,000 more men that were making the steel ingots and rolling them into the sheet steel to dip them for tin plate were reduced in their employment by reason of the shutting down of the tin mills.

When I was in the city of Lincoln, Neb., day before yesterday, in the great street parade there was the representative of what was said to be the largest brick company in that state, and the head of that firm WAS a Democrat—NOT NOW—and printed across the banner carried by the idle workingmen was this inscription:

"Twenty-one million brick in 1892—not one in 1893 or 1894."

And that is the story of every city of this country, and in some its of industry or another.

Better than the law of 1890? Why, under the law of 1890 we collected from customs and from internal revenue enough every year of the two years and a half it was in operation to pay the expenses of the government, the interest on the public debt and pensions to the soldiers of the country. And since 1892, when the new administration went in, and the decree had gone forth that the policy that had been in operation for thirty years, under which our industries had been builded up and in which every defense fabric of enterprise has been adjusted, that time flown to this hour, the government of the United States has not collected, any day of any week of those 19 months, enough money to pay the current expenses of the government. And it has been necessary to go out and borrow $50,000,000 and issue the bonds of the government—which has not been done since the days of resumption. Not only been compelled to go out and borrow fifty millions of money, but the draft upon the gold reserve in the treasury—that has been secured ever since John Sherman established it down to the inauguration of President Cleveland, and fifty millions of that gold reserve has gone, to meet the current expenses of the federal government.

Democratic Times of Long Ago.

But it is a history repeated itself. The last Democratic administration before the war was an administration of loans and deficits and distress in business, and the first full Democratic administration since the war is an administration of loans and deficits and of universal distress in the country.
